Four children who suffer from minimal brain dysfunction did simple tasks set for them by Elizabeth Fridden of New York. Mrs. Fridden instructs teachers in techniques for teaching neurologically impaired children at Columbia University Teachers College.

About 100 parents, teachers and professional personnel from 10 provinces and 13 states are attending the workshop, which opened Monday.

Mrs. Fridden had not met the children before the demonstration. Two were five years old, one 7, one 8.

Children with minimal brain dysfunction may be average or better in intelligence. They typically find it difficult to perceive accurately their surroundings, their own body dimensions, to make the connection that enables them to reproduce, relate or learn things they see and hear.

Failure and misunderstanding sometimes adds emotional problems to their neurological problems. Specialized teaching can help them overcome their difficulties.

A little girl, asked to climb through the hole in the back of a chair, would not believe she could do it until she saw Mrs. Fridden first draw it vertically first, then he managed the horizontal copy.

She told the audience later: "What we do is step back and try it again, step back and build up readiness carefully."

The children were told, at a signal, to pick up sharpen and fit them into holes in a disc. One boy always had trouble reaching accurately to the right spot. Mrs. Fridden said the exercise is used to improve judgment in several ways.

She said in an interview after the session that she teaches both six-week summer courses and full courses, but doesn't consider either long enough.

She said she tries to teach a diagnostic approach to each child, that there is no one method that can help them all.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Father: "You stay here where the water is shallow, if you come out where it's deep, a shark might get you."

Child: "I don't like this lake."

Father: "Mother will swim out to the raft while I play with you. Then when she comes back, I'll take a swim. In a few years you'll be big enough to swim in the deep water."

Fear is not a safeguard against any action. In addition the child may never outgrow his fear of the deep water.

Norell Settles the Argument: Waistlines, Belts Are Back

NEW YORK (AP)—If you have a lot of money and a little middle, you are all set for the revised version of the Norman Norell classics.

Though the 65-year-old dean of U.S. designers may have at times ignored the feminine figure lodestation traditionally located slightly above the hipbone, he made up for it in his fall and winter collection presented Monday night.

To be sure, there were the usual simple jerseys, long-sleeved and sleeveless, with tiny Mao collars, and bodies of unfigurative as exclamation points.

But mostly there were dresses, coats, and jacket costumes with belts, wide or tiny, of stitched fabric or shiny patent leather, which circled the narrowly fleshless figures of the maskless anywhere between their bosoms and natural waistlines.

Diminutive midriffs were obviously absolute necessities, too, to carry off Norell's "21 ball-gowns, embellished inspired voluminous skirts of velvet or brocade, starting narrowly at wide cummerbands of contrasting color, narrowing wide at the hem, because of bands of sable, fox or mink.

Not only the waistline but every extra breath was evident when transition later appeared in sheer-on glimmering sequin mail gowns, adored by many show business personalities among Norell's cult.

Nor was a skinny Pinny at a disadvantage in what may be the most expensive mate's back robes in the world. Soaring four-figure price tags, Norell duplicated Cossa in velvet and complemented them with satin shirts of sheer colors, cuffs and neckbands.

Menswear of one form or another appeared in a couple of short-cropped jacket over-a belted flaring skirt to a sailor suit with its big-bowed middy blouse were big features. Influences on his new collection which was actually updating of other collections.

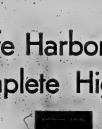
Housewife Harbors Ambition To Complete High School

Mr. Ralph Frid

Miss Margaret Houston



Engagement Notice

Mr. and Mrs. J. Curtis Houston, Belleville, announce the engagement of their daughter, Margaret Aileen, to Ralph Edward Frid, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Frid, Belleville. The marriage will take place in Bridge Street United Church, Belleville, September 9, 1967.

Dear Doris: I will be sending my last one off to school this fall. It has gnawed at me that I should make a plunge and try to finish high school. I am scared at the thought, since my school marks were not all that good, yet I still feel I'd like to prove to myself I can do something besides cook and keep house.

I wonder if you could send to me your pamphlet "On Choosing a Career"; and do you have anything at all on study methods? I do believe when I was in high school I didn't have a clue as to how to establish a proper study system. Anyway, anything my poor marks. — Second Chance

Dear Second: They tell me

well over half the married women in Canada are now in the labor force.

Be that as it may, having another string to one's bow is good insurance against a rainy day. And post-baby-care studies broaden a gal. Just be sure that when those growing girls and boys need you, you are not too tired and harassed to give them your full attention.

It is exciting to make something of your special talents. I'm sending you my ten-cent leaflet on career and study habits; but I'd also suggest some personal vocational counseling, to put you on the right track.

Dear Doris: Where can I get help in teaching elementary things to my totally deaf child, who is now two years old? Someone told it is much too late to let communications begin when he is old enough to go to a school for the deaf. — Worried Mother.

Dear Mother: If there are no preschool classes in your area, a clinic started by the wife of Spencer Tracy can help you. It is named after their deaf son John, now a college graduate.

Write to: The John Tracy Clinic, Los Angeles, Calif.

NOTES: 1) If you want to make the Swiss steak in advance bake it for the 2 hr. period at 300 deg. Fahr. then remove from oven and cool and chill. Two hours before mealtime remove from refrigerator and put in oven at 325 deg. Fahr. and bake 2½ hrs. longer.

2) This steak is so tender that our small children, Jennifer and Douglas, ate it with a minimum of chewing and no complaints.

3) Serve with mashed potatoes or noodles and a big salad.

Swiss Steak Is Fork-tender

By MARY MOORE

Notes from Pete's cottage on Lake Joseph in Muskoka: the sun is shining and I soon will be scrubbing and mopping but duty calls. Margaret and I made a memorable Swiss steak that we decided readers would enjoy. The flavor is rich and perfect, the meat is tender and juicy and it could be made in advance.

TENDER SWISS STEAK
(serves 6)

One 2½ slice round steak cut ¾" thick
1-3 cup flour
1 tsp. salt
¼ tsp. garlic powder (or less)
Shake of pepper
1 med. onion chopped
2 med. slender carrots sliced thinly
2 med. stalks celery sliced thinly
½ green pepper sliced thinly (optional)
1½ cups chicken stock or consomme or water
1 Cup cube

Trim fat from steak and render it out in large heavy frying pan.

Mix together the flour, salt, garlic powder and pepper. With the edge of a saucer or with your steak pounder or rolling pin pound the flour mixture into both sides of the round steak, on a heavy board. Pound until all crumbly strands are broken.

Sear the steak on both sides in hot fat in frying pan until deep gold. Transfer to large baking dish with a lid. (Note: If you are using an iron frying pan you do not have to transfer, for it is ovenproof.) Spread chopped and sliced vegetables on top. Tuck Cox cube in centre. Pour over stock or consomme or water, cover tightly with lid (or aluminum foil) and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 3 hrs, then reduce heat to 225 deg. Fahr. for 3 hrs. longer.

Ann Landers

Laundromat Operator Lauds Housewives

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You probably know as much about human nature as almost anybody in the world. I am no Ann Landers but I have been a front row seat to what goes on in people's lives. I run a coin laundry.

First, let me tell you I am a man. People call me an extrovert. My wife says I have a big mouth and no tact. I am writing because I want to pin a rose on every hard working wife who never thinks of herself as a heroine. Believe me, she really is.

Night after night I see women come in here carrying big bundles of laundry. Sometimes they are pregnant. Where's your husband?" I ask them, and the answers are always the same. "At the ball game," or "Asleep in front of the TV" or "He had to go out some place."

Before I got into the laundry business I used to think that a man who held a steady job had a right to sit on his duff when he got home at night but I have changed my tune. Those women who haul in the bundles of laundry have also been working all day.

Please print this letter. It won't perform any miracles so far as the lazy husbands are concerned, but it might make the wives feel better. — FLORIDA READER.

* * *

DEAR FLORIDA: Here's the letter and, like you, I don't expect any miracles either, but it should make the wives feel better — and I hope it does.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am in bad trouble. I saw an article in a store that I wanted. It cost 75 cents. Dad said I didn't need it, so I took it when the clerk wasn't looking. I know it was wrong. I shouldn't have taken it. But I did and now I am in a real jam.

I showed the article to my brother and that was a big mistake. He says I have to let him have his way all the time now or he will tell my dad about the article I stole.

Please help me out of this and I will never take anything that doesn't belong to me again as long as I live. — WORRIED STIFF.

* * *

DEAR STIFF: Go to your father and confess. Ask him how you can earn 75 cents to pay for the article. Then take the money to the store, tell the clerk what you did, pay for the article and let this be a lesson to you. And you can tell your brother that a blackmailer is as bad as a thief and he should reform, too.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am 22 (old enough to know better) and I made a big mistake. I was going with a wonderful young man who had two more years to finish professional school. I told him I'd wait.

Just as we were about to announce our engagement I had some girl-talks with my sorority sisters and they said the fellow was nice but he was "funny looking" and I'd be ashamed of his looks as the years went on. Like a fool I broke off with him.

That was four months ago and now I am eating my heart out. The handsome jocks are nothing compared with my old flame and I want him back. Any advice? — FOOLISH GIRL.

* * *

DEAR FOOL: Run, don't walk, to the nearest phone. Call the old flame and level with him. If he hasn't replaced you with a dame who has a full set of brains consider yourself plenty lucky. I'll keep my fingers crossed, Buttercup.

Macpherson House Attracting Tourists

NAPANEE — Since it was opened for visitors last Saturday, the Allan Macpherson House has been attracting much attention.

Furnishings in the three rooms so far completed may not be permanent ones. The furnishing committee has used the furniture now in possession of the Historical Society, supplemenating it with pieces of their own, or lent by friends. The period of the early 19th century has been adhered to, and there is a feeling of elegance which must have pervaded the home when it was in its heyday. The linen curtains in the morning room are believed to be hand woven from native flax.

The dining room is very attractive. A chest of drawers is taking the place of the sideboard which will eventually grace the alcove when one can be found. No one knows how long the Historical Society has owned the 96-inch banquet table, now covered with a red cloth. Mrs. Hugh Ramsay, responsible for this room, sees to it that fresh flowers are kept there. The Hitchcock chairs have been lent by a Society member.

The morning room, whose furnishing was supervised by Mrs. Sally Earl, has a hand woven coverlet thrown over an old couch, a fall leaf table, a rocking chair, and some rush-bottom chairs. It looks informal and cosy.

The former hall, now an office, was put in order by Miss Leyba Woods.

The house is open weekdays from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Sundays in the afternoon. It will be closed for the winter Oct. 9 this year, but the day will come when it will be open the year round.

TOWN ATTRACTS DENTISTS

NAPANEE — Two dentists have promised to locate in Napanee, Mayor Lorne A. Smart says.

One hopes to open an office by Oct. 1 and the other plans to start practice as soon as he graduates in March, 1968.

At present Dr. A. E. Fyffe is the town's only dentist. Announcement of the coming of the two new dentists climaxes a three-year campaign to attract a practitioner to the town.

AMBULANCE COSTS APPROVED

Napanee council Monday night approved expenditure of $368 for ambulance service for July. Costs will be reduced by a 50 per cent provincial grant when formal agreement is signed with the ambulance firm, City Ambulance of Belleville.

The firm was awarded a contract to serve the town on June 22, but council is awaiting a formal agreement being prepared by the town solicitor. A second firm, Napanee Central Ambulance, is also in business in the town. Both the Belleville and Napanee firms are competing for the contract to serve Lennox and Addington County.

WELFARE COSTS DROP

Welfare cost in Napanee dropped in July to $4,305 with only 28 persons listed on the rolls.

Costs during the winter months sometimes reaches $10,000 to $13,000 with as many as 120 persons receiving aid, welfare chairman B. W. Asselstine told council Monday.

Clerks Refused Pay for Lost Holiday

OTTAWA (CP)—An arbitrator has rejected an appeal by the Canadian Union of Postal Workers seeking a pay benefit for about 2,500 postal clerks who lost out on the Dominion Day public holiday Monday, July 3.

Professor Harry Arthurs told the union Wednesday, however, that his arbitration decision would not prevent it from other avenues of appeal to the public service staff relations board.

The postal union has threatened a one-day walkout to protest the treasury board's refusal to compensate the clerks. Revenue Minister Benson has warned that any such action will be dealt with severely.

The cabinet decided on the holiday because Dominion Day fell on Saturday. Any federal employees required to work July 3 got overtime pay or another day. But those whose regular day off fell on that day did not receive any benefit. They worked a regular five-day week, Tuesday to Saturday.

PM's Decision to Retire Depends on PCs' Choice of Leader

OTTAWA (CP)—The Conservative party's leadership choice next month is likely to be a key factor in Prime Minister Pearson's decision on when to retire, informants speculate Wednesday.

There is some belief here that Mr. Pearson, who turned 70 in April, would like to step down soon though nobody pretends to know for sure. There is doubt that Mr. Pearson himself has made any decision one way or the other.

Mrs. Pearson has said she hopes the prime minister will quit active politics soon.

There is speculation that if the Conservatives re-elect John Diefenbaker, Mr. Pearson's long-time antagonist, or choose another candidate who could make rapid political strides, the prime minister might decide to stay on a while longer.

Conversely, if he sees no particular danger for the Liberals in the Conservatives' choice, Mr. Pearson might be prepared to retire next year.

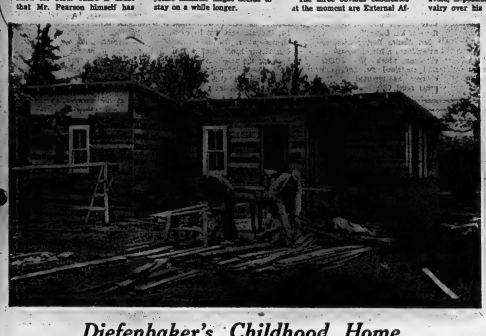
Mr. Pearson considers himself a "reform" Liberal and, it is said, wants to ensure as far as possible that his successor as Liberal leader can be classed in same category.

The three obvious candidates at the moment are External Affairs Minister Martin, 64, Finances Minister Sharp, 56, and Defence Minister Hellyer, 44. Associates of Manpower Minister Marchand, 44, says he is not interested in the leadership.

Mr. Pearson reportedly does not regard Mr. Martin, Mr. Sharp or Mr. Hellyer as reform Liberals.

The prime minister wants to avoid, if possibly, any bitter rivalry over his succession. This might persuade him to stay on longer to provide enough time for an obvious successor to emerge.

Mr. Pearson has often said that his chief aim in office is national unity.



But it is not known whether he considers essential to this aim that his successor be French-speaking.

When Mr. Pearson got caught in the 1958 Diefenbaker landslide, he vowed privately to remain Liberal leader only long enough to get his party back to its position before that debacle.

He did so in 1963 and was so close to victory that the Liberals persuaded him to remain. He won a minority victory in 1963 and again in 1965.

Aides maintain that Mr. Pearson's stock with Canadians now is higher than it has ever been, especially in English-speaking Canada after President de Gaulle's shortened visit.

It is felt that Mr. Pearson wants to close out his political career at the top. But he may want to savor for a while being at the top after two losses in Mr. Diefenbaker and two majority wins over him.

PC Committee Calls for Study Of Possible Constitution Changes

QUEBEC (CP)—The constitution study group at the Progressive Conservative party's policy advisory conference has called for immediate study by a parliamentary committee of possible changes in the Canadian constitution.

The study would be followed by a constitutional conference featuring representatives of all parties in legislative bodies and given the job of recommending the specific changes that are desirable.

These changes should take into account that "Canada is and should be a federal state . . . composed of two founding peoples with historic rights," said the Conservative committee in its report to the advisory conference, which ended Wednesday after three days of sometimes heated discussion.

The committee's recommendation will be placed before next month's party leadership convention in Toronto.

Premier John Roberts of Ontario, in describing Canada, seemed to indicate the path finally taken by the committee.

He spoke in terms of "two founding peoples" and "two societies" after some delegates had argued over the precise meaning of the word nation.

Proposals for the full development of both founding groups took up much of the public discussion at this "thinkers' meeting."

But other topics also achieved prominence, including the question of Canadian recognition of China. A study group on "China and the world" unanimously urged diplomatic recognition of China by Canada.

Several delegates turned their public thoughts to the best system of land ownership in urban areas confronted by such problems as housing costs and the need for planning.

Georges Valade, Progressive Conservative MP for the Montreal riding of Ste. Marie, said the same land in the Montreal region increased in price to $1.25 a square foot from three cents —a result of speculation.

Delegates to Spend $1,225,000

TORONTO (CP)—At least $1,225,000 is expected to be spent in Toronto by more than 7,000 delegates of the Progressive Conservative national convention at Maple Leaf Gardens Sept. 6-10.

W. A. E. Ingram, manager of the city convention bureau, said today this estimate is based on a $35-a-day figure each delegate spent during the 1957 convention. Taxes and other rising costs mean each delegate this year will probably spend more, he said.

To accommodate delegates, more than 7,000 beds in 29 hotels and a dormitory at York University have been reserved.

Revenue of about $100,000 in registration fees is expected, but most of this will be spent on travel subsidies to delegates with costs exceeding $75.

Convention organizers have already reserved seats on trains and planes from all parts of Canada.

Gene Rheaume, executive secretary of the convention committee, says he needs about 240 people working in full-time to handle the convention. "We have hired a doctor and a nurse," he said. "Convention experts say at least five people will likely die during the convention."

To accommodate news media, nearly 40 recommendations made by the Ottawa Press Gallery have been implemented.

These include raised theatre-like seats on either side of the podium, special ball-proof for photographers and television camera positions.

Recognition of Cultures Called for by George Hees

QUEBEC (CP)—Conservative leadership candidate George Hees called Wednesday for universal recognition that it is a basic right of French- and English-speaking Canadians to retain their own languages and cultures in all parts of the country.

Mr. Hees, making his first appearance at the Progressive Conservative party's policy advisory conference here after a Quebec tour, said that "when I become prime minister" a federal-provincial conference will be called immediately to discuss the province's "special problems" and present Parliament with a program to resolve the—

"The fusion of our two founding peoples was made possible by the recognition by the Fathers of Confederation of the right to those who spoke the English and French languages to retain their right to continue to do so and to retain their own distinct cultures.

"If we are to become a truly united nation, these fundamental rights must continue to be recognized by the people living in all parts of this country."

Mr. Hees, MP for Northumberland and a former federal trade minister, said the Liberal government has chosen to ignore that there are many problems which require "special

Return to Two-Parties Not Likely Says Roblin

RED DEER, Alta. (CP)—Manitoba Premier Duff Roblin Wednesday expressed doubt Canada would ever adopt a two-party political system despite an impending return to majority government.

However, Mr. Roblin, a candidate for the National Conservative Party leadership, said five political parties on the national scene were "at least a couple too many."

Commenting on Alberta Premier E. C. Manning's recently published book in which political realignment was called for, Mr. Roblin said he agreed basically with the idea.

Mr. Roblin said the Social Credit premier's call for a return to two-party politics would be good for Canadian democracy but didn't think it possible.

He also discussed the position of the monarchy in Canadian politics, describing it as a "strong, unifying force".

He said he would have to study carefully any move to change Canada's constitution because Canadians have not made proper use of the monarchy, an institution which should be, and is, above politics.

Mr. Roblin said that if the monarchy was abolished, the people would have to think up something to replace it.

Although "restructuring" the Canadian constitution may become necessary, "I don't think this is really clear yet, although obviously there is considerable dissatisfaction in Quebec with the situation that exists," Mr.

Courts Stand Above Police

Thoughts at Large:

There's something unconsciously ironic in the slogan of the Birchers and other right-wingers: "Support Your Local Police," when at the same time these elements are doing their utmost to destroy confidence in the Supreme Court, which sets the law of the land.

Defence Production Zone Offices Close

OTTAWA (CP)—The defence production department has decided to abandon its pilot project, limited to Ontario, to maintain zone offices of the emergency supply planning branch, a department spokesman said Wednesday.

Twelve persons are involved in the planned closing by Dec. 31 of the two-man zone offices in Kingston, London, Peterborough, Sudbury, Port Arthur and Hamilton.

The emergency supply planning branch would be responsible for distribution of civilian and military supplies after a nuclear attack on Canada.

The pilot project was established two years ago. Closing of the zone offices is considered attributable to the changed international atmosphere.

All Evidence Heard in Shulman Probe

TORONTO (CP)—The Parker royal commission inquiry into allegations of government interference in inquests adjourned Wednesday until Aug. 21 when it will hear final arguments.

The arguments will be made by E. R. Jolliffe, lawyer for Dr. Morton Shulman, the former Metropolitan Toronto chief coroner whose charges prompted the inquiry, and Barrie Pepper who represents Dr. H. B. Cotnam, Ontario supervising coroner and object of many of Dr. Shulman's charges.

The inquiry, conducted by Mr. Justice W. D. Parker of the Ontario Supreme Court, has sat for 36 days during the last 12 weeks, heard 57 witnesses and taken more than 2,000 typewritten pages of evidence.

Mr. Jolliffe Wednesday started commission officials when he suggested that the inquiry has not been investigating the allegations as they were first put by Dr. Shulman.

He said the evidence presented at the inquiry relates to what commission counsel Charles Dubin said were Dr. Shulman's charges.

He told Mr. Justice Parker: "It is essential you should know what Dr. Shulman's allegations were in his own words, not those of Mr. Dubin."

Mr. Justice Parker accepted as evidence a file of newspaper clippings which Mr. Jolliffe said contained Dr. Shulman's charges as reported in the press April 6-10, one week before the order-in-council was passed authorizing the inquiry.

Mr. Dubin objected to Mr. Jolliffe's suggestions and to the file of clippings being accepted as evidence.

"If they are not allegations that come under the terms of reference of this inquiry, they are irrelevant," said Mr. Dubin. "We have the allegations in the terms of reference clearly set forward in the record."

In final testimony before the inquiry adjourned Wednesday, Dr. Shulman said that he complained to Dr. Cotnam in 1963 that sloppy handling of cremations left the possibility of homicide cases going undetected.

Dr. Shulman said little has been done about his complaints that coroners often sign the cremation certificate without viewing the body. He said that in some cases, "batches" of certificates were signed by coroners who failed to investigate the deaths.

He said he has also gained little satisfaction for complaints he made to the attorney-general's department about duplication of coroners' investigations.

He said the "foolish duplications," which cost the government an additional $19,000 a month, occur when a person who dies in an institution is to be cremated. He said the law requires a coroner to investigate the death because it occurred in an institution and to investigate again before cremation.

Stripping of Centralia Called 'Ridiculous'

TORONTO (CP)—A report handed the Ontario government has termed "ridiculous" the fashion in which the national defence department stripped its armed forces base at Centralia before selling it to the province.

The report, prepared by the firm of Stevenson and Kellogg Ltd., said in part:

"By the one-sided military logic of the department of national defence, closing this base, it has been relegated to the status of a package of second-out uniforms stripped of their buttons."

In dismay since July, 1966, the Centralia base 30 miles north of London, Ont., was bought by the Ontario Development Corp. for $900,000.

A press release issued Wednesday by the provincial treasurer's department said a federal order-in-council dates the transfer of the base at Aug. 1.

The government release made no mention of the private consultants' report which recommended that the province pay no more than $1 for the 757-acre abandoned air force station.

The report criticized the defence department for stripping the base with "no reference to future civilian use."

The province plans to develop the site as a "fly-in" industrial park.

The report also recommended that the Ontario Development Corp. ask the federal agency, Crown Assets Disposal Corp., to pay the estimated $283,000 required to repair the 80 buildings and 363 houses at the base and restore equipment stripped by the defence department.

A spokesman for Defence Minister Paul Hellyer said in Ottawa he wanted to read the report before deciding whether a reply should be made.

He said that when such installations are shut down, any equipment not needed elsewhere is turned over to the Crown Assets Disposal Corp. Such equipment is then offered to the first to other federal departments, then to the provinces and municipalities.

Revolutionaries Squabble in Havana

HAVANA (Reuters)—Delegates to a Latin American revolutionary conference here worked through the night to prepare today's final session, already delayed by a blow dispute over Russian policy in the Americas.

The conference is winding up with a string of appeals for armed struggle against U.S. dominance, backed by Cuban-led militant radicals.

The issue which split the 27 delegations was a Cuban-backed resolution Wednesday condemning socialist countries which gave credits and technical aid to "dictatorships" and "oligarchies" in the Western Hemisphere—an unmistakable reference to Russia, Poland and other Communist bloc nations which have recently signed trade and other agreements with Colombia, Brazil, Chile and other Latin American countries.

Pro-Moscow Communists did not carry out their threat to walk out if the resolution was approved. But observers believe they might quit the Organization of Latin American Solidarity when they return home.

Observers felt it virtually crystallized Moscow and Havana as two separate poles of attraction for Western Hemisphere Communists.

Another victory for the militant hard-liners came when the same working committee condemned the Moscow-oriented Venezuelan Communist party, conference sources reported.

The Venezuelan party was banned from the conference because it favors electoral means of seeking power and expelled members for joining guerrilla struggles.

The conference also decided Wednesday night to base the organization's permanent committee in Havana, and to hold a conference every two years.

Observers here, speculating on the effects the resolutions might have on Cuban-Soviet relations, said it appears clear at least that Russian Premier Alexei Kosygin had no success in trying to tone down Premier Fidel Castro's revolutionary line during his visit to Cuba in June.

Playwright and Friend Found Dead

LONDON (Reuters — British playwright Joe Orton, who parodied outrageous jokes about brutality and sex in London stages, died violently Wednesday at home with the man who shared his apartment. A friend who called at their one-room apartment found Orton lying dead on a bed with severe head injuries.

The male body of freelance writer Kenneth Halliwell lay on the floor nearby.

Police, who found a bloodstained hammer, said they were treating the case as murder and suicide.

Young Canadians Resent U.S. Influence

WINNIPEG, Man. — A week spent meeting people and seeing things around Winnipeg has helped us submit date some important ideas about our country which are held by a growing number of young Canadians.

First, we seek to make our country an embodiment of our ideals, and as young Canadians, we resent the extent of American influence in Canadian affairs. Secondly, we question some of the mores of our society — materialism and lack of love, for examples. Thirdly, we recognize that our future lies in international cooperation and believe that Canada is in a unique position to play a decisive role.

Young Canadians who have such ideals for their country are disillusioned to find that our domestic and foreign policies are greatly influenced by the United States.

Michael, 19, an economics major at the University of Manitoba, used Vietnam as an example.

"Canada is on record as supporting the American aims in Vietnam," he said. "We couldn't disagree if we wanted to. Defence production has been integrated; we do 60 per cent of our trade with the USA and Americans control vital sectors of our economy (i.e. 50 per cent of our manufacturing industries)."

Michael knew of many schemes for a recovery of control — they required sacrifices on the part of Canadians.

I asked a half dozen young counsellors at a camp we visited if they would be willing to give up a quarter of their living standard for 25 years to ensure Canadian control. I took the figures out of the air in order to guage their feelings. Five of them said they would be willing.

"Personal loss is what has made Canada," said George, 18, "why lose it all now by sitting on our hands?"

Many young people are prepared to make material sacrifices for less tangible things like principles. Unlike our parents who grew up in the depression, we were raised in plenty and are able to see material possessions in perspective. We see that they don't make up for things like an honest pride in country, love, integrity, beauty, or in general, a harmony with life.

"If living means appreciating life," one hippie told us, "then North America has the lowest standard of living in the world.

A teacher-friend posed this question to us: "Which world seem more peculiar? A man running up and down the street yelling 'I hate you!' or a man yelling 'I love you!'?"

The former was our reply.

"Why is this?" my teacher-friend theorized, "why is our society conditioned to fear and hate?"

Peter and I are in contact with this fear on the road every day. For every car that stops to give us a ride, there are at least thirty which pretend not to see us. We never get stranded for more than a few hours, but the bitterness at being shunned is intense. Canadian hitchhikers back from North Africa say that everyone who has room likes to stop. And if there's no room, they stop anyway to talk.

Brotherhood on an international level is more difficult to achieve. Canadians are slowly realizing that our security ultimately depends on the welfare of all mankind. Reduction of American influence would enable Canada to be more effective in her role as an international mediator. This is a role which all Canadians are proud of and one for which we are especially suited.

Our stay in Winnipeg underlined this point. We spent a night at the home of Mr. G. N. Vogel, who as a Commissioner with the Canadian Wheat Board, deals directly with the Russians and Chinese.

"Through our unique trading relationship, we have a special dialogs with the Communist countries," he told us.

Even more important is that Canada herself is internationalist in character. Just spend some time in Winnipeg and this becomes evident. There are Polish newspapers, churches which look like the Kremlin, Hutterites in traditional dress, Ukrainian meeting halls and across the Red River, there is the French-speaking twin city of St. Boniface. There is no melting pot pressure to assimilate — yet, you can't beat the patriotism of a man who chose Canada.

The noisiest Canuck in the stands at a Canada vs Cuba Soccer game we saw was a Polish immigrant who sat beside me. Every time Cuba got a penalty, he would throw out in his accent: "Go tell that to Castro." Needless to say, Canada won the game 3-1.

Today, we push on to Regina, and then north to Edmonton where we'll try our hand at hitching a plane-ride up north. If we have no luck, we will consider the pros and cons of 1,500 miles of Alaska highway.

My dateline next week could be anywhere from Resolute Bay, N.W.T., to Vancouver, B.C. That is the romance of the road.

Ontario Finance Company Can't Collect in Quebec

CAMPBELL'S BAY, Que. (CP)—A Hull judge has handed down a decision which probably will close the doors of Ontario based finance companies to residents of Quebec.

Judge Avila Labelle, sitting at Pontiac County court, ruled Tuesday that Quebec residents who have bought goods in Ontario through a finance company and signed a contract to pay for them need not do so if the original vendor is not registered to collect Quebec sales tax.

Judge Labelle ruled that Niagara Finance Co. cannot take action to recover $759 owed by Francis Devlin of Bryson, Que. Mr. Devlin had signed a contract with the Renfrew, Ont., branch of the finance company, agreeing to pay 36 instalments of $19 each on a freezer bought from Moncton Foods of Renfrew, in April, 1966.

A finance company only has the same rights as the original vendor, the judge ruled and "Moncton Foods has neither residence nor place of business in Quebec and has no Quebec certificate of sales registration."

Midnight Campfires Blaze Across Land

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Thousands of young campers in every province lit campfires at midnight EDT Wednesday and lifted their voices in a nation-spanning chorus of praise to Canada's Centennial.

The event, planned to take place simultaneously in the country's various time zones, was the centennial project of the Canadian Camping Association.

Dr. J. H. Ebbs, a CCA official, said Wednesday more than 300,000 young people at camps associated with the CCA from Atlantic to Pacific sang O Canada and Ca-na-da, the Centennial song.

A message was read at each campfire signifying the spiritual union of the campers with each other and with campers before them who had helped develop Canada.

The CCA has also sent thousands of campers to re-trace more than 3,000 miles of canoe routes followed by early explorers and fur traders.

Barry Lowes, past president of the association, said the group met Minnesota camp Wednesday at Quetico Provincial Park, located on the Canada-U.S. boundary about 90 miles west of Fort William.

The sing-song symbolized the unity of the campers, and the fires typified their hope for the future, said Dr. Ebbs.

Accidents 'Epidemic'

OTTAWA (CP)—Dr. M. C. Mielck, of Haskley, says that for many Canadians in the 15 to 25 age group who became paraplegics as a result of highway accidents last year, death would have been a kindness.

Dr. Mielck, who is herself a paraplegic as a result of a car accident a year ago, told 160 delegates to the All Canada Conference of Young Drivers that in Canada's Centennial Year "we must face the regrettable fact that accidental injury is a disease which has reached epidemic proportions in Canada."

Smelters' Head Backs Deposed Sudbury Chief

SUDBURY (CP)—Kenneth Smith, Canadian president of the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers Wednesday reaffirmed his support for the president of the Sudbury-area Local 598.

The executive dropped its president, Robin McArthur, after Mr. McArthur voted in favor of a proposed Mine-Mill merger with the United Steelworkers of America at a Mine-Mill convention in Winnipeg.

Canadian Mine-Mill members authorized the merger proposal by a 3-to-1 margin in a national referendum last Thursday but voters among the 2,100 Sudbury-area members turned down the proposal, 1,135 to 646.

The national office appointed an administrator for the Sudbury local, James Keshi, after it forfeited.

In a letter to Mr. McArthur Wednesday, Mr. Smith said: "Nothing you have done would place me in a position of declaring your office in Local 598 forfeited.

"However I am giving full powers of administration to Keshi. . . . I seek your assistance to him . . . for the time being all powers as administrator are invested in Jim Keshi."

There's more swamis, savants, soothsayers, yogis and other lookers-into-the future in a newspaper news room than you can shake a stick at in Alben Ben Alt's School of Applied Crystal-Gazing.

At this time of year the ink-freckled, typewriter-pecking, pencil-wielding wretches writhe their noses, arch their eyebrows and cause up with the annual predictions of who or what will win the eastern and western football Conferences and add their choice for the Grey Cup after minutes of frenzied afterthinking.

Seven of the eight mental giants had minds with but a single thought in the eastern showdown pitching Ottawa to win the east-of-Yonge street grapes. The other refused to be dominated by the propaganda-soaked Bytown-ers, stuck by his Tiger guns and picked Hamilton.

Two picked the Cats as second choice. And whether it was the result of soaking up too much of that Toronto "Yes Argue" and accompanying boisterous bluster, six climbed aboard the Argonauts hand wagon to chase Hamilton or Ottawa to the eastern wire.

The dean of the news corps, a former western writer who saw the Calgary Stampeders whip Ottawa Rough Riders in their famous "sleeper-play" Pete Karpuk goof in 1948, calls for history to repeat itself. "The Stamps" quoth he, "will beat the Saskies in the west and take Ottawa in the Cup final."

This gulf-soaked mental echo couldn't pick a winner in a one-horse race may have been affected by the sunbursting of Toronto hazards for the Argos, and picked them as second choice behind Ottawa with the Clair-loé pack taking the Grey Cup gravy.

However, don't sell those pesky Tiger Cats short. While the Rough Riders will go all out to be a participant in the hometown Grey Cup classic, the Cats are poised to avenge last year's thrashing by Ottawa in their two-game, total points title round.

Hamilton goes into the annual eastern football drama with a veteran cast and well-equipped stand-byes in the wings. Coach Ralph Sazio has plugged his defence with off-season trades and with the return today the spartan-hacking could very well push the revamped Argos aside to get at the throats of their arch-heroes from Capital Hill.

If there is anything to this law-of-averages business the Argonauts are due to bounce back into the limelight. The new coach Lou Cahill is a stickler for strong defences and if the up-front forces can come with some consistent scoring the Double Blue could mean a lot of trouble for somebody.

However I look for Ottawa in the east and "T'Coop" unless they fall into a pit of complacency and try to scramble out when it is too late.

In the west I look for a repeat by the Saskatchewan Rough Riders who will trot out the same lineup that made it fairly easy for them a year ago. But watch these Stampeders. They have filled the injury gaps of the 1966 campaign and could become back enough to toss a scare into the Riders.

The Grand-less Blue Bombers of Winnipeg will miss the coaching magic of the "Bud" but I think they'll finish in third spot behind the Riders and Stamps.

In the over-all picture it looks from here like Ottawa and Saskatchewan for the December 2 gravy. Or will there be a series of upsets which will bring Hamilton, Toronto, Calgary or Winnipeg into the showdown battle?

Tony Peres tore out of his slump with two home runs and two singles, driving in four runs as Cincinnati Reds ripped Houston Astros 7-3 Wednesday.

"I have been missing the pitch I generally hit best—a fastball," Peres said after belping the Reds beat the Astros. Peres took some extra batting practice against it Tuesday. The dividends came Wednesday.

His two homers helped Gary Nolan win his ninth game.

In other National League action Wednesday, New York Mets topped Atlanta Braves 5-3, St. Louis, Cardinals edged Los Angeles Dodgers 3-2 in 11 innings and Chicago Cubs split a doubleheader with Pittsburgh Pirates, winning 6-0 and then losing 10-6.

San Francisco Giants game at Philadelphia was rained out.

Nolan had a one-hitter until the eighth inning and survived some late-inning shakiness to beat the Astros.

The Mets bunched four runs against Atlanta in the ninth inning, giving Tom Seaver 22, a comfortable cushion for his 11th victory.

Wes Parker's throwing error gave the Cardinals their 11-inning victory over the Dodgers. Mike Shannon opened the 11th with a double and after walks to Roger Maris and Phil Gagliano, Ed Bressoud popped to Parker. When the first baseman's routine throw to the plate was wide, Shannon scored for third.

Lou Brock and Bressoud homered for the Cardinals while Dick Schofield and Jim Campanis connected for the Dodgers.

Ferguson Jenkins, 23-year-old, Chatham, Ont., product, pitched a four-hitter and became the National League's first 12-game winner as the Cubs topped the Pirates in the first game.

Jenkins struck out nine and retired 16 straight batters over one stretch. He also drove in two runs with a single in Chicago's four-run sixth.

Manny Sanguillen delivered a bases-loaded double that chased home three runs in the ninth inning in the Pirates to a 10-6 victory in the nightcap. Al Lackey had a three-run homer for Pittsburgh.

Earl McCulloch. Davenport's time was 13.6.

Wyomia Tyus of the U.S. virtually hurried across the finish line to gain No. 1 spot in the women's 100-metres. Her final throat gave her a nasty spill, but sufficient momentum to beat out Irene Kirszenstein of Poland although both girls had identical times of 11.3

Washington Senators lost to Baltimore 7-5 in 15 innings Tuesday night. Eight days later, they hooked up with Chicago White Sox in the longest night game major league history in both innings (15) and time (six hours, 38 minutes) and won 6-5.

Then Wednesday, they got straight up in the second longest night game and won again, 9-7 over Minnesota Twins in 20 innings.

"I'm getting used to it," was the joking reaction of Washington catcher Paul Casanova, who played every inning of all three marathon games.

Elsewhere in the American League, Detroit Tigers topped first-place Chicago White Sox 4-2, Boston Red Sox whipped Kansas City Athletics 5-1, California Angels blanked New York Yankees 7-0 and Cleveland Indians edged Baltimore Orioles 4-3.

Washington's Ken McMullen honored off Jim Roland in give the Senators an 8-7 lead in the top of the 20th.

Washington added another run when Frank Howard climaxed the seventh inning spicy-ing, followed McMullen with a double and scored on Dick Nen's sacrifice fly.

After six innings it had looked as if the Twins would move to within 1½ games of the top. They led 7-0 and Dave Boswell was sailing along on a two-hitter.

Then with two on and two out, Senators exploded for seven runs in the seventh.

Pan-Am Track

Americans Lead Europe By 5

MONTREAL (CP)—The Americas track and field contingent move in to tonight's second leg of Expo 67's Europe vs. Americas track and field match with a five-point edge, but coach Dutch Warnerdam of the Americas' squad figures his athletes will have a tough time maintaining the edge.

Warnerdam said after Wednesday night's opener he was "quite pleased" with the overall performance of his team, but he had started to worry when his 400-metre relay team dropped the decision by disqualification to four flying Frenchmen.

The Americans wound up with 79 points to 74 for the Europeans, taking seven first in the men's events and one of the women's. The Europeans took five first places in the men's and two in the women's.

However, Warnerdam says Gerry Lindgren of the U.S. should take the 5,000-metre event against Gaston Roelants of France.

He also said Bill Crothers of Markham, Ont., will have a tough time in the 800-metres against East Germany's Franz-Josef Kemper.

The only competitor near a world mark was Vince Matthews of the U.S. who ran the 400-metre distance in 45 seconds, one-tenth of a second off the world mark.

The first event of the evening, the 110-metre hurdles saw Willie Davenport of the U.S. shade fellow-countryman Jenkins Eyes Twenty-Win Plateau

CHICAGO (AP)—Chicago Cubs have had only two 20-game winners in the last 12 years. Fergie Jenkins is confident he will become pitcher No. 3.

The lanky, 23-year-old right hander who starred in hockey, soccer and basketball as well as baseball at Chatham, Ont. has become the season's first 19-game winner in the National League.

He hurled a four-hit, 6-0 shutout over Pittsburgh Pirates in the opener of a doubleheader Wednesday to boost his mark to 15-9.

He also drove in two runs with a pair of singles off Bob Veale, who helped the Cubs along with eight walks.

Jenkins has buried four complete games in a row and has gone the route 15 times this year. He has been nearly invincible in Wrigley Field, where he is 12-3 in a park regarded as a chamber of horrors by most pitchers because of the compact size shortness to left- and right-centre.

In registering his second shutout, Jenkins walked none, fanned nine and mowed down 21 consecutive batters from the third through the eighth.

Bisons Snap Loss String

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The International League, dominated by pitching throughout most of the season, saw the hitters finally showing their mettle Wednesday night.

Buffalo Bisons broke a lengthy losing streak by quelling a tenth-inning rally to defeat Toronto Maple Leafs 6-5. Syracuse Chiefs rallied for an 8-6 triumph over first-loading Rochester Red Wings and Columbus Jets whacked Toledo Mud Hens 10-6.

In the only low-scoring game, Bob Bruce scattered six hits to pace Richmond Braves to a 2-1 win over Jacksonville Suns.

The Leafs bowed when Jim Russin lined into a double play with the bases loaded. Jim Dufala, 3-6, was the winner. Gary Roggenburk, 5-7, took the loss.

Western Scoring Leaders

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Halfback Jim Thomas showed Ottawa Roughrider fans why he is nicknamed "Long Gone Thomas" as he scampered for two touchdowns Wednesday in a losing cause for Edmonton Eskimos in Canadian Football League interlocking game.

Thomas' two touchdowns vaulted him into a share of first place in the Western Football Conference individual scoring race while his team is on the bottom of the western division after the 28-25 loss.

In Vancouver, the Blue Bombers trounced Calgary Stampeders 27-16 but a player from each squad was knocked out of play with touchdowns. They were Ken Nielsen of Winnipeg and Lorrie Coleman of Calgary.

The leaders:

20 Hits, Eight Errors Kingston Ousts Lombanks

By ROBERT SNEZIELLA

This is a fairy tale.

Last night Belleville Lombanks had their faces pushed into the dirt by Kingston Indians by a score of 18-7, in their EOBA semi - final series. The tragi - comedy was filled as the third and deciding game in the playoff.

Kingston will now meet Brockville in a finals for the league championship.

The hapless locals gave up 20 hits, and committed eight errors in the field, and were never in contention.

Kingston scored three runs in the first, and rocketed to a 16-1 lead after five innings, as they pasted Belleville's three - man pitching staff.

In the sixth, however, the visitors ran into a surprise, as Lombank shortstop Pat Anastatins took over the mound duties and threw an assortment of good pitches. Anastatins held the winners in only two runs in burling the final four innings. He was touched for three hits.

Starting pitcher Rodger Hunter lasted 1-3 innings for Lombanks, and gave up five runs on five hits. Bill Latchford, displaced by several errors by his mates, allowed five runs and four hits. Don Masters, fresh from a no - hitter a week ago, allowed six runs and eight hits in one inning of pitching.

Winning pitcher Keith Weese started well but grew shaky in the late innings. He gave up 13 hits, and received relief help from Doug McEvoy in the ninth.

Keith Weese, Jim MacDonald, Mac Dunc all had three assorted hits, and Ron East four hits, for Kingston.

Larry Soule was the lonely light for the losers. He slammed a double and two singles for a perfect night at the plate. Larry Mavety doubled, and singled, Anastatins had two base hits, as did Moe Hunter.

Nip Hotel 7-6

Warners Eye Playoffs

Stewart Warner hung onto their slim chance of reaching the Commercial softball league playoffs as they nipped City Hotel 9-7 last night.

The winners are now two points back of the fourth and final playoff position, which is occupied by Lightfoot's. Lightfoot's did Stewart Warner both have one game remaining.

In another game Stinson's assured themselves of a playoff berth with a 13-2 romp over the Tiki Club.

City's loss kept them locked with Black Diamond in first place.

The losers last night jumped into a 4-1 lead after two innings, but Warners bounced back in front with a four run burst in the fifth. It was tied again at 6-6 after the fifth. In the sixth Stewart Warner took a one run lead, only to have it erased by the City in the top of the seventh. However, the insistent winners were not to be denied, and won it with a lone tally in the bottom of the seventh.

Dave Dorsey hurled nine-hit ball for the losers while Jim Meens and Doug Ellis gave up an identical number of hits for Stewart Warner.

Gary Gow paced Stewart Warner at the plate with four singles. Lyle Wannamaker slammed a triple and single, and Moe Hawkins, Jim Meens and catcher Chuck Rowbotham had lone hits.

Jack Hughes stroked a double and two singles for City. Doug Hull, Gerry Genereaux, Bob Lloyd, Tom Coolen, Dave Feeney and John Garner had lone hits.

Day hurled Stinson's to their lopsided decision over the Tiki, giving up four hits and fanning seven.

Bill Wickens allowed 7 hits and struck out six for the losers.

Bob Boyle clouted five hits, and Paul Stinson had one less, for the winners.

EARL BATTEY DISABLED

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Minnesota Twins placed catcher Earl Battey on the disabled list for 21 days Wednesday and called up veteran minor league catcher Hank Izquierdo from their Denver farm team in the Pacific Coast League. Battey suffered a dislocated right thum when struck by a foul ball in Tuesday night's Twins-Washington game here.

19-Year-Old Sparks Ottawa To 28-25 Victory Over Eskimos

OTTAWA (CP)—Margene Adkins, a highly - touted 19-year-old end from Tyler, Texas, lived up to his pre-season billing Wednesday night as he led Ottawa Rough Riders to a 28-25 triumph over Edmonton Eskimos.

Adkins showed $1,803 fans that the Riders can be dangerous from any point in the field as he caught six passes for 151 yards and two touchdowns in the first game of the regular Canadian Football League season for both clubs.

The Riders, defending Eastern Football Conference champions, were weak in the backfield and blocking department in the first half and had to hang on in the dying seconds after taking a 28-18 lead on a brief second-half scoring blitz.

Edmonton narrowed the gap to 28-25 with 25 seconds to play and grabbed the ball on a short kickoff on the Ottawa 49-yard line. But defensive halfback Don Sutherin, acquired from the Western Conference Eskimos in a trade last week, saved the day when he battled down a pass from Edmonton quarterback Frank Cosentino intended for flanker Peter Dalrymple on the Ottawa 10-yard line.

Cosentino was good on his next pass attempt, but halfback Jim Thomas, who scored two of Edmonton's three touchdowns, was knocked out of bounds by linebacker Mike Blum on the Ottawa 36 as the game ended.

Ottawa quarterback Russ Jackson's passing was sharp and he clicked twice with Adkins on touchdown plays covering 48 and 41 yards and once with fullback Rick Black for five yards and is got three touchdowns in 15 minutes.

Jackson also scored on a keeper play, carrying six yards around left end. All four touchdowns were converted by Moe Racine.

Jackson completed 17 of 25 passes for 286 yards in the game with one interception. Both backs managed only 26 yards on the ground, which, coupled with 45 yards lost when Jackson was tackled behind he could get his passes away, left Ottawa with a net rushing total of only 43 yards.

Cosentino also displayed a sharp passing arm, completing 14 of 18 attempts for 216 yards, including a 65-yard gain on a screen pass to fullback Art Perkins. Flanker Randy Kerbow caught seven passes for 87 yards.

But all of Edmonton's touchdowns came on running plays. Thomas, who ran for 70 yards in 14 carries, got two on four-yard runs while Perkins, who carried 12 times for 67 yards, got the other on a 15- round play. Kerbow kicked a 35-yard field goal and three converts while flanker Randy Kerbow added a single on a 45-yard punt for Edmonton's other points.

The Eskimos had 23 yards attempting to pass and finished with a net gain of 107 yards rushing.

Cannifton Nips Read, Leads 2-1

Cannifton and Read are perhaps the most closely matched teams in the South Hastings league, and last night they proved it again.

Cannifton notched two runs in the final frame and then squelched a Read rally one short of the mark to edge Read 3-2. The win gave Cannifton a 2-1 lead in the best-of-seven series.

The winners led 6-4 after four frames, and added two more runs in the final inning. In the Read half of the sixth, Pete Enright slammed a three-run homer to pull within one run, but that was all they could muster.

Court Bralley, former catcher now turned pitcher, was the winning moundsman. He required help from Garnet Adams in the sixth. Together they fanned four and walked four.

Frank Farrell started and was relieved by Harold Pascoe in the fourth, for the losers. They struck out three and walked four. Six errors by their mates hurt their chances.

Ron Urch, Eric Emerson, Bob Moon, Hugh Petrie, Court Bralley, Larry Adams and Howard Skelly all had singles for Cannifton.

Wayne Pascoe and Ted Abrams singled twice, Ken Abrams had a two-run homer, and Gene Farrell and Gerald Brennan added base hits, for Read. Enright had his home run.

Trap and Gun Results

George Roberts led the shooters at the Quinte Trap and Gun Club's Wednesday competition with a perfect score of 25.

Lloyd Sine was second at 24, A. Carr and D. Thomson had 23, Dr. J. Hale, D. Johnston 21, and Mrs. A. Carr 17.

Commonwealth Golf

Canada, South Africa Share Second

VICTORIA (CP)—Canada hoped to dominate the singles events in today's third round clash with Australia in the Commonwealth golf matches.

So says non-playing captain Phil Farley after his team's narrow 5-4 victory Wednesday over South Africa.

"The boys seem more competitive when they are playing individual matches than they are in the foursomes."

Britain also showed strength in the singles by overcoming a 2-1 foursome deficit in posting a 5-4 win over the Australians.

The second-ranked Britain into first place in team standings with three points. Canada and South Africa share second, each with two points. New Zealand, idle in Wednesday's draw, has one point.

Australia and Britain are the defending champions in the amateur tournament, last played in 1963 at Sydney, Australia.

It took the Canadians until the final singles match to clinch day before they finally defeated the stubborn Springboks.

John Johnston of Vancouver, playing in his first Commonwealth competition, finally posted a one-hole lead over John Fourie when he dropped a 16-foot putt on the 17th that gave him an eight three to his opponent's birdie four.

Johnston needed a one-under-par 69 over the par 35-37—70 Victoria golf course seaside layout to defeat Fourie, South Africa's best match play.

Keith Alexander, a Calgary printing executive, also found sub-par golf a requirement in nip South Africa's Cornie Du Toit, 1 up.

Also beating par, their way to easier wins, were Gary Cowan of Kitchener, Ont., and Nick Weslock of Burlington, Ont.

Weslock was two under par when he beat Dave Symons 3 and 2. Symons was even with regulation figures.

Hugh Baiocchi and Rod Mullen gave the Springbok their singles wins when Baiocchi thumped Calgary's Doug Silverberg 6 and 4 while Mullen was timming Vancouver's Wayne Vollmer 2 and 1.

Rowing Championship

Dip First Oars Today

ST. CATHARINES, Oct. (CP)—The first North American rowing championships got under way today with crews and teams from 18 countries competing in heats in six of the seven scheduled events.

First event on the program for the second largest gathering of amateur rowing history was an elimination heat in the coxless four event.

The regatta is being run over the revamped Royal Canadian Henley course, a six-lane, 2,000-metre straightaway.

With 300 oarsmen on hand only one event—the double—will be run without heats. Teams from Canada, Germany, Mexico and the United States are pitted against the favored Swiss scullers defending world champions in the doubles and winners at this year's Royal Canadian Henley regatta.

Heavy rains hit the Niagara Peninsula momentarily Wednesday, cancelling practice sessions and delaying the official opening of the championships by secretary of State Judy LaMarsh welcomed the competitors.

The winners opened with five runs in the first two frames while Carm's managed three. Point Anne pushed across two more runs in the next two innings, and thereafter it became a pitchers' battle.

Bob Marcle gave up seven of his eight hits in the first four frames.

Bob Last was hit easily in the early going on the losers' mound, and Clair Leahy relieved him in the third. They were scored upon in each of the first four frames and shutout Point Anne in the last five.

North American Rowing

20 Years Behind Europe

ST. CATHARINES, Oct. (CP)—The president of the International Federation of Rowing Associations (FISA) says that North America is 20 to 30 years behind Europe in its approach to the sport.

Thomas Keller of Switzerland said in an interview Wednesday that failure to accept new techniques in training is hampering the progress of both Canada and the United States.

"There is a whole new generation of competitive rowing in Europe," Keller said, "but here the old generation is unwilling to change the old ways."

Keller explains that the once-popular theory of putting a junior oarsman in a crew of eight now has been thrown out in favor of European training methods, but it still is used in North America.

"We believe that a boy should begin rowing at about the age of 14 and he should begin in a single scull," he said. "If he begins in a crew of eight, the rest of the crew can compensate for the boy's mistakes. "But if he has to do it alone, he will learn fast."

Keller also noted that there is not enough use of senior club rowing on the continent.

"Building crews from university is not the answer. You can't get a good crew that way.

Keller commended the Royal Canadian Henley course over which the four-day North American rowing championships will start today.

"There are a number of minor points that need attention at the moment," he said. "They can be easily rectified."

The last world championships earlier this year at a cost of $1,600,000 and is the only FISA-sanctioned court on the continent.

Minor Baseball

In two pewee round-robin playoff contests, IBEW defeated Sines Sheiks 7-4 while Tip Top Lunch Boys fought to a 6-6 deadlock.

Mike Burley and Allan Wood pitched a seven-hitter and fanned eight for IBEW, and Blaine Mullins and Ron McTaggart took the loss. The later pair had 13 strikeouts.

Stephen Burks slammed a single and two doubles, and Terry Collins a double and single, for IBEW. Bill Counsell, Ron Burley and Mike Wagar also hit safely.

Bob Menard, Blaise Mullins and Ron McTaggart had the losers' hits.

Bud Boys scored a run in the first inning to grab the tie with Tip Top.

Dave Smith and Dean Lang pitched a three-hit batter-and-strike out 16 for Tip Top, while Dan Cordeau, Brian Cousins and Gary Ricketts allowed four hits and fanned 10 for Bud Boys.

MacLeod, Keith Watson and John Tracey hit for Tip Top while Dan Cousleon and Brian Cousins had Bud Boy's hits.

The Tracks

FORT ERIE, Oct. (CP)—Owner Ernie Lieberman, trainer Arthur Smithers and jockey Kelly had a field day at Fort Erie raceway Wednesday when three of their horses recorded victories.

The highlight of the day for the trio came in the featured seventh race when Lieberman's Bunny Exacr raced to the wire 1¼ lengths ahead of Pat's Dream. The filly covered the mile-and-sixteenth route in 1:12 and returned $7.40, $3.80 and $3.50.

Lieberman purchased Bunny Exacr at the Canadian Thoroughbred Horse Society's sale of yearlings at Toronto in 1956. The horse has since earned $5,005 in four races.

The Lieberman, Smithers, Kelly combination also won the third race with Bandit Beat and the highstep with Copper Fire.

Kelly also guided Krakatoga to a win in the fourth. The four victories gave him a total of 68 wins at the present meet.

With The Trotters

TORONTO (CP)—Maxie Mir, owned by Adam and Gerard Miron of Ste. Augustin, Que., Wednesday won the sixth renewal of the $9,895 Champlain Futurity, pace of Greenwood Raceway.

The homebred son of Senator Spangler held off the charge of Armbro Impact and, with Guy Gendron in the sulky, finished to a half-length victory to return $9.50.

Mad Mir's stablemate, Western Hanover, third in the male pacing race was later disqualified and dropped to fourth place for bringing a lapped-on break at the finish wire.

Keith Waples, veteran driver from Victoria Harbor, Ont., reined Mr. Doug Smith to victory in the first.

The victory gave Waples a tie with Ron Faegan of Goderich paid $11.20.

for top honors of the meet. Both drivers now have a total of 25 meet winners. It was also the 135th season victory for Waples, Top Canadian sulky skinner.

Dr. Doug Smith combined with Nurse G., winner of the second race, for $23.70 daily double.

The combination of Wayyona and Oneida Howard in the sixth provided an exacta of $38.30.

BATAVIA, N.Y. (CP)—Little Model Hoffman, nine choice, Wednesday won an hour's feature victory in the featured $16,000 two-year-old stakes for fillies at Batavia Downs raceway.

The filly, driven by Vernon Dancer, won the mile pace in a time of 2:05 4-5 and returned $2.20.

The daily double of trotter Glen Scott in the first and pacer Golden Tag in the second paid $11.20.

Bombers Blast "Bumbling" Stampeders In Sparkling 27-16 Win

WINNIPEG (CP)—Calgary Stampeders bumbled their way to a 27-16 loss Wednesday night to Winnipeg Blue Bombers. This was the appraisal of Stampeder coach Jerry Williams at the end of the Western Football Conference game.

"Let's be frank," said Williams in the dressing room. "We played a lousy football game."

He was particularly peeved at the way Stampeders contributed to their own downfall with a minus rushing output, an opening-kickoff fumble and a costly roughing penalty.

Across the field rookie head coach Joe Zelecki was delighted with his club's effort before 19,727 fans—the largest crowd ever for an opening home game.

"We picked up right where we left off in Edmonton . . . the same kind of desire."

Bombers dumped Edmonton Eskimos 29-6, Winnipeg has sole possession of first place in the WFC, two points ahead of Calgary and Saskatchewan Roughriders. Eskimos get a chance to catch up Friday night when British Columbia Lions visit Regina.

The trend of the game was apparent seconds after Winnipeg's Roger Hamelin kicked off.

Rookie Ben Woodson dropped the ball and it bounced to Morley Rathbone of the Bombers.

Veteran quarterback Kenny Ploen threw a third-down 22-yard pass to Gordie Brown, who tumbled into the end zone to send Winnipeg ahead with less than two minutes gone in the contest.

For the next 30 minutes, a stout defence spotted by blocker Wayne Harris kept Stampeders in contention. Then Bomber Ernie Pitts intercepted a long pass and Winnipeg was off and running for touchdowns by Dave Raimey, Ken Nielsen and Ploen.

With the outcome beyond doubt, Peter Liske threw touchdown passes to Lovell Coleman and Rob Paremore for Calgary. Hamelin booted two converts for Bombers while Bill Van Burkleo contributed a punt single. Jim Furlong boomed two punt singles for Calgary; Larry Robinson converted two.

Liske pestered by Bomber defenders, managed to complete 11 of 27 attempts for 203 yards, but had two passes intercepted and was pulled down five times for a loss of 51 yards.

That was the reason Calgary finished with minus seven yards rushing. Coleman, held to 16 yards rushing, caught seven passes for 128 yards.

Winnipeg had 152 yards passing, 119 rushing for 13 first downs. Ploen completed 14 of 31 attempts, Nielsen caught eight for 88 yards and Butch Pressley led the ground attack with 51 yards on 10 carries.

Open Tennis

Upset Winner Not Optimistic

MONTREAL (CP)—Lester Sack of Clarkdale, Miss., the only major upset winner so far at the Canadian Open tennis championships is not optimistic about his chances of capturing the men's singles title.

"I'll be trying," he said in an interview Wednesday. "I'm up with players like Ramirez and Santana. . . ."

Observers didn't give Sack much chance of eliminating fourth-seeded Jaikip Mukerjea, but he beat India's No. 2 player Wednesday in a marathon singles match 7-5, 3-6, 6-3, 1-6, 6-2.

The game was continued from Tuesday night after Sack complained he couldn't play as well under lights. Rain halted play in mid-afternoon Wednesday before the arrival of the Open's two big stars—top-seeded Roy Emerson of Australia and second-seeded Manuel Santana of Spain.

Unseeded Luis Garcia of Mexico was leading eighth-seeded Herb Fitzgibbon of New York 5-3 in the first set of the third-round men's singles when rain halted play until today.

In the women's singles, eighth-seeded Brenda Dunn of Toronto lost to unseeded Olga Montano of Mexico in the second round 5-7, 6-4, 6-3.

Other women's seeds performed according to expectations.

Judity Leong of Hawaii was eliminated in the second round by third-seeded Vicki Berner of Vancouver 2-6, 6-2, 6-2.

Faye Urban of Windsor, Ont., fifth seed, defeated Inge Weber of Toronto 6-3, 10-8 in second round play.

CPGA Record Entry

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP)—A record 212 entries have filed for the Canadian Professional Golfers Association championship Aug. 17-19.

Leading the parade will be defending champion Moe Norman of Gifford, Ont.

But one of the toughest fields entered in the 5-year history of the event will be battling to replace him as champion in the event played on the 6,700-yard, par-72 St. Catharines Golf and Country Club.

Among the challengers will be eight-time CPGA winner Stan Leonard of Vancouver, who last weekend finished second in the British Columbia Open, and 1965 CPGA champion Wm Homenuik of Winnipeg.

The 1964 CPGA titlist, George Knudson of Toronto, also will be battling for first prize as will Al Balding of Toronto, who won the title in 1955, 1956 and 1963.

The previous record entry was 182 in Montreal in 1965.

He left Victoria Feb. 6 with $280 and a 50-pound back labelled "No rides please." Mr. Gallant, whose hobby is marathon running, stopped in Lethbridge, Regina, Winnipeg, Sudbury and Ottawa, for a week each to earn money along the way.

The Voyageurs are a group of eight canoeists following the river route of Alexander MacKenzie, early explorer.

Jocelyn Leads Scottish

DUNBAR, Scotland (Reuters) — Former Canadian champion Jocelyn Bourassa of Shawinigan, Que., held a three-stroke lead Wednesday after the second round of the 54-hole Scottish open girls' medal-play golf championship.

Miss Bourassa, 1965 Canadian women's champion, carded two rounds of 77 for 154 to lead Ann Hughes of Wales who finished at 157.

Sandra Post, 19, of Oakville, Ont., the Canadian junior champion for the last three years, was five strokes behind the leader in fourth place.

Pamela Miller of Oshawa, Ont., runner-up in this year's Canadian junior championship, was another stroke behind.

A further stroke behind was Jane Kirkpatrick, a 19-year-old Toronto student.

DISCUSS SALARY

MONTREAL (CP)—Halfback Phill Bradley and Montreal Alouettes are far apart in salary negotiations and there is a chance he may start playing out his option Friday, official opening day of the new season for the Als when they play in Toronto. "I'm certainly not trying to get out of a contract, I don't want to leave. If they offer me a reasonable salary I'll sign," said Brady. Coach Ray Dalton said he is "not going to pay anyone a salary that is out of balance with what we are paying others."

Promises Not Honored

Paddlers Blast Expo Treatment

MONTREAL (CP)—Four Ontario university students, who paddled a canoe 620 miles to Expo from Peterborough, Ont., say the "promises we were given were not honored."

George Ade, David Garrich, Dan Delong and Rodney Hammel, all students at Trent University in Peterborough, say the Expo office in Toronto promised them "red carpet treatment" on arrival here.

"From Expo's point of view, we were just another group of 'kooks' who came to Expo in an unusual way," George said in an interview.

The quartet fought rain, storm and finally the Lachine Rapids to make it to Expo last month in time for their "appointment."

There was no reception for them, and if it had not been for the commodore of the Marina Expo, they might have been sent paddling back to Peterborough.

The Marina offered a warehouse floor as sleeping quarters. Expo officials, however, denied them passes which they needed to accomplish their Expo project—to build a cairn of stones from each of Expo's 62 national pavilions.

Scottish tradition says that whoever places a stone on a cairn gets good luck, and the students had decided to bring luck to each of the countries participating at Expo.

"We spent two weeks sneaking on and off the site at odd hours," Rodney said. Finally he met a Youth Pavilion official who took interest in their case and got the students passes.

Most of the pavilions responded generously to the plan.

"Mexico is giving a piece of Mayan temple and Egypt a chip of an alabaster statue of Queen Nefertiti," Rodney said.

"Israel is giving us three mounted gem stones from King Solomon's mines and Yugoslavia and Iran engraved pieces of marble.

"Even Belgium, which has no material available, save what is used in the construction of the pavilion, is donating a nice Belgian brick."

Armed with a letter from Pierre Lebeuf, director of the Youth Pavilion, the students found it easier "dealing with officials."

They intend to complete the cairn even if they have to take it back to university with them this fall.

Major Speech Expected

De Gaulle Schedules Unusual TV Address

PARIS (AP)—Faced with apparently rising discontent for his actions on both the foreign scene and at home, President de Gaulle makes an unusually-timed radio and television speech tonight.

De Gaulle will talk to France in the midst of the traditional French vacation season, when thousands of persons have gone to beaches or mountainside and to other countries.

The odd timing of his address has aroused speculation that it will be of major importance.

De Gaulle's aides have indicated he will deal with France's position in the world and the situation of Frenchmen at home—broad subjects which have set off sharp controversy.

He may have a further explanation of why he openly encouraged Quebec separatists during his trip to Canada late last month. His "Long live free Quebec" cry in Montreal was called unacceptable by Ottawa so de Gaulle cut the federal capital off his itinerary and came home.

He may also develop his Middle East stand which has been against Israel and largely for the Arab states. De Gaulle has called Israel the aggressor in the June Mideast war.

The French president may attempt to smooth over criticism of his profit-sharing plan for certain French workers and of his reform of the national social security system. Decrees dealing with both programs were approved flatly by the cabinet Wednesday, acting under special powers granted by a reluctant parliament.

The profit-sharing plan, affecting companies with 100 or more employees, has found little favor from either business or labor. Business leaders see it as further government interference and many workers would prefer straight salary increases instead of uncertain profit sharing.

Both employees and companies will benefit more for social security benefits—medical care, family allowances and other grants—under de Gaulle reforms. The increases were deemed necessary to trim a huge deficit in the system.

Dief Asks Parliament To Rule Out SIU Strike

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask. (CP)—Parliament should be called into special session immediately to deal with a threatened strike by 5,000 members of the Seafarers International Union, Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said Wednesday.

Legislation can be passed by Parliament to prevent the threatened Aug. 17 walkout, while conciliation efforts continue, he said.

"This threatened strike should not take place. Recommendations made by the board of arbitration to prevent a strike are reasonable, and Canada's economy should not be left in the custody of SIU's leader, Leonard McLaughlin."

Mr. Diefenbaker also said in an interview a strike would be a serious setback to the national economy, preventing western Canadian farmers from shipping grain.

Recognition Of China Is Urged

QUEBEC (CP)—Immediate Canadian recognition of China was urged Wednesday at the Progressive Conservative party's policy advisory conference.

A resolution urging Canada to grant diplomatic recognition to the People's Republic of China was passed unanimously by a study group on "Canada and the world."

Roblin Says Provinces Should Run Indian Affairs

CALGARY (CP)—Premier Duff Roblin of Manitoba says that if responsibility for Indian affairs were turned over to the provinces by the federal government, programs could be made more effective.

The Progressive Conservative leadership candidate told a news conference Wednesday there would be "much merit" in provinces handling the field provided Ottawa made it clear it would be prepared to pay its share of costs.

Broad national programs didn't meet the varying needs of Indians and Metis in different areas and provincial plans could be more closely tailored to the needs of the people in each area."

For a start, federal and provincial programs should be coordinated. "The premier, who opened his leadership campaign in Alberta Tuesday, said there were no other specific areas of federal responsibility that should be turned over entirely to provinces or vice versa.

Mr. Meltzer on Real Estate
"What's Your Problem"

By BERNARD C. MELTZER

Not everyone wants to move into a newly built home: Most of today's young women want a new, clean home with all the latest built-ins and equipment, but there are some who want an older home with more space, charm and privay for their money.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: Apartment living is in the past for us and for the first time in our short (five years) marriage career we're going to buy a home.

We like the older homes but are afraid of getting into something that looks good on the surface to our "young" eyes, but actually will require a lot of money and work to keep in good shape. Have you any suggestions on what to look for in these homes that will tip off their actual condition? — Mrs. D. A.

ANSWER: Buying an older home can be the very best . . . or the very worst . . . of bargains. There's not enough room here to give you a course in home examining, but these few suggestions will put you on the right track. If you are on sanitary in these areas, I suggest you take along someone who is when you find a home you really like and want to inspect.

First of all, find out if there is wood rot or termite damage. This is hard to determine, so you may need an expert here.

Next, check the wiring. Inadequate wiring is a common ailment among older homes.

Almost as important as the wiring is the heating system. You would be wise to query the contractor who services that particular unit. Also, investigate the plumbing system, the roof, and the basement. A basement that leaks can cost you a lot of trouble and a lot of money to repair.

The most important thing to remember in looking at an older home is that beauty is only skin deep. Don't be carried away with its charm and warmth to the point where you overlook the old gal's faults.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I'm pasting a basement room as a bedroom for one of my boys. My noisy neighbor says I must have a building permit and that he is going to report my project to city hall. What will happen? — Mr. F. A. C.

ANSWER: Most metropolitan areas, such as yours, require a building permit for such a project. From this record the reassessment of the property is instigated. Noisy neighbors are a nuisance — and so are property taxes — but you might as well learn to live with both. Get a permit.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: My income has tripled since I bought the old home in which I now live. It's a very fine house but it needs remodeling and updating. Would you advise staying in this older neighborhood — or shall I just sell it and buy in a new area? — A. B. F.

ANSWER: Yours is a question facing thousands of people these days. I wish I could tell you it would be a good investment to spend the money on your present home. It probably would not be. Our cities will endure the years better if people like you do stay put and improve their homes — and you can always brag about your financial contribution to stabilizing urban property. There are some satisfactions in such a decision and some fine old neighborhoods show evidence of remaining forever desirable and thus places where you could recover your investment.

Hotels Wary of Taking Over Logexpo Operation

MONTREAL (CP)—This tourist-happy city's hotel industry has reacted gingerly to a proposal that it take over Logexpo, the lodging agency of Expo 67.

There was no rush of acceptance after Robert F. Shaw, deputy commissioner-general of the world's fair, offered Wednesday to turn over to the hotels Logexpo's 110-member staff "plus telephone and computer operation—and funds remaining in our budget to cover the cost."

The Queen Elizabeth, which already had instituted an emergency room-finding service for tourists, was the first hotel to come out with a statement. The hotel, owned by the CNR and operated by the Hilton organization, "would be willing to discuss the possibility of taking over the operation of Logexpo alone, and to operate it independently of all other segments of Expo, or we would be prepared to do it jointly with other hotels."

But Rene Rechenlohr, president of the 30-member Montreal Hotel Association, told a reporter: "We don't take this as a serious proposition. Our association would not be interested in taking charge of Expo."

An official reported late Wednesday that the Queen Elizabeth emergency service, which opened Monday, had placed more than 500 tourists.

Mr. Rechenlohr said he could not see what would be accomplished by putting Logexpo under hotel jurisdiction.

"Either it needs reorganization or it doesn't. If there's no change needed, then there is no point in changing the authority under which it operates."

Logexpo has been under intermittent fire for months because of alleged inadequacies in accommodation it has listed.

The Montreal Hotel Association had established at the outset of Expo a room co-ordination control bureau which has been most helpful to the world's fair, Mr. Shaw added.

Expo, amid the controversy, rolled on and some of the special guests today were 30 children from the Muskoka, Ont., treatment centre for emotionally disturbed youngsters.

They were returning for the second consecutive day to the bright lights and wondrous sight of La Ronde, Expo's amusement centre, and the pavilions. Some of them also saw a football game Wednesday.

Today also was set aside as national day of Rwanda, tiny country in the heart of Africa, with flag-raising honors similar to those accorded Morocco Wednesday.

NBC to Run 'Sneak Previews' As Two Networks Open Season

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Network competition is getting into full swing for the new season—sponsors, for credit. While the war sometimes seems dormant except for occasional publicity handouts, fighting tends to flare up around the opening of the new season.

Until Wednesday, things had been suspiciously quiet on the warring fronts of ABC, CBS and NBC. ABC and CBS long ago had announced plans to have their season premieres during the seven days starting Sept. 3, the day after Labor Day. NBC seemed content with a late start, Sunday, Sept. 10, enough in itself to put the fat competition on the alert.

NBC fractured the unusual pre-season calm by announcing Wednesday that during the first five days of the new season—ABC and CBS premiere period—they would "sneak preview" eight pilot films for programs contemplated for past or future seasons.

The "sneak previews" coincide, in most cases, with premiere shows of new ABC series.

When ABC's new Garrison's Guerrillas starts its action Tuesday, Sept. 5, NBC will be sending out a comedy, L'il Abner, a comic strip-based pilot film that failed to make the current schedule, and Sheriff Who, a western spoof dropped last season when two similar ventures died on network view.

On Friday night, Sept. 8, when ABC will introduce a whole evening of new programs, NBC will come along with a full line-up of one-shot broadcasts including The Hardy Boys, The Ghostbusters—both passed over for this season—Police Story and Three for Danger.

Two other old pilots, Weekend and Campo 44, a Candidate for a network spot two seasons back, will be shown Saturday night, Sept. 9, running into Jackie Gleason's season premiere on CBS.

Don Durgin, NBC network president, said in making the announcement: "We are particularly interested in the audience reaction to these eight shows for guidance in our continuing program development and production for 1968 and 1969."

Main Concern of British Censors Over Years Has Been Violence

LONDON (AP)—The difference between us is that the American censor is concerned with moralities, while I am not. I am merely an assessor of public attitudes."

British film censor John Trevelyan was explaining his work while enjoying an end-of-the-day drink in his office at 2 Soho Square, in the heart of the Film Row. Thrice-married, with twins sons of eight by his most recent marriage, he is a bachelor man of 63 with an encaging frankness. His background is education, but his interest in films led him to join the British board of film censorship in 1950.

The disparity between U.S. and British censorship is curious. The Hollywood Production Code, long influenced by pressures of the Roman Catholic Church, is primarily concerned with sex and morality.

The main concern of the British censor over the years has been violence.

"We've had outbreaks of juvenile violence, and we are very edgy about allowing anything that might encourage it," said Trevelyan. "The Brando film, The Wild One, has never been allowed in this country, nor has Key Witness."

British censorship predates the U.S. system by more than 15 years. City councils here were given censorship powers under a 1909 act largely concerned with fires in theatres.

The British censor classifies films in three categories:

U—For universal exhibition to all ages.

A—No persons under 16 unless accompanied by an adult.

X—No persons under 15 under any circumstances.

The categories are listed in newspaper ads and in front of the theatre.

British censorship holds that children should not be frightened. Disney's Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs was denied a U rating until some of the witch's scenes were excised.

British TV Said Best in World

LONDON (AP)—"You know, of course," said the London-based U.S. executive with a note of finality, "that the British have the best television in the world."

I have heard similar statements from other persons, American and British.

It seemed worth while to investigate why British television is so good, and so I journeyed to the BBC's broadcast centre to inquire about its programming methods. There are two sources of TV in Britain: Independent Television—ITV—a privately owned enterprise which sells advertising and the BBC, which is government-operated and carries no ads.

The BBC is housed in a huge building shaped like a stack of doughnuts. From this broadcast centre emanate two television networks, radio programs for Britain and broadcasts to vast areas overseas.

BBC 1 is the basic network; it reaches 98 per cent of the country. BBC II is slightly more serious in mood; its coverage is 76 per cent. Always there is a contrast in programming. If BBC 1 has a serious program, BBC II features an entertainment show.

"No other country in the world has two complementary networks."

Hugh Weldon, controller of programs, resembles the actor, Trevor Howard, both in appearance and gusty vigor. He has room for his competition.

"The recent audience surveys figure 48 per cent for BBC and 52 per cent for ITV," he cited. "That's not a bad percentage for us, considering the number of our shows that are not aimed at mass audiences and the amount of top movies and trash that they have."

It pleased Weldon recently to present a lavish production of Benjamin Britten's opera Billy Budd.

"Obviously it was destined for a tiny audience," he said. "But I felt it should be done.

"Last year we performed 14 operas. The ITV presented no operas—nor any of the National Shakespeare Theatre as we did.

The bit of BBC's season was a glittering serial of John Galsworthy's Forsyte Saga. Next season BBC will offer a 12-chapter Vanity Fair, its first major production in color. Weldon said he is looking for other lengthy works of literature that could be so adapted.

By regulation the BBC is limited to 15 per cent of foreign programming, and most of it is U.S. series like The Man from U.N.C.L.E., The Virginian and The Monroes. Weldon doubled if he would increase the number of U.S. shows if able.

BBC documentaries are acclaimed but the backbone of the programming seems to be dramas.

Employment News

By J. R. STAVELEY
Manpower Counsellor

An analysis of the current local labor market — projected to Belleville Canada Manpower Centre statistics — shows a substantial increased work force available compared to the same 1966 period.

A significant trend at present is the fact the number of women seeking employment is equal to the number of men wanting jobs. This development is of great concern to anyone working with employment problems. It will be realized that under these conditions the job of Counsellors at the Manpower Centre becomes more complex and demanding.

Employers are invited, now that the summer holiday period is practically over locally for this year, to review their staffing needs for future requirements and list them at the Centre at their earliest convenience.

For the past two weeks attention has been drawn to the urgent labor requirements of tobacco and tomato crops in Southwestern Ontario areas. In addition to this demand, our local farmers having tomato acreage and canneries processing the local crop will, within the next three weeks, require the necessary labor force to harvest and process the area crop. Anyone interested in this type of temporary work is requested to contact the Centre as soon as possible.

Noted Pastor Accepts Call To This City

A Kingston clergyman, widely known as a weekly newspaper columnist, has been appointed to a charge at Belleville.

Rev. Dr. R Barclay Warren will assume duties at Centennial Free Methodist Church, at Everett and Henry Streets, Aug. 13, weekly columns for Canadian

Dr. Warren has been writing weekly articles for Canadian newspapers since 1941 when first published in the Uxbridge times journal.

Born in Eganville, he has merged a number of professional careers in his vocation. Graduated from Queen's University in 1931 with a BA, he taught school for Ontario and Toronto for almost 16 years. He has written two books — Spiritual Strength for Today and You Can Gain Spritual Strength.

His first pastoral charge came in 1950 at Barrie. He was interpastor of Uxbridge for four years, then returned to teaching. He became principal of Lorne Park College in Port Credit.

As a journalist, at one time his weekly columns were carried in 175 newspapers.

The Belleville congregation is smaller than Dr. Warren's Kingston charge, and his appointment is intended to reduce some of the burdens of his pastoral duties. In his 60th year, he was hospitalized with heart trouble three years ago.

However, he said, he would continue to pen his weekly columns indefinitely.

To Your Good Health

Choice of Water Question of Taste

Dear Dr. Molner: We are planning on having water delivered to our home in five-gallon jugs, and can get either spring water or distilled. Would you be better to drink the spring water with its minerals left in, or the distilled water? We are in good health but just don't like the taste of tap water with chlorine in it. — Mrs. F.

From the health standpoint it makes no appreciable difference which you choose. Let your taste decide that — after all, that's why you are getting bottled water.

Some folks complain that distilled water tastes "flat" because it has no minerals. Spring or other water will have taste depending on the minerals present.

You can also try putting tap water in bottles or jars and letting it stand until the chlorine can disperse. You could keep a bottle or two of tap water in the refrigerator, both to let the chlorine color fade, and to keep the water cold.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have read that a well-balanced diet includes milk and milk products but I am allergic to milk and have been avoiding it for more than a year. How can I get the vitamins and minerals I need that are in milk products? — C. H.

You don't mention other milk products, or whether you tolerate them — cheese, butter, and other foods contain ing milk products. If you tiereto them, they provide some of the things that you need.

You get some calcium from other sources: meat, fruits, vegetables. The chief vitamins in milk are A and D, both of which exist in fats, including butter and margarine.

Milk is a wholesome food, and a good one for children, but number or things needed in a balanced diet. Substitutes, tablets, some powders, some fats. But there are some people who don't tolerate it, and for them the necessarie must be obtained in other ways.

Dear Dr. Molner: If you answer this it will make my husband listen to reason and go to a doctor.

He is 61, drinks a quart of beer every night, also wets the bed every night and has to wear a pad during the day. Could this be prostate gland trouble or could it be mental? — M. H.

It could be either or both, or could be serious kidney or bladder disease. Any man who tolerates that and won't go to a doctor needs his head examined too.

Dear Dr. Molner: My son has three terrible wheels on both heads. They have been removed three times already but they keep growing back. I am now taking him to a skin specialist but he doesn't seem to know why they keep coming back. Please tell me where I can take him to get rid of them. He is 16. — Mrs. R. G.

Warts appear to be caused by a virus — but exactly how viruses behave is far from thoroughly understood.

From experience, we know that warts usually disappear when they get ready. They can be removed, as you have had done, but if the virus is still present, new warts will appear. The method of removal does not seem to make much difference.

My guess is that your best course is to ignore the warts until at least they decide to drop part, because, I don't know of any positive method of getting rid of them. If the warts are too much of an annoyance, the only recourses is to keep removing them until they cease. At least, the warts are not dangerous.

Note to Mrs. J.J.G.P.: The only answer I can give to your question (and a good question like it) is that if some form of love-making is repulsive to one partner or the other, it's wrong for that couple.

ANAF News

About 400 children and adults attended the annual picnic of the Duke of Edinburgh Unit Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans.

The pipe band played several selections to open the festivities and a ball game was held between the ANAF All Stars and the ANAF Pee-Wees. The All Stars nosed out the Pee-Wees with a score of 6-5.

Winners of the races were: Michelle Branion, Valerie Newman, Belinda Blaind, Kathy Davidson, Nancy White, Kenny McCormick, Mike Parker, John Rappel, Kirby Short, Peter Stalikovich.

In the egg throwing contest Nancy Rose Bush and her partner, Gerald Wood outlasted the rest to win. Something new was added this year with the teenage dance contest. The first winners, were Miss MacLeod and her partner, while Miss Barrigar and her partner were seconds.

In the attendance draw for women, Mrs. M. Wood was the winner and in the draw for men Dave Feeney was the winner.

A bus has been laid on for members and their ladies for Warriors' Day and tickets may be purchased from the stewards at the ANAF and the Legion, $3.50 return. The deadline for tickets will be Saturday, Aug. 12th. Also there are free gate admittance tickets for veterans' dependants available at both organizations. Those are for all going whether by car or bus. It should be quite a parade this centennial year. The RCMP band will be leading the parade followed by the RCMP Musical Ride troop and behind them the Fort Henry Guard with their old time uniforms and fifes and drums so it should be a good day.

'Streets Yours', Negroes Told, 'Take Them Whenever Ready'

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) —Black Power advocate H. Rap Brown turned his back Wednesday on Governor Claude Kirk, who had tried to welcome him to Florida, and walked away from a sheriff, who tried to read him a riot act.

Brown told a Negro rally, "the streets are yours. Take them whenever you're ready."

Kirk flew to Jacksonville from the state capital at Tallahassee and was the only white man except for reporters at the rally of 800 Negroes.

When the governor walked smilingly through the crowd, he was applauded and cheered. But when he picked up the public address microphone later to speak he was booed lustily.

Many in the crowd shouted, "Yeah, Rap" and "Black Power" when Brown was driven onto the field before Kirk's appearance. But a group of about 40 chanted to Brown: "Go back home! Go back home! We don't need you! We don't need you!"

Brown stepped from the car, waving both fists in the air. The crowd came to its feet and surged to the fence separating the stands from the field.

When Kirk took the microphone connected to speakers on a car parked on the field the crowd booed.

"Quiet, quiet," Kirk said. "May I have your attention."

"They don't want to hear you," Brown told Kirk. "They want to hear me."

When Brown got the microphone, Kirk offered to shake his hand but Brown brushed it away.

"Welcome to Florida," the governor said as he put his hand on Brown's shoulder, but Brown shrugged it away and turned to his talk.

"If this honky wants to campaign, let him pay for it," Brown said.

Kirk went into the stands, diverting his time between listening to Brown and talking with Negroes and reporters.

On the field Brown said: "This is the way the honkies (white people) do. They come in and want to take over your meeting."

Israel Unifies Two Jerusalems

JERUSALEM (AP)—Riding a wave of religious fervor and patriotic emotion, Israel has all but completed the unification of Jerusalem. It now faces the problems of holding the city together.

Buses run regular routes throughout the once-divided city. Arab businessmen now one did anywhere in Israel on the telephone. They trawel freely.

Power and water are on a city-wide system. Police have absorbed most of the Arab policemen and the postal systems are joined. Jewish girls in mini-skirts brush past Arab women in ankle-length black dresses and veils.

Jerusalem has become a city of some 190,000 Jews and 70,000 Arabs, with a few thousand foreigners caring for the shrines.

Ahead lies justifying unification in a majority of United Nations members who acted that the annexation be repealed, collecting Israeli taxes from recalcitrant Arabs, merging differing cultures and reaching an agreement on the proper supervision of the shrines of Moslems, Jews and Christians.

Political problems are insignificant before the religious treasures entombed in the Old City.

Here in the Church of the Holy Sepulchre is the stone upon which, Christians say, the body of the crucified Christ was anointed. Below is the rock from which Mohammed is said to have ascended to heaven. And here is the western or Wailing Wall of the Second Temple, one of the most sacred of Jewish religious shrines.

Somehow, the Jews must meet demands of the many religious bodies.

Six different Christian churches, for example, hold rights to the Church of the Holy Sepulchre—Roman Catholic, Coptic, Greek Orthodox, Syrian Armenian and Abyssinian. They are in constant disagreement among themselves.

Opposition to the Jewish takeover has been almost all vocal although Arab merchants went on strike earlier this week.

Whatever their political views, Arabs in Jerusalem are reluctant to leave the pleasant climate and the normally thriving business of the city for the hot plains of the interior.

Military rule in Jerusalem is mild but Arabs tend to criticize anything which does not fit their accustomed mode of living.

Negotiations Resume in Strike of Toronto Truck Drivers

TORONTO (CP) — Negotiations re-opened Wednesday in an attempt to settle a strike by 1,000 drivers of ready-mix concrete trucks that has crippled construction in Metropolitan Toronto for the last five weeks.

Officials of Local 230, International Brotherhood of Teamsters met with representatives of eight ready-mix concrete firms under the auspices of Ontario Labor Department conciliators, led by W. H. Dickie, director of conciliation services for Ontario.

The strike, coupled with a coupled strike and lock-out involving contractors and members of Local 721, International Association of Bridge, Structural and Ornamental Iron Workers, has prevented a return to work by thousands of other construction workers who settled their two strikes five weeks ago.

Negotiations between teamsters and concrete firms broke off Aug. 1 when the membership rejected a three-year contract that included a wage raise to $3.40 an hour from $2.80. Other provisions were for two more statutory holidays and additional welfare benefits.

An iron workers' official said Wednesday there has been no attempt to re-open negotiations with contractors. Iron workers are seeking a wage hike to $4.74 an hour from $3.47.

Cut Nuclear Ties--Camp

Unique Policy Urged

QUEBEC (CP)—Dalton Camp, president of the national Progressive Conservative Association, Thursday called on Canada to express its "uniqueness" by means of a major shift in foreign policy which would do away with the "encumbrance" of nuclear associations.

In a major address to the party's advisory conference on policy, Mr. Camp challenged the Conservatives to examine his belief that Canada "can create a sense of itself through the creation of a foreign policy that is a demonstrable expression of its uniqueness."

He said the basic pillars of that policy are not NATO, NORAD and the United Nations. "They are disarmament, non-proliferation and the development of a special role in foreign aid and assistance."

He greatly emphasized Canada's possible unique and beneficial role in the field of foreign aid.

Mr. Camp had the impression that "what we are in the process of doing in Canada is developing a military policy and then developing a foreign policy to suit it."

At one point he indicated he would like to see Canada out-side of NORAD, adding that "we will not in the long run be judged by strength of our military power but by the strength of our purpose."

He said Canadians could become "the first citizens of the world, that we can best serve the higher purposes of American foreign policy by not being imprisoned in their tactical considerations but by remaining free to complement their strategic objectives, about which I have no doubts as to their worthiness."

Another speaker at the "thinkers" conference, Bernard Flynn a Montreal lawyer and president of the Quebec PC Association, said the price for English-Canadians of granting equal status to French-Canadians throughout the nation is negligible.

His statement followed a study group resolution calling for recognition that Canada is composed of "two founding peoples" and that French Canadians are entitled to use French in the legislature and courts and are entitled to an education in French throughout Canada.

Mr. Flynn said the only thing he could see in terms of cost was the possibility of having to provide French-language schools to settled groups of French Canadians in other provinces.

Gordon Fairweather, MP for Royal, N.B., picked up the railing cry by saying that apart from "electing a new leader" in Toronto next month, Conservatives had no greater duty than to carry this message from coast to coast.

"So much for the candidates, now where to sit the party members?"

New Life For Canada Advocated

OTTAWA (CP)—Health Minister MacEachen, in what seemed to be an echo of President Kennedy's New Frontier and President Johnson's Great society came up Tuesday with a proposal for a New Society in Canada's second century.

Speaking to a conference of young drivers, the minister talked of a new society in which the quality of life would be more important than the quantity of goods.

A meaningful human resources program should be soundly based on existing social security legislation, Mr. MacEachen said.

The cornerstone must be education.

Mr. MacEachen said Canada faces "qualitative challenges" in such areas as urban planning, air and water pollution and automation.

More Aid Needed

QUEBEC (CP) — A foreign affairs study group at the PC "thinkers conference" endorsed greater foreign aid bbt called for a review of it.

The group urged Canada pursue freer trade through such arrangements as the Canadian-American auto parts agreement and the Kennedy Round of tariff-cutting negotiations concluded earlier this year.

The group said Canada should continue to support United Nations peacekeeping and peacemaking. Canada should not join the Organization of American States as now constituted.

Charles Hits At Foes

PARIS (Reuters) — President de Gaulle made a vigorous counter-attack against his critics Thursday night, but several commentators suggested today the 76-year-old general was on the defensive for the first time.

De Gaulle assailed his critics as "apostles of decline" who renounce French independence and "exporte le désespérement" who oppose the development of France.

"Yesterday de Gaulle came down into the arena," the Conservative newspaper Le Figaro says in a front-page editorial on the general's unprecedented midsummer television broadcast to the nation.

Similar views were expressed by the Liberal Combat and the right-wing L'Aurore.

The newspapers in giving a cool reception to de Gaulle's pronouncements suggest he was trying to justify himself in the face of mounting criticism over his domestic and foreign policies.

However, the president concentrated almost exclusively on France's greatest foreign policy aims. He made only passing reference to the chief cause of recent discontent—his outspoken support for the "freedom of action" of French-speaking Canada, the reform of France's social security system and introduction of a workers' profit-sharing plan.

De Gaulle defined France's policy aims as progress, peace and independence founded on freedom of action outside the two major world powers.

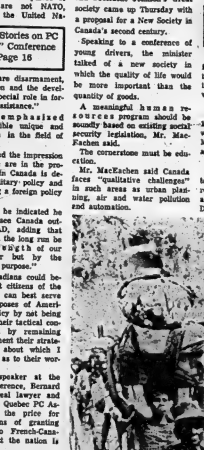
'Hippies' Scrub Road

TORONTO (CP) — As a group of derelicts housewives looked on, about three dozen hippies scrubbed Scollard Street Thursday — to save some of their number from jail.

They were removing slogans of peace, love and welcome painted on the street to avoid being charged with defacing public property.



After the hippies made an ineffectual attempt to scrub the street, the police asked the Department of Public Works to supervise the cleaning. The works department provided the equipment for the job.

Dozens of hippies came to scrub the street but few showed any enthusiasm. After staring for awhile, they turned and walked away.

Civilian Candidates Boycott Vote

SAIGON (CP)—Civilian candidates today maintained their boycott of the presidential election campaign and ignored propaganda planes waiting at Saigon airport to fly them to the northern city of Da Nang.

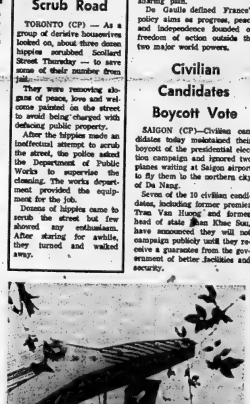
Seven of the 10 civilian candidates, including former premier Tran Van Huong and former head of state Phan Khac Suu, have announced they will not campaign publicly until they receive a guarantee from the government of better facilities and security.

Fugitive Handed To FBI

PRESCOTT, Ont. (CP) — George Ben Edmondson, 30-year-old fugitive from Missouri State Penitentiary who worked on Canada for almost two years before being caught by the RCMP, was handed over to U.S. Federal Bureau of Investigation officials at this St. Lawrence River border point Thursday.

Edmondson, who built the German pavilion at Expo 67 and married a Montreal girl while using the name Alex Bormann, was ordered deported after an immigration hearing Thursday. He still had 4½ years of a 10-year prison term to serve for armed robbery when he escaped Aug. 3, 1965, and expects to get at least two more years for his escape.

THE WEATHER



Synopsis: A large high pressure area centred just west of the Great Lakes over Wisconsin and drifting slowly southward gives every indication of being the main feature controlling Ontario's weather for the next day or two. Today and again tonight temperatures in the south will be pleasantly cool. Temperatures are showing a gradual rising trend in Northern Ontario and as the high settles southward, this warming trend should appear in southern Ontario tomorrow and Sunday. This along with considerable sunshine today and tomorrow promises to get the coming weekend off to a fine start.

Canton Troops Join Wuhan Foes of Mao

HONG KONG (Reuters)—Travellers arriving here today from China reported mass desertion by troops around Canton to join anti-Maoist forces still holding out in the industrial city of Wuhan.

They said army officers, too, were quitting their posts in Kwangtung province, of which Canton, south China's largest city, is the capital.

Fierce fighting involving 10,000 Red Guards and workers raged in Canton Thursday, leaving 500 persons killed or injured, travellers reaching here disclosed.

One of today's Chinese arrivals said there were indications that the Kwantung army command was taking emergency steps to stop the desertions.

Wuhan, a key industrial and railway centre straddling the Yangtze River in central China, was previously thought to be virtually pacified under Maoist control after fighting there last month.

Other travellers from China today reported that 10,000 persons were involved in a clash in Honan—a big inland linked to Canton by the Pearl River bridge. Casualties were estimated at up to 500.

Today's arrivals said discontented peasants were surging into cities and towns throughout Kwangtung province complaining they had not been paid.

The Hong Kong English-language newspaper The Star says Defence Minister Lin Piao sent two army divisions into Kwangtung province to help restore order.

The move is a direct result of Premier Chou En-lai's sudden visit to Canton last week, the newspaper says.

Sailors Fear to Go To China

VANCOUVER (CP)—Eleven of the crew from the British freighter Riley quit the ship Thursday because they were afraid to sail with her today back to Communist China.

They said they feared reprisals for an incident that took place when the ship was docked in the northern Chinese port of Dairen. One of the men was arrested during the last stay in China for calling a speech by Chairman Mao Tse-tung "rubbish."

Junior third engineer Edward Halliday was involved in a fight with three Chinese in the crew and spent 13 days in solitary confinement after he was arrested a few days later.

He was fired from Riley Thursday along with junior second engineer John Mair. Mair also was arrested in China but was released after questioning.

The 11 who packed their bags Thursday did so with the consent of the ship's captain, Godfrey Frank. They are to fly to Britain at their own expense and be paid off there.

Mercury Dips Close To Record Low

Overnight temperatures in the Quinte area dropped to 50 degrees — just three degrees above the recorded low 47 set in 1965 and 1920.

According to Philip Cole, duty forecaster at Canadian Forces Base Trenton the near record low occurred shortly after six o'clock this morning.

Student Recruits Congratulated

"We can take care of our own country", Lieut. Col. E. Fairman, inspecting officer for the passing-out parade of the extended summer training program, told about 30 candidates last night at the graduation ceremonies. "Without some old man coming over to tell us how," he added.

Col. Fairman was stressing the importance of good armed forces in making a country great. He congratulated the soldiers on their parade and demonstrations and told them he was pleased to see youth without long raid and ragged dress.

Lt. Col. K. D. H. Willcocks, commanding officer of the Hasty Pees, expressed the same sentiments as Col. Fairman, a former commanding officer of the regiment.

The program consisted of a detailed inspection by Col. Fairman and a march past on the part of the troops. Then the training graduates illustrated their prowess in riot control and first aid after a realistic mock-up of a noisy demonstration.

The audience of about 100 persons, mainly parents and other interested relatives, watched the troops change the guard and demonstrate the tactics involved in advancing a section to contact.

Awards were presented to recruits who have excelled well in the six week training course. Privates G. A. Marsden, R. N. Barrick, F. G. Brickwood, T. C. Wills, D. D. House and J. P. Woolfrey received awards, little statuettes of the Indian mascot of the Hasty Pees regiment.

After addresses by Col Fairman and Lt.Col Willcocks the guests and the troops attended a reception in the messes.

Visit to Bristol Won Fair Exhibit

Superior Electric, of Bristol, Conn., now constructing a half million dollar plant in northeast Belleville, will have an exhibit at Belleville Fair to show some of the products it will be making in its new Canadian plant.

The exhibit will be contained in a mobile trailer, fitted out with some of the specialized equipment manufactured by the company.

Included in the display will be various types of Superior Electric Slo-Syn precision motors, transformers, motor speed controllers and milling machine assemblies.

Although not scheduled to go into production in Belleville until late this year, Superior Electric is displaying at Belleville Fair at the suggestion of Alderman Donald Williams.

Ald. Williams happened to visit Bristol this past spring and took advantage of the occasion to introduce himself at Superior Electric's headquarters plant.

"They really made me welcome and showed me their entire plant operation," the alderman said.

Always a booster of Belleville Fair, Alderman Williams suggested it might be worth while to exhibit at this year's fair, and company officials readily accepted the idea. They later made arrangements to bring their mobile exhibit to Belleville for the full five days of the fair.

Deseronto To Get Sewers

DESERONTO — After years of waiting, Deseronto at last has its first assurance that it will have sewers installed throughout the town.

At Tuesday's council meeting a letter was read in which the Ontario Water Resources Commission stated that a program is being worked out by which the sewers will be built by the Commission under the new provincial scheme.

This means that, instead of the sewers being installed a street at a time as the town can afford to pay for them, they will be built all at the same time, with the Ontario government paying the bill. Deseronto's re-payment will be stretched over a long period of time at an annual payment it can face.

Deseronto's plan for a step-at-a-time installation is now under study, and is being revised so that the project can be completed in one step. The sewers will be government built, and government owned, with Deseronto buying the system in easy payments. Meanwhile, the town will have the use of the sewers, and one of the chief stumbling blocks to their progress will have been removed.

Children Help Collect Funds

More than 20 Belleville young people have taken time out from summer fun to become involved in the collection of funds for Muscular Dystrophy.

The local children have raised more than $40 dollars by selling drinks at refreshment stands, to help the Firemen of Belleville raise money in support of some 20 local children stricken with muscular dystrophy.

Kathryn Watson headed up 10 children in the N. James St. area, while Glen Pearson and Steve Miller led the Lemoine St. district.

Other children involved in Park Dale are Mark Pearson, Kim, Tammy and Eddie Stuart, April Adamson and Bonnie and Debbie Wood. Helping Miss Watson are brother Mike, Tony, Rick and Paul Meagher, Jane McCreary, Vicki Bennett and Brenda, Lavern and Junior Johnson.

Multi-talented Troops

One of the many things the candidates of the extended summer training course learn is first aid. Here two of the soldiers bandage the head of a wounded rioter just after the riot has been broken up by the candidates. Riot control was one of the demonstrations the audience witnessed last night.

New Twist To Noise In Court

TRENTON — Unfortunately for Trenton magistrate's court, trains keep pretty close to schedule.

Newcomers to Tuesday morning court sessions are startled when a regular 10.30 freight clangs up within 100 feet of the courtroom, shrieking its whistle to warn motorists at two crossings in the area.

But Magistrate R. Y. Jackson and other court officers are used to it.

They weren't surprised when the last Hastings County Grand Jury recommended a change of scenery for Trenton court proceedings, which have been held for years above the police station.

Once and a while, a new twist is added.

Even Magistrate Jackson was unnerved and called a recess at this Tuesday's court when the chimes of King Street United Church began their regular one hour refrain.

It seems the witness and prosecutor couldn't hear each other, and the magistrate was unable to hear either.

Country Club Entered, $500 In Cash Taken

Burglary relieved the Bay of Quinte Golf and Country Club of about $500 in cash early today.

Provincial police said the money was taken from cigarette machines, a juke box and collection boxes in the club house and from the nearby pro shop.

There was little damage during the break in which police believe, may be the work of a lone thief.

Will Repair Consecon Lake Dam

The Prince Edward Region Conservation Authority has approved a scheme to rebuild and maintain the dam near Highway 33 which controls the level of Consecon Lake.

The present dam is in very poor condition for some time with resulting low lake levels in the summer and last year it was found necessary to reinforce the dam with sandbags.

The sandbags stopped up to 75 per cent of the leakage and enabled a colony of beavers to move in and finish the dam plugging operation.

However, even with the co-operation of the beaver, last year's dam repairs are considered but temporary and a new dam slightly downstream from the present structure is planned. The Conservation Authority will request a 75 per cent grant on the project from the Department of Energy and Resources Management.

With the new structure water level control on Lake Consecon should be better and water requirements for downstream users will be better satisfied. The hamlet of Consecon depends on the stream for a fire fighting water supply.

Letters are being sent by the Authority to some 200 land owners whose properties touch Consecon Lake, requesting agreement from owners.

Any Consecon Lake land owners omitted from the Authority mailing list are asked to contact Mrs. A. I. Markland secretary treasurer, Prince Edward Region Conservation Authority at Box 827, Picton.

Fair Board Approves Arena Complex

Members of the Belleville Fair Board last night gave a unanimous vote of confidence to the city parks board in its plans for a new community centre - arena complex at the local fairgrounds.

Discussion on the proposed arena complex at the agricultural grounds was prompted by a story appearing by yesterday's Intelligencer in which Alderman Jack Deacon complained as to the policy until the proposal was fully developed and all cost factors ascertained.

Alderman Deacon's petition to the mayor had inferred that members of the Belleville Fair Board were pleased at the little consideration given them by the arena planning committee.

Last night there was ample evidence that fair board members had felt left out of the planning procedures although Robert Phillips, past fair board president and member of the special arena planning committee, admitted that so far they had been given little information.

Mr. Phillips said he could quite understand if fair board members felt this way but pointed out that until now there had been little information to give them.

"Only now," he said, "were final plans being drawn for presentation to city council."

Mr. Phillips said the proposed arena complex at the fairgrounds was of concern to the fair board because it represented potential exhibition space to replace the Commodores and Manufacturers buildings which were to be torn down immediately after the fair.

In his view there were three things which could happen.

1. The present Commodores and Manufactures buildings will disappear and the new arena complex will be built and be ready for use by the fair next year.

2. The fair board could object and not go along with the arena group resulting in the area being built by the city at some other location.

The arena project could be turned down either by city council or by the Ontario Municipal Board.

Mr. Phillips stressed however, that there could be no thought by the fair board of bargaining about the two present exhibition buildings.

"They will be gone immediately after the fair," he repeated.

There was considerable discussion regarding the use to which the arena complex might be put by the fair board.

Members were told that the building would be available for use during the fair as exhibition space and eventually — with later construction of an auditorium — for horse shows and other fair events.

Paul Wiegand, of the architectural firm of Watson and Wiegand, said the arena complex was being planned as a multi-purpose building for use by various groups in presenting stage performances and other events as well as for skating and hockey.

However, it was not possible to design a building entirely suitable for all uses and the structure would primarily be for hockey and skating use.

The ice surface would be the standard 85 by 200 feet and there would be seating for 3,000 persons plus standing room. There would be six dressing rooms, skate change rooms and other accommodation.

The building foyer was being planned to provide additional exhibition space for fair use.

"The proposed auditorium would not be constructed at this time, but was planned for a second stage development," Mr. Wiegand said.

Before commencing plans for the arena complex Mr. Wiegand said arenas at Oshawa, Peterborough and Kingston as well as other centres had been visited. The Belleville arena would be comparable to that in Peterborough although not as expensive or elaborate.

Alderman Donald Williams, chairman of the city parks board and one of the main proponents of the proposed new arena, said that a Department of Agriculture grant amounting to $77,000 would be available for the arena if it was built on the fairgrounds.

Another $3,000 grant money was available through a community centres grant.

After the meeting Alderman Williams said it was hoped that another $125,000 of the estimated cost of $967,000 could be recouped if the building was constructed under winter works.

The reason for urgency in getting plans finalized was to allow a start on construction before winter should the project receive OMB approval, he said.

Alderman Williams said that all of Alderman Deacon's questions regarding the proposed new arena will be answered by the special arena committee.

Hay Yield Twice as High As Last Year

Wet weather during the months of May and June has meant later harvesting dates for farmers in Hastings County, however the longer growing period has resulted in increased yields.

According to Wayne Martin, provincial agriculture representative in Stirling, farmers were about a month later in vesting the hay crop but yields are about twice as high as last year.

"The first cutting of the 77,000-acre hay crop has been completed and any second cutting is limited to those farmers with silos," Mr. Martin said.

A few farmers have also started to harvest the 3,100 acres of winter wheat in the county and Mr. Martin feels yields should be at least as high as last year.

Harvesting of the winter wheat, 50,000 acres of oats and 2,000 acres of barley should be completed in two or three weeks.

"The fall corn crop is growing well," Mr. Martin said. "Farmers should get an excellent yield from the 9,000 acres planted this year."

Each year farmers in Hastings County cultivate a total of 153,000 acres of land with 57,000 acres used as improved pasture.

No Decision To Appeal Road Ruling

TRENTON — A special closed meeting of town council last night heard how Trenton stands legally with respect to the controversial extension of Ontario St., which runs to Community Gardens.

Two members of the Williston legal firm of Toronto, recently hired as town solicitors, attended the session.

Trenton has lost two court battles over the 80-foot-long cinder-roadway which was opened in 1964 to provide public access to and from the arena area.

The Ontario Supreme Court and the Ontario Court of Appeals have ruled the road is the property of the Rochester and Pittsburgh Coal Co.

Council recently resolved to consult legal advice to determine the possibility of taking the case to the Supreme Court of Canada.

Lands Giant Muskie

TWEED — Jim Evans of Toronto landed a 33 pound, 2 ounce muskie at the mouth of the Moira River, Bass Lake, Wednesday evening. The giant fish measured 46½ inches in length and 21 inches in girth.

It is hard to say who was the most surprised, Mr. Evans or the fish. Fishing with a spinning rod and 8 pound test line and using a worm for bait, Mr. Evans had just hooked a rock bass when the muskie swallowed the bass and hook. Mr. Evans struggled two hours to land the fish and was aided by Everett Anderson, Belleville and Ken Delisle, Sioco.

Park at Northport To Open Saturday

PICTON (Staff) — Plans have been finalized for this Saturday's official opening of Sophiasburgh Township's Centennial project, the new park at Northport. The park is located in the village itself and borders on the Bay of Quinte. A small beach, boat launching facilities, picnic benches and diving rafts are some of the features of the new park.

A gala program has been set up for the afternoon with Bobby Hull and Donna Barker, Miss Canada 1967 headlining the program of events. Best Novice Skater

Pictured above is Michael Fitzgibbon, son of Mr. and Mrs. "Goldie" Fitzgibbon, Pine Street, shortly after winning the novice skating title in competition recently held in Edmonton, Alberta. For the past month Michael studied under coach Gordon Crossland, instructor for the Quinte Skating Club and who will return to that post this autumn, at school conducted at Banff, Alberta. At the school Michael acquired his third figure's test. At the same school was Patsy Jean Allore, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Robert Allore, who acquired her second figure test.

No Progress On New Bridge Visitors Told

TRENTON — A visitor last night inadvertently touched a nerve with town councillors when he thought he was passing out compliments.

"Your new bridge is certainly coming along," he said, referring to the $1.2 million span that council had expected to be in use by this month.

The unidentified speaker is a member of the Toronto legal firm recently hired to act as Trenton's town solicitor.

After a healthy pause, one councillor informed the visitor that the bridge is at precisely the same stage of construction it was two months ago, when half a dozen steel erectors joined a province-wide strike.

Defects to Formosa

The defection to Formosa of one of Hong Kong's leading Chinese communist publishers indirectly is a tribute to the firmness of authorities in the British crown colony during the recent disturbances there.

Wu Shu-tung, 61, is the highest communist official to defect to Nationalist China. He said on arrival in Taipei that the communist campaign in Hong Kong had been a failure, largely because of the arrests of the trouble-makers by the colonial government.

This is a far cry from the humiliating experience of the authorities in the neighboring Portuguese colony of Macao shortly before. Faced with similar unrest inspired by communist agitators, the Portuguese were forced to make concessions, even to the point of making public apology to Peking for the "errors of their ways."

The British on the other hand, while under no illusions as to their ability to hold out for long against any large-scale Chinese attack, handled the difficult situation with typical calm and firmness. The arrest of the leading agitators, as the defecting publisher has intimated, was the trump card that restored order to the troubled colony.

Life and Death

Famine . . . war . . . pestilence . . . death. These are the four great scourges of mankind, the four horsemen of the Apocalypse which rage through the years bearing the tidings of poet John Donne, "Never ask to know for whom the bell tolls, it tolls for thee."

Nowadays, of course science and man's increasing knowledge of himself and his environment enable him to prolong the life span. People are living longer and this has contributed to the vast problem of increasing population.

An "explosion" of people, it has come to be called. And the problem it creates has to do largely with the fact that millions of these people do not have enough to eat. Yet experts agree that because the populations of the developed nations are increasing also, so too will the strain on available food sources be strained accordingly.

However, those four horsemen continue to take their toll. This fact, together with the increasing acceptance of birth control techniques, is tending to redress the balance somewhat.

Consider for instance such a bizarre incident as one that claimed more than 50 lives in India recently. A report from Madras said the death toll from a party at which the guests was drunk as liquor had risen to 53, including eight women.

And in Romania nearly 100 people were believed to have drowned last Sunday when a pleasure boat capsized and sank on a lake on the outskirts of Bucharest.

Such occurrences are calamities in which nobody willingly would become involved. That they do occur is part of the inevitable functioning of natural laws and of phenomena outside the power of mankind to control.

Vacationing Psychiatrists

Who is indispensable in a world where it is said no one is indispensable — at least not so long as there is someone to take his place?

For example, are psychiatrists indispensable? Well, a Chicago psychiatrist, Dr. Jules Masserman, has been quoted as saying: "It used to be quite a problem to take patients along when you went on vacation, because of the necessity of continuing the transference without breaking off the relationship."

Transference is described as a patient's projection of his childhood fantasies onto the analyst, who then becomes a parent figure.

And speaking of vacations, what happens in the month of August in the United States? Well, nearly all the psychiatrists go on vacation, and that's that — and never mind all the complexes and neuroses and anxieties that are left in limbo while they are away.

One reason for this mass exodus of mind watchers is the fact that 51 per cent of the nation's 18,740 psychiatrists practise in large cities in New York, Illinois, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania and California, and people like to get away from these cities in August.

Thus patients under psychiatric care who do not accompany their psychiatrist (and pity the psychiatrist who has to suffer his patients on vacation) presumably must go it alone — join the ranks of the "walking wounded," as someone has picturesquely dubbed those who manage to face the world, complexes and all.

And that includes just about everyone.

Negro Riots 'Propaganda Windfall' for Fidel Castro

WASHINGTON (CP) — The domestic American guerrilla warfare in the cities recently has been a propaganda windfall for Cuban Premier Fidel Castro's conference on exporting revolution.

"The duty of every revolutionary is to make revolution" was the convention motto for the Organization for Latin American Solidarity.

Heavily featured, as Negro flames went up in smoke in the U.S., was the statement by Stokely Carmichael, who increasingly has preached violence as the only way to emancipate the American Negro.

"Yankee imperialism has existed too long," he was quoted as telling the conference. "We are ready to destroy it from inside. We hope you are ready to destroy it from the outside."

This kind of talk has two main consequences.

It is part of the national debate within the U.S. to find a scapegoat for the ills riots. Conservatives taking the simplistic view that it's all Communist plot have seized on the Havana conference and Carmichael's belligerency there as proof.

Second, it has revived the bogey of a Communist state only 90 miles away from the U.S.—one dedicated to encouraging perpetual guerrilla warfare against its neighbors and especially the U.S.

The city riots have laid bare the evidence that fertile breeding grounds exist for that kind of war.

C. L. Sulzberger of the New York Times says it now seems inevitable that Cuban encouragement for bandsmen guerrillas—now strongest in Venezuela, Colombia, Bolivia and Guatemala—will try to link up with the Black Power movement in the U.S.

"Some day, the rebellion may even look for contact with the most activist minority faction among Cuban separatists . . . thereby weakening our position in Quebec and making trouble for us."

The attention so far, however, continues to indicate that Castro's supposed guerrilla activity is more herb than blaze.

It seems doubtful he has yet —or ever will—contribute major quantities of men and arms to hemisphere trouble spots.

FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover and others say they cannot detect any pattern of conspiracy in the Negro rioting across the country. There is evidence though that Carmichael and others have stirred up trouble leading to rioting but this has been flaunted rather than hidden.

So far, Negro ghetto organizations seem to contribute little support to the latter-day anti-American Communist Party, however similar their aims may be.

A Mule Led Him To Safety

Brockville Recorder and Times

What is to be said, particularly, on behalf of the cats and dogs? There are those who, in their estimate of animals, never get beyond the epithet, "dumb brutes." But are they so dumb? Moles have often been thought of as symbolic of the ultimate in stupidity. We can recall vividly being complimented by a host in north-eastern France in 1917. With a mole, we had made our first night's trip to the gun positions, in this particular sector. The driver was lost in the fog-set; but the mule knew exactly what it was doing. We were carried safely back to our destination, through an unerring following of a series of twists and turns,—thanks to the superior knowledge of a mule. We need not go into an analysis of human-al-knowledge. Call it "brute-instinct" if you like. Call it anything you like. For the purposes of the animal, and sometimes for the purposes of the animal's owner, it seems to get results. As one surveys human civilization, ancient and modern too, one sometimes wonders if man is just as bright as he thinks he is!

For some people, there is something about a cat or a dog that inspires affection. Whether the response of the animal to its owner's love is a reciprocal love is a matter of opinion. It may be nothing more than an instinctive self-seeking, or it may be something that puts our lack of warmth to shame. After all, we cannot always be sure of the genuineness of human displays or expressions of affection. There remains the problem of the dangerous and vicious animal. Obviously his actions, like those of the vicious man, should be sedated.

Those who read the Bible will recall that the maintenance of life was provided for by the bringing into the ark of two specimens of every animal species, one male and one female. Evidently two dogs and two cats were taken aboard; which would seem to suggest that the dogs and cats have a place and purpose in the universe, despite a division of opinions on the subject.

Swim Pools Grow in Popularity

Brantford Expositor

Five years ago there was probably not one private swimming pool in Brantford. Last year there were around 12. This year so city hall reports, there will be over 20. And next year, who knows how many? Meanwhile, the number of public pools stay at an inadequate two, as it has done for years.

To have one's own pool was once as much a sign of affluence as having a Rolls Royce, even without a chauffeur. Now anyone with a house on half an acre or less has room for a backyard pool which a bad city may be defined as a small body of water surrounded by a large number of people. There is nothing like it for promoting neighborliness.

Expo Crowds May Reach 50 Million

Montreal Gazette

Expo has reached the half-way point. It has been a success in nearly every way, including the number of people who have visited the island site.

The total attendance figure has passed 25 million. This is remarkable in itself, when most of the official forecasts estimates that attendance would be about 35 million for the whole six months.

The monthly attendance has increased steadily since Expo opened in April 28. In May it was 7,306,857; in June it climbed to 7,977,500 and so far in July it has gone beyond 8,500,000.

The question is whether attendance figures will continue to climb through the month of August, and especially in September and October.

The peak period should be from the middle of July to the middle of August. This is the time when many people in North America plan their holidays. But whether attendance reaches the magic number of 50 million will depend on what happens in September and October. The interest and enthusiasm can be kept up, there is no reason why the total of 50 million cannot be reached.

Man 'The Great Predator'

Peterborough Examiner

The chief of Ontario's fish and wildlife branch, Dr. C. H. D. Clarke, has suggested at the Dominion - provincial Wildlife Conference that there should be game management by the government on privately owned farms. Dr. Clarke obviously sees the need for those game areas as an answer because his department is "besieged by the 500,000 anglers and hunters in the Toronto area, who have, generally speaking, no place to go."

Man's squeeze on wildlife has been moving ahead by leaps and bounds in the last 100 years due to the increase in human population and the extent of man's technology, affluence and leisure time. Those have put man in a new relationship with wild game—he has become the great predator.

Hunting in North America has been regarded as everyone's privilege. To abuse this "privilege" to continue, by limits were imposed so that "surplus" game could be shared by the growing number of hunters. This is fine in a country which has an unending supply of game and where there is a regular "surplus". But it suffers from one shortcoming: we must have the crop per hunter wherever the gun population doubles. Needless to say, it doesn't require a computer to predict that hunting will become impractical before the end of this century.

Man, like anthropoid, became the most dangerous and lethal animal upon the face of this earth when he first picked up a flint millions of years ago. It is little wonder that he has become a menace to other species since he has had the rifle in his hands. Dr. Clarke would have made a greater contribution to the Conference if he had shown more interest in the preservation of the species rather than trying to pamper to the foibles of man.

Man Led Live and Let Live

The Hippie Phenomenon

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I wish to comment on a number of points raised by your editorial of August 8 — The Hippie Phenomenon".

The hippies are descendants of the post-war teens not only in so much as both groups were/are persecuted, beyond the power structures of hypocrisy and immorality. To call the hippies the offspring of the Johnny Sombreno anarchists and the San Francisco beats of the early 'fifties and thus imply a comparison is very unfair. I am shocked to be called the beats rather than the hippies symbolic of your decadence as typified by the bomb, the cold war, the American crusades, etc.

Not having been kicked in their adolescent faces as had the beats, the hippies are symbolic of a resurrection. I am backed by of lifetime cuts and bruises. The regeneration, seen in the search through the ruins of many established codes for a new humanism, the replacement of "In God We Trust" by "In Love We Trust" and the rejection of perversion for a new type of puritanism, experience, with one's condition, the approach to a sane existence, indeed simple humanism.

The true hippies, not to be confused with those followers found in every movement, have a very much to contribute, but the condition I mentioned is this. You are quoted as saying in suggesting that few understand the phenomenon. Few are willing to make the temporary adjustments necessary to understanding. Few are sufficiently open-minded. Few even listen. Moreover, one of the tragedies of modern man is the massive neutrality, individuals seeking a comfortable level of existence and refus

CN Engineers Get Average $2,000 Increase

MONTREAL (CP)—A contract settlement providing wage increases that would add an average of $2,000 to the annual salaries of CNR locomotive engineers was announced Thursday by officials of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers.

The settlement was announced at a meeting of the Canadian union of the brotherhood. It must be approved by union committees.

The agreement calls for pay increases totalling 39 per cent for engineers in yard and transfer service and 23 per cent for those in road service. It is effective as of last May 1 and expires April 30, 1970.

About 2,700 engineers employed by the CNR would benefit from the new settlement.

Negotiations for CPR locomotive engineers are continuing.

Road engineers are paid by the day and according with a mileage rate system. Yard engineers are paid by the hour with an allowance for the weight-being carried.

W. J. Wright, assistant grand chief engineer and head of the union's negotiating committee, said the contract to be approved by the union committees provides that "run-throughs, or changes in home stations, or other material changes in working conditions initiated solely by the company and which have significantly adverse effects on engineers shall be subject to negotiations."

An appendix to the memorandum of agreement detailed safeguards that require the company to give six months' notice of any proposed relocation of engineers.

Yukon Hostesses Plan Own "Day"

MONTREAL (CP)—The Yukon Territory is going to have its own special day at Expo 67 because a Dawson City girl didn't know how to give up.

Shirley Jensen came to Expo April 23 with five girls to set up the fair's smallest pavilion, a two-room display, on a $50,000 budget.

It was mistaken for a shop by many persons who tried to buy the large moose head on the wall or the display of mining tools and Yukon artifacts.

But the pavilion's success has spoiled for Shirley by the fact that of all participants on the site the Yukon was the only one not to have a special day.

The logical day for such an event had to be Aug. 17.

"That's the day, in 1896, when gold was found in the Klondike," she said in an interview Thursday.

"I wrote to the Yukon and organized some typically Yukon items for a presentation to mayor which will be flown here within the next few days. Also I got in touch today with the office of Pierre Dupuy, Expo's commissioner-general, to invite him to come along and receive our gifts. I hope to get an answer on whether he can come soon."

The gifts include a pan for sifting gold, with a real gold nugget on the pan, a prospector's outfit, a pair of hand-made snowshoes now being made by a Yukon Indian tribe, a leather gold-pike, a recipe for sour-dough pancakes and for moose-milk cocktail, a rum-based Yukon milkshake that Shirley says is "dynamite," and a mystery gift that won't be known until the ceremony.

The pavilion girls have been scouring Montreal dress shops for days to try to find authentic period costumes which they would like to wear on the great day.

The major problem is how to raise the Yukon flag.

"We don't have a flagpole and I got a quotation today of $126 which is steep for our very slender budget," said Shirley.

Foot-weary Walker Ends 3,000-mile Trek

MONTREAL (CP)—Hank Gallant dished his 50-pound pack and himself gratefully into a chair at Expo Thursday after trudging 3,000 miles on foot from Victoria.

"I nearly froze to death on a 20-mile summit between Hope and Princeton, B.C. and the 24-year-old construction worker, "and I've got a pretty itchy case of poison ivy myself, but otherwise I feel great, just great."

"I wanted to know what a coureur de bois felt like and didn't carry a watch, radio or alarm clock with me," he said.

"At times things were really tough particularly between Hope and Princeton, where I only my second week out and I'd covered about 25 miles.

"I had been perspiring heavily. It was mid-February and before I could get a fire going, the five-below-zero weather began to get through to me. All I wanted to do was lie down and I kept hitting myself in the face to keep awake.

"I know that sounds like a stupid thing to do, but it saved my life. I built the fire and sat awake all night."

As the seasons changed, Hank shed his cold-weather garments and used lighter clothing. The mounting of hot highways were cut three pairs of shoes and several replacement soles en route.

Hank started out from Victoria with $280 and took odd jobs in Vancouver and used the money for food only.

New Electronic Teaching Aid

This new electronic teaching aid is designed for students in the primary grades. The pupil responds to verbal instructions by pushing one of five buttons under the picture on the unit's screen. When he pushes the correct button, the programmed film-aids and record advances. If a wrong answer button is pushed the unit repeats the material indefinitely or provides supplementary material until the pupil gives the correct answer. It was developed by Brog-Warner Corp., and shown at a recent New York exhibition of training equipment. (CP Photo)

Foreign Aid Is Criticized

Dr. Ralph Bunche, United Nations undersecretary, has criticized foreign aid programs as "a mockery" and "a fraud" because they are not helping the poor.

Bunche told a Washington audience that the rich are getting richer and the poor are getting poorer in the underdeveloped countries.

He said the rich are getting richer because they are the ones who benefit from foreign aid programs.

Yukon Hostesses Plan Own "Day"

Building Lag Hits Montreal; Architects Feeling Pinch

MONTREAL (CP) — Architects from all over the world who came here to build skyscrapers and pavilions at Expo 67 are feeling the pinch as construction slows down.

Many architects recruited from such countries as Egypt, India and Hong Kong during a decade of feverish construction have remained and are having a hustle for jobs.

But they say the building lull in the city is temporary.

The slowdown following a period of peak construction has been felt in many quarters.

"It is not an easy period," one architect said. "With tight money and high construction costs, building is being cut back and there is a tremendous shortage of work.

"There has been a serious drop in industrial building and the situation in residential construction is catastrophic. We are getting less than half the work we had a year ago."

During the decade that saw the construction of Expo and about a dozen large office buildings, including the Place Ville Marie and Place Victoria, there was often more work than the local architects, offices could handle.

Architects, engineers and draftsmen were recruited from other parts of Canada and from overseas.

Montreal architects say work cannot be provided for them all and many of them have been advised to go elsewhere.

But an architect whose office has handled some of the biggest assignments in recent years said many foreign architects were not going back to their native countries.

Some were going into interior design of free-lancing, but most saw their future in Canada.

The architect said his own firm has had to release about 50 architects and draftsmen.

"However we have placed most of the people here in Montreal with other firms, in Ottawa and Toronto and the Maritimes," he said.

Lee, Belleville, and Kenneth Paul Pickett, Windsor, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Pickett, Clinton. Rev. J. A. The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore an Empire waisted gown with crocheted lace bodice and floor-length straight skirt of chiffon over taffeta. A bow at the back of the waist held her floor-length train and her bouffant tulle veil was caught to a headdress of pearl-encrusted orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of white and pink roses.

Miss Jo-Anne Lee, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a pale green floor-length A-line linen gown with fan train of printed chiffon, and carried a nosegay of aqua 'mums and pink sweetheart roses. The bridesmaids, Miss Nancy Pickett, sister of the bridegroom, Miss Julia Langabeer and Miss Sharron Blackley, wore pink gowns styled similarly to that of the maid of honor and carried nosegays of pink sweetheart roses.

SUMMER CHILDREN SLOW

LONDON (AP) — Children born in summer don't do quite as well at school and are more likely to land in backward classes, according to a survey published by the National Foundation for Educational Research. It figures since most schools open in September the summer birthday children are often grouped with classmates who are older.

Napanee Couple Marks 50 Wedded Years

NAPANEE—Mr. and Mrs. James Haggarty celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary with a reception in the Sunday School rooms of Grace United Church, Napanee, Sunday afternoon and evening.

Mrs. Glen (Molly) Lowry, the couple's daughter, and their granddaughters, Yvonne and Diane, were in charge of arrangements, assisted by Mrs. Carl Clark, Mrs. Roy Babcock and Mrs. Rob Fenelle, Toronto. Six great-grandchildren of Mr. and Mrs. Haggarty were present for the occasion.

Mrs. Haggarty, wearing yellow lace and a corsage of gold-sprayed carnations, received the guests. The tea table was centred with a gold and white wedding cake. Mrs. Fred Graham, Oshawa, assisted with refreshments.

Peach Crop Hits Market

One of the luscious dividends of late summer is the peach crop. The first of the season are now appearing on local markets.

There are many varieties of peaches but only two types.

Freestone peaches have paler flesh, are softer and a bit ragged. The pits pull easily away from the flesh as they are tender, have a juicy texture and a superior flavor. However, freestones don't hold their shape well in canning.

Clingstone peaches have a firm, smooth flesh which clings to the stones and they keep their shape well in processing. The newer varieties have improved quality and flavor.

In buying peaches choose those that are firm-ripe, with a yellowish ground color under the blush characteristic of the variety.

Sort the ripe fruit from those that aren't fully ripe and re-sort frequently. Refrigerate fully ripe peaches and hold under-ripe peaches at room temperature, uncovered and away from direct sunlight.

MR. AND MRS. DONALD GORDON HARPER

Pastor Transferred

Rev. Edith Mainprize, who has been pastor of Centennial Free Methodist Church in Belleville for the past ten years, will be leaving this month to become pastor of the Free Methodist Church in Simcoe.

The local Free Methodist Society, which was organized in 1955, held services in a home and later in a chapel on Symington Drive. Under Miss Mainprize's leadership, property was purchased on Avondale Road, and a church and parsonage erected. Special services commemorating the liquidation of the church indebtedness were held this April. Church membership has tripled, and activities for different age groups initiated.

STOPS VIRUSES

Viruses that last three to five days on ordinary cotton fabrics persist only one day on wash-and-wear treated cottons.

Harper — Tracey

Rt. Rev. J. P. Sullivan officiated in the Church of St. Michael the Archangel, Aug. 5, 1967, at 4 p.m. when Bonnie Lee Mary, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Tracey, Belleville, became the bride of Donald Gordon Harper, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Harper, Brockville. Miss D. Grant played the wedding music.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an Empire waisted floor - length A-line gown of peau de soie with pillow length sleeves. A train was attached at the shoulders and wide bands of hand crocheted open work trimmed the sleeves, bodice and train. Her three - tiered shoulder - length veil was held with a headdress of white frosted roses centred with teardrop pearls and rhinestones and she carried a cascade bouquet of red roses.

Miss Dorothy Harper, sister of the bridegroom, was maid of honor. She wore an Empire waisted floor - length gown of blue satin with white, hand crocheted open work trim on the bodice. Her headpiece was a matching wedding ring band.

Bob Harper was his brother's attendant and the ushers were Donald Tracey, brother of the bride and Terry McDonald, Brockville. Joseph Tracey, the bride's brother, was ring-bearer.

Mrs. Tracey wore a pink lace over taffeta dress with scalloped neckline, white accessories and a corsage of white baby 'mums.

Following the reception in the Knights of Columbus Hall, the couple left on a wedding trip to Niagara Falls. For travelling the bride chose a blue lace over taffeta dress with cowl collar and a corsage of white 'mums tinted blue. On their return, the couple will live in Brockville.

Fall Fashions Glow with Bright Hues

Young Canadians are going back to school in a burst of color this fall. Fashions for college or kindergarten glow with pure Indian summer shades — warm browns and golds, spicy reds and oranges, and rich greens and blues.

Checks, stripes, plaids and prints abound and fabrics are sturdy but cozy. The corduroys, double knits and other varieties of cottons, with their affinity for vibrant colors, will be classroom favorites.

Most of the trends in adult fashions turn up in children's wear too. The high-yoked baby dress, the smock, the A-line and the hip-belt, to say nothing of the mini skirt, get their start in children's fashion and are now worn by big girls too. This fall, the pant dress, beloved by young swingers is being made also for pint-sized females.

One dominant theme in fashions for both boys and girls of all ages is co-ordination, the well put-together or the "total look" from head to toe. Cotton shirts are toned or printed to complement jackets, slacks and jumpers. Knee socks or textured stockings co-ordinate with school - bound outfits. Turtle neck cotton knits are favorites which appear under sweaters, jackets, and vests of both sexes.

The co-ordinate idea appears in outerwear, as well. Cotton rain coats usually have their own matching hats and some even have dresses to match the print lining of the coat.

Bread-making Captures Housewives' Fancy

Cool Off Smartly!

By Anne Adams

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: Last year, (I think) you gave a bread recipe called "Chili - Dough Bread". I made it at the time and although I am no bread maker it amazed me and my family. It was perfect. Yes, you have guessed: I have lost the recipe. Could you repeat it please? — Claudia

ANSWER: I am pleased to repeat this for we had so many rave notices on the home-made bread making has become the rage.

WHITE BREAD — Call Dough Method — 3 loaves

NOTE: The size of the loaf pans is important. Unless you have them on hand buy two new loaf pans (not 9"x 5"x 2¾" — slightly smaller than standard loaf pans.

Heat the milk to warm it. Into large mixing bowl measure the lukewarm water and 1 tsp. sugar. Sprinkle yeast over top and let stand 10 min. Add the 2 tbsps. sugar, salt and shortening to the warm milk, stirring to dissolve. When yeast liquid is ready add milk mixture to it along with 2 cups of the sifted flour and beat until smooth. Now add 3 more cups of sifted flour, mix in as well as you can. Turn out on lightly floured surface and knead 200 times or for 10 minutes or until dough is velvet smooth and elastic. Shape into roll, cut in half. Have ready 2 buttered loaf pans. Shape each half into loaf shapes and place in prepared pans. Brush top all over with oil or melted butter, slip into outside plastic bags (they must be large to allow for high rising) and refrigerate. If you use 2 pkgs. of yeast you can remove 1 loaf in 2 hours' time, let it stand at room temperature to rise at least 1¼" above rim of pan while oven is heating to 400 deg. Fahr. (Or you can bake both loaves at this time.) Baking time is from 40 to 50 min. — time depending on how brown you like your crust.

CANDID NOTE: Actually, whether you use 1 or 2 pkgs. of granular yeast the bread is super. I have tried it both ways and do not refrigerated. If I have let it rise longer and higher and shorter and lower than I have prescribed. Result: All of the loaves were wonderful. Amateur bread makers can do this as soon as they master the Kneading Technique: On well floured board fold the dough over once toward you. With the heels of both hands press it down. Give it one-quarter turn to the right, fold over, and press with heels of hands again. This is kneading. Repeat until you have given it 200 folds, punches and turns, these three steps constituting one "knead". By then the dough will be satin smooth and elastic and squeaky.

Successful Living

Wife Resentful of Husband's Silence

Dear Doris: I am disappointed in the physical side of my marriage, but my husband refuses to discuss it. I don't want to hurt him, but I find myself resenting him and his demands.

Is this something a marriage counsellor could help with? — Resentful.

Dear Resentful: Is it ever! The very thing which occupies much of their time.

Some of the reasons why a mate — male or female — may refuse to talk about it are:

(1) The prim taboos which meant many of us grew up with only the slightest inkling of what "sex" was about, and still slum the subject.

(2) Failure to understand that a woman is generally more slowly aroused than a man.

(3) The idea that any criticism might seem a slur on one's manhood — or womanhood.

(4) Very little affection in early life.

I'll send you my list of recommended books on the subject, as well as the address of a marriage counselling service near you. Get the help you need. Marriage relationships are too precious to ignore.

Dear Doris: I'm 20 and sometimes I think I will go out of my mind. It all started when this handsome guy asked me to go out. I did, and the first night he told me that he had fallen in love with me on first sight. Could this be true? He didn't show up for a couple of months, and then said he was out of me to get a job in the city where he works, but I didn't go.

He said he would be down for a weekend, but didn't show up. Because of him I stayed home several weekends, refusing dates with other dates because I'm in love with him. I can't get him out of my mind and this spells other dates I have, because I start thinking of him. — Mixed Up.

Dear Gullible: It's a poor kind of love that does a disappearing act. That first-sight line was cheap romance, nothing more.

Your Romeo sounds unreliable, immature, self-indulgent. You have built him up in your own mind and given him qualities he doesn't possess. Waste no more time; give the other dates a chance.

To Crooked Teeth: My orthodontic adviser explains that you cannot assume that each human's jaw will accommodate all the teeth in that person's mouth. Jaws and teeth vary in size and in proportion to each other.

An attempt to widen the dental arches (as with invisible braces) could result in making a face look quite unbalanced; you might protrude or the dental arches become too wide for the rest of the face. Only a very small proportion of cases could succeed.

Consult an orthodontic specialist of good reputation and he will know just how to adapt the most modern techniques to your particular needs.

Is it better to put up with misunderstandings, or is begin talking things over? Let Doris help you see the light.

Ann Landers

Questionnaire Suggests Some Worthy Goals

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A few weeks ago you printed a questionnaire which was sent to you by a Memphis teen-ager. I felt it was a waste of newspaper space and I was deeply disappointed that Ann Landers, who has consistently shown such good judgment, saw fit to publish such trash.

I hope you will print my questionnaire which is infinitely more meaningful and constructive. Just sign me "A Parent Who Dearly Loves You."

Here is the guide for scoring:

If you can answer "yes" to five of these questions you are a good teen-ager. If you can answer "yes" to seven or more of these questions you have excellent character. If you can answer "yes" to nine or more of these questions, you are, as the kids say, "out of sight."

1. Do you have a true friend of the opposite sex whose friendship you value as much as your best friend of the same sex?

2. Can you be trusted 100 per cent with confidence?

3. Have you ever done a good deed and not told anyone about it?

4. Have you ever received too much change and told a clerk who otherwise would not have been aware of his error?

5. Have you ever admitted telling a lie and apologized for it?

6. Have you ever gone out of your way to make an unpopular kid feel at ease?

7. Did you remember ever having thanked someone for criticizing you?

8. Have you ever pointed out something good about a person when everyone else in the group was tearing that person apart?

9. Have you ever declined to take credit for something and pointed out that the person who deserved the credit was someone other than yourself?

10. Have you ever listened patiently to an older person and pretended to be interested, even though you were bored out of your mind?

11. Have you ever done something you would rather not have done because you wanted to serve as a good example for a younger brother or sister?

12. Do you look forward to the responsibility of love and marriage, building a home and raising a family? — MRS. T. T. OF KLAMATH FALLS, OREGON.

* * *

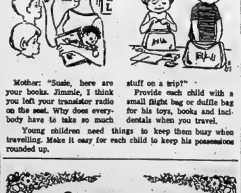
DEAR MRS. T. T.: Thank you for a superb questionnaire. It is far superior to the one sent by the Memphis teen-ager because it accentuates the positive and suggests some worthy goals. I appreciate your sending it to me.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Why are people so narrow minded? A few weeks ago all sorts of crazy super-patriots whipped themselves into a lather because somebody burned the American flag.

Why don't you tell those idiots to look up the rules. They will find that the proper method of disposing of the American flag is to burn it. Thank you for helping to educate the ignoramuses. — HIP HATTIE.

DEAR HAT: Did you include yourself among the "ignoramuses?" If you didn't, you should have.



The flag burning incident you refer to was a flagrant act of desecration. It was a vicious demonstration of hatred for America. When "the book" says burn the flag it means burn it in private, Stupid.

SOUTH of the College Street Bridge, where the Lightfoot Construction Company is completing installation of a feeder main, the high water level forced them to build the dam six feet high.

Installing Main Across Moira Not as Easy as It Sounds

Shale Made Solid

Workers from the Lightfoot Construction Company pour cement over and under the 24-inch water main coming out of College Street to cross the Moira in order to give it a solid base.

(Advertisement) (Advertisement) (Advertisement)

Warren Hartwig, General Superintendant for the Commercial Division of Rollins Construction Ltd., supervises the start of an addition to the Maher Shoe Store on Front Street in Belleville.

This is the second of two jobs now under way on Front Street by Rollins Construction Ltd. The other, The Adorn Coiffure Building is now nearing completion. Several other large projects are slated in the near future.

From a shallow six inches to 2½-feet deep amplifies the problem of installing a water main under the riverbed. The Tasham Construction Company is just completing installation of a 24-inch feeder main which crosses the Moira River just south of the College St. East bridge.

The $226,000 job has not been easy, as the water level for the first time in 10 years has been much deeper than usual. The company specifically planned to complete the job during the summer months when the water was low but nature didn't cooperate. Half of the river was damned at a time but it was difficult to keep the water out.

Another pitfall came shortly after the Moira River Conservation Authority pulled out the stop-logs at Lingham Lake to lower the water level. Evidently fishermen who did not want to see the water go down put the stop logs back in place much more securely than they had been originally — it was impossible to pull them out again without special machinery. The water-level rose quickly and as it was a couple of days before the machinery could be obtained, construction on the water-main was halted.

Now with the main just about completed (there is only one more section to be placed) another problem has arisen. College St. residents who have no water want to tap the feeder main which runs in front of their homes. They have next two or three petitions to the city.

However, according to Neil Britain of the Public Utilities Commission, "there is no way you can justify cutting into a feeder main for a ¾ inch service outlet. If a service pipe is ever pulled out then you have to shut down the feeder to make repairs which would affect a vast area."

The only way for these residents to obtain water would be to follow the example of the Herman St. homeowners and petition the city to install a six inch main for service outlets.

MARGINAL LAND SOLD

REGINA (CP)—More than 17,000 acres of land bought from Saskatchewan farmers for $845,000 by the federal-provincial Agricultural Rehabilitation and Development Act program is being seeded for grass. Officials say this enables farmers to leave sub-marginal land and convert it to more suitable fodder production.

Sharleen Callaghan, 5 Crowned Playgrounds Beauty Queen

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Meet the last of Belleville's Centennial year beauty queens — Sharleen Callaghan.

She's winsome, she's friendly, she's cute. And she tapes in at the right statistics too: 22, 20, 22.

That is, if you're like Sharleen — five years old and weighing about 35 pounds, by her parents' estimate.

For Sharleen is Belleville's Miss Penny Carnival of 1967 — drawing her title from the big event at East Hill playgrounds last night that marked the climax of events on the city's municipal playground-program.

The beauty contest, for children of any age between three and six years of age, also was the highlight of a children's carnay that drew more than 2,000 to the East Hill recreation centre.

Timing the event for exactly after the supper hour, the carnival began hitting its stride about 6.30 p.m. drawing mobs of mopets to such distractions as spin-the-wheel and bingo booths.

There were also attractions which reduced gambling to the minimum like the booth that advertised a fat lady — until it turned out she was only another member of the gang padded with cushions!

Whatever the activity, it kept the big playground buzzing with enthusiasm as the crowd awaited the big moment — the beauty competition.

Whatever the noise before, it was nothing to the reception that greeted the beauty contest as each of the 29-city playgrounds paraded their challenges for the crown.

Among the crowd, personal feeling ran high — although its enthusiasm for any candidate appeared about equal. Every mopet drew resounding cheers, sprinkled with catcalls and comments.

Most of the entrants braved the ordeal with aplomb — although there admittedly was the odd challenger who just couldn't face it, broke into tears and had to be physically and verbally supported throughout the exhibition by the playground supervisors.

However, this had little effect on the total impression since the judges were adults — a three-member panel headed by Alderman Don Williams, chairman of the city recreation committee.

The program still packed a kick as the sun was sinking over the playground.

The organizers successfully discovered a way to encore something like a girl beauty contest — a boy beauty contest.

Again each playground trotted out an entrant, again some of them recalcitrant about displaying their qualifications in public.

This time the award went to Timmy Semark, from Avondale playground, somewhere around three feet tall.

Rules call for all entrants to be between three and six years old. Timmy will be three in September, his supervisor said.

Which should fit in somewhere with the regulations. After all, it was a carnival — wasn't it?

School Board Representation Amalgamation's First Problem

By ROGER WORTH
Staff Reporter

One of the hurdles in the amalgamation of the Centre Hastings, Stirling-Rawdon and Bay of Quinte High School boards is area representation on the new board.

Department of education supervisor, R. W. Frosts said meetings will be held early in September to hammer out details on the composition of the new body which takes over on Jan. 1, 1968.

"The municipalities themselves will have to agree on the representation," he said. "We only act as a catalyst in these situations."

At the present time a total of 23 appointed members sit on the three high school boards.

Reports indicate the amalgamated board may have less than 25 members although the maximum number allowed by the department of education is 28 sitting members.

If the municipalities involved decide on a 25 or 28 member board it could be unwieldy or even unworkable. Some present Bay of Quinte Board members claim it would be difficult to reach decisions with a board of more than 20 members.

The Bay of Quinte High School Board has 17 members appointed by: the City of Belleville (6); Belleville Separate School Board (1); Belleville Public School Board (1); the township of Thurlow (2); the township of Sidney (2); Tyendinaga township (1); Ameliasburg township (2); the village of Frankford (1) and the county of Hastings (1).

The present Centre Hastings High School Board has 11 members appointed by: village of Madoc (1); village of Marmora (1); village of Deloro (1); the townships of Tudor and Cashel (1); township of Madoc (1); townships of Elzevir and Grimsthorpe (1); township of Huntington (1); Madoc Public School Board (1); Marmora Separate School Board (1); township of Marmora (1); and the county of Hastings (1).

Five members sit on the Stirling-Rawdon High School Board. They are appointed by: the township of Sidney (1); the village of Stirling (1); Rawdon township (2) and Stirling Public School Board (1).

Department Outlines Advantages

During discussions on the controversial amalgamation issue R. W. Frosts, district supervisor for the department of education in Kingston pointed to several advantages people could expect to derive from the larger area:

- The amalgamation would make possible the use of specialist teachers and separate classrooms for slow learners.
- Psychological and other shared services could be provided.
- A co-ordinated libraries system could be instituted.
- More advanced visual training could be used in the classroom.
- A central television receiving area combined with equipment for transmission to schools would be possible.
- A separate vocational school system could be set up.

Union Had Its Shaky Moments

The amalgamation of the Centre Hastings, Stirling-Rawdon and Bay of Quinte High School districts becomes a reality on Jan. 1, 1968.

Following months of discussion and heated argument the plan has been approved by all three districts — although Hastings County Council was required to upset a motion to repeal its approval as recently as July 24.

The impetus for the amalgamation came from the same Hastings County Council at its spring session in April. At that time council members approved a motion to dissolve the Centre Hastings and Stirling-Rawdon districts and include them in the Bay of Quinte High School district.

Earlier the county's secondary schools consultive committee recommended only the Stirling-Rawdon district be added to the Bay of Quinte board.

Following approval by county council the matter was placed before Belleville city council where the motion received a stormy reception. Before turning down the proposed amalgamation at a meeting on May 24, council board heated arguments from proponents and opponents.

At that time Alderman Donald Joss claimed the amalgamation would integrate 4,000 students with a tax assessment of $127,000,000 with an area containing 1,500 pupils whose tax assessment is $9,000,000. "We're going to increase school population by 25 per cent but increase the tax base by only seven per cent," he contended.

At a second meeting on the issue on June 5 council reversed its earlier decision on a nine to two vote.

A major factor in the reversal was a presentation by C. McLeod of the department of education.

He told council, "No municipality involved in the amalgamation will be hurt financially. Special grants will be paid for three years to make up any difference," he said.

Prince Edward County Council approved a motion setting up the new district on June 13, which in effect, made the amalgamation proposal a reality.

Student Population Increased by 1,000

Student population in the Bay of Quinte High School district will increase from 4,000 to 5,000 pupils when it amalgamates with the Centre Hastings and Stirling - Rawdon High School districts next January.

It is expected administration details for the joint board will be worked out by the Jan. 1 deadline but the actual operation of schools at Stirling and Madoc will, probably not be changed until September of 1968.

Prior to the amalgamation, the Bay of Quinte High School district had requested $60,000 for additions to the Belleville administration building.

Acting on a request from Belleville city council it shelved its plans for a year.

Since the amalgamation of the Centre Hastings and Stirling-Rawdon areas will mean another 1,000 students — education officials expect a new administrating building will be erected within the next year.

As far as classroom space is concerned officials expect a small addition will be required at the Madoc School while the Stirling High School will be "phased out". Enrolment has been dropping at the school over the past few years.

MUSHMOUTH REPORTS

Dear Boss:

Heard you were at a Toronto racetrack a week or so ago and after the meet was over, you became the first Lady Godiva to ride a railroad train. What I'd like to know where did you get a wig big enough to cover your knees.

My Uncle Pinkhmoth is a bookie at the track and he told me the horses you bet on have now been consigned to a glue factory. He said that if you had sported anything resembling a mane you would have gone along with them.

The horse you bet the big bundle on is now a teat pony in a buffalo corral, and his jockey has a job as a night watchman because he has already proved he has no trouble sleeping in the daytime.

In case you didn't know it, boss, that nag you blew the wad on was Leg Along out of Dark Night sired by Firefly. His old man was so called because they used to hang a lantern on his tail before each race so he could find the way to the stable when he finished the race after dark.

His mom, Dark Night, was a filly with a roving eye when she was young and used to hang her head out of the stable door at twilight watching all the colts go by. One night she attracted the whinnies of a grey stallion who from his looks had dined the bangtails that carried the cavalry at the Battle of Balaclava.

His neighed and she nayed when he suggested a hot walk and later she teamed up with Firefly who had a gleam in his eye but nothing in his legs. He had a record of no wins in 280 starts and two colts in twenty-four matches.

She had two other colts, "Bright Eyes" and "Dull Moments." In their maiden races "Bright Eyes" refused to start until he had the union rules and "Dull Moments" backed out of the starting gate so fast he collided tail-on with the winner.

Dark Night was a handsome filly. Sleek, and so slim she'd show pregnancy after fifteen minutes. She must have been a knockout in an amateur race as was the lead nag on a country fire truck. The second of a fire siren was to her like an LSD trip. She'd perk up her ears and take off and on a few occasions was found biting her hoefnails at a fire waiting for the boys to show up.

Uncle Plunk said you must have played a lot of hunches in the visit to the tracks. Said you played a naval idea when you put a tampot on "Anchors Aweigh." Anchor was up for the first half mile and was Aweigh back in the rack when the winner crossed the line.

Said you played a pool hunch when you put a fin on "Eight Ball." You picked up the wrong cue, boss, because when the race was over nothing was behind the "Eight Ball" except you and a five dollar bill.

You lost a device on "Hells Dolly" because that hang-tailed wench strop-tailed her way to the stable after watching the rest of the nags sail past her with a chorus of "Good Bye Dollies."

And you sure played the wrong hunch when you backed "Kiss Me" and "Goodnight" in the daily double. Had they won you could have bought a half share in Expo. As of now they have searching parties and rescue squads out looking for them. That prayer you murmured when you backed them with a tampot was truly answered. "Kiss Me, Good Night."

Actually, boss, you should see a psychiatrist before picking winners again. The first thing you know is you're going to pick the New York Yankees and the Mets in a subway world series.

Braves Pound Astros 8-2

"Sore-Arm" Fires 2 Homers, Double

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Eddie Stanky, a firm believer in the "there's no tomorrow" school of baseball thinking, always has been ready to go to any legitimate lengths to win a game.

The manager of Chicago White Sox found himself in a McMath situation Thursday night.

And he didn't hesitate any longer than during his playing days when he'd casually stick a hip in front of a fast ball to get on base.

With a one-run lead to protect and the bases loaded in the eighth, he rooted his starting pitching ace, Gary Peters, off the bench, sent him out in relief and salvaged a 2-1 victory over Detroit.

It preserved the White Sox' two-game lead atop the American League standings.

Bob Allison's two home runs led Minnesota Twins to a 5-0 conquest of Washington Senators, and Chuck Hinton's clutch double with two out in the 12th provided Cleveland Indians with a 3-2 edge over Baltimore Orioles in the only other American League games scheduled.

The White Sox, who had lost four of six games going into the Detroit test, had a 3-1 lead going into the bottom of the eighth.

The Tigers promptly loaded the bases with one out on two walks and an error. After Mickey Stanley popped up, Stanky sent in Peters.

Peters promptly struck out pinch hitter Norm Cash to end the inning.

Ken Boyer's homer off relief pitcher Mike Marshall in the top of the eighth broke a 1-1 tie and provided the winning margin. A two-base error and Pete Ward's pinch single drove in the first White Sox run in the seventh.

Detroit had taken a 1-0 lead in the fourth on a single by Al Kaline, a walk and Stanley's two-out single.

Allison's two homers, both 400-foot plus shots, gave him 18 for the year, drove in three runs and provided all the offensive support needed by Jim Perry, who limited Washington to five hits on Jack Hernandez' singled in the other two runs.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Billy Hitchcock was worried about Mack Jones' arm, but Houston Astros are more concerned about his bat.

Atlanta manager Hitchcock rearranged his outfield Thursday night so Jones' ailing arm would have less work to do.

Jones responded by hitting a pair of homers and a two-run double, driving in five runs as the Braves pounded Houston 10-3.

Hitchcock moved Hank Aaron from rightfield to centre, put Rico Carty into right from left and positioned Jones in left so that "Mack will have shorter throws to third and home."

Jones has been having arm miseries for two years and, until Thursday's game, had missed a week.

But a solo homer in the third inning, a two-run shot in the seventh and then the double in the eighth are likely to make him forget his problems for a while.

Carty added a three-run shot in the seventh inning in which the Braves scored five times. He now has 13 homers for the season and Jones has 12. Jim Wynn hit his 28th, a solo shot, for Houston in the eighth.

In other action in the National League Thursday, San Francisco Giants beat St. Louis Cardinals 5-2, Cincinnati Reds edged Los Angeles Dodgers 3-2, Pittsburgh Pirates shut out New York 3-0 and Chicago Cubs nudged Philadelphia Phils 2-1.

Mike McCormick, backed by homers from Willie McCovey and Jim Hart, continued his winning ways, picking up his 15th victory of the season as he limited St. Louis to six hits.

McCovey's homer, his 18th, drove in three runs, while Hart's solo shot was his 20th.

Carol Armstrong Sets New Archery Record

BALLANTRAE, Ont. (CP) — Two Canadian records were established Wednesday in the Canadian archery championships, both in freestyle events.

Elmer Ewert of Kitchener raised the men's record eight points with a score of 2,608 and Carol Armstrong of Belleville the women's record to 1,930 from 1971.

But Lois Van Meyl of Galt was the sensation of the event as he won the junior men's freestyle event with a score of 994, well ahead of either of the senior champions.

Paul Laviolette of the Royal Canadian Navy Maritime Command won the men's bare bow event, in which competitors shoot without sights, with a score of 824.

Ryun Runs In Europe

NEW YORK (AP)—Jim Ryun, the world record holder for the mile, and several other U.S. athletes left for London Thursday for races in England, West Germany and Italy.

Ryun will compete in the U.S.-Britain track meet in London Saturday and again in London Monday.

Other races scheduled will be at Dusseldorf, West Germany, Aug. 16 and 17, and at Varagio, Italy, Aug. 8 and 20.

The Amateur Athletic Union said an invitation had been received for Ryun to race against Gerhard Weidenbach of Kenya in London Aug. 28 but no decision has been made yet.

Commonwealth Golf

Point Separates Five Nations

VICTORIA (CP)—The battle for the fourth Commonwealth Golf Championship became a matter of a scramble today after Thursday's results left all five countries separated by one point in the standings.

Scotland led against New Zealand and Britain met South Africa in today's draw. And all four teams had an opportunity to grab first place—or at least a share of it.

Australia, which shared Commonwealth honors with Britain in the last tournament in 1963, was idle in today's fourth round of the road-robin tourney.

Although Canada has yet to lose to New Zealand in Commonwealth play, Phil Farley of Toronto, the team's non-playing captain, was only cautiously optimistic about today's chances.

Bryan Silk, New Zealand's non-playing captain, regarded the Canadians as "a real strong team on paper."

New Zealand moved into a first-place tie with Britain with a five-match-to-four victory over South Africa Thursday while Australia edged Canada by a similar count.

Britain and New Zealand had three points each going into today's fourth round. South Africa, Canada and Australia each had two.

There are nine matches—three foursomes and six singles — each pairing, with the over-all winner earning two points. A draw, 4 1-3 wins each, gives each team one point.

The New Zealand win was fashioned by a one-match edge in foursomes competition and a spectacular hole-in-one in a six-game contest by veteran Stuart Jones.

Jones, 43-year-old Hastings Company director canned a three-iron shot on the seventh hole to start his victory march against South Africa's Cornie du Toit.

Du Toit was one up at the time and had just plunked a ball two feet from the pin when Jones fashioned his ace on the 223-yard par 3.

Jones went on to win 4 and 3. The New Zealander was two under par when the match ended while Du Toit, shaken by the shot, was two over.

Paraplegic Sets World Swim Mark

WINNIPEG (CP)—Joann Cornett of the United States swimming team at the Paraplegic Pan-American Games set a world paraplegic record Thursday in winning the women's 25-metre freestyle in the A complete classification.

The U.S. swimmer finished in 32.6 seconds, trimming four-tenths of a second off the previous mark.

Mariana Soulek made it a clean sweep in the event for the Americans as she finished in 32.8 seconds for a silver medal.

Canadian swimmers showed they could sweep an event of their own as they took all three medals in the men's 25-metre freestyle in A classification.

Baxter Leads Classic

Nicklaus, Palmer Trail

AKRON, Ohio (AP)—Rex Baxter Jr., with only one tournament victory in 10 years as a pro, takes a three-stroke lead into today's second round of the $100,000 American golf classic.

Baxter shot a four-under-par 34-32-66 Thursday over the 7,180-yard Firestone Country Club course.

Rains, a new watering system and 20-mile-an-hour winds made the course tough.

"That's four shots lower than any round I've ever had on this course," said Baxter.

Baxter's only tour victory came in the 1963 Cajun classic.

Only six others in the field of 154 golfers managed to break par, all coming in with 69s.

They were George Archer with 35-34, Bill Collins 36-33, Bill Martindale 36-33, Jack McGowan 34-35, Kermit Zarley 36-33 and Randy Glover 36-33.

Grouped at 70 and-matching par were National Open champion Jack Nicklaus; Arnold Palmer, the current leading money winner with $118,000; Doug Sanders; Gardner Dickinson; Bobby Nichols; Johnny Pott; Labron Harris and Ken Still.

He added two wins in his record Thursday atop Canadian Statute in the fourth and Super Liner in the fifth to boost his meet total to 43 victories.

Wednesday he won four races to become the meet's top winner, pewing suspended apprentice Richard Grubb.

European Track Stars Rally To Win Over Americas At Expo

MONTREAL (CP)—There won't be a re-match until 1969, so track and field coaches on both sides of the Atlantic will have ample time to sit back and take a long hard look at their athletes. Europe won the inaugural Europe vs. Americas track and field match by a two-eight total of 189 points to 133, with the next of the biennial series scheduled for Europe two years hence.

The Americas team had entered Thursday night's final stage with a 79-74 point edge, only to see the final figures give the opposition a 108-100 advantage in men's events, and a 60-55 margin in the women's.

Unfortunately the match was plagued by poor weather, a downpour prevailed the first night and cool temperatures and wind gusts of 20 miles an hour kept the athletes from top performance on the second.

Points for the events were on a 5-3-2-1 system with the exception of relay races, which were awarded six five points for first and two for the last-place finishers.

European athletes placed first in nine of the events Thursday night while the Americas came home in front six times. The latter also won the men's 1,600-metre relay for an additional five points.

However, track officials after the match was completed, pointed to the fact the Europeans had finished one-two in six of Thursday night's contests, while the Americas team had managed the feat only once.

Robert Bobin, coach of France's team with the European squad, said he was not surprised by his side's success.

"Europe has more coaches and desire," Bobin said. "They have the potential and they have forgotten about wars and poverty."

Herve D'Ecause of France, the pole vault winner, was named the most outstanding athlete and the outstanding field athlete. The outstanding male track man was Vince Matthews of the U.S., who ran in the 1,500-metre/relay Thursday night and was within one-tenth of a second of the world record in winning the men's 400 metres Wednesday.

Named the outstanding woman athlete and the outstanding female field performer was Margitta Gummel of East Germany, winner of the women's shot put.

The outstanding woman runner was Madeleine Manning of the United States, winner of the women's 800 metres.

As in the opening night competition, the U.S. team got off to a fast start.

Ron Whitney won the first event, the 400-metre hurdles, in 50.1 first event and John Carlos beat favored Roger Bambuck of France in the 200 metres.

Bambuck had taken the 100-metre dash in 10.2 opening night with three yards between himself and Willie Turner of the U.S.

"He (Bambuck) didn't impress me Wednesday," Carlos said after his win. "We ran against that wind tonight and this was in my favor because I figure I'm stronger."

The Americas continued their early mastery of the track when Charles Sherrard and Mamie Rollins of the U.S. gave their side its only one-two finish in the night in the women's 80-metre hurdles, finishing in 10.9 and 11 seconds respectively.

However, the 5,000-metre event was a different story, with Lajos Mecser of Hungary and Gaston Roelandts of Belgium taking early lead and soon finding themselves well ahead of Juan Martinez of Mexico and Louis Scott of the U.S.

Mecser was the eventual winner.

Madeleine Manning of the U.S. won by inches over Vera Wilusic of Yugoslavia in the women's 800 metres. Both were timed at 2:02.8.

Franz-Josef Kemper of West Germany had an trouble in winning the men's 800 metres with a time of 1:49.3. Jean-Pierre Dufresne of France was second, while two Canadians—Brian MacLaren of Winnipeg and Bill Crothers of Markham, Ont.—were third and fourth respectively.

Picton Guardsmen Win

Army Major Captures Trophy

SOUTH MARCH, Ont. (CP)—Maj. Edson Warner of Lennonville, Que., won the King Trophy in the Dominion of Canada Rifle Association meet shooting in a drizzling rain driven by a 25-mile an hour wind Thursday on the Connaught Ranges.

"I could say I was lucky, but I've been at this too long," said the veteran of three Canadian Bisley teams.

Maj. Warner, who won the coveted honor at Bisley, England in 1955, scored 95 out of a possible 105 in the Corowalks, Eagetown, and Uplands matches comprising the aggregate.

After finishing firing on the ranges near this community he rules west of Ottawa, Maj. Warner said he had been fortunate in making "no errors in judgment" despite "tough" weather. Runners up in the King matches were Sgt. Jacques Dugas of the Royal 22nd Regiment, Valcartier, Que., and Cpl. Les Besley and Cpl. L. B. Rhodenizer both members of No. 1 Canadian Air Division Team, Penhold, Alta.

Maj. Warner shot a perfect 35 in the Uplands match and perfect 40 in the Standing match at 100 yards.

In a special Centennial Year match called the Expo 67 aggregate Clint Dahlstrom of Calgary shot 164 out of a possible 175 to win.

Earlier this week Dahlstrom won the Canadian sporting rifle championship beating Maj. Warner by five points.

Sgt. Lavoie, 1st Battalion, Canadian Guards, Picton, Ont., won the 200-yard Sherwood with a 39 out of 40 after defeating Corp. J. A. Bienvenue of the Royal 22nd Regiment, Valcartier, Que. and Sgt. E. T. Bailey of 1st Canadian Signals Regiment, Kingston, who tied in the shoot-off.

Pte. Joseph Moreau also of 1st Battalion Canadian Guards won the rapid shoot-off with 48 out of 50 at 200 yards, defeating Cpl. J. W. Matthews of the 1st Princess Patricia's Light Infantry, Edmonton.

Cementmen Bow To Madoc 6-4

Madoc knocked Point Anne's chance of pitching Pat Maracle off the mound en route to a 6-4 decision over the Cementmen last night. The game was the third in a three team round robbie series to decide two contenders for the Trent Valley League title.

The winners bunched their six run total in the first four frames but Ron Eaton had it under control. The younger Maracle allowed a single in the final inning and Eaton, in relief.

Point Anne scored all four of their runs in the seventh inning.

A passed ball, base hit and error allowed Kramp to score a lone marker in the first inning for Madoc. Two singles were good for another run next inning and Ryan Reid led off the third with a homer to make it 3-0. Three hits and an error enabled Madoc to push across their final three runs in the fourth.

Manager Cementmont's four run outburst came on the strength of base hits by Dave Akey and Glen Maracle, and three walks. The winners also had two errors in the inning.

Larry Gerrits gave up only three hits, walked three and hit one batter. He fanned four. Ryan Reid had his sixth, for the winners. Akey and Glen Maracle slammed a pair of hits and Vern Whalen one for Point Anne.

Ellis' Capture League Flag

By ROBERT SNEFJELLA

Belleville Ellis' Seniors have clinched at least a share in the Quinte-KASA softball league.

Last night at the Alemite the locals defeated Kingston Prince George 4-2 in a four inning game to end up one point ahead of Kingston Lake Bus. Ellis' crew will now face Picton in the league semi-finals, and also have the OASA Senior "A" playdowns with the Lake Bus coming within two weeks.

The winners potted three runs in the third and one more in the fifth to put them into a commanding lead. A two-run homer brought Kingston within striking distance in the seventh but were squelched in the final two frames.

Ralph Plane, Ellis' centre-fielder, slammed a double scoring two runs in the third inning outburst. Terry Lesage doubled and came home on a double by Stu Muirhead, in the fifth.

Ninth place hitter Haven Ferguson clouted a triple and two batter Maracle, Gerry Gerrett banged a home run shot into right field to account for the winners four runs in the seventh inning.

Bob Ritzer gave up seven hits and fanned eight in hurling the win. Ron Brown sprinkled nine hits over the route for the visitors. He managed five strikeouts.

Stu Muirhead tied Ralph Plane had a double and single each for Belleville. Terry Lesage and Don Gardner had one double each, and Larry Kingston, Mavety, Pat Clancy and Paul Merow base hits.

Stinsons Blank Brants 8-0

Bob Boyle of Stinson's threw a sparkling two-hitter and struck out nine enroute to a 8-0 victory over Brant's-Mt. View, in Commercial softball action last night.

The win pulled Stinso's into a first place tie with City Hotel and Black Diamond, ahead of Sportsmen and Stewart Warner. The schedule runs out early next week.

Boyle walked three and received good support from his mates in beating the shutout.

Grant Collet and Jim Spinks shared the losers' pitching chore, giving up seven hits, passing seven, and striking out six.

Stinson's scored three in the fifth and triggered a six run explosion in the sixth, for their eight runs.

Lyle Thompson had two base hits and Ken Genereaux a double to pace the winners. Jack Smith, Doug Reid, Jack Whiting and Doug Flindall singled.

Jack Smith and Bill Cannons had Brant's hits.

Brant's are dwelling deep in the cellar of the Commercial league cellar with a total of three wins all year.

Departmental Softball

Two runs in the bottom of the sixth inning settled one of the season's best games and gave the Combines a tight 5-4 win over The Intelligencer last night.

The victory boosted the Combines to within a single point of first place, the Expos with 30 points and Combines with 29, meet in one of the loop's three remaining games tomorrow night. The key contest will likely be played next Thursday.

The Intelligencer outhit the Combines 7-5 but could not solve winning pitcher Bob Reid's offerings with men on base. Reid struck out seven and walked two. Bill Ferguson, a two-run homer, Gordon Rodgers a triple, Jim Prentice a double and Bob Barlow also drove a single each for the winners.

Soccer Juniors Defeat Wilsons 5-0

The Belleville Junior whipped a game but outclassed Wilson Concrete team 5-0 in a Quinte Soccer league battle at Zwick's Island last night.

Wilson's efforts were based on enthusiasm, and more than once upset the Juniors' defence. Lack of experience, however, made it difficult for them to finish off their plays.

Max Valyear and Bob Watson slammed home two goals and T. Digmore had one, for two winners.

Both teams displayed good sportsmanship with only three fouls called.

To Your Good Health

Reduced Circulation Makes Legs Ache

There is the type of person who can walk for no more than a few minutes before his legs begin to pain him.

One cause, perhaps the commonest, for this is reduced circulation because the arteries to the legs have become narrowed by a condition known as arteriosclerosis, or "hardening of the arteries."

Unless the narrowing is primarily at a single point, and surgery can help the situation, the amount of help for such patients is limited. Drugs can encourage the circulation to a modest degree. But there is as yet no medication which can "clean out the arteries," although efforts are being made to find something that will.

Thus it is interesting to note an experiment reported by two doctors in Denmark. They told a group of such patients to walk as vigorously as possible for an hour a day.

Not that any of them could continue for anything like an hour. They were instructed to walk briskly as they could until pain stopped them. Then they rested until able to resume.

This did indeed seem to stimulate the flagging circulation — as it logically should. Circulation of the blood is not exactly a function of the heart's pumping. The movement of muscles surrounding blood vessels also plays a part.

At the end of six months, these patients were able, on the average, to walk nearly three times as far before pain stopped them.

To protect against the possibility that this improvement was "all in the mind," another group of patients received pills, actually not effective, but offered with the idea that they would help them. These patients did not improve.

I would not suggest that people with this sort of problem try this treatment on their own. Some other condition may exist which would make this strenuous effort inadvisable. Therefore, see a doctor first whether he sees any objection to making the effort.

If he consents, try it. It may help.

Dear Dr. Molner: Some time ago a doctor said me I had an enlarged prostate gland. At that time I was having no trouble with it. Now I have a little trouble urinating.

Is an operation a serious procedure, or is it something that can be compared to, say, an appendectomy? I've had my appendix removed and it was not too bad. I am 63.—W.M.B.

Depending on what surgery is required, a prostate operation can be either less or more serious than removing an appendix. Generally speaking, the sooner the operation is done, the less. Left untreated, trouble tends to get gradually worse (and occasionally rapidly worse.) I suggest reading my booklet, "The Pekoy Prostate" which will explain the various types of surgery required, depending on the patient's condition. Send 20 cents in coin and a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Dr. Molner in care of the Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, 211 E. Ontario St., Chicago, Ill., 60611.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have either heard or read that people with leprosy no longer have to be isolated. Everyone says I am wrong. Can this disease be either cured or controlled? — Mrs. C. M. B.

Leprosy (Hansen's disease) can be transmitted from person to person but only by prolonged, close contact, and there is no need for strict quarantine. Some of the colonies for such patients remain, but principally because some who had lived there for years preferred to remain.

There are several types of the disease and some can be treated with a considerable degree of success.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is there a cure for cancer of the cervix? — Mrs. L. M.

Yes, if it is detected early enough. Regular pelvic examinations are important.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have been told that I have a hiatus hernia. Is there anything I can do about it? — Mrs. M. S.

Yes, there are several things you can do. Send for my booklet, "Hiatus Hernia" and you will learn what they are. Send 20 cents in coin and a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Dr. Molner in care of the Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, 211 E. Ontario St., Chicago, Ill., 60611.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is there any way to prevent a cold sore? — Mrs. M. S.

Cold sores are caused by a virus. Avoid contact with anyone who has one. Avoid fatigue, emotional upset, and exposure to sun and wind

Ky Regime Blocks Free Choice

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Robert F. Kennedy said today there is "mounting and distressing evidence" that South Vietnam's military regime is interfering with free choice in that country's coming presidential election.

The New York Democrat said such interference would be a betrayal of the cause for which 12,000 Americans have died.

His New York colleague, Republican Senator Jacob K. Javits, said the South Vietnam elections should "mark the beginning of an end of our commitment there." He said a new, elected government should set to work to take responsibility for its own security, and the United States should look toward disengagement.

Presidential elections are scheduled in Vietnam Sept. 3. Eleven tickets are entered, including a military pairing composed of Lt.-Gen. Nguyen Van Thieu, chief of state, and Nguyen Cao Ky, now premier. Ky is running for vice-president.

Kennedy charged that wouldbe candidates have been barred from the election because their views were deemed unacceptable; that opponents of the Ky regime have been jailed; that the presidential campaigners are being hampered by harassment; that the military government is moving to perpetuate its power whatever the election outcome.

Kennedy and Javits talked of the Vietnam political situation in Senate speeches. Texts were made available to the press before delivery.

Their statements followed by a day issuance by 17 House of Representatives Democrats representing both backers and opponents of President Johnson's Vietnam policies—of a statement warning the South Vietnamese election may be a sham unless steps are taken to guarantee freedom of choice.

"We urge the President to make the strongest representations that steps be taken promptly to prevent a further scrolling of confidence in the elections," they said, adding the elections may be regarded "as little more than a sham unless remedial measures are undertaken immediately by the Ky government and the military group in authority."

New Pacific Coast Superport May Be Built by BC Regime

VANCOUVER (CP)—A muddy tidal flat is the centre of a controversy over the merits of what the provincial government call a "superport."

Known as Roberts Bank, the flat projects into Georgia Strait about 13 miles south of Vancouver's city-limits.

Boosters of the flats say a superport could handle British Columbia and Alberta coal, potash, petrochemicals, sulphur, B.C. timber and other bulk cargos more cheaply than Vancouver.

Opponents insist a superport will cost about $138,000,000—far more than the boosters' estimate of about $38,000,000—and that it will draw traffic away from Vancouver.

So far there has been no definite decision. However, the provincial government earlier this year obtained legislation setting up a provincial port authority with power to borrow $25,000,000, though no specific project was mentioned.

The Vancouver harbor area, recently expanded to include North Burnaby, is under the jurisdiction of the National Harbors Board, which launched its own engineering study of the flats after the provincial legislation was announced.

Many believe Premier Bennett is moving along those similar to those in the 1930s when he took over Black Ball Lines Ltd. Ferries and built the services to Vancouver Island into what he bills as a fleet rivaling the size of the Canadian Navy.

"Vancouver has got the best port, but it isn't properly managed," he says. "We need this great superport and we'll build it too."

Statements by Mr. Bennett and other provincial officials suggest the superport would handle bulk-loading vessels—massive ships now plying world sea lanes laden with large tonnages of loose cargo.

Vancouver is a Vancouver's harbor, in protected Burrard Inlet, will soon not be able to handle economically these bulk shipments as well as a port designed specifically for the purpose.

They also insist there would be a saving to vessel owners in turn-around time. It takes 36 hrs. to sail the extra 15 miles to Vancouver where many are forced to wait for berths at a cost of up to $2,000 a day.

Opponents say the superport appears tied basically to coal shipments from Crows Nest Industries Ltd. of Fernie, B.C., which is negotiating with Japanese interest to provide $2,000,000 loan for coal annually. They say Vancouver now handles more than 1,000,000 tons of coal and a port is costing $15,000,000 is under way to enable the port to handle considerably more.

Following the harbors legislation, B.C. energy board proposed deepsea docks adjacent to it causeway and ships at Tsawwassen used by the provincial government ferries to Vancouver Island.

The report said modifiers at the bank would be dredged to accommodate the huge ships and a breakwater would be constructed to protect them from the seas, and often rough, waters of Georgia Strait.

Vancouver, meanwhile, published its own report on the operation of the situation. The conclusion of the port development committee report was that the dock "cannot be accurately harm the potential future development of the total port area."

It said the superport "is not warranted at this time" and that Vancouver could handle projected bulk loading tonnage for the next 10 years.

T. A. Mitchell, president of Pacific Coast Bulk Terminals Co. Ltd., say the superport idea is at least eight years premature. He thinks there is more cargo than we see coming now.

The terminal, a Canadian Pacific Railway subsidiary, is handling Coleman Collieries Ltd., coal to Japan.

The NHB has forecast that the 4,000,000 tons of bulk cargo now moving annually through Vancouver will increase to 14,000,000 tons in the next decade. Mr. Mitchell says the company will be able to handle half of it and other increases should be able to make the remainder.

Sexual Assaults Increase

TORONTO (CP)—A Toronto school trustee says sexual assaults on children in Ontario have reached "alarming proportions."

Alan Archer called for a Metropolitan Toronto-financed $10,000 campaign to fight indecent assaults in Ontario.

Mr. Archer said Metro reported more than 625 indecent assaults during 1966 and was faced with more than 230 against children aged two to 12.

"The Ontario Safety League estimated that there are 2,000 assaults annually in the province," said Mr. Archer.

"Many go unreported because parents don't wish to be involved or because the attacker is a relative or friend."

The $10,000 campaign would be directed by the safety league and would include, film clips, posters, recorded announcements and cartoons.

Help From Unlikely Spot

By CLARENCE W. CRANFORD

West of the city of Athens is an impressive hill in the rest of Greece by a narrow neck of land only four miles wide. Today a busy street runs through that narrow neck of land joining the Adriatic and the Aegean Seas. The ancient Isthmus before the canal was dug, ships actually rolled across this neck of land on huge rollers rather than sail all the way around the Peloponnesus.

At the west end of this neck of land, about 60 miles from Athens, lie the ruins of the ancient city of Corinth. Here are the majestic ruins of the temple of Apollo standing only a few hundred yards from the sight of the ancient market places where the most of animals sacrificed to pagan gods was sold creating a troublesome problem for early Christians. (I Cor. 8) Out in a field close to the site of the ancient amphitheatre lies a stone inscribed with the name Erastus. Was this the same man who accompanied Timothy to northern Greece? — (Acts 19:22)

Corinth, also had Mar Mt Acrocorinth on which a monastery now stands. Between the hill and the sea once stretched one of the most cosmopolitan and wicked seaport cities in that ancient world. Paul lists some of his vices as he wrote to the Christians in Rome from the home of a Corinthian friend named Gaius. (Romans 1:22-32) The city was known far and wide for its fast living. The word Corinthian practically became synonymous with a playboy type of living.

Yet in that unlikely spot, Paul founded a Christian church, and found some of his finest helpers. After his discouraging failure in Athens men in Athens when more mocked him than believed him, Paul turned with "fear and trembling" to Corinth. No "lofty words" would change this wicked city. He could only depend on the message and power of Christ's love from the cross. (I Cor. 2:1-5)

Paul was soon forbidden to speak in the synagogue (what is thought to be a some room this building is preserved in the museum in Corinth). So Paul moved next door from which he carried on his activities, and was successful in winning a ruler of the synagogue to his Christian faith. (Acts 18:7-8)

Here an interesting development took place. Paul was arrested and brought before a civil judge (Gallio) on the charge that he was persuading men to worship God contrary to the law of Moses. In other words a civil authority was asked to rule on a religious question. But Gallio refused to fall into this trap. He pointed out that this lay outside his jurisdiction thereby establishing an important precedent in favor of religious liberty. Unfortunately, he may have been motivated by a feeling of anti-Semitism, for when the tables of the argument was mobbed by Greeks, he refused to interfere. (Acts 18:14-17)

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for August 13: "Persons in the Gospel," Acts 18:1 through 19:20.

It was in Corinth Paul met his pseudo who were to become two of his finest friends, Aquilla and Priscilla. Many things bound him to them. They were fellow-Jews. Like Paul, they were well-traveled. Born in Pontus on the Black Sea, they had migrated to Rome. When Caesar Claudius expelled all Jews from Rome, they were forced to flee to Greece where they took up residence in Corinth. Also like Paul, they were tent-makers, and since this was Paul's earlier trade, it was natural that he should live and work with them.

It is interesting how things work out. Led to the Christian faith by Paul, Aquilla and Priscilla went to Ephesus where they met and heard a man named Apostos. Apollos was a follower of John, the Baptist. He had not learned of the Christian faith or the Christian meaning of baptism. Aquilla and Priscilla persuaded him to accept the Christian faith, and it was Apollos who later went to Corinth to become the leader of the church Paul had started there. And of this rivalry later broke out between the followers of Paul and those of Apostos, Paul pleaded that they realize that all Christians are workers for God, not for his ministers and missionaries.

There is no doubt that Paul was the star wherever he went, but he could recite the work alone. He needed helpers —lots of them — who would give their highest loyalty to Christ, and work together as a team to advance God's Kingdom on earth.

Two Killed

Montreal-bound Train Wrecked

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y. (AP)—The Delaware and Hudson's Montreal Limited, bound for Montreal with about 200 passengers, collided early today with a freight train near this upstate resort, and two passengers were known dead.

About 40 persons also were reported injured including at least one Canadian woman in the crash of the Montreal Limited, which left New York City at 11 p.m. Friday, and the 100-car freight train bound from Whitehall to Oneonta.

Saratoga Hospital said one of the dead was Kristine Jebsen, 63, of Bergen, Norway, on a business trip with his son. Also, who was not injured, Jebsen died of head injuries.

Three passenger cars and seven freight train overturned.

A rail spokesman said the southbound freight train was pulling onto a siding to let the passenger go through on a single track when the crash occurred.

"The crash couldn't have happened at a worse time," the spokesman said. The Montreal-bound train carries its greatest number of passengers Friday night, most of them going to Expo 67.

The crash occurred at about 4:30 a.m. near Route 50.

Nearly 30 ambulances were sent to the scene, some from as far as Glens Falls, about 20 miles north of here.

William Shaft, who lives near the crash scene, told a reporter he was awakened by what sounded like "a clap of thunder."

James Canavan of Glens Falls, district chairman, said seven freight cars landed on top of two overturned passenger cars and corridors of the cars were so telescoped that torches, saws and jacks were required.

The wreck, described by city officials as the worst in the history of Saratoga Springs, occurred about a half mile from the Saratoga Performing Arts Centre.

The crash cars spewed paper products near the road, which links Saratoga and Schenectady.

One of the first persons to emerge from one damaged passenger car was Huguette Brosseau, 23, of Montreal, who suffered a broken arm in the crash. She was returning home from New York City.

"It happened funny because I was supposed to fly home," she told reporters. "Last Tuesday I flew from Montreal to New York and one of the engines of the plane went out. We had to circle the airport for quite a long time. This is when I decided to take the train, because I didn't want to go through that again."

"I looked out the window to see if there was any water. I was thrown against a window, I just hit the window and was bounced off the bed in a sleeping compartment."

"I just thought how many people could have been killed," she said.

Chinese Mob Resumes Attack on Soviet Ship

MOSCOW (CP)—Chinese Red Guards attacked a Soviet merchant ship in the Manchurian port of Dairen for the second consecutive day today and smashed equipment aboard the vessel, the Russian news agency Tass reported.

The agency said "an enormous mob is raving on the embankment" where the ship, the freighter Svirsk, was moored.

The Soviet government previously sent a strong protest to Peking, accusing Chinese authorities of seizing the ship and "capturing" its captain Friday.

Tass quoted shipping officials at the Russian port of Vladivostok as saying that "Red Guards stormed onto the deck of the ship and began smashing up its equipment" this morning.

Tass also said the ship's master, identified as Viktor Korshow, was beaten following his arrest Friday. It said Korshov was brought back to the dock area today and was taunted by a mob of Chinese.

The crew of the Russian ship was besieged and unable to go to the captain's rescue, the agency said. The report said the Chinese were demanding that the ship's navigator also be handed over to them.

Russia charged Friday that the previous attack on the ship was a "planned provocation, intended to further complicate Soviet-Chinese relations."

It accused the Chinese of "unprecedented bandit actions" and demanded the vessel's immediate release.

"The unprecedented bandit actions against the Soviet ship and members of its crew," said the note, "took place in the presence of official Chinese authorities and with their direct confivance.

"A crowd of about 1,000 Chinese citizens was assembled near the ship," the note charged, "many of whom stormed on board and tried to manhandle crew members."

"The rampaging hooligans wrote and pasted all over the ship dirty slogans containing threats and insults against the Soviet state and its people."

The Soviet note also demanded "the strict punishment of those guilty of the arbitrariness."

Johnson Backs de Gaulle In Interview on French TV

PARIS (Reuters) — Quebec Premier Daniel Johnson, speaking in a TV interview from Quebec City, repeated his call Friday night for a new Canadian constitution that would recognize the existence of "two nations" in Canada — of French and English origin.

Interviewed on French television, Johnson said President de Gaulle drew attention to the essential problem of Quebec during his visit there last month.

"This is that the French-Canadian nation wants the maximum liberty in order to develop and flourish in a normal way," he said.

The provincial premier added: "Today, political leaders also all admit the necessity for a new constitution made in Canada by Canadians, for Canadians, and based on the judicial and political recognition of two nations — the French-Canadian nation and the English-Canadian nation."

Johnson Asks Pension Talks

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Johnson of Quebec has sent a letter to Prime Minister Pearson requesting that talks be held on the transfer of responsibility of old age pensions from Ottawa to Quebec.

Negotiations between high-level civil servants would be the fastest way of finding "a common ground for agreement," said the letter, tabled Friday in the legislature.

He said the French-Canadians want to develop inside Canada "if possible."

"But if it were impossible, then one would have to get out — and that would be independence," he said.

In Quebec, aides of Mr. Johnson said the premier would make no further comment on the interview. Mr. Johnson himself was in the legislative assembly.

Scandinavians Recall Reporter

OSLO (Reuters)—The Scandinavian news agencies have decided to recall their joint correspondent from Peking following a warning from China that his news reporting has been "unfriendly towards China." It was announced in the Norwegian capital Friday night.

The Chinese foreign ministry also said China found it "totally unacceptable" that the correspondent, Harald Munthe-Kaas, had been distributing news reports to non-Scandinavian newspapers.

The Norwegian news agency NTB announced the recall decision on behalf of the other agencies—RB of Denmark, FNB of Finland and TT of Sweden.

Apart from supplying news and commentaries on Chinese affairs to the four agencies, Munthe-Kaas, a 28-year-old Norwegian who speaks Chinese, has also delivered reports to The Times and The Sunday Times in London and the Far Eastern Economic Review in Hong Kong.

The announcement said the correspondent received a "stern warning" Monday. The agencies said he now is on the way home.

Official U.S. sources said if all goes well in the new talks, the nuclear non-proliferation treaty may be ready in late October for submission at the UN General Assembly's fall session.

Caught in Well

Second Cave-in Buries Boy Again

LENORE, W. Va. (AP)—A second cave-in shortly before 6 a.m. buried 15-year-old Leonard Boyce up to his chest again just as rescue workers had almost freed him from a 13-hour entrapment in a well.

After bringing in heavy earth-moving equipment, workers dug a deep trench and had Boyce free except for one leg and a foot when the second cave-in occurred.

Sheriff Steve Adkins, among some 40 workers who have toiled through the night to rescue the boy, said "it looks like another four hours at this point."

Workers had to progress slowly in clearing rocks and dirt from around the boy because of the danger of more falling rock. A temporary wooden hood was constructed over his head to protect him from rocks.

Authorities also sent for a doctor because they said the boy was nearing the point of exhaustion. He kept pleading from his entrapment 14 feet underground: "Tell them don't stop."

He was buried in rock from his knees to his chest at 5.15 p.m. Friday.

Boyce, of nearby Paraley's Bottom, a small mountain community near this southwestern West Virginia community, was fed hot chocolate through a rubber tube as he shivered through the night.

He was trapped while trying to inspect the well for cleaning.

Workers rescued Boyce today by digging a trench alongside the well's casing. But more rock began falling on the boy after a small hole was dug through the side of the well for rescuers to reach his head.

Operations then were halted because of fears that the youth would be crushed by stone.

As rescuers gingerly picked up rocks from the trench, Boyce repeated:

"I want out. Hurry and get me out."

He remained calm, however. Among the some 150 spectators standing by in the pre-dawn hours were Boyce's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Boyce and his two sisters about 12 and 13. His mother said quietly, "I just hope he can hang on."

Boyce, complaining of pains in his side, pleaded frequently for water.

Fearing even slight vibrations could cause more cave-ins, police ordered all truck traffic halted on a nearby highway and trains were ordered not to run in the area.

Rescue teams included men from area mines, who at first hoped that a trench could be dug deep enough to reach Boyce's legs and pull him free feet first. But they found heavy machinery was needed.

Pile on Train for Expo Trip

It will have been well worth the effort but that won't change the fact that 700 fast belonging to Belleville teenagers who left for Expo at 6.30 a.m. this morning will be very tired. They arrive back in Belleville at midnight tonight.

The Expo-A-Go-Go train, provided by the CNR, finally got under way. There was a slight mix - up though; the five special cars that were for the teenagers were supposed to be at the back of the train rather than at the front. The last cars were loaded with the supplies causing a little work and a delay when they had to be unloaded and moved up to the front.

The station was crowded from before six as the 600 people going to Montreal began to gather. Boxes of hats and two large handcarts piled high with containers of sandwiches lined the platform. Some of the group helped C.N.R. men get the train loaded up.

Upon arrival in Montreal transportation to the Expo grounds will be provided by the Inter - Service Club Council of Montreal. The students will have been organized on the train into groups of six or seven. Each group will be accompanied by one adult.

Bob Porter of United Community Services thought that each group would be able to take in five or six pavilions. "I just hope the adults can keep up with the youngsters" commented Mr. Porter as the station and train was alive with enthusiasm.

Parents, railroad officials and friends crowded the station to see the group off. After spending the day at Expo the group will return to via a special train leaving Montreal at 8 p.m. tonight.

Fail to Set Property Price

TRENTON — Attempts to set a price on 12.9 acres of land expropriated from a Murray township farmer have met in stalemate.

The controversial property was expropriated this year from township farmer Jack Alves by the Trenton Public Utilities Commission for the town's new water reservoir.

A negotiating team appointed by the provincial government met with Mr. Alves at his farm this week but neither he nor Trenton P.U.C. officials would alter their estimates of the property value.

The P.U.C. has offered Mr. Alves $150 dollars an acre, making the total offer under $2,000. Mr. Alves has been asking $17,000 for the property.

The case will now go before an arbitrator whose decision in the matter will be binding to both parties.

Trenton industries represented include: Trenton Dyeing and Finishing, Bata Shoe, Stokely-VanCamp, Morton Parker, Canadian General Electric, Essex Electronics, Canadian Flight Equipment, Miller Safety Equipment, Domtar, Erie Technological Products and Pyrotenax of Canada.

The undertaking was encouraged by the Trenton Chamber of Commerce and Harold Clark representing Trenton on the Belleville Fair board this year said pointing out that each one of the 11 displays tell the story of the Quinte industry it is sponsored by. Trenton industries represented include: Trenton Dyeing and Finishing, Bata Shoe, Stokely-VanCamp, Morton Parker, Canadian General Electric, Essex Electronics, Canadian Flight Equipment, Miller Safety Equipment, Domtar, Erie Technological Products and Pyrotenax of Canada.

Art Lessons--Indoors

Helpful criticism for art student comes from one of centre's teachers — artist Alexander Millar. Studio is old settler's log cabin, dismantled near Tweed, reconstructed at Actinolite centre.

Art Lessons--Outdoors

Students have settings already set up by nature for art subjects as they wander grounds of centre seeking subjects. Mrs. Mary Schneider gives helpful hints to pupil on grounds.

Play Time

Centre's recreation facilities include this swimming dock — where Donna Cameron, Carrying Place, shares moment of relaxation with Georgette Millar and four-legged friend.

Schneiders Wed Imagination to Art at Tweed

By HARRY MULHALL

TWEED — Art and imagination are inseparable.

Locally, the combination has made a name for this area as a flourishing centre of the arts.

More specifically, that name is the Schneider School of Fine Arts.

Now in its fourth year, the school is currently at its second south, attracting a student body from Canada and the United States, and a faculty that counts top Canadian artists among its members.

Yet, if it weren't for sheer imagination, the centre likely wouldn't exist.

"Our friends discouraged me—everybody thought I was crazy when I picked this spot," recalls Mary Schneider, artist and co-founder of the school with her designer-architect husband, Roman Schneider.

That was the first assessment of an acreage bordering Highway 37 where the centre now flourishes on the banks of the Shootenatta River.

Recalls Mrs. Schneider: "It had absolutely nothing — except a ravine that had to be filled in and a municipal garbage dump."

Today, the centre exists under the patronage of distinguished Canadians, headed by Governor-General Roland Michener.

Tracing the project:

For 10 years — until 1963— Mrs. Schneider was managing director of the Madoc Art Centre, nearby on Highway 7. That year, she and her husband began casting around for a location of their own. They sought to start a school dedicated to fine arts, where students and teachers could comfortably share a common environment — with all the comforts of home.

The Schneiders set their eyes on the Actinolite acreage, undeterred by public garbage and nature's private jokes — like poison ivy.

As a matter of fact, Mrs. Schneider was gingerly picking through the baleful weed flanking the Shootamatta, when the decision was reached to buy the property.

An artist's imagination came to the rescue, stripping the scene of poison ivy. What remained was a river whitening on rocks, a stony bluff jutting from the pre-Cambrian shield, a river bank pitted with an old mine-shaft and spotted with petrified wood.

The Schneiders set to work, first casting around for buildings to blend with the atmosphere their imaginations had conceived — "rustic with all the modern conveniences."

The search ranged as far as Barry's Bay, more than 100 miles away. However, the first lucky strike was at nearby Flinton, in the sturdy shape of a settler's cabin.

"We went so far — and here it was under our noses all the time," says Mrs. Schneider.

Using local labor, they dismantled the cabin and had it rebuilt on their property where, meantime, the ravine had been filled and the dump disposed of.

For a studio they found a similar settler's dwelling near Tweed, and the same process of dismantling and reconstruction followed.

Then they began adding dwelling units which now provide accommodation for 33 on-the-spot students.

Today, those students come from such places as Prince Edward Island and the eastern United States, including pupils from nearer home in Ontario and its Quinte district.

They receive instruction in ceramics, painting and sculpting from top artists in the field, seeking inspiration in the centre's studios, or roaming over the surrounding countryside.

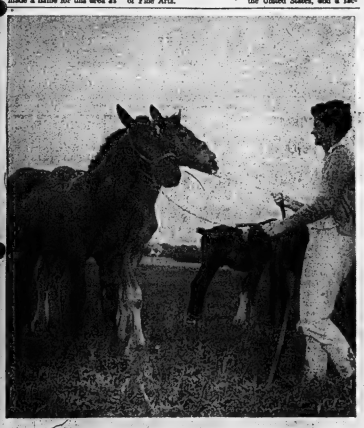
Relaxation hasn't been overlooked. The centre includes a dandy beach and a dock for swimming while rock - hunts are a feature of weekend activities.

But the total environment is closely linked to the personalities of the Schneiders, whose personal lives also are something of a combined saga.

Both Polish, they were recognized international artists in their own right before World War II.

With the outbreak of hostilities they found themselves separated by the Russians and separately shipped off to Siberia. Two years later with Russia under attack by Germany and transformed into an ally, the Schneiders volunteered for service with a Polish army raised in Russia and despatched to the Middle East under British Command. The Schneiders found themselves re-united and stayed on in Iran after the war, where Dr. Schneider, among other projects, designed a summer palace for the Shah's sister.

Later, they took up residence in Lebanon, where they worked and exhibited as artists, coming to Canada in 1950.



Thus far, the centre have has been the climax of their careers in Canada — careers that deal intimately with people.

It is the personal environment that is emphasized at the centre.

Its students work together during the summer months, often moving through the year elsewhere as a result of the initial contact.

And, despite all its natural advantages it is still people who make the centre meaningful.

"The atmosphere," says Mrs. Schneider, "derives from the people who are here."

Apprehensive About Debut

Colts belonging to Lee and Wayne Scrimshaw make their first trip to the Belleville Fair this year following a tradition established by the Sidney township farm family over the years. Career of Ribbon-Winning Mare Ends

The favorite aunt and chaperone of two beautiful "young-sters" making their debut at the Belleville Fair this year will miss the elegant coming out function for her neice and nephew.

Whether the permanent injury to the big Black Percheron Beside Lou happened accidentally or was caused otherwise still has owner Finlay Scrimshaw of Sidney Township puzzled and wondering. Regardless, the career of the ribbon winning mare as a show animal has ended. She'll be spending the remaining years out on pasture as a brood mare.

Mr. Scrimshaw found the four-year-old match mate of Jessie Lee crippled and bleeding in a field within view of his farmhouse recently. The flesh on one of the mare's front legs above the knees was ripped to the bone while the other was lacerated not so deep. "She was suffering from weakness as well and might not have recovered if relatives hadn't come along and prompted me to show her to them," Mr. Scrimshaw said.

As three-year-olds the matched Percherons won honors at the 1966 Belleville Fair. Earlier this year they were seen together in centennial parades at Trenton and elsewhere in the area.

Disappointed over the loss of one major entry in the Fair this year the Scrimshaw family look forward to showing a pair of Percheron colts along with other horses. While novices Dolly and Duke may become a little nervous appearing at the annual exhibition for the first time the purpose is to acquaint them with crowds of people and competition Mr. Scrimshaw observed.

Welfare Department

The report of the field supervisor for the Ontario department of welfare on the operations of Belleville's welfare department is a valuable one from which the latter stands to benefit.

Coming as it does after a period of uncertainty and doubt in the public mind with regard to administration of the department and of the day nursery, the report makes a number of recommendations aimed at increasing the department's efficiency and improving communications with other agencies in the city.

While he found "little fault with the actual administration" (of the department), Mr. Tucker noted that over the past three-and-a-half years its public image had "suffered a severe blow."

"Channels of communication have dried up and public relations with some of the agencies are at a very low ebb if not entirely non-existent."

As a means of remedying this situation Mr. Tucker suggested a series of monthly luncheons with agency representatives followed by a question answer period.

This is all well and good, but if it is to be a social occasion repeated at monthly intervals will these functions be a charge on the public? Better that meetings be called in the same way as Council and regarded as public business.

In any event the idea of establishing improved links is a good one, since this seems to have been at the root of much of the department's trouble in the past.

Another recommendation by Mr. Tucker is the adoption of "a more sympathetic and conciliatory attitude by the department in its dealings with outside bodies."

The city is now seeking a new welfare director following the resignation of Daniel Aitken who has filled the position for the past three years, as well as a new nursery supervisor.

At the same time a move toward the establishment of a county welfare body in which Belleville would join with Hastings County is believed in the offing. The city and county administrations are scheduled to discuss this matter on August 17.

Mr. Tucker's report is timely. It should pave the way for a generally improved atmosphere in the running of the welfare department and of the day nursery, as well as eliminating doubts in the public mind as to the situation in this sphere of city administration.

Expo Problem

It is unfortunate that the high reputation built up by Expo is threatening to breakdown in days of money because of the failure to satisfy accommodation requirements.

There has been continuous criticism for instance of the world fair's lodging service, known as Logexpo although it would appear that the confusion is one for individual should shoulder the entire blame. So many are involved — the government of Quebec, the province's lodging service and hotels and tourist operators generally that it is a wonder things have gone as smoothly as they have.

The establishment of lodging services by the Queen Elizabeth hotel and the Montreal Hotel Association will help to ease the pressure on Logexpo, but there have been other developments that are helping to alleviate the overall image of both Expo and the city.

These include the United States post office ban on mail to Canadians 67, a temporary motel which has been under strong criticism, and the closing of a trailer park at Lapraire because of unsanitary conditions. Other campsites in the area were reported to have cleaned up, but the one condemned did not, despite five reminders from the provincial health authorities since July 10.

It is easy to understand the feelings of U.S. visitors arriving back at the trailer park at one o'clock on Tuesday morning, only to be told their drinking water was polluted and instructed to hook up their mobile homes and leave immediately. One father of three from Boston demanded to know whether his children had been infected by the water in the park. When police umpire was to tell him he be attacked an officer and he had to be restrained. Fortunately, there have been no reports of illness.

While there are thousands from the States and elsewhere who have been well satisfied with their visit, accommodation and all, the fact must be faced that incidents and breakdowns such as these have occurred and serve only to create bad feeling — and what is worse, bad publicity for Canada.

Ottawa Offbeat

Manning's Book Sounds Death-Knell for Ailing Socreds

OTTAWA — You wonder how much time is left in the House of Commons for the Social Credit party after the date of death applied to it by Premier Ernest Manning of Alberta in his recent book.

Here the liberal Socreds are fighting desperately to stay alive and along comes Mr. Manning urging a union with the Conservatives and indicating the national party is all washed up anyway.

There are five Social Credit MPs in the Commons and eight of their estranged brethren from Quebec who call themselves Creditistes and rebels in the leadership of Real Caouette.

The five members are currently led by A. B. Patterson, an interim basis following the resignation in March of Robert Thompson as party chief.

Premier Manning of course is a tower of strength in the Social Credit movement and when he speaks pessimistically of the federal future of the party, then the times are indeed behind.

The difficulties of the federal Socreds go back some years and are linked to the leadership of Mr. Thompson. He has not had any great success in getting members elected to the Commons — the only time he really had stature was when Mr. Caouette brought in a substantial group in Quebec. But when Caouette walked out, Mr. Thompson was reduced again to the position of splinter leader.

Mr. Manning and Premier W. A. C. Bennett of British Columbia decided to get rid of Bob Thompson a while back. They cut off his money supply in the 1963 election and organizational support was meagre. The Social campaign fund at that time amounted to only $35,000 for 100 candidates.

Last March Mr. Thompson resigned as leader. He showed no bitterness publicly but he made it plain that he was quitting because two premiers were "not co-operating."

Mr. Thompson says he will stay on as MP for Red Deer, but it is not even questionable that he would be re-elected there in another election.

The Conservatives like to say that he would have been defeated in 1963 except for his pipe. During that campaign, Mr. political opponents had poisoned his pipe.

Some of the animals died and some election day Bob Thompson and was re-elected. The Tories were furious — they claimed the pig story was a stunt perpetrated deliberately to arouse sympathy for Mr. Thompson.

It is rather sad to see the comedown for Mr. Thompson as he sits, down in one corner of the Commons, last another MP in a three cornered group.

He still gets up and asks questions about international affairs, specializing in anything to do with Ethiopia. He often there at one time and knows Emperor Haile Selassie.

It is a fact that the Pearson government ordered him a kind of ambassadorship at Addis Ababa but he turned it down. Perhaps Ethiopia is not as nice a place to live in as Red Deer.

That offer of course came not because Liberals are just naturally kind but as a reward for his support of the Grits in many crucial votes.

It will be remembered that back in 1963 Mr. Thompson was a key figure in the Commons, because his votes could determine whether the Diefenbaker government would be toppled. In February of that year he voted against the Tories, down they went and in came the Liberals in the next election.

John Diefenbaker of course, recalls all that very well. He often called Bob Thompson to the bodies of the Liberal government — Pearson's name rebounded.

Apparently after having brought on the defeat of one government, Mr. Thompson had no desire to do it again. Thus, time after time he and his little band have rallied around to save the Pearson administration. They did it just a few months ago in a crucial vote.

But all that is over for Bob Thompson and he indeed come another election it may be all a key figure in the Commons, because his votes could determine whether the Diefenbaker government would be toppled. Now—The Hovertrain

BBC London Letter

The Hovertrain, a completely new means of land transport combining two major British discoveries is under development by Britain's National Research Development Corporation.

"It's a hovervarat, certainly, since it uses the hovercraft principles invented by Christopher Cockerell," said Tom Fellows, Managing Director of Tracked Hovercraft. "It has air cushions both for control and for guidance. The vehicle will run on a track, although as it has no rails I don't know whether you'd call it a monorail or not. It will probably be a prefabricated concrete track giving support on its upper surface and guidance for the vehicle on the vertical surfaces on either side.

The craft will be guided by the track, in such a way that it can't be derailed, but it will not be in contact with it, and this will ensure that there's little vibration set up both in the vehicle and on the ground."

Of the propulsion unit, he said: "We plan to use a linear induction motor. The linear is rather like a squirrel cage induction motor which has been split along its length and then straightened out. It is silent, of course. So far as I know it will be the first time it's been used in a practical vehicle. We've had a baby one on a six-foot hovertrain model down at Hythe but this one has done 35 miles an hour and we're planning to go up to 300 miles an hour".

Asked how he thought the train would compare economically with road and rail transport Mr. Fellows said: "There's no simple answer to this. You've got to assess the train in a realistic environment. For example, we may consider one of our early studies, the North-East corridor, say between Washington and Boston where conventional means of transport are already reaching the limits of their capacity. We shall have to compare hovertrains with the alternatives which might be used. There is a reasonable chance, I think, that they might come out as quite an attractive solution to the problems there. Although the track costs might be high, than this would apply to a new system frankly installed in order to take the increasing demand in that area. Maintenance costs, we hope, will be low because of the very low pressure - about two pounds per square foot - which the vehicle imposes on its track and because there's no contact between the vehicle and the track".

BC Premier Has Visitors From Japan

Vancouver Sun

Inscrutable — that cannot be penetrated, wholly mysterious — Concise Oxford Dictionary.

The Japanese industrialists who had a dinner in Premier Bennett's strange declaration of loyalty at Skookumchuk must not think all Canadians are inscrutable on this account.

True, a Japanese could "fade in his circumstances" and accept as popular sentiment such statements as those from our veteran Samurai: "Of all loyal Canadians, in B.C. today we are the most loyal . . . this (Japanese investments in B.C.) concerns with the lack — I'm sorry to say — of joint enterprise between Ottawa and B.C. . . . while there are great mountains between B.C. and Ottawa there is nothing but a friendly sea between us and Japan . . ."

But this is no mysteriously impenetrable white peril — it is just our Coca, using innocent words to present a sounding board for mischievous partisan politics.

More scrupulous British Columbians will welcome the Japanese industrialists not only for themselves, their enterprise, and their money, but for a native talent our provincial politicians could profitably try copying: how not to lose face.

Titus Oates, the English chaplain who made a profession of perjury, disclosed a "popish plot" 289 years ago today—in 1678—telling King Charles II of a Roman Catholic plot to replace him with his Catholic brother and restore the Catholic church. The plot was a figment of Oates' imagination and he joined the Roman Catholic church specifically for that purpose. He gained great power and signed death warrants for 35 innocent people. Oates was discredited within two years and died is obscurity after the king's brother Duke James II) was awarded £100,000 damages against him.

1941—Petain ordered full French collaboration with Nazi Germany.

First World War

Fifty years ago today—in 1917—German planes raided Southend and Margate, killing 21 persons; Austro-German forces in Moldavia captured Grotesni and the dominating heights.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1942—Winston Churchill arrived in Moscow to confer with Stalin. RAF and RCAF planes raided Mainz for the second successive night; William Pelley, leader of the Silver Shirts of America, was sentenced to 15 years for criminal sedition.

First World War

Fifty years ago today—in 1917—Anti artillery fire fell on the Arras-Cambrai road and in the Nieuport sector; German troops captured Panitsiu on the Russian front; the British government officially recognized Czechoslovakia as a nation.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1942—a British convoy reached Malta after a three-day running battle in which the carrier Eagle and three cruiser Manchester were lost with other warships and merchant vessels; civil disorders in India gradually subsided; Numan Menemenioglu was appointed Turkish foreign minister.

Washington's Dilemma

Freedom of Speech Protects Advocates of Black Power

WASHINGTON (AP)—The U.S. justice department is hanging on every public word of Black Power advocates Stokely Carmichael and H. Rap Brown.

But a thicket of legal, political and evidence-related problems surrounds the department.

Members of Congress and more than a thousand indignant, letter-writing citizens are asking about the applicability of various laws to the pair's activities.

No federal prosecution of either is in progress.

Last week Attorney-General Ramsey Clark and his lawyers gathered around a tape recorder in Clark's office, attentive to a Washington harangue by Brown, the 23-year-old chairman of the Student Non-violent Co-ordinating Committee.

FBI agents often are on hand for public appearances by Brown and his SNCC predecessor, Carmichael, and their tape recorders are busy.

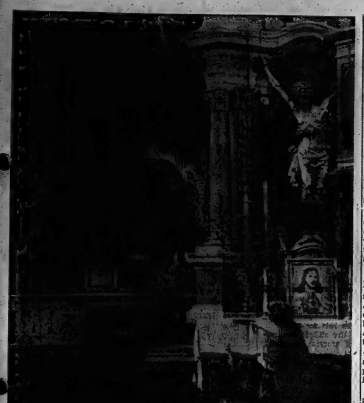
Lawyers in the department's internal security division comb newspapers and magazines and study broadcast transcripts to find possible violations of federal law.

Although department and FBI officials will ask for the record about pending investigations, these are some of their problems:

Laws—Sedition is advocating overthrow of the government. Treason means levying war against the United States or aiding its enemies. A selective service law prohibits counseling persons to evade military service. The obstacles from a prosecution standpoint in each case are gigantic.

The courts—since a Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes opinion in 1919—have weighed the balance heavily in favor of the freedom of speech and press guaranteed by the first amendment to the U.S. constitution.

A clear and present danger must be proven; the danger must be grave and immediate. And, specific, deliberate intent to provoke the forbidden acts also must be shown.



The conditions itself imposes the tightest restrictions on treason prosecutions. It says treason is punishable by death or two witnesses to the same overt act, or on confession in open court."

While Stokley Carmichael is on the record as having said "Hell, no, don't go" into the armed services and Vietnam, the justice department would be hard-put to find he specifically counselled an individual to evade military duty—or that anyone tried to evade it because of what Carmichael shouted in a cheering, shouting audience.)

Evidence—Can the government move a harangue led to anything? It is trying to produce witnesses to Carmichael's recent statements in Havana, in which he was quoted as urging guerrilla warfare in U.S. cities and made other derogatory remarks about the U.S. But 'fifty ten journalists were barred—and newspaper accounts, while plentiful, are inadmissible as evidence.

Results—Some believe prosecution of a Negro militant for words alone might lead to violence unlike than anyone bargained for.

Another problem is that the department has had success with discrepancies in reports of what a speaker said. Even tape recordings, with their back grounds of chanting, shouting, and laughter often are of little use. And the burden of evidence is especially to be avoided in cases where the emotion-laden issue of freedom of speech is the defence.

Church-goers Decline

Freedom of religion is one of the touchiest questions in the Soviet Union — and nowhere more so than in Lithuania, once a decidedly Roman Catholic area. The number of church-goers in Lithuania declines every year but the volume of atheistic propaganda remains constant and the church is regarded as an undesirable left-over from the reactionary past. Here, lone woman prays at one of the churches in Vilnius, Lithuania. (CP Photo)

Pick Bishop For Latin America

TORONTO (CP)—The Anglican Church of Canada has named a "new look" bishop to head a task force charged with developing an intensified program of helping the people of South America.

Rev. Guy Marshall, rector of St. Stephen's parish in Toronto, will be a "missionary in episcopal orders" serving without a diocese or a synod office and with a minimum of administrative duties when he goes this fall to Venezuela.

His consecration as Suffragan Bishop of Trinidad and Tobago, with the title of bishop in Venezuela, will take place in Ottawa Aug. 24 during meetings of the church's general synod. He will be consecrated by Most. Rev. Alex J. Knight, Archbishop of the West Indies.

The department of missions says Canon Marshall will not primarily serve English-speaking Anglicans in Venezuela.

His job will be that of a pioneer episcopal ministry, the department said and will be supported by Canadian contributions to the Anglican World Mission, with the Bishop of Trinidad providing a headquarters in Caracas.

Canon Marshall gained experience for his new work after 14 years in Buenos Aires and Rosario, Argentina, where he became fluent in Spanish while serving on the missions to seamen.

The decision to intensify mission work in South America came after a 10-year study and planning, which began after the 1958 Lambeth Conference called for such work there.

An appropriation of $36,000 was authorized in 1963 to implement the work, while negotiations continued with the Anglican churches in other countries interested in Latin America.

Canon Marshall, 57, is a rugged, six-foot native of Yorkshire. A graduate of King's College, London, he was ordained in 1936. He served in London and Buenos Aires parishes before working with the missions to seamen.

In Canada, he was chaplain to the Navy League of Canada.

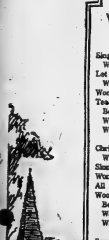
Bishop Warns Of Danger Here

TORONTO (CP)—Riots that ravaged Detroit, Newark and Cleveland recently could flare just as easily in Canadian cities, Bishop Joseph Gomez of the African Methodist Episcopal Church said Wednesday night.

In an interview, he said: "Anything can happen. I thought Cleveland, where I live, was a most liberal city until I woke up one morning to learn differently."

Bishop Gomez was here to address the opening banquet of the 84th Canadian annual conference of the church. He is the bishop of the church's Toronto episcopal district, which includes Canada and several northern U.S. states.

Stories of Famous Hymns



by Horace B. Powell

Wonderful Words Of Life

Sing them over again to me,
Wonderful words of life,
Let me more of their beauty see,
Wonderful words of life.
Words of life and beauty,
Teach me faith and duty;
Beautiful words,
Wonderful words,
Wonderful words of life.

Christ, the blessed One, gives to all
Wonderful words of life;
Sinner, list to the loving call,
Wonderful words of life.
All so freely given,
Wooing us to heaven,
Beautiful words,
Wonderful words,
Wonderful words of life.

Sweetly echo the gospel call,
Wonderful words of life;
Offer pardon and peace to all,
Wonderful words of life.
Jesus, only Savior,
Beautiful words,
Wonderful words,
Wonderful words of life.

Half a century ago, when Dwight L. Moody was stirring hearts on both sides of the Atlantic with his revival meetings, the gospel songs of Philip Bliss vied with the sermons of the famous evangelist in winning souls to Christ.

"Wonderful Words of Life"—if it had been his only hymn—would have won for Bliss the everlasting gratitude of Christians, but he enriched the world's treasury of sacred song with a host of gospel gems. Most of his hymns were written quickly; many of them were inspired by the sermons of the evangelists with whom he was associated.

Every lover of gospel hymns is familiar with "Let the Lower Lights Be Burning," which was composed one night after Mr. Bliss had heard Dr. Moody close one of his stirring addresses with this story:

"On a dark, stormy night, when the waves rolled like mountains and not a star was seen, a boat — rocking and plunging in the churning gale — neared Cleveland harbor.

"Are you sure this is Cleveland?" asked the captain, seeing but a single light in the lighthouse. "Quite sure, sir," replied the pilot. 'Where are your lower lights?' 'Gone out, sir.' 'Can you make the harbor?' 'We must, or perish, sir.'

"With a strong hand the old pilot turned the wheel of his tossing, plunging ship, but alas, in the darkness he missed the channel and with a crash the ship shivered upon the rocks.

"Brothers, the Master will take care of the great lighthouse; let us keep the lower lights burning!"

On another occasion the young hymnist was impressed with the message of a preacher in a London meeting hall which closed with the declaration:

"His who is almost persuaded is almost saved, but to be almost saved is to be entirely lost."

When Mr. Bliss went home he wrote "Almost Persuaded" which has been called his greatest soul winning hymn.

"Jesus Loves Even Me," "There's a Light in the Valley" and "Hold the Fort" are also favorites.

The inspiration for this last hymn came one day while Mr. Bliss was listening to Maj. Whittle an evangelist, who was telling how the message "Hold the fort!" was signaled to the besieged garrison at Altoona Pass. The evangelist's story was suggested by the passage from Revelation 3:26: "That which ye have hold fast till I come," and Mr. Bliss wrote one of his best hymns, the chorus of which runs:

"Hold the fort, for I am coming."
Jesus signals still,
Wave the answer back to Heaven—
"By Thy grace we will."

Three Cree Indians Ordained

STANLEY MISSION, Sask. (CP)—Three Cree Indians were the principals in an ordination service here recently which was conducted in their own language in the historic Anglican Church of the Holy Trinity. Two of the men, who were ordained deacons to minister to their own people, had learned the officiating bishop the Cree tongue 20 years ago.

It was a gala day for some 300 Crees and a handful of visiting clergy and laymen including Rt. Rev. W. H. H. Crump, Bishop of Saskatchewan. The Indians came by canoe from a large area north of Lac La Ronge and filled Holy Trinity to overflowing. Stanley Mission is on the Churchill River, about 200 miles northeast of Prince Albert, and is accessible only by air and water.

The Crees, ordained by Rt. Rev. H. E. Hives, Bishop of Keewatin, were Gordon Ahenakew, Philip John Charles and Henry Cook. When invited to officiate, Bishop Hives translated the Anglican ordination service into Cree especially for the ceremony.

Mountain of Food Travels to Expo

An army marches on its stomach, Napoleon said. And the army of Belleville children invading Expo today is no exception.

When the Expo-bound train pulled out of the station at 6.30 this morning, carrying 330 city youngsters who otherwise could not afford the trip to the big fair, 800 box lunches were stowed aboard. Four hundred will be issued to each child and adult supervisor for consumption at Expo; the other 400 will be reserved for supper on the way home.

Mrs. Marjorie McKenna marshalled a group of volunteers into a smoothly functioning catering service. Friday morning, 25 women gathered in St. Thomas Parish Hall and in less than two hours made 2,400 egg, cheese and meat sandwiches. All the groceries on Mrs. McKenna's list were donated by supermarkets, food processors, and independent suppliers.

Would you believe a shopping list beginning with 120 loaves of bread, 12 dozen eggs, one case of margarine and two cases of cheese slices? In addition two local farms donated 34 cases of canned soft drinks and two manufacturers supplied 800 packages of potato chips.

Friday noon a professional catering firm picked up the boxes of sandwiches for bagging and packaging in individual boxes with fruit and cookies. The boxes were refrigerated overnight and delivered to the train this morning. Assisting with the packing were eight of the teen-aged girls who are making the trip.

"All the children were asked to bring a lunch with them," explained a spokesman for the Expo A Go Go project. "But we knew that all except a few prudent little girls would eat everything they brought with them before they reached Brockville."

Mrs. McKenna, experienced in mass catering through her activities with St. Paul's Mission, organized volunteers and drew up lists for the lunch boxes. Her attitude sums up that of everyone associated with the project.

"I'm always ready to do anything for children," she says. "That's my life-long work."

When the youngsters stop munching and potato-chip crunching, the project planning planners have arranged to keep them busy on the train. Several local firms have cooperated to provide each child with a souvenir envelope containing a pen, pencil, notebook, Expo map and sentimental pin.

MR. AND MRS. ROBERT NELSON

Nelson – Lobb

Carol Anne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Lobb, Trenton, and Robert Nelson, Toronto, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Nelson, North Bay, were married by Canon K. F. Blackbird in St. George's Anglican Church, Trenton, August 8, 1967 at 12 noon. Mrs. Van Cobbee played the wedding music.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length white crepe gown with lace sleeves and train. Her shoulder-length veil was held with an organza floral headpiece trimmed with simulated seed pearls and she carried a bouquet of daisies.

Mrs. Paula Uteck attended the bride. She wore a short orange ice crepe dress similar to that of the bride, with a matching wedding ring hat. Her bouquet was of orchid colored mums.

Robert Lodlam, Toronto, attended the bridegroom, and the ushers were Gerald Lobb, brother of the bride, and Donald Uteck.

At the reception at the home of the bride's parents, Mrs. Lobb received the guests, wearing a blue lace dress, matching hat, white accessories and a corsage of multi-colored carnations. Mrs. Nelson wore a green crepe dress with matching floral coat and a corsage of white carnations.

For her wedding trip to eastern Ontario and Ottawa, the bride chose a rose-red egg blue crepe dress with white accessories and a corsage of red roses. On their return the couple will live at 100 Brewer's Lane, Apt. 204, Toronto.

Lee – Martin

Rev. H. E. Bears officiated at the double ring wedding in Springbrook United Church when Lois Loraine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Melbourne Martin, Benarkar, was united in marriage to Thomas M. Lee, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Lee, Markham. Mrs. Carol Faires was organist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of white French lace with long lily point sleeves and bell skirt. Her waist length veil of tulle illusion was caught by a halo of seed pearls and rhinestones and she carried a cascade bouquet of deep pink carnations.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Carl Mitchell, and the bridesmaids, Miss Judy Moores and Miss Nancy Kosmack, were gowned in floor-length dresses of silvertone crepe with Empire waistlines and lace bodices. The matron of honor was in pale green and the two bridesmaids were in pale yellow. They wore headpieces of yellow and bronze mums and carried bouquets of the same flowers.

The flower girls, Miss Gail Beare, niece of the bride and Miss Deanna Elson, niece of the bridegroom, were gowned alike in floor-length dresses of ipale green silvertone crepe with Empire waistlines and lace bodices. They wore headpieces of yellow and bronze mums and carried baskets of the same flowers.

The bridegroom was attended by Carl Mitchell and the ushers were Gene Martin and Dennis Millard. Randy Beare, nephew of the bride, and Kenneth Elson, nephew of the bridegroom, were ring-bearers.

To receive the guests at the reception at the IOOF Hall in Stirling, the bride's mother wore a pale pink chiffon dress over white lace with matching hat, white accessories and a corsage of white carnations. The bridegroom's mother wore a turquoise bengaline dress with lace overskirt, matching hat, white accessories and a pink carnation corsage.

For her wedding trip to northern points, the bride chose an orange shantung dress with white and bone accessories and a corsage of white carnations. On their return, the couple will live in Markham.

Mexican Fashion Designers Dress International Clients

MEXICO CITY (CP)—Fashions here are divided between haute couture salons with Mexican and international clientele and boutiques that cater to the tourist.

One of the latter is a smart little shop run by Lila Bath, a New Yorker who came to Mexico 25 years ago. Among her famous movie customers are Elizabeth Taylor, who favors hot violent colors, and Audrey Hepburn, who likes Lila's sheer white blouses with fine tucking and lace inserts.

Lila's fashion reputation was first acquired by her Angel dresses in this tucking and lace combinations, with bustline or square-cut necklines and loose, short full sleeves. These are variations of the Mexican wedding shirt. This year, Lila has introduced a horizontal effect in the tucks and lace inserts.

In her small, crowded boutique on Niza Street, Lila designs most of her Mexican-influenced clothes, from ruffled ponchos to peasant embroidered dresses, as well as elegant caftans in Mexican cotton prints designed and handscreened in her own workrooms.

Here in Mexico, the skirt lengths vary drastically. Mexicans wear them long and tourists appear in mini-skirts. But you see few ultra-short mini-skirts on the streets. About two inches above the knee is the limit. But fancy stockings are catching on and are extremely popular.

Lila Bath also has a boutique in the resort centre of Acapulco, where the well-known Cuban-born New York designer, Lois Estevez, recently opened a posh salon-boutique.

Tao Izzo—the Tao is a nickname—is a Mexican designer with a charming series of salons rooms in a building that is being demolished around him to make way for a hotel. It is difficult to find good locations in Mexico's fashion centre just off the main thoroughfare, the Reforma. So Tao doesn't know yet where he will relocate.

He studied in Paris and then became one of the designers for Elizabeth Arden in New York before opening his own salon in Mexico City 15 years ago. The wife of President Diaz Ordaz is among his international clientele.

Another Mexican designer in the same fashion district is Gemne Matouk who presented a collection of his clothes in Toronto last year. He also includes a few boutique models, with both price-conscious Mexican women and tourists in mind.

Breast Cancer Victims Denied the Pill

BOSTON (AP)—The chief surgeon of Peter Bent Brigham hospital says women who have had breast cancer or have a family history of breast cancer should be advised against using oral contraceptive pills.

Dr. Francis D. Moore reported in the New England Journal of Medicine Thursday on a study he and three other doctors conducted.

He said the study of contraceptive pills did not establish "any clear association with breast cancer itself."

But he said the pills contain hormones which will stimulate an existing cancer to spread and "have an impact on breast physiology and pathology."

Therefore, he said, "in a person who has had a cancer of the breast removed" further use of contraceptive pills should be ruled out.

He said studies show that women stand a greater chance of getting breast cancer when mother, sister or daughter have had the disease.

The first early bird, the rooster was one of the most popular subjects made by the Pennsylvania German decorators from the 18th century to the 1890's. There are several stories connected with the symbolism of the rooster.

The cock has been used on Greek theatre shows a Papal decree in the 9th century. It was the symbol of Apollo the sun god, but it became a symbol of light and salvation. The rooster announces the coming of a new day and of the Messiah. The bird beats its wings against its body in penance before telling of the coming of day.

Whatever obscure religious meaning may be found in the rooster it is certainly an ideal subject for the artist. The silhouette is unmistakable. The pattern of feathers, wings and comb are easily drawn.

Q. Our family has come in possession of a hairbrush containing locks of hair. They have been braided, knitted, or knotted into fancy patterns and mounted on pages to make an artistic book. Each page names a relative of many years ago.

A. Hair jewelry and hair mementos of departed loved ones were popular during Victorian times. Hair pictures were known in England during the early 19th century. All of this sort of work is considered rather macabre by today's standards.

• • •

There are several general rules for dating a marked piece of English porcelain. If the Royal Arms are included in the mark it is probably 19th century. The word "Royal" was used after the middle of the 18th century. If the name of the pattern is included the piece was made after 1815. The words "Bone China" were not used until the 20th century.

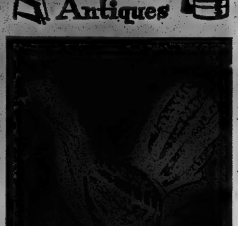
Q. Among my books are several early Philadelphia editions dated before 1795. Can they be sold?



A. Contact a rare books dealer in your area. Many of the books printed before 1800 are of value. The value will depend on the subject matter, condition, and age.

Q. "J. Peters Philadelphia" is marked on my pewter spoon.

A. James Peters worked in Philadelphia, Pa., from about 1821 to 1850.

BOOK REVIEW

Victorian houses have been ignored until recent years but now, like all Victorians, they have gained in favor. "Nineteenth Century Houses in Western New York" by Gowser (Antioch Press $10) pictures over 100 of these houses. It may give others an appreciation of the architectural gems now being ignored.

This glum rooster was made of plaster of paris, probably in Pennsylvania about 1840.. This type of work is called chalkware.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Frozen Lemon Dessert Gains Guests' Praise

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: Would you kindly reprint your Lemon Freezer Dessert (10 servings). I slipped it out and wasted it in a book, but as the book has traveled so many places with me part of the recipe got torn off. I have made it a number of times and guests have always expressed appreciation.—Mrs. H. Mark.

ANSWER:

SATURDAY

Dinner Menu

Pork Chops Baked in Celery Sauce; Fried Apple Corn and Green Peppers; Homemade Bread (see Fri.); Chilled Watermelon; Tea.

LEMON FREEZER DESSERT (makes 10 servings)

1 cup evaporated milk
3 eggs, separated
½ cup granulated sugar
½ tsp. grated lemon rind
¼ cup lemon juice
½ cup desiccated coconut
12 drops yellow food coloring
1 cup fine chocolate wafer crumbs

Four evaporated milk into freezer tray and freeze until crystals begin to form around edge of tray. Meanwhile, beat egg yolks slightly, in top of double boiler; stir in ¼ cup of the sugar, lemon rind and juice. Cook over simmering water, stirring constantly, until smoothly thickened. Remove from heat; stir in cocoanut. Cool. Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry; gradually beat in remaining ¼ cup sugar until stiff. Fold meringue into cooled lemon mixture. Whip chilled evaporated milk until stiff peaks form. Be patient at this stage. Fold in lemon mixture and tint with yellow food coloring. Turn into two refrigerator trays, each of which has been lined on the bottom with ½ cup of the chocolate wafer crumbs; sprinkle top of each evenly with remaining crumbs. Freeze until set. This never really becomes hard.

Variations: 1) Lime: Substitute lime juice and rind for lemon juice and rind and use green food coloring instead of yellow. 2) Orange: Substitute juice and rind for lemon juice and rind, but add 1 tbsp. lemon juice and if desired use orange food coloring instead of yellow. 3) Grapefruit: Substitute grapefruit juice and rind for lemon juice and rind but add 1 tbsp. lemon juice. 4) Substitute ginger or oatmeal cookie or graham wafer crumbs for the chocolate cookie crumbs.

Decorating idea: To facilitate neat cutting into wedge-shaped pieces, I marked the top into uniform triangles by placing ½" wide strips of stiff paper over the top from side to side. Then sprinkled on remaining crumbs, avoiding the paper as much as possible. Then I gingerly lifted the paper strips, leaving bare zigzag lines of the pale lemon whip showing between the crumbs. When served it is cut along these lines and lifted out pie-shaped pieces on my pie server.

Successful Living

Reader Gives Maturity Guide

Dear Doris: You asked for my earmarks of maturity and immaturity. Here they are, with the letter "M" identifying the mature person, and the letter "I" meaning immature.

(1) M is socially conscious (knows his success depends on how others react to his actions; I'm not socially conscious (The people around him are not understood, do not read to him).

(2) M is self-reliant; I is dependent for some or all bodily needs.

(3) M is capable of independent judgment; I needs to be told what to do.

(4) M is responsible for his actions; I is simply obedient (or disobedient).

(5) M is aware that his concepts might in not having a good time; I feels sorry for himself.

(6) M has learned that happiness comes from giving up something for somebody else; I is selfish and thoughtless.

(7) M has discovered himself (faults, weaknesses, possibilities); I knows neither his faults nor his talents.

(8) M has at least started to develop his interests and skills by exercising his mind and undergoing training; I has no skills or nothing in this direction.

(9) M has a disciplined mind; I lacks self-discipline. — Grade Twelve Teacher

Dear Teacher: There is food for much thought here. I like them all but (3). Can't a truly mature person have a good time & just about everything he does?

Dear Doris: One of the girls in our office starves so intensely at each girl in turn that it has become embarrassing and we are at the point of defending her ourselves. We do not want to be heathen as we all work together and we would prefer to avoid discussion.

Our coffee breaks are most uncomfortable. This girl is very haughty and we have concluded that her manners leave something to be desired.

Coffee Break

Dear Coffee Break: Haughty? Could this be her defense mechanism? If her stares can subdue a whole group, I'd be intrigued to see her in action.

I'm guessing your proud one is keenly embarrassed, not putting on an I-don't-care look. Try bringing her in on your small talk, offer her a doughnut.

Dear Doris: Please send me the pantomime "A Day on the Farm", and any others that might be amusing — is possible the "Christ Columbo" one I remember doing as a girl, but have lost the copy. I enclose a stamped envelope and 30 cents. — Mrs. W. N.

Dear Mrs. W. N.: Along with "A Day on the Farm" I am sending "You Asked For It", a hilarious pantomime.

Can anyone help me about "Christ Columbo" or about "Sam Slick", which has also been asked for?

Do you wonder why the people you care about act on they do? Let Doris shed light on your particular human problem. Remember that stamped envelope!

FLORISTS AND FLOWERS

The blue dome of the sky,
The blue cast of the sea,
Larkspur, chicory, bluebells, delphinium
Are tinged with the same blue key.

— from Mood in Blue.

* * *

This morning brimming over with lovely summer sights and sounds finds the roadside faced with the blue of lace-like chicory. And just over the snake fence is a field of larkspur that flows in the sighing breeze like a blue pond and rivals the Quinte Bay.

The varied summer shades of blue bring to mind our maternal grandparents, and the family legend of how grandfather, when riding in his horse and buggy along a country road on a day like this, would stop and pick a bouquet of blue wildflowers for grandmother. During her last illness he took her for her last drive, and stopped to gather an armful of wild bluebells "to match your eyes", as he told her. Family lore we've always treasured.

The image of grandmother laden with armfuls of blue flowers fades as we drive into the summer cottage of a rural Belleville friend, but returned from a visit to New York. She speaks of New York florists who maintain "custom shops" which cater to clients who are used to having everything done for them.

"In a word," she continues, these florists, who must be artistic first and business men second, have free reign in their clients' homes to their decor arrangers and they study the house or apartment before deciding upon the flowers to be chosen.

"Many such florists provide certain weekly arrangements. When the Windsors were staying at their Waldorf-Astoria suite, for example, I was told one florist came each week to fill a low cocktail-table bowl with pale pink, rose pink, watermelon, tangerine and red carnations for the Duchess. He kept three dozen variegated tulips in a basket below her dressing table and a miniature ivy in a compote with geraniums of salmon color on her desk.

"Such florists prove glad, oft, refuse to have chrysanthemums or pompons about rooms for Thanksgiving time, saying they do not blend well with 'easy and airy arrangements', and should be reserved for symbolic Japanese arrangements. These they feel are too stiffish in a French or English furniture setting. Large bowls filled with mixed flowers in an informal fashion is favored, along with small packed bouquets of the nosegays in little baskets, rumble, clown in any and choice.

"They refuse to send out stalk cut flowers; a box of loose long stemmed roses, or a wreath of lilac is meaningless. Arrangement is the thing. So is the packaging.

"Fan-tailed 'fitted box things' are productions of these florists. Such as a pink, yellow or orange rubber elephant, with a bag of peanuts tied to its trunk and a miniature bottle of brandy to its tail, with its neck garlanded with some artificial flowers. Cost $20."

While customers of custom florists pay from $15 to $25 for bouquets, she says, such people as Elizabeth Taylor and her husband Richard Burton will often spend $250 for an arrangement of fresh flowers in a striking container to be sent to a friend or business associate.

"What about these women who have only to order and the world of flowers is theirs? Do they ever make their own arrangements?" we ask.

"According to the custom florists, while some do, they are few. They say they would love to do it, but they are too busy."

Ann Landers

Mother's Entertaining Embarrasses Daughter

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Do you have any advice for a high school girl whose mother is always bringing strange men home? My father is dead and I realize my mother is lonely but I think she should not entertain men all night when she has a teen-age daughter. It is terribly embarrassing to wake up in the morning and meet a stranger wandering around the apartment.

I can't have a boy friend in after a date because I don't know what we might find when we open the front door. I wouldn't dream of asking a girl friend to spend the night with me because I never know who might show up at the breakfast table.

I have one year and a half before I can leave and go into nurses training. But what do I do until then? — NO PLACE LIKE HOME.

ANN LANDERS

DEAR NO PLACE: Of course it is disgraceful that your mother shows such little consideration for you or respect for herself, but the outrageous behavior is an indication of how mentally disturbed she is.

Your mother needs professional help. Let's hope someone will steer her to it. As for you, I'm sure you'll live through the next 18 months O.K. You sound like a young lady who has her head on straight.

* * *

DEA RANN LANDERS: Will you please tell me what to do about a husband who cannot stand to let his wife enjoy a telephone conversation?

If I am upstairs talking to a friend, or to my mother or my sister, my husband gets on the extension and clicks until I hang up. Sometimes he will walk past me and holler, "Get off the phone, you've been on an hour" — or something equally rude. It isn't that he wants to use the phone, it's just that he hates to see me enjoy myself.

I do my housework, cook good meals — nothing is neglected, least of all him. Please tell me how to deal with my 34-year-old problem. — NO PHONY.

* * *

DEAR NO PHONY: Your husband is a spoiled noodnik who feels left out if he is not the centre of your world.

Whenever possible, do your telephoning when he is away. Before you make what may turn into a chatty call, ask the big boy if he wants to use the phone. Offer to get him a cup of coffee, an apple or a good book. Tell him you are making a call and you don't want to be interrupted. If he clicks the receiver or yells into the phone after that, simply ignore him, make no apologies for him, and show no anger.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I lost my sight when I was eight years old and I have a wife and three children.

It's very hard for a blind man to make a living because nobody wants to hire me. So I do the next best thing. I sit on the corner with a cup and sell pencils. We have moved to several different cities and have done fairly well but two cops have told me that begging is against the law and to get moving.

Why should there be a law against a man trying to make a living? My wife is writing this for me and we need a fast answer so please hurry. — TOUGH LUCK.

* * *

DEAR T.L.: No one needs to beg in America. There are countless welfare organizations who will help you. Write to American Foundation for the Blind, 15 West 16th Street, New York, New York 10011.

College of Physicians Wants To Shorten Doctors' Training

TORONTO (CP)—Discussions on ways of shortening the time required to educate a doctor will be held between the committee on education of the Ontario College of Physicians and Surgeons and the deans of Ontario' medical schools.

The college's semi-annual report, issued Friday, says an increase in doctor production is an urgent need.

NG Thal decision was reached on ideas presented to the committee, but it was felt an overall examination of the total educational program, including discussions with heads of medical schools, was necessary.

The report of the college, which licenses all doctors and has disciplinary power over their professional and private conduct, included a "warning notice" to doctors outlining its disciplinary jurisdiction.

It also carried a report of the findings of the discipline committee, and outlined the rules for foreign-trained doctors seeking registration in Ontario.

Five cases of action involving the discipline committee were listed. Only one doctor involved was named.

Dr. Martin W. Stapleton of Seaforth, Ont., pleaded guilty to conduct unbecoming a medical practitioner, the report said, in having issued a certificate relating to the mental competence of a patient, "which certificate he knew to be false and which he later repudiated."

Dr. Stapleton was reprimanded and ordered to pay costs of the hearing.

The College also suspended the right and privileges of a qualified specialist, "because of an unusually high incidence of complications in a certain surgical procedure."

Two physicians previously suspended for failing to complete refresher courses were reinstated, one with practices restricted to institutions and both subject to annual review.

Another doctor's application for reinstatement was refused, the report said, because of his "attitude towards the use of narcotics in the relief of pain regardless of the risk of addiction."

physicians warned

This was accompanied by a warning from the college urging physicians to use the greatest discretion in prescribing barbiturates, tranquillizers, amphetamines, sedatives and other mood-affecting drugs.

"The over-prescribing of these drugs has become a serious problem in some areas," the report said.

The basic rule for foreign-trained doctors seeking registration in Ontario was said by the report to depend on whether the college approves the candidate's medical-school training.

Graduates of schools not approved must take at least two years of medical training in Canada, either the last two years of the MD course or two years of postgraduate study in a limited list of specialties.

The report also warns that "foreign students employed by hospitals to fill technical positions should not be referred to as 'clinical clerks' or 'interns,' and should not be masquerading as doctors.

"Foreign students from non-approved schools should not be permitted to carry out medical procedures even under supervision."

Mailed to Ontario doctors along with the report was a 10-page booklet entitled Warning Notice, detailing the college's prescriptions for professional conduct and threatening suspension or loss of licence for "improper conduct."

Among the 13 regulations in the booklet were warnings against excessive fees, advertising of medical skills and rebates for recommending optical companies or medical specialists to a patient.

A doctor may advertise in a newspaper for three days when he opens a new office, but obituaries are prohibited. He may have a Yellow Pages listing, but he may not order bold-face listing or detail his office hours.

Jesuits and Students Off to Expo by Canoe

MIDLAND, Ont. (CP)—Five Jesuit priests and 19 seminary students leave here Sunday on a 540-mile trip to Expo 67 in Montreal.

Paddling four New Brunswick-built canoes, they will follow the 17th century route used by Jesuit missionaries. Each canoe is 22 feet long and weighs 250 pounds.

The trip is expected to take three weeks, with arrival at the Christian Pavilion at Expo on Sept. 3.

The trip is more than a centennial project, says the leader, Norman Lemieux, a seminary student from Timmins, Ont.

"The theme is unity," he said in an interview. "We have French-Canadians, English-Canadians and Americans coming with us. We are trying to create French-English unity, a unity that is as solid as well as Protestant-Catholic unity."

"We are going to conduct ecumenical services along the way and each religious leader of the denominations will celebrate performant for display at Expo 67."

For 100 years, from 1634 on, there was a Jesuit involved in every major exploration and expedition in Canada, Mr. Lawson said.

Starting at the Midland site of the Martyrs' Shrine which is dedicated to five Jesuits massacred by the Iroquois in 1648 and 1649, the paddlers will paddle and portage via Georgian Bay, the French River, Lake Nipissing and the Mattawa and Ottawa rivers to Montreal.

At Pembroke the Jesuits will join a local rowing club for a softball game and at Trout Lake, near North Bay, Gerry Hesler, of Regina will conduct an open-air community sing-song.

Cost of the project is $5,000. Jesuit supporters supplied enough funds for provisions and the students raised the rest themselves.

The paddlers leave Midland Sunday at 11 a.m., after celebrating mass.

Airline Pilot Shortage Coming

OTTAWA (CP)—A severe shortage of qualified airline pilots in Canada appears to be inevitable in the next decade and the transport department is studying ways of encouraging advanced pilot training to overcome it.

The upshot is likely to be an expansion of the current program under which Ottawa pays $100 to each person obtaining a private pilot's licence and sooth or $100 to the training school.

A department statement Friday said the country's six major carriers expect their pilot-requirement will be triple in the next 10 years. For the industry as a whole, an average of more than 2,100 new pilots will be required each year.

There now are 6,300 commercial pilots in Canada. A recent transport department study of the situation estimates that between 9,200 and 9,700 will be required in 1976.

The $200 pilot bonus was started in 1949 and up to the end of 1966 a total of more than $5,-000,000 was paid out to holders of 28,156 flying school graduates.

Top airline pilots can earn between $20,000 and $30,000 a year.

Illegal Detention Is Charged

MONTREAL (CP)—An investigation has been ordered into a claim by three Haredim men who say they were held by Montreal police for more than 24 hours without being charged.

Leslie Hobbs, assistant-director of the Montreal police department, said Friday:

Mr. Hobbs said in an interview he could confirm only that the men were detained "for a certain period" and that an investigation was under way.

Ernie Hamilton, 25, Ed Morrow, 38 and Cyril Birch, 33, said Thursday they were arrested by Montreal police last weekend and held for more than 58 hours before their release Monday morning.

Under the Criminal Code, a person may not be held in police cells longer than 24 hours without appearing before a magistrate or justice of the peace.

GETS POST IN MINISTRY

OTTAWA (CP)—Rodney Grey, 46, director of the finance and economics international economics relations division, has been appointed an assistant deputy minister in the department, it was announced Friday.

Mr. Grey, a native of Regina and a graduate of Queen's University, Kingston, with post-graduate diplomas from the University of Toronto and the University of London, joined the department in 1953.

Active Trading Among Speculative Mining Issues Seen on Exchange

By DOUGLAS ADAMSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Prices moved slightly lower on Canadian mining exchanges this week with active trading among speculative mining issues accounting for most of the uncommonly heavy volume.

The average daily volume of 2,500,000 shares was the highest of the year to date.

Senior explorations activity is moving at a breathtaking pace with important projects in the Yukon and Northwest Territories and all the provinces except Prince Edward Island.

Base metal issues rose a net 1.01 cents to 2.09 on 915,306 shares.

In the industrial list, Canadian General Electric, actively traded stock, lost 3¼ to 40 after reporting a 48-per-cent profit decline for the first six months of 1967 compared with the same period last year. The drop was attributed to softening markets for consumer goods and construction products and two strikes earlier in the year.

Steel of Canada dropped ¼ to 48¾. The company reported earnings of 82 cents a share for the three-month period ended June 30 compared with 68 cents a share for the same period last year.

Slater Steel rose ¼ to 11⅞ and Salada Foods ¼ to 10⅞. Slater's offer to buy 600,000 common shares of Salada was overwhelmingly over the new owns 50 per cent of the outstanding common shares of Salada.

Westcoast Transmission lost 1¼ to 27¼. The U.S. Federal Power Commission has authorized El Paso Natural Gas to increase its imports of Canadian natural gas but has asked El Paso to submit for approval a contract with Westcoast providing a lower price for the gas than the one to which the companies had agreed.

Among western oils, Hudson's Bay and Banff slipped ½ each to 36 ½and 17¼, Dome 2 to 50, Central-Del Rio ¼ to 19¾ and Scurry-Rainbow ⅛ to 46.

Trading in Scurry was stopped at the opening Thursday pending release of an exploration report on its Otter Lake property in Whitemud Whitehaven.

The company announced Friday it had nothing to add to a statement issued June 28 when it announced that tests on the Otter Lake copper-nickel prospect had failed to establish the existence of a commercially exploitable orebody.

Iron, the world's largest nickel producer, was off ¼ to 110 after reporting lower profits for the first six months of the year. Chairman H. S. Wingate said improved getal prices could offset the rise in production costs and the low deliveries of company-produced metals.

In other base metals Rio Algom slipped ½ to 34¾, Denison ¼ to 72¾ and Noranda ¼ to 54¼. Falconbridge rose ¼ to 92¾ and Preston ¼ to 21¾.

Golds made small advances with Kerr-Addison up ⅛ to 14, and base metals .05 to 102.62. Volume was 21,794,020 shares compared with 23,709,000 traded last week.

At Montreal, utilities gained .07 to 143.19. Industrials dipped .30 to 172.15, banks 1.58 to 130.65 and papers .02 to 110.93. Volume was 7,018,000 shares compared with 6,302,000 traded last week.

TORONTO STOCKS TODAY

TORONTO (CP)—Industrial prices moved lower for the second straight day Friday in extremely heavy trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange.

Westcoast Transmission dropped 1¼ to 27¼ and Alcan and Jefferson Lake ¼ each to 29¾ and 48¾. Base metals and carbons rose 1¼ to 21¾, Brameles ¾ to 12⅜ and Canadian Five A and Canada Malting each to 27 and 23¼.

Among base metals, Hollinger gained ¼ to 26¾, Craigmont ¼ to 12, Labrador Mining ½ to 31 and Lac Minerals ⅛ to 17⅜. Preston lost ¼ to 21¼ and Rio Algom and Mattagami Lake ¼ each to 34¾.

In western oils, Canadian Superior fell ¼ to 43¾ and Banff ¼ to 17¾. Scurry-Rainbow advanced ⅛ to 47.

Trading in Scurry-Rainbow resumed Friday following Thursday's stoppage by the TSE. The company reports it has nothing to add to information issued June 28 when it reported tests on its copper-nickel prospect near Otter Lake, Sandwich, failed to establish the existence of a commercially exploitable orebody.

Gulch Inc. indicated slipped .30 to 171.45 and western oils 1.00 to 196.98. Golds gained .34 to 175.13 and base metals .43 to 102.62. Volume was 5,823,000 shares compared with 5,086,000 traded Thursday.

Report to Urge School Costs Be Met by Higher Income Tax

TORONTO (CP)—The Globe and Mail says the Ontario Committee on Taxation will likely urge the Ontario government to assume more of the cost of education, using income tax to supply the necessary revenue.

The paper said its prediction on the content of the report "is based on information pieced together from sources close to the study."

The report of the five-man committee headed by Toronto Accountant Lancelot Smith will be presented to the provincial government early next month, the Globe and Mail said. It was commissioned in February, 1963, and work started last summer.

It appears the committee will recommend that more, if not all, the financial burden of education be transferred from municipalities to the province, the paper said. The provincial government now pays about 45 per cent of education costs.

The thinnest source of the additional provincial revenue needed for such a shift could come from supplementing for a greater share of that already collected by the federal government, or from a new provincial income tax.

The paper said the Smith Report will be based on the existing tax relationship between Ottawa and the province. It will only make passing reference to the federal power in taxation, which recommends a new intergovernmental tax relationship.

A study of the Carter Report would have delayed the report two years, the article said.

The Globe and Mail said first printing of the report will be 10,000 copies. Cost of the study is likely to exceed $1,000,000.

Wheat Production Likely to Be Halved

WINNIPEG (CP)—The National Grain Co. Ltd. estimates total wheat production in Canada this year will be only 284,800,000 bushels compared with 1966's record 824,000,000 bushels.

The company bases its projection on reports from more than 300 elevators in the Prairies. The total would be below the five-year average of 656,000,000 bushels but well ahead of the 1961 crop of 309,-000,000 bushels.

In a crop report issued Friday, the company said wheat yields in drought areas will range from eight to 15 bushels an acre.

Production of barley is estimated at 171,500,000 bushels, less than the 279,000,000 bushels last year despite an increase in seeded acreage.

Oats production is expected to be about 197,000,000 bushels

SPORTS SLICES

By Geo. H. Carver
Sports Editor

A year ago an American writer dubbed them a "pair of pony-tailed teen-age sisters who giggled a lot over their footsteps."

Fifteen months and some forty-seven professional performances later, Belleville's Sweethearts of the Ice Lanes, Peggy and Jane McCutcheon have come into their sophisticated own.

In the city for a few days the blonde figure-skating queens exhibited definite proof of development of personal charm, beauty and collective personality.

Now 17 and 18 years of age, the featured pair's stars of the professional show "Holiday on Ice" have taken the impact of travel, meeting the public and improvement of performance in their stride.

Nor has success, the buzzes of appreciative crowds or that appearance on the Sullivan show gone to their pretty heads.

The blonde tresses that fall over their shoulders do not conceal anything resembling "cranium inflation." They are the same fine youngsters, simple and sweet as they were nine or ten years ago when I saw them skating in Memorial Arena under the discerning eye of "Dad".

On the road their library is a trunk; their classroom suites in metropolitan hotels in three North American countries. Their cathedral is the brilliantly lighted arena. Their anthem the prolonged applause of the crowd.

They have kept steady pace with their educational demands. The "trunk" yields the school books and the girls study for hours each day. Peggy has her grade 12 diploma (by mail and enters university work next year. Jane will do likewise later.

Last year "Holiday on Ice" played in 37 American cities and Mexico. Travel does not bother them.

"We love to go by plane and train but this year we decided to see the country at a slower pace — and closer up. So we have bought a new car and will travel from city to city via the broad highways," the girls said.

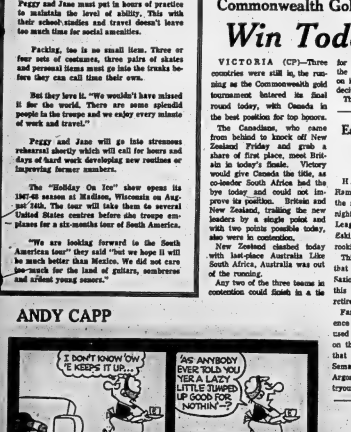
"How about boy friends?" a friend asked.

The blond tresses shook a little. There was an exchange of glances then a pair of bright smiles and a silence that indicated "No Comment."

There is a lot more than flashing on the ice in brilliant costumes to give one or more performances a day to professional performers in a modern ice show.

Although they appear to be perfection itself while going through the different routines, Peggy and Jane must spend hours of practice to maintain the level of ability. This with their school studies and travel doesn't leave too much time for social amenities.

Packing, too is no small item. Three or four sets of costumes, two pairs of skates and personal items must go into the trunks before they can call time their own.



But they love it. "We wouldn't have missed it for the world. There are some splendid people in the show and we enjoy every minute of work and travel."

Peggy and Jane will go into strenuous rehearsal shortly which will call for hours and days of hard work developing new routines or improving former numbers.

The "Holiday On Ice" show opens its 1967-68 season at Madison, Wisconsin on August 24th. The tour will take them to several United States centres before the troupe embarks for a six-months tour of South America.

"We are looking forward to the South American tour" they said "but we hope it will be much better than Mexico. We did not care too much for the land of guitars, sombreros and ardent young senors."

Argos Whip Larks In Yawn Game

TORONTO (CP)—An early touchdown provided the margin Friday as Toronto Argonauts opened their 1967 Eastern Football Conference season with a dull 14-7 victory over Montreal Alouettes.

The Argos showed little of their pre-season form as they skittered through the middle stages and appeared ready to fold when Montreal defensive back Larry Fairholm made a questionable decision late in the game.

Fairholm ran into his end zone after ducking a punt inside his 10 with less than three minutes remaining. The two points left Argos ahead 13-7, but Fairholm neglected a year-old rule that the defensive team must kick from its own 25 after conceding a safety in the final five minutes.

Bill Symons rammed six yards for the Toronto touchdown and John Vilonax converted and added a 19-yard field goal and a 21-yard single. Dave Mann hoofed a 71-yard single in the final minutes.

Montreal's only touchdown came on a 36-yard strike from Carroll Williams to flanker Roger Murphy in the second quarter. Dave Lewis kicked a 40-yard single in the fourth quarter for the other Alouette point.

The Argos led 8-0 after the first quarter and 11-6 at half-time. The third quarter was scoreless.

The Argos managed 16 first downs, 12 in the first half when quarterback Wally Gabler was a standout. Gebler sagged in the second half and the Argo offence deteriorated.

The sophomore quarterback completed 13 of 29 passes for 182 yards and the Argos rushed for 128 yards on the ground; only four completions and 29 yards rushing came after the intermission. Montreal, third ahead of Toronto last season, settled for 22 yards rushing and 314 passing for 14 first downs as Williams and Lewis completed 13 of 27 times.

Williams, who retired in the second half with an ankle injury, hit on seven of 13 attempts. Lewis connected on eight of 14.

The individual standout among receivers was Murphy, who pulled 132 yards in five receptions. Gerry Sternberg of the Alouettes contributed 77 yards in four receptions.

For Toronto, flanker Bob Taylor carried for 94 yards in seven receptions, despite tight coverage by Montreal defender Phil Brady. Passes to Taylor and one stirring 18-yard gallop by Gebler highlighted the Toronto touchdown march, which covered 71 yards in eight plays.

Gebler gained 42 yards in six carries and Symons 43 yards in 11 carries. Larry Ferguson was the Argo leader with 49 yards in nine carries.

Don Lisbon was the only Montreal ground threat. He was restricted to 28 yards in seven carries. Losses on pass attempts reduced the team total. Lane Alouette throats were engineered by Lewis after Williams was wrecked up by Merv Lester on a running play. Argo defensive back Dick Aldridge left early after receiving a blow on the head. He did not return.

There Are Smiles...

Peggy and Jane McCutcheon spent a few days at their home here prior to going into rehearsal for their second season with the skating extravaganza "Holiday on Ice." The young ladies are looking forward to a six-months tour of South America later on. They featured stars in a pairs routine on the show. (See Sports Column.)

Commonwealth Golf

Win Today; And We've Got It

VICTORIA (CP)—Three countries were still in the running as the Commonwealth gold tournament entered its final round today, with Canada in the best position for top honors.

The Canadians, who came from behind to knock off New Zealand Friday and grab a share of first place, need Britain in today's finale. Victory would give Canada the title, a co-leader South Africa the bye today and could not improve its position. Britain and New Zealand, trailing the new leaders by a single point and with two points possible today, also were in contention.

New Zealand clashed today with last-place Australia while South Africa, Australia was out of the running.

Any two of the three teams in contention could finish in a tie for first place, in which case the team with the better record on individual matches would be declared champion.

That happened in the last tournament in 1963 but Britain and Australia shared the victory as each country had identical team and match records.

Two putts that teetered on the edge of the cup on the 18th hole proved to be the difference Friday for Canadians, who came back to beat New Zealand 4½ to 3½.

South Africa took a 2-1 lead from scotch foursome play into singles competition to fashion a win over Britain by the same score. The Canadians found themselves faced with the prospect of winning at least four and having one of the six singles matches after dropping two and halving one of the three foursomes games.

They won five of the singles by reversing their putting form after a humiliating display in the foursomes. But those two puts on the 18th made the difference.

Eskies Hot!

Ti-Cats Flash Veterans

HAMILTON (CP)—When Hamilton Tiger-Cats step out on the new Civic Stadium turf tonight for the Canadian Football League game against Edmonton Eskimos, there will be only one rookie import in the lineup.

This will be despite the fact that the head coach Ralph Sazio had to fill 11 vacancies this year following trades and retirements in the off-season.

Four of the eastern conference club still will have to get used to a number of new names on the roster though, including that of rookie guard Bill Seman, picked up from Toronto Argonauts following the Argos' tryout camp.

At the opposite end to Hal Patterson will be Ted Watkin, a staffed from Ottawa Rough Riders when he couldn't hold his job against rookie sensation Margene Adkins.

And probably shifting from end to flanker with Canadian Tommy Grant will be Tommy-Joe Coffey, one of the principals in an eight-man off-season trade with Edmonton.

On defence there will be defensive half Bill Redell, who was picked up in the trade that brought Coffey to the club and who doubles as backup quarterback to Joe Zuger, and linebacker Frank Cosentino joined the Esks along with Don Sutherin in the trade.

New Day For Rifles

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Rifles of the Continental Football League Friday announced Eagle Day has signed to quarterback the club.

The 34-year-old veteran was out recently by Toronto Argonauts after playing the last half of the 1966 season for the Eastern Football Conference club. Before joining Argos he was with Calgary Stampeders of the Western Conference for several years.

Basically a standup quarterback with a solid passing record, Day started his professional career with Winnipeg Blue Bombers of the Western Conference in 1956, but sat out the next two years with a kidney ailment.

He next emerged as quarterback for Washington Redskins of the National League where he toiled until 1961 when he joined Calgary.

No Joy In The Lions' Lair; Saskies Whip 'Em 36-18

REGINA (CP)—British Columbia Lions' hope for revenge turned to humiliation Friday night with a 36-18 loss to Saskatchewan Roughriders, the latter's tenth second defeat by the Saskatchewan club this season.

With 19,018 Saskatchewan fans proclaiming loudly their quarterback Bernie Faloney had trouble connecting with his intended pass receivers.

Lions tried 30 and completed 13, to Saskatchewan's 18 for 34. Roughrider quarterback Ron Lancaster, who piloted Saskatchewan to a Grey Cup last year, and fullback George Reed, were the cornerstones of the victory.

Lancaster hit his pass receivers with precision and Reed went over the B.C. goal line for three touchdowns. Punter Jack Abendschan missed on two converts but made up for lost points with a field goal and three converts later.

Saskatchewan was able to maul the Lions in the first three quarters and pile up a score, despite a late comeback by B.C., that outstripped the Roughriders' 34-16 victory Monday in Vancouver.

Saskatchewan's first hometown show of the season held B.C. scoreless until the middle of the third quarter, when effensive end George Burkeson caught a 15-yard pass from Faloney. Ted Gerla's convert failed.

The only other B.C. scoring came with 37 seconds left in the game when Craig Murray tabbed a pass from replacement quarterback Pete Ohler. Gerla's convert made it 13 for B.C.

The Roughriders opened with a first - quarter touchdown by Hugh Campbell on a pass from Lancaster. Reed added two more with plunges from the one- and two-yard lines respectively. Abendschan added his first two convert tries but added a field goal and a convert in the second quarter, giving the Riders a 23-0 half-time lead.

Reed went over again in the third quarter, at 6:34, on a one-yard rush. Abendschan's convert made it 29-0, before B.C.'s late third quarter drive that made it 29-6.

Saskatchewan stemmed a Lions push in the final quarter. Rod Gord Barwell caught a pass from Lancaster to put out for the final Roughriders touchdown. Abendschan's kick made it 36-6 mid-way through the final quarter.

A determined B.C. drive in the closing minutes gave Murray his touchdown on a pass 26 yards out.

The victory put Saskatchewan in a first-place tie in the Western Football Conference with Winnipeg Blue Bombers. Each have won two out of two games.

Calgary Stampeders have two points, ahead of Edmonton and B.C., each with none. Edmonton has played and lost two. B.C. has lost three out of three.

Saskatchewan was vastly superior to Lions in the air game, the ground, chalking up 20 first downs to B.C.'s 11.

While the Roughriders picked up 365 yards rushing and 227 passing, B.C. managed only 129 on the ground and passed for 186 yards. Each club intercepted one pass.

B.C. was ahead in two departments: The club recovered one of two fumbles and Saskatchewan lost both theirs; and B.C. picked up 47 yards on four penalties while Roughriders made 37.5 in four. Lions lost 40 yards on three penalties; Saskatchewan 32 yards on five.

Roughriders play Tuesday at Calgary and B.C. meets Toronto Wednesday in Vancouver.

Tigers Split With Birds; Twins Win

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Mickey Lolich, a 24 - game winner for Detroit last year, finally ended a 16-game personal losing streak Friday night when he pitched a five-hitter and beat Baltimore 5-1.

He finally ended the dry spell with an eight-strikeout performance that gave the Tigers a split in their doubleheader with the Orioles. Baltimore took the opener 5-1.

Elsewhere in the American League, first place Chicago dropped a 3-2 decision to Minnesota, Kansas City trimmed Washington 3-2 in 10 innings, New York swept a doubleheader from Cleveland 5-3 and 4-1 and California shut out Boston 1-0.

Lolich ended his slump impressively against the Orioles.

The left-hander set down Frank and Brooks Robinson, Paul Blair and Sam Bowens consecutively on strikes over once span and seemed to get stronger as the game progressed.

Consecutive doubles by Al Kaline and Willie Horton and a single by Jim Northrup produced three runs after two were out in The Tigers' first inning and that was enough for Lolich.

Brooks Robinson drove in two runs and Tom Phoebus pitched 5 1-3 hitless innings as the Orioles took the first game. Lolich yielded only two Baltimore hits after problems with doubles, scoring once on Brooks Robinson's sacrifice fly and another time on a

Lots O'Love For Canada!

MONTREAL (CP)—Canadians fared badly as they went down to defeat in the men's singles and doubles tennis events at the Canadian Open tennis championships Friday.

Only four Canadian victories during Friday's action came in the women's singles competition where Vicki Berner defeated Louise Lovett, Vancouver entry, 6-1, 6-2.

Two Canadians who made it to the quarter-finals of the men's singles competition were beaten in Friday's play.

Fourth-seeded Mike Belkin of Montreal was taken out in a three-hour thriller by third-seeded Cliff Richey Barnes of Brazil and John Sharpe of Toronto was outlasted by fifth-seeded Torben Ulrich of Denmark.

Barnes defeated Belkin 6-3, 7-5, 1-6, 3-6, 6-3, in a match which went down deep, hard shots with sometimes up to 30 in a rally while Ulrich and Sharpe, both left-handers, fought 39 games before Ulrich clinched the match 10-8, 7-5, 6-3.

At first, it appeared that Barnes would have an easy time repeating his victory over Belkin from last week's competition at the Ontario Open.

But the Montrealer came back strongly to take two sets and the last set was tied at two games apiece before Barnes forged ahead.

Lois Garcia of Mexico also put up a struggle before being eliminated by top-seeded Roy Emerson of Australia in the quarter-finals.

Showing promise for the future, the 18-year-old Mexican played all-out rather than conserving himself before bowing to Emerson 6-2, 6-4, 6-2.

Five Crews In Finals

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP)—Canadian crews have reached the Grand Finals in five events of the first North American rowing championships.

Canada qualified crews for Sunday's finals in the eights, the fours with and without cox and the pairs with cox during the first two days of the championships which started here Thursday.

Doug Clark and Leif Gothrodsen, both of Toronto, will also compete in the championship finals of the double sculls. Heats were not held in this event because only four other countries — the U.S., Czechoslovakia, Mexico and Switzerland—were entered.

Crews failing to qualify for the finals during the opening-day heats and the repechages Friday were dropped into the consolation finals, which today will get 2:30 p.m. today.

The Canadian eight is made up of Bruce Noble, Brian Johnson, Donald Krahnke, William Chapman, Fredrick Chapman, John Richardson, Eric McArthy, strokes Bruce McDavid and cox Herbert Crawley, all of the University of British Columbia.

Suggest Canada Course

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP)—The dream of a lifetime has all but come true for those associated with rowing here when Thomas Keller of Switzerland, president of the International Rowing Federation (FISA) suggested this be the site of the 1970 world championships.

In an interview during the North American championships Thursday, Keller said:

"I think it almost certain Canada will be awarded the 1970 world rowing championships. I am most impressed by the Henley course and the organization at St. Catharines. There are one or two minor technical details to be corrected, but this should be first choice."

Planned for more than 10 years, the 2,500-metre, $1,000,000 closed course was completed this year for Canada's centennial.

Pittsburgh Pirates got to Dave Giusti for 20 minutes before the California Air National Guard did, but Don Shaw's one-induction celebration saved the day for New York Mets.

The Pirates speeded up the timetable a bit, however, and when they got their second run off Frisella at 9:35, Shaw came in to mop up in the 3-2 Mets' victory.

Shaw leaves for six months of active duty with the Army Reserve Friday.

Officials Wrestle with Problems Expo Tourist Accommodation

MONTREAL (CP)—A three-way meeting was scheduled for today as officials wrestled with the widely-publicized problems of Montreal's tourist accommodation for Expo.

Gabriel Loubier, Quebec tourism minister, announced the meeting of officials of his department, Expo representatives and the Montreal hotel industry.

Mr. Loubier said the aim is to find a way to put on a legal basis the emergency accommodation-finding service started by the Queen Elizabeth Hotel last Monday.

The hotel said it was trying to "save Montreal's reputation as a hospitality city" following widespread criticism of Lescope, the lodging agency of Expo 67, by tourists.

But the Quebec government said the emergency service was illegal under provincial legislation aimed at protecting visitors from unscrupulous persons.

Another factor in the many-headed situation is that Robert F. Shaw, deputy commissioner-general of Expo, offered to turn over the Lescope apparatus—including staff and computers used by the Montreal hotel industry.

Donald Mumford, managing director of the Queen Elizabeth, expressed interest in this but said the 30-member Montreal Hotel Association—of which the Queen is not a member—said it was not a "serious proposition."

In yet another development in the accommodation serial, Mr. Shaw advised Montreal homeowners in a statement Friday night not to go to any further expense to make additional rooms available for visitors to the world's fair.

Montreal now has a total of 220,000 "bed nights" available and this is more than sufficient, Mr. Shaw said. The present estimated requirement is for 215,000 bed nights for a forecast 43,000,000 admissions during the six months of Expo.

Friday was a day of some rather eccentric arrivals at the world's fair.

Nine University of British Columbia students blew in aboard a school bus, which left Vancouver July 29. The students passed in Winnipeg for the Pan-American Games, living on the bus which is equipped with bunks, a propane stove, running water and a kitchenette.

Four Vancouver longshoremen—led by Ken Spinney, 23, descendant of famed explorer Joseph Papineau—came gliding along the St. Lawrence in Notre Dame Island in their canoe, completing a 3,400-mile journey.

"We wanted to do it like the old voyageurs," said Art Papineau, leader of the quartet and a descendant of the famed explorer Joseph Papineau.

"It was well worth the trouble to see Canada the way we did," Papineau, 35, Gary Koch, 27, Art McCann, 29, and Derick Andrews, 30—all Vancouver longshoremen in the workaday world—began their great adventure at Rocky Mountain House, Alta., May 16 and paddled and plodded for 87 days.

They were the first to arrive of several groups that are marking Centennial Year by marvelous canoe journeys along the old waterways by which the explorers reached the heart of the continent.

"I had been thinking about it for about a year and wanted to see Canada the way the explorers did—and find out what the country looked like from a canoe," said Papineau, interviewed at the Western Canada pavilion at Expo.

"The other boys and I decided it would be a nice thing to do for Centennial Year."

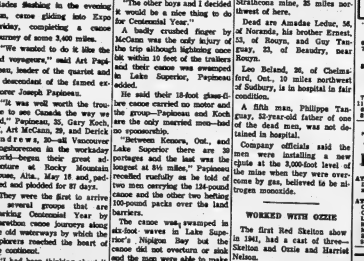
A badly crushed finger by McCann was the only injury of the trip although lightning once hit within 10 feet of the trailers and their canoe was swamped in Lake Superior, Papineau added.

He said their 18-foot glass-fibre canoe carried no motor and the group—Papineau and Koch are the only married men—had no sponsorship.

"Between Kenora, Ont., and Lake Superior there are 30 portages and the last was the longest at 8½ miles," Papineau recalled ruefully as he told of two men carrying the 134-pound canoe and the other two bearing 100-pound packs over the land barriers.

The canoe was swamped in six-foot waves in Lake Superior's Nipigon Bay but the canoe did not overturn or sink and the men were able to make shore. A canoe rib was broken.

Ordinarily the adventurers slept under the stars—they had no tent—but twice had the luxury of hotel beds, at Rainy River and Fort Frances, Ont.



Papineau said 20 miles would be covered in a "good average" by day but between sunrise and sunset on one big day they covered 96 miles from Cumberland House, Sask., to The Pas, Man.

These two paintings were judged the best out of more than 1,000 entries received in the Canadian Centennial Painting Competition in Britain. Sponsored by the Centennial Commission, the contest was open to children from 11 to 16 years. The two boys won 15-day holidays in Canada, which start Aug. 15. (CP Photo)

Journey of 3400 Miles By Canoe Is Completed

MONTREAL (CP)—Four modern-day voyageurs, paddle blades flashing in the evening sun, canoe gliding into Expo Friday, completing a canoe journey of some 3,400 miles.

"It was well worth the trouble to see Canada the way we did," Papineau, 35, Gary Koch, 27, Art McCann, 29, and Derick Andrews, 30—all Vancouver longshoremen in the workaday world—began their great adventure at Rocky Mountain House, Alta., May 16 and paddled and plodded for 87 days.

Three Men Die Of Gas in Mine

SUDBURY (CP)—Three Quebec men died Friday when overcome by toxic gas at Falconbridge Nickel Mines Ltd.'s Strathcona mine, 25 miles northwest of here.

Dead are Amadee Ledoe, 56, of Noranda, his brother Ernest, 46, of Rouyn, and Guy Tanguay, 23, of Beaudry, near Rouyn.

Leo Beland, 26, of Chelmsford, Ont., 10 miles northwest of Sudbury, is in hospital in fair condition.

A fifth man, Philippe Tanguay, 52-year-old father of one of the dead men, was not detained in hospital.

Company officials said the men were installing a new chute at the 2,000-foot level of the mine when they were overcome by gas, believed to be nitrogen monoxide.

Sports Briefs

HUGE TV AUDIENCE

NEW YORK (AP)—Baseball Commissioner William D. Eckert said Friday that a record 85,000,000, the largest television audience ever to view a non-World Series game, watched the 1957 major league All-Star game from Anaheim, Calif., last July. The only game that had a bigger audience was the final game of the 1956 World Series between Brooklyn and Los Angeles, which had an estimated 60,000,000 viewers.

STICKY WICKET

NOTTINGHAM, England (Reuters)—England made slow progress Friday on a drying batsh against Pakistan in the second day of the second cricket test at Trent Bridge here. By the close, England, in reply to Pakistan's 340, was 119 for four wickets. A total of 284 hours was lost during the day. At 19 for four England were still 221 runs behind Pakistan's total.

FIRST SINCE 1939

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Pittsburgh Pengelon, one of six new National League teams, will open their first home season Oct. 11 with a game against Montreal Canadiens. It will be the first NHL game here since 1930, when Pittsburgh Pirates dropped out after five years in the league.

ATTEMPTS COMEBACK

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP)—Charlie Burns at 21, a critical age for Spaniard athletes, threw security out the window and is gambling that he can win a starting spot in the National Hockey League, from which he once was sent down. Burns, a native of Barcelo, has been playing coach of San Francisco Seals in the Western Hockey League for the last three season. He has no contract, no promises, nothing but hope that he can make the Seals' roster at training camp opens at Fort Huron, Mich., Sept. 10.

4 MORE SIGN

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Canadiens announced Friday that four NHL players have signed their contracts for the 1967-68 National Hockey League season. Most of the coming season were netminders Rogatien Vachon and Ernie Wakely and right winds Yvan Cournoyer and Claude Larose. Vachon was called up to the Canadiens last year as a result. Wakely played with Cleveland Barons of the American Hockey League last season.

FLYING FIGHT FANS

NEW YORK (AP)—Thousands of Panamanians are flying in to see Friday night's lightweight title fight here next Wednesday between champion Carlos Ortiz of Puerto Rico and challenger Ismael Laguna of Panama at the Madison Square Garden. It'll probably be the biggest influx of foreign visitors for a fight ever," said a Garden spokesman. The Panamanians are carrying huge banners which say in Spanish: To the Moon With Laguna.

Voyageurs At The Soo

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP)—Competitors in the Centennial Voyageurs canoe pageant ended another successful segment Friday at their campsite in Lehigh 3 miles miles above the Canadian locks here.

The 13 canoes averaged about 32 miles an hour to cover the 200 miles of Lake Superior from Grand Portage, Minn., to here.

Thousands of persons gathered both fog and seasickness en route, were escorted across the locks by the Canadian Coast Guard vessel Relay and two navy training ships, the Porte St. Louis and the Porte St. Jean.

The 23 canoes today will compete in a sprint race to Bellevue Park, two miles downstream from the Canadian locks here, and will set up a campsite there.

UNITED NATIONS (Reuters) — The Ivory Coast has turned down an appeal by UN Secretary-General U Thant to release from detention the foreign minister and UN ambassador of Guinea, a neighbouring African country, reliable sources said Friday. The two were seized, while en route through the country by air, in retaliation for the seizure of an Ivory Coast fishing vessel off Guinea earlier this year.

Arm Exercises Help Stop Swelling

Dear Dr. Molner: I had a mastectomy (removal of a breast) many months ago and cobalt treatments. I am doing fine except that my arm swells down to the fingertips, some days more than others. Do you know of any therapy for this? — Mrs. F. I.

The tissues undergo a good deal of unavoidable shock in this type of operation a and lymph glands and some blood vessels have to be removed. The result is impairment of the circulation in the shoulder area. This leads to fluid retention in the arm — edema. And that means swelling.

This swelling can be overcome, but let me not deceive you. It isn't easy. Exercise — constant use — of the arm is necessary no matter how uncomfortable it may be or how weak the arm may seem to be.

Carry things with that arm. Reach with it. Exercise with it. You have a natural tendency to favor that arm, but use is the one thing that will strengthen it and gradually bring the swelling under control. Physiotherapy and the use of a good elastic sleeve help to control this.

Patients having this surgery should be warned of this, and I think most of them are. But experience tells us that it is very difficult to make patients realize how truly important it is to keep that arm active instead of favoring it.

I can understand your reluctance to use the arm — but your own well-being depends on forcing yourself to use it.

Dear Dr. Molner: Much is written about the menopause, in your column and other medical articles, but would you offer a few words of advice to the man who goes through surgical menopause. Many of us are rather young and find it very difficult to adjust to the sudden changes which older women can accept gradually. — Mr. C. E.

This problem (surgical menopause) is included in my booklet, "Make Menopause Easier." A copy will be sent to you in return for 25 cents in coin and a self - addressed, stamped, envelope. Address your request to me in care of the Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P. O. Box 158, Dundee, Ill.

The problem, as well as the way to meet it, is essentially common because the ovaries cease abruptly — as from surgical removal or (sometimes) by being inactivated by radiation.

I can offer this encouragement to women with surgical menopause. Symptoms usually come on at an age when people are slowing down physically and tending to take on more weight. Therefore these and other symptoms are quite commonly b n t incorrectly, blamed on the menopause.

With menopause earlier in life you at least don't have to battle those problems.

In either type of menopause, such symptoms as hot flashes and hot flushes can be effectively controlled by administering the same whether menopause hormones in quantities which will make up for the hormones no coming from the ovaries. And gradually the body adjusts to the new level of hormones production.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have a relative who plays rough with the baby and throws it up in the air and catches it. Is this good for the baby?—Mrs. G.E.

I don't care much for this kind of playing with the baby mainly because of the danger of (1) frightening the baby; (2) dropping the child; (3) bumping the baby's head; (4) not quite dropping the baby, but getting or catching the baby by an arm and straining or dislocating it.

Man Has 60 Years Left To Change His Attitude

VICTORIA (CP)—Man has 60 years left to change an attitude that nature exists for his exploitation or he will perish, says Dr. C. H. Holling.

An ecologist at the federal forest research laboratory here, he recently received a Ford Foundation appointment to find a solution for survival.

"In the next 60 years something has to happen to the world population," said Dr. Holling, one of 400 North American scientists to receive the appointment.

"Either it will be a catastrophic event such as famine, pestilence or war that will reduce the number of human beings or we ourselves will decide it's time to exert some control.

"But he has little time to do that."

He said modern man continues to maintain "that he is the dominant species and will be able to reap the benefits of nature without consequence."

"This attitude has got to be changed to an acceptance of the fact that man is part of nature's system and may not be the greatest in the environment will affect [illegible] and will post him something."

This is why the Ford Foundation established a committee of ecologists—scientists who study relationships of living things in their environment—to propose an education program for universities so the problems will be known at the start.

But already exploitation of resources is beginning to endanger man's existence, says Dr. Holling.

"The problems of resources will grow beyond reality—now it's simply country.

"Prime Minister Gandhi's population problem is small enough food into enough bellies. In a frightening, short time we will find the world's problems of the same magnitude in North America."

The world's population is doubling once every 30 years today, but it is continuing to increase at the same rate, it will be doubling every two years 60 years from now.

"In North America time be simply one big New York city!" asked Dr. Holling. "Things simply cannot keep growing forever.

"There has to be a saturation point, a stop point somewhere.

"... Can't we do something that there is a point which we should not exceed to be in equilibrium with our environment?"

Bathroom, Is Built Under Lake

EDMONTON (CP)—A bathroom equipped with everything but dry towels is being built 30 feet under the surface of Hubley Lake, 15 miles west of here.

The Northern Alberta Sportsmen's Club, which owns the washroom, complete with shower, hot and cold water and bathtub, is a Centennial project. They also hope to learn how the tundra materials efficiently under water.

They plan to set up the frame, put the floor, the plumbing, install the fixtures and build a flight of stairs from the bottom of the lake. Then, below, by the end of the summer, there will be an escape hatch in the roof.

When they complete the bathroom, the Fathomers will study the problems involved in making the bathroom useful when the problem of the dry towels.

In Home of Beatles Tatty-cads Talk Scouse

LIVERPOOL, England (Reuters)—Would you call a scuffer if you saw a tatty-cad chucking alley-apples at a ligger-rabbit?

If you're an animal - lover, you probably would.

Because a scuffer would be a Liverpool policeman, to say the young woman — tatty-cad — in question flinging stones — alley-apples — and a poor alley-cat — ligger-rabbit.

But then you'd have to know Liverpool's language.

To help the puzzled visitor there's come out with one of the rest of the world, Austrian-born humorist - musician Fritz Spiegl has published a comprehensive "scouse" dictionary.

The book explains that the term "scouse" itself is a contended from meaning a meat stew favored by seamen, to encompass the peculiar patience of Liverpool.

Full term for the meat-and-potato stew is "lobby" and "scouse" — possibly taken from an old German sailors' dish known as Labskaus.

The dish, probably first sold in Liverpool three centuries ago by Scandinavian sailors, is now a delicacy.

Other pre - catching phrases among the several hundred phrases—many basically phonetic renderings of expressions known elsewhere in Britain include "bap oggle" an eye-opening breakfast and "mudgers" — tea which made from a long road roll.

Calm, Orderly Escape Staged By 299 Aboard Stranded Ship

ALERT BAY, B.C. (CP)—Divers and tugboats today continued the task of trying to free the ferry Queen of Prince Rupert from a reef while investigators probed the grounding that endangered 299 passengers.

None of the shipwrecked was injured as a calm and orderly escape in lifeboats and rafts was helped by a swarm of fishing craft and other local power boats.

Capt. John Collier, skipper of the 2,300-ton flagship of the government-owned B.C. ferry fleet, remained aboard while passengers were removed and there was a calm to shore, most of them in Alert Bay off the northeast coast of Vancouver Island, about 183 miles northwest of Vancouver.

The 352-foot ship ran aground about 6 a.m. Friday. Her hull plates buckled amidships and water poured into the engine room.

Divers made several attempts Friday afternoon to assess damage, but the ship was resting on the damaged plates, making a close look impossible.

There were unofficial reports that a misplaced buoy could have affected the ship's course, but the B.C. ferry authority organizations manager, Bill Weston, declined to speculate on this.

Mr. Weston said separate investigations were being made by the federal transport department and the ferry authority.

Meanwhile, salvage crews were fighting against time to unload rtf vehicles to lighten the ship before high tide later today. The 15-foot tide was scheduled to be the highest until next Thursday.

By late Friday night, crew members had gathered a box full of keys to the locked vehicles. The cars were to be taken by barge to Nanaimo, further down on Vancouver Island.

The Queen was southbound from Prince Rupert in heavy fog when it struck Hoskyn Rock, while travelling at about 17 knots.

Crew member Frank Dresser, 36, of North Surrey, B.C., had just finished six hours at the helm when the accident occurred.

Dresser and rescued passengers, many of them American tourists, said there was no extreme shock when the ship hit the rocks.

"It felt like we'd hit a log," said Dresser, who was eating breakfast when it happened. Several passengers were roused from their cabins and ordered to the lifeboats in night dress.

Most of the crew of 70 returned to the ship to spend the night.

Today, passengers were to be ferried by fishboat, RCMP launch and coast guard vessels to Port McNeill on Vancouver Island. Buses were to take them to Nanaimo to retrieve their vehicles.

When the ship is located clear it will be towed to Victoria or Vancouver for repairs.

The Queen was built in Victoria in 1956 and began service the following year.

Sketch Of Killer Is Issued

OTTAWA (CP)—Police Friday issued a composite "photosketch" of a man matching the description of the killer who knifed Ottawa fireman Leopold Lalonde.

The drawing was made by a police artist from a description of the assailant by the victim's wife, Mrs. Mildred Lalonde, the only witness to the attack Wednesday in the hall of an apartment building where Roy was part-time superintendent.

Roy died from a single knife wound in the heart after he struggled with an intruder outside the door of his apartment.

Detectives described the wanted man as five-foot-one to five-foot-two in height, weighing about 125 pounds, with black curly hair.

Preston Couple Wants To Adopt Two Sisters

PRESTON, Ont. (CP)—Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Timbrell decided Friday they will fight to adopt two little sisters placed in their home early this year.

The couple previously had been willing to hand over Valerie, 3, and Peggy, 5, to the Children's Aid Society if they were promised the children would not be separated.

"We can no longer trust the Children's Aid Society," Mrs. Timbrell said Friday. "We have changed our mind. We will never give up the children under any circumstances.

"The important thing is the welfare of the children. They love us and we love them. Why shouldn't we adopt them?"

W. A. Hunsberger, director of the Waterloo County Children's Aid Society, said earlier Friday he will take no immediate steps to overcome Mrs. Timbrell's refusal to give up the sisters.

Mrs. Timbrell, mother of nine children of her own in 23 years of marriage, Thursday refused entry to two social workers of the society who wanted to take the girls to two homes where they may be adopted.

"I won't have the society split the girls up and put them in separate homes," Mrs. Timbrell said. "They're going to have to bring in the police. These two kids are like glue, they're inseparable. It's cruel."

Meanwhile in Toronto, John Yaremko, minister of social and family services, said in a writ statement that information he has on the case is incomplete but that he is "averse" to the plan to separate the girls.

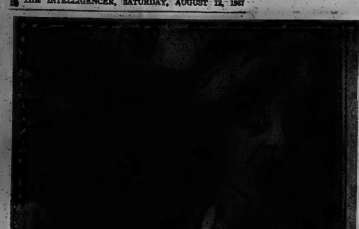
"Family ties should be respected and maintained wherever possible," he said.

He is awaiting the report of a senior department official who went to Preston and nearby Kitchener to study the case.

Mr. Yaremko's statement did not touch upon the religious element in the controversy.

Mrs. Timbrell is Anglican and the girls brave a Roman Catholic background. The society wants to place the girls with two Catholic families who have offered to adopt them.

Mrs. Timbrell said she has asked the society for permission to keep the girls, offering a guarantee the girls would be brought up in the Catholic faith. A Catholic neighbor would take the girls to church every Sunday.



A Toronto lawyer, who has offered his services to Mrs. Timbrell said there is nothing in Ontario's new Child Welfare Act that says a child must be adopted by a home of its parents' religion.

This was confirmed by as official of the social and family services department who said the final adoption decision is up to a judge.

Mr. Hunsberger said the society had made every effort possible to place the girls in one family, but such a home could not be found.

"We would prefer to keep them together, but how long can we postpone placing them in a permanent home?" he said.

"A child's insecurity grows with the length of time he doesn't put down roots and remains in a temporary situation."

Fights for Foster Sisters

Margaret Timbrell, 19, clutches her two foster sisters, Peggy, 5 (rear) and Valerie, 3, as she shouts at two officials of the Waterloo County Children's Aid Society. Her mother, Mrs. Arthur Timbrell, 43, has locked the doors of her Preston, Ont., home against the society because it wants to place the little girls, who are sisters, in two different adoptive homes. Reconstruct Federalism Is Roblin's Suggestion

VICTORIAVILLE, Que. (CP)—Premier Duff Roblin of Manitoba Friday night urged national unity of French and English-speaking Canadians through a renaissance and reconstruction of federalism.

In the first major address of his campaign to become national leader of the Progressive Conservative party, Mr. Roblin said Canada's dualism is not French that his top priority is national unity.

"The secret of unity, not unity of the melting-pot but the only unity which is compatible with human dignity, unity without uniformity."

Mr. Roblin spoke in this community of 22,000 about 100 miles northeast of Montreal following a 175-mile road trip beginning in Quebec City, with a luncheon stop at Trois-Rivieres and civic receptions at Drummondville and the city hall here.

Introduced at least twice as the "future prime minister of Canada" and hailed everywhere he went for leading the campaign to permit teaching in French in Manitoba's school system, the 50-year-old Winnipegger said:

"The Progressive Conservative party presided over the birth of Canadian Confederation. It will preside over its renaissance."

Mr. Roblin tackled the tricky "two nations" concept of Canada at a press conference in Quebec City and in his speech here, saying Canada can be considered as two nations culturally but one nation politically.

"If in your idea and definition of nation you consider that the state is the decisive factor, there is one nation in Canada because there is only one Canadian state politically in the political sense of the federal form."

Mr. Roblin said that as premier of Manitoba he did his best to "save the status of French in Manitoba's schools, making it possible for French-Canadians there to live" as "full-fledged citizens with complete equality." The Manitoba legislature unanimously passed a bill recently amending Manitoba's public school act to permit teaching in French in public schools. Previously teaching was permitted only in the English language.

U.S. Admits F-111 Vibrates

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Pentagon concedes the accuracy of reports that the U.S. Air Force's controversial F-111 vibrates in flight, but calls it a minor problem.

Responding to questions Friday, the Pentagon said the vibration has been traced to bomb racks. A spokesman called it a design problem now being solved.

St. Kitts Jury Refuses To Blame Motel Owners

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—An inquest jury Friday ignored a suggestion from coroner Dean Macdonald that John and George Prudhomme, co-owners of Prudhomme's Garden Centre, be held responsible for any deaths during a fire at the lavish tourist resort June 28.

It ruled that watchman John Healey, 56, of Hamilton, whose body was found in the ruins several days later, died in the line of reasons unknown. It attached no blame in the death.

The jury also ignored a suggestion from the coroner that they should find that the fire, which destroyed a major portion of the centre, causing about $3,500,000 damage, was deliberately set.

Almost 500 guests and customers were forced to flee when the fire broke out in the well-known Prudhomme's complex, which included a restaurant, hotel, curling rink, theatre, bowling alley, lounges, and other entertainment facilities beside the Queen Elizabeth Way at nearby Vineland.

As the three-day inquest approached its close Friday, Dr. Macdonald said in his charge to the jury that the Prudhomme brothers should be "held personally responsible for all who might have died in the fire."

He accused the owners of ignoring the building laws of South Township and said the employees and the owners themselves "ran around like chickens with their heads cut off" during the fire.

"We should have some law that would make them pay. They should make them pay for being so arrogant," Dr. Macdonald said.

During Friday's testimony Prudhomme's desk clerk testified that he thought Healey was searching for an arsonist when he disappeared in the fire.

Dr. Macdonald told the jury the evidence showed the fire did not start by itself.

The jury retired for six hours and returned Friday night with 18 recommendations, among them a suggestion that the Hotel Fire Safety Act be amended to require builders to construct proper fire safety walls between each unit.

Two of the recommendations were aimed at hotels already build before the act went into effect in August, 1965. The act applies only to construction of new motels, or older motels which receive liquor licenses board approval for renovation.

The jury called on government agencies, such as the department of tourism and information, which license public accommodation buildings that do not serve liquor, to start at once to force hotel and motel owners to:

—install fire hoses and other fire-fighting equipment in strategic locations in all buildings;

—arrange for power sources or independent water systems for areas not served by municipal water systems;

—install fire alarm systems in all buildings;

—see that employees are drilled in sounding fire alarms, evacuating guests and using and maintaining fire-fighting equipment.

In other suggestions, it asked that hotels and motels be prohibited from converting areas under staircases into storage areas and that smoke barrier screens and doors be installed at intervals of 300 feet or less in long corridors and passageways.

Chief Douglas MacNich of the South Township volunteer fire department testified Friday that the centre lacked sufficient fire protection and the owners had been told so before the fire.

He said he had warned the Prudhomme brothers that there were no proper fire stops in the securing rink-theatre section where the fire apparently started.

E. J. Beauchamp of the Ontario fire marshal's office testified that construction of the complex was not up to standards and there were not enough fire exits and fire alarms.

John Prudhomme, who with his brother planned and designed the centre, testified under the protection of the Canada Evidence Act. He said the centre had no fire walls, fire doors or enclosed fireproof stairways.

A desk clerk at Prudhomme's, John Rempel, said Healey might have been searching for an arsonist when he disappeared in the fire.

He said Healey told him after the fire started: "I know who did it . . . I am going to get him."

The owners, neither of whom had any architectural training, started Prudhomme's Garden Centre in 1948 as a 15-room motel. It continued to grow in size and reputation until, at the time of the fire, the guests who filled its 200 rooms were just a part of the daily visitors who crowded a 200, a nearby nine-hole golf course and the centre's other facilities.

Quebec Not Alone In Having Problems

MONTREAL (CP)—Davie Fulton, former justice minister and candidate for the Conservative party's federal leadership, said Friday the Canadian constitution must be changed to meet the requirements of a modern urban society.

He stressed that major amendments are needed, not only to meet the needs of Quebec, but of all the provinces.

"Problems do not exist only in Quebec. They exist in all the provinces and in every municipality throughout the country."

He urged an increase in federal and provincial study of such nationwide problems as education, housing, urban renewal, transportation, resources and pollution.

Referring to Quebec's demands for special status, he said the people of Quebec must have equal rights with other Canadians in all parts of the country.

It was not possible for the Quebec provincial government to have the same powers held by the federal government.

Mr. Fulton said both federal and provincial governments have been mindful of ensuring that French-speaking Canadians benefit from all the rights agreed upon at the time of confederation.

U.S. Will Probe Border Incident

WASHINGTON (CP)—Informants said Friday the U.S. almost certainly will investigate incidents at Lacolle, Que., where an American inter-faith group tried unsuccessfully to ship personal supplies over the international border for shipment to North and South Vietnam via Canada.

The group, which included Quakers, Unitarians and Episcopalians, was prevented earlier this week from taking the supplies over the border to Montreal.

Friction is reported to exist between the treasury department, responsible for policing the United States' Trading With the Enemy Act, and the justice department, which would have to decide whether to prosecute the Americans involved. The U.S. applies the act to such countries as North Vietnam and Cuba.

So far, the justice department has not initiated proceedings against any member of the ig-saw group.

There is some private grumbling among Canadian officials that the United States, at the Lacolle border-crossing point, "exported" its problems to Canada.

RCMP had to tug from a dozen members of the group packages addressed to North and South Vietnam because they lacked the necessary U.S. export licences. The U.S. customs would not grant dog-license seal, by Canadian law, such parcels could not enter Canada.

The point, Canadian officials say, is that U.S. law could halt protestors before they reach Canadian soil.

Earlier in the week here a Quaker spokesman, Jack Ferguson, said he fear Canada "has undertaken to do the dirty work for the U.S." He said he would welcome "a legal charge being laid against us by the government, but they apparently don't want to do that."

On the other hand, the treasury department "has done everything it can to frustrate, intimidate and harass our program."

U.S. officials say the treasury enforces the Trading with the Enemy Act through the office of foreign assets control.

Needs Test Defended

CALGARY (CP)—Premier Robert Stanfield of Nova Scotia called Friday for withdrawal of the 11-per-cent federal sales tax on building materials and other needed moves in the housing field.

The Conservative leadership candidate said Ottawa should ensure enough funds to develop better and cheaper housing designs.

He told a news conference that "we're not going to be able to do everything we want to do" for housing programs and priorities must be established to deal with urban problems.

On welfare programs, the premier said welfare should be "need-oriented" instead of on a universal, compulsory basis and "you have to be prepared to accept a needs test."

Later, Mr. Stanfield criticized the federal government for "sleeping" provincial policy. As examples was the four conditions set by Ottawa for provincial plans to qualify for the federal medical care plan.

The scheme should be made more flexible to give each province room to consider its own needs.

U.S. Bombs Rail Line 10 Miles From China

Limit Is Lifted

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. planes bombed targets just 10 miles from China today, the second straight day they ventured within 10 miles of China's border — the nearest yet in the air war on North Vietnam.

Their object was directed along the major railway from Chien to Hanoi and marked the fourth straight day of the stepped-up bombing of rail supply lines.

Navy A6 Intruders and A-4 Skyhawks from the carrier Constellation in the Tonkin Gulf rained the Lang Son road-bypass bridge 63 miles north of Haiphong. Pilots reported dropping the southern span of the 360-foot, four-span structure.

A U.S. military spokesman said the bridge is half a mile east of the Lang Son rail and highway bridge which was knocked out in raids Sunday.

In South Vietnam, 21 U.S. army men were wounded when U.S. marines opening south of the big coastal base at Da Nang accidentally fired two mortar shells into a navy construction unit's compound.

The intensified air raids on North Vietnam appeared to reflect the Johnson administration's announced policy of increasing pressure on the Communists.

Unofficial sources said U.S. pilots previously had been instructed to go no closer than 30 miles to China.

Canton Tense

HONG KONG (CP) — Travellers returning here today from Canton reported more clashes in the south China city and said the situation there was tense.

Fulbright Irked

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. bombing within 10 miles of China detonated sharp new criticism of the Vietnam war by a persistent critic of Johnson administration war policy and appeared likely to generate more debate on Capitol Hill.

"I think it's very dangerous and extremely stupid," said J. W. Fulbright, chairman of the Senate foreign relations committee.

But John Stennis, chairman of the Senate preparedness subcommittee, said the broadened bombing of North Vietnam reflects a more pressure philosophy which he supports.

The new level of bombing came on the eve of Senate debate on President Johnson's foreign aid program. Debate opening today already had been expected to bring fresh attacks on Johnson policies in Vietnam and elsewhere in the world.

Whether one variety of recent congressional criticism — that bombing was sparing enough — affected Johnson's decision to add new targets could not be determined as the White House bedevil off questions on the shift in tactics.

Strikes Sunday against North Vietnamese railyards 19 miles from China and Friday against Hanoi's Doumer bridge came after Johnson lifted temporarily two major target restrictions.

Pentagon sources said the administration will continue these restrictions except on certain key, vital missions. The restricted areas are a 30-mile diameter circle around Hanoi, penetrated two or three times previously, and a 15- to 20-mile-wide buffer zone along the North Vietnam-China boundary.

Fulbright said the bombing near China "is directly contrary to what was the established policy of the government in 1964."

Fulbright's committee cut Johnson's $3,400,000,000 foreign aid request by $736,000,000.

Vietnam's Buddhists Enraged

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnam's militant Buddhists vowed today to stage protests against the government's recognition of a rival faction as the country's official Buddhist Church and hinted at a "struggle movement."

In a statement, the leadership also denounced the current presidential campaign and called for "drastic changes."

The "struggle movements" of extremist Buddhists have in the past been able to help topple governments and bring thousands of demonstrators into the streets. But their power is believed to have greatly diminished following their clash with Premier Nguyen Cao Ky last year.

The militant Buddhists held the press conference at the An Quang pagoda, Saigon headquarters of their leader, Thich Tri Quang.

Chief of State Nguyen Van Thieu, signed a charter which set up Saigon's Buddhist Institute, the Vien Hoa Dao, as the official Buddhist Church of South Vietnam.

The Vien Hoa Dao and the An Quang Buddhists said.

The militant Buddhist also supported the return of exiled Gen. Duong Van Minh. —Big Minh — to run for president. Minh's slate was forbidden to run and he will not be allowed to return until after the Sept. 3 election.

Battered Soviet Ship Leaves Chinese Port

MOSCOW (AP)—The battered Soviet merchant ship Svirsk limped out of the Chinese port of Dairen Sunday, a Moscow report said, after the Chinese released her captain and three crew members following a bitter exchange of protest notes with the Soviets.

The Soviet Union announced that seven tugboats full of Red Guards escorted the ship out of the Yellow Sea port. The Svirsk's hull, superstructure and equipment bore anti-Soviet inscriptions.

All the Russian crew were aboard when the Svirsk headed for the Soviet port of Vladivostok, the announcement reported, but the ship's documents were kept by the Chinese.

Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin sent a telegram to Chinese Premier Chou En-lai Saturday demanding release of the captain and captured crew members and let the Svirsk sail.

A Peking broadcast heard in Tokyo, however, made no mention of Kosygin's telegram.

The ship arrived in Dairen July 22 and shortly after, a Pravda dispatch said, second navigator Stanislav V. Ivanov was accused by Chinese authorities of refusing to accept a Mao Tse-tung badge. The Chinese demanded that Ivanov be turned over to them but Capt. Viktor Korshov refused.

When the captain went to the port office Friday to register the Svirsk's departure, he was arrested, Pravda said.

The Chinese version held that two crew members asked for a Mao badge and then "wilfully insulted it and threw one badge into the sea."

Federal Spending Studied

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson has called a press conference for 10 a.m. EDT Tuesday to describe the government's legislative program for the parliamentary session resuming Sept. 25.

The cabinet spent intensive sessions all last week on the program and the framework of government spending in the coming fiscal year but a cabinet source said there were "greatly exaggerated."

Biafrans Push Toward Key Town

LAGOS (Reuters) — Secessionist Biafran troops claimed today they were pushing towards the key northern Nigerian town of Lokoja after a spectacular advance from their midwestern stronghold.

Radio Biafra said that dawn of the breakaway former Eastern Region of Nigeria captured three northern towns and were 40 miles north of the border of the Midwestern Region — seized in a lightning linkup with mutinous government troops last week.

If the forces of Eastern leader LL-Col. Odumegwu Ojukwu take Lokoja, at the junction of the Benue and Niger rivers, they would command navigation on both waterways as well as the $220,000,000 Kainji Dam.

Radio Biafra claimed Sunday night that Lokoja, which it described as a federal military beachhead and air base, was "a ghost town, deserted and in flames" after two days of air attacks.

Tito Attempts to Help Arabs Find Way Out of Deadlock

CAIRO (CP)—Yugoslav President Tito is attempting to help Arab leaders find an acceptable way out of the present deadlock over Israeli possession of territory captured in the war.

No immediate results are expected, but observers believe his mission will be a success if it brings the Socialist Arab countries to reconsider and take what Tito called a more realistic approach toward a peace formula with the victorious Israelis.

Arab discussions so far have centred on "means of removing the traces of Israeli aggression."

Tito was in Syria after extensive talks with Egyptian President Nasser.

The continued his meetings with Syria's head of state Nureddin Atassi, which began Sunday night.

Tito's mission gained importance from the fact that both President Johnson and Soviet leaders have sent him messages outlining their views on a solution to problems of the June war.

Tito is believed to have acquainted Nasser with the attitude of the two largest powers. He is expected to do the same in Damascus and Baghdad, the Iraqi capital.

There were signs Nasser is willing to seek a political solution to the crisis but only if it contains nothing which could be interpreted as capitulation.

Adding to Tito's difficulties are disputes among the Arabs and their internal problems.

Arab sources stressed Nasser and Tito also discussed the possible role of non-aligned countries in settling the crisis and the problems of economic aid to Arab states affected by "Israeli aggression."

After talks in Damascus and Baghdad, Tito will return to Cairo Wednesday for a final round of talks with Nasser.

Former Lawyer for Oswald Convicted on Charge of Perjury

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A jury convicted Dean Andrews early today of lying to a grand jury about a mysterious figure in the alleged New Orleans plot to assassinate President John F. Kennedy.

Andrews was found guilty on three of five counts of perjury by the criminal district court jury at 1:30 a.m. after it deliberated two hours and 40 minutes.

Defence lawyer Harry Burglass said Andrews, 44, will not be eligible for bond until he has been sentenced. Maximum sentence would be five years.

The trial was before a five-man jury because the charge of perjury is a misdemeanor under Louisiana law.

In final arguments, the state accused Andrews of trying "to play games" with the Orleans Parish grand jury which is investigating an alleged assassination plot.

Five counts of perjury against Andrews, a lawyer who once advised Lee Harvey Oswald on minor legal matters, were filed primarily because he said he could not identify Clay L. Shaw as the mysterious Clay Bertrand.

District Attorney Jim Garrison contends that Shaw, 54, a wealthy New Orleans businessman, used "Bertrand" as an alias to plot the murder of Kennedy.

Sen. W. McCutcheon Visits City

Delegates Hear PC Leadership Candidate

Senator Wallace McCutcheon

With the Conservative national convention less than a month away, at least one contender for party's leadership is making no prediction on the result of the contest.

But, the fact the party has so many candidates bidding for the top post is a good indication of its national health, Senator Wallace McCutcheon said in Belleville today.

However, he did not predict the outcome of the convention which sees him as the lead — so far — against eight opponents for the Conservative leadership.

"It would be a very bold person who would make any prediction at this stage — certainly I've never engaged in the numbers game myself," the former trade minister in the Diefenbaker cabinet said.

Sen. McCutcheon spoke to reporters this morning after he arrived in Belleville to meet with local party delegates who will vote on the leadership at the Toronto convention Sept. 6-9.

The senator also was fairly non - committal on the convention's biggest enigma — the intentions of party leader John Diefenbaker.

"That's one question on which I wouldn't hazard a guess at all," he said.

Should Mr. Diefenbaker decide to run, it would "have a great effect" on the convention since there was "undoubtedly substantial sentimental support for him."

However, said Sen. McCutcheon, he felt many Conservatives believed "for one reason or another and without any reflection on Mr. Diefenbaker" that a new leader was required if the party is to win the next election.

The senator felt the party should return to the "basic Conservative philosophy that involves placing the individual in the centre of the picture."

This includes a "more selective type" of welfare philosophy, shorn of the "universality, the compulsion and uniformity" that characterizes welfare schemes, he said.

He reached a basic political philosophy:

"Essentially, what I want to see is a polarization of political opinion so that we have a party-to the right of centre and a party just to the left of centre, so that people will have a meaningful choice at their next election."

He criticized current tendencies of political parties attempting to "outbid" each other." If the Conservatives were committed to a definite political philosophy they would drew "large numbers" and encountered views of "very amateur conservatives" from other parties.

Nationally, among the most critical current needs was a conference on Canada's constitution to sort out provincial and federal responsibilities.

He praised the conference now being called for later this year by Ontario Premier Robarts said said such an assembly should have convened some years ago by the federal government in lieu of the B and B commission.

"All we've seen from the royal commission so far are very large bills," he added.

He said he was a firm believer in a central government strong in the fields allotted it constitutionally.

But strong central government should not mean weak provincial institutions, he emphasized.

"The two are not in conflict at all. The two are complementary," emphasized Sen. McCutcheon. "We don't want a federation of 10 weak provinces."

On other current topics:

National expenditures — the federal government should exercise the spending restraint it seeks from other institutions.

Finance Minister Sharpe yesterday said the cabinet was planning expenditure cuts for next year.

"But," emphasized the senator, "He has not said he is going to do anything for the expenditures for this year."

Neither had the costs of medicare been taken into account by the minister.

There also was an "astounding lack of enthusiasm" for medicare.

Foreign Ownership — "I'm not concerned that there is any conflict between ownership of assets in Canada . . . and Canadian sovereignty," said Sen. McCutcheon.

Canada has benefitted from foreign investment and will continue to need more — "the present federal government spending policies assure that."

Strong political institutions would safeguard any threat to sovereignty while exclusion of foreign capital would result in dwindling growth and living standards.

"I don't believe the Canadian people would tolerate that for one moment," he added.

National Unity — "The De Gaulle incident demonstrated that Canadians outside Quebec could also become emotionally involved in a national issue.

"Now it has been demonstrated that this is another quality we have in common across Canada."

President DeGaulle's remarks were "boorish and misdirected" and the senator did not think they were said "in error."

"If so the French president should have been properly briefed."

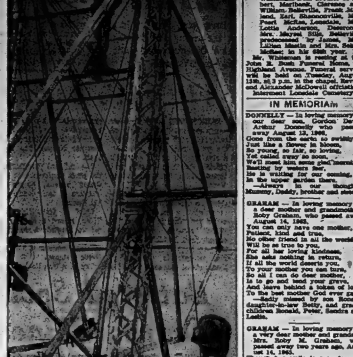
Fairground Becomes Bustling Centre

Activities at the fairgrounds reached a climax early this morning with the arrival of Conklin Brothers midway moving into the area with all its show business paraphernalia. The midway comes to Belleville after a five - day run at the Peterborough exhibition.

Preparation fever has also touched Belleville as the tourist industry locating more than 25 displays on a scale more elaborate than ever before. The same can be said for the agricultural and livestock exhibitors competing in greater number this year.

The centennial edition of the Belleville Fair opens officially Tuesday night when Mill, stars Bobby and Sandra Gimby will ribbon to get the expanded five - day exhibition under way.



Tonight a gala pre - Fair parade livens up the downtown section of the city after the supper hour. At 7.30 p.m., the procession comprising some 10 modern horses, colorful floats, two walking bands, and an impressive number of steam engines move from the assembly point at the Moira Street Methodist, down Front Street across the lower bridge and up the hill on Bridge Street to the fairgrounds. Fair president Dr. Harry Burns and other officials will be riding in lead vehicles.

It's tradition the Belleville Fair is a place where good fellows get together and renew old friendships.

When Bobby Hull and his brother Dennis open the Fair they'll make the shadow of the Black Hawks golden jet will be in the crowd in the grandstand watching the ceremonies.

Last Monday when the former Detroit Red Wings' Brian Watson was with his canoe racing father after the Peterborough Exhibition attendance test, he said he expected to be at the Fair to see Bobby before the hockey season begins. "I have nothing but admiration for Bobby," Brian quipped, "He's a great guy and I want to wish him the best of luck before he starts playing next year."

Actually, Bobby and Brian, off the ice and on, are good friends and have much to talk about whenever they meet in the district in the summer months.

Hurry Up Mister...

The Belleville fair gets underway tomorrow . . . but the real action on the site is taking place today. This youngster can't wait to get her first ride on the big wheel.

Mr. William James, supervisor of provincial government sponsored senior citizens and low rental housing for the Belleville area, reported today that all 32 single units and all but two of the 15 married quarters apartments have been taken.

There is also a long waiting list for the new "full - up" single apartments.

Mr. James said applicants for tenancy in the senior citizens apartments must be 60 years of age and be residents of Belleville.

In addition to the senior citizens complex on Turnbull Street, there are also approximately 40 single family low rental houses at different locations about the city.

Currently there is survey underway by the Ontario Housing Corporation in conjunction with city officials into the public need for additional senior citizens and low rental housing.

The fact that there is a long waiting list for senior citizens housing seems to indicate there is a need for this type of accommodation.

Union Vote Ratifies Pact At International Hardware

Lengthy labor negotiations at International Hardware Ltd., ended Saturday when members of the International Molders and Allied Workers Union voted by a slim majority to accept the company's latest contract offer.

The new working agreement includes increased welfare and hospital benefits and pay increases over a two-year period effective from last June.

The total package in fringe and pay benefits amounts to 39.4 cents, company general manager D. C. Boyd estimated today.

The largest package ever negotiated at the plant, it follows five months of talks between labor and management, twice aided by conciliation.

Saturday's vote by the plant local was 92-85 for the contract.

It's Party Time . . .

. . . and Ontario Liberal leader Robert Nixon views a liberal spread brought along to the picnic celebrations at Presqu'ile Provincial Park yesterday. Party members from three Quinte-district constituencies attended event, opening tour of area by Liberal chief.

Robert Nixon, Leader, Meets With Members of Three Ridings

Ontario Liberal Leader Robert Nixon today is on the second of a two-day swing through the Quinte district — a foray of personal and public meetings adding pre-election pepper to the party's activities.

Intent of the tour apparently, is to put local party organizations on a prepared alert for an election, although the Liberal chief this time is not committing himself to prophesying the date — other than indicating it may be in late Fall.

"I'm not making any predictions," he told a party picnic at Presqu'ile provincial park yesterday.

"We've been bitten once that way," he added — an apparent reference to alarms earlier this year that Premier Robarts would call the election in May.

However, he urged Liberals to be ready when the government goes to the country — possibly Oct. 25.

"A good many people think that's when the autumn election will be held," he said.

Yesterday's picnic launched the tour which today takes Mr. Nixon through Northumberland and Prince Edward Counties, Belleville and Trenton.

He will visit Cobourg, speak to the Campbellford Rotary Club, and finally, to a party banquet in Picton.

More than 200 Liberals from the three Quinte-area ridings gathered at Presqu'ile to give the Liberal leader a bustling sendoff on his tour.

With him were candidates for all three constituencies — Donald Joss, (Quinte), Fred Evans (Prince Edward-Lennox) and Robin Russell, (Northumberland).

Informality was the key to the afternoon's events, with Mr. Nixon spending most of his time moving among the crowd, chatting with senior citizens eating from picnic baskets, watching games being run for the youngsters.

He also joined in on bus rides around the park — on the red British double-decker owned by Mr. Joss' Black Diamond Chess Company."

Speeches were kept to the minimum, with Mr. Nixon following the three candidates for a brief address over the public address system used for the sports events.

Ontario, he warned, was failing to fully meet the challenge of one of its most under-developed resources — youth.

The Roberts government had failed to provide an integrated program of education, job-training, and mental health facilities, to equip youth in modern society.

He said that "expensive facilities" closed down during summer months should be put to educational use.

"This is an area where a better use of our tax dollar would be most important," said Mr. Nixon. "Equality of education is not being found in Ontario despite high taxation."

In the text of speech to Campbellford Rotarians, released in advance today, Mr. Nixon attacked provincial highway safety measures.

He favored compulsory breath tests for drivers suspected of drinking with motorists waiving objections in a statement when they apply for a driving licence.

He called for an end to "stopgo, ineffective safety programs" to ease the threat from "impaired, infirm or reckless" motorists.

Foster Ward Residents To Form Association

Residents and property owners in the Foster Ward area of the city will form a ratepayers' association with the view of keeping themselves fully abreast of possible developments under urban renewal which is proposed for their district.

The organizational meeting will be held Tuesday evening at the Wharf Street Debating Club. It is expected officers for the association will be named at the meeting.

Alderman Arthur Keegan, himself a property owner in Foster Ward, said the people in the area are worried about what might happen under urban renewal.

"They are worried — and rightly so — and want to keep abreast of what might happen," he said.

Alderman Keegan says that Foster Ward residents are still in the dark as to what could be involved under urban development. He says circulars were supposed to be sent out from city hall asking their views about the proposed re-development but so far these have not been received.

Between 30 and 40 area residents have shown interest in forming an association to protect their interests.

Shannonville Youngster Lost at Expo

It is natural that as an exposition such as Expo 67 children are going to be lost. During the United Community Services' sponsored Expo-for-a-day trip Gregory Lott, 12, of Shannonville disappeared from his appointed companions in the Expo grounds.

Gregory was touring the grounds with a group of six including two brothers and one sister under the charge of Mrs. Olive Hanson of Belleville.

The youngster was separated from the group at 4.30 p.m. Saturday. Immediately officials of the tour notified the Montreal Traveller's Aid Society and the police.

Finally Gregory turned himself in at Expo but the rest of the Belleville group had left for home. He was sent home yesterday aboard a train where he arrived at 7.15. During the trip he was given a free meal.

Township Offer Is Beginning To Pay Off

The offer by Thurlow township of $10 reward for information leading to the conviction of persons seen littering or dumping garbage along township roads is beginning to pay off.

Recently the first conviction under the municipality's antilitter campaign was gained as a $10 fine was levied. Township boy has picked up his $10 reward cheque.

Township clerk Earl Dafoe said the teen-age boy saw the littering offence and turned in the information which led to the offender's conviction.

Mr. Dafoe said that the $10 reward offer by the municipality still stands.

Who's the Winner Here?

An exhausted but victorious Ines Sulk collapses after Sunday's three-mile Murray Canal swim marathon. The 20-year-old covered the distance in one hour, 28 minutes, ahead of two sisters. The Sulk family from Batawa has monopolized the event in both years it has been held.

Trio of Swimming Sisters Take Top Honors in Marathon Swim

TRENTON — A trio of swimming sisters has again outclassed competition in the annual Murray Canal marathon, but a nine-year-old Belleville youngster stole the proverbial show.

Bobby Diamond reached the finish line at the Carrying Place Road swing bridge about three hours after he started. His time was double that of the winner, 20-year-old Ines Sulk of Batawa, and he was the last of 13 finishers in the event.

But several hundred cheered the nine-year-old home after the exhausting three-mile effort.

Bobby wasn't eligible for any prize, but a Trenton jeweler stepped forward and announced that the beaming youngster could pick up a new wristwatch at his store today.

The second annual marathon was a family affair all the way. Three daughters of former German Olympic swimmer, George Sulk of Batawa, finished in order of their ages, with 20-year-old Ines coming from behind to beat 18-year-old Lala by less than a stroke. Both girls were timed in one hour and 28 minutes.

Last year's race saw Lala outdistanced by 16-year-old sister Regina, who withdrew from yesterday's event because of illness.

Peggy Sulk, 13, was the third finisher and the first junior girl in. She and her sisters put in "at least two hours" daily practice during the summer months to maintain peak form.

Safety was foremost in the competition supervised by Trenton's Chamber of Commerce. Several swimers and pick-up boats flanked the swimmers, each of whom had to have a "walker" follow him along the shoreline.

Eight swimmers in the starting field of 21 dropped out during the course of the race. All entries were between the ages of nine and 20.

Other finishers were Howard Archibald, 13, Trenton, (first junior boy); Bill Fell, 16, Trenton (first senior boy); David Pape, 17, of Belleville; Michael Allore, 15, Belleville; Debbie Karashan, 13, Trenton; Terry O'Neill, 13, Trenton; Julie Lemantis, 13, Trenton; Carl Miller, 14, Trenton; Leslie Horne, 14, Nova Scotia; and Jack Hamilton, 13, Toronto.

No Harmful Snakes in District

A. H. McFARLANE,
Director of Student Services:

"Many men and women who do not have a secondary school graduation certificate are capable of completing successfully a wide range of college-level courses. Thousands, in fact, have done so. Placed in appropriate courses, these "mature matriculants" frequently demonstrate a will-to-learn which far surpasses that of their students with the orthodox credentials".

"To men and women age 19 or older who have completed grade 13 and who have been out of school for one or more years, Loyalist College offers the opportunity to qualify for admission to any course for which a secondary school graduation certificate is the usual prerequisite."

Many visitors to the Tweed District ask about the snakes in this area, believing that we might have rattle snakes. There are no venomous species in the Tweed District. The Massasauga and the Timber are the only rattlesnakes found anywhere in Ontario, and these are in the Southwestern parts of the province and in the Georgian Bay area.

All of our snakes in the Tweed District are quite harmless, most of them feeding on insects, worms, frogs and fish. So, what a few species that eat mice and other small mammals and warm blooded animals.

The Hognose snake is a great pretender, it will "bluff" in an effort to scare off a would be attacker and should this fail, it will roll over and play dead. It feeds mainly on toads.

The Milk snake and the Rat snake are our only species that feed chiefly on warm blooded animals. They are important "Mousers" and may be found in and around old buildings and barns.

Earthworms and soft insects are the staple food sources for the Red-bellied snake, Brown snake, Smooth Green snake and Ringneck snake.

Frogs, fish and salamanders make up the usual diet for the water snakes, Ribbon snake and the Garter snake.

And that concludes our list of snakes found in this area. Some species are shy and therefore seldom are seen. Others, like the Water snake, like to bask in the sun and if cornered, will strike in self defence. But like the rest of our snakes, their teeth are very fine and small and are slanted backwards. Their purpose is more for holding prey in their efforts to swallow. The forked tongue of a snake is their means of "smelling" the air. It can't sting, nor is it trying to hypnotize a victim or scare off an enemy.

Some snakes may try to pull a bluff, but all are quite harmless.

Black Power Politics

Black Power advocate H. Rap Brown, like his contemporary Stokely Carmichael, is a rabble-rouser and a demagogue. And by his performance in Jacksonville, Florida, the other day he presents another side to his character that is a good deal less than admirable.

Brown was addressing a rally of 800 Negroes when State Governor Claude Kirk came through the crowd to formally welcome him. But Brown would have none of it.

"I don't want to hear you. They want to hear me," said the Negro when the governor picked up a microphone and attempted to address the gathering. When Kirk made to shake his hand, saying, "Welcome to Florida," Brown brushed it away. Later Mr. Brown said: "This is the way the honkies (white people) do. They come in and want to take over your meeting."

In politics of course (as in war, to quote Winston Churchill) "you don't have to be nice — you only have to be right." Right that is, according to your own lights.

So Brown was simply speaking his mind (just as President de Gaulle spoke his while in Montreal recently). That the man is a nasty character is something else again. Most of the men who make any sort of an impact in this world do so by projecting an image made up in large part of sheer gall. That is the art of politics. To make an opponent or the public sit up you have to make yourself thoroughly unpleasant, or unpopular, or both.

Governor Kirk, knowing this, probably took Brown's deliberate snub in his stride. As the chief citizen of his State he has an image to project. To have gone off in a huff folowing the confrontation would have been an admission of weakness. Instead he went into the standoff with his fists between listening to Brown and talking with Negroes and reporters.

However, both Brown and Carmichael are giving Washington a big headache by stomping the country and making inflammatory statements which nevertheless seem to fall short of outright sedition. The United States, the hub of the modern democratic world and the champion of free speech, cannot clamp them in irons as it were. Just the same there could come a step the mark some day and the U.S. administration meanwhile is hanging on every word — to such statements for instance as Brown's recent one before a Negro rally, "the streets are yours. Take them wherever you're ready to."

Here there is no open incitement to violence, but the message is clear enough, and Brown will have to be very careful his tongue does not betray him on some future occasion.

Help for Needy

In an age of constantly rising costs government aid to those not in full employment falls short of what is necessary.

And Manitoba Premier Duff Roblin, latest entrant in the Conservative national leadership race, has put his finger on this problem with unusual frankness.

Speaking to a Calgary audience he said universal, compulsory, social assistance programs "don't zero in on our problem."

Then he gave an illustration as it applies to his own family circumstances. His wife, he said, receives the monthly baby bonus but does not need it. Instead it should be given to those who need it most, as they now receive.

"If we want to conquer poverty we should do it through the policy of need. We must respond to the human element."

These are admirable sentiments — but of course the practical aspects of such a course of action are something else again. Essentially, it is the old thesis of robbing the rich to help the poor. But how is it accomplished? By means tests, or what?

Toronto Robberies

Toronto, hitherto a relatively peaceful city, is fighting a rash of bank robberies.

Last week a robber got away with $500 from a trust company on Bloor Street. It was the 35th holdup of the year, which a Toronto newspaper described as "far ahead of any previous year in the Metro area."

Bank tellers are under orders from management not to take risks when confronted by robbers, even though the latter may be bluffing that they are armed. However, police discretion is the better part of valor where the staff is concerned, banks are making holdups a less worthwhile proposition by reducing the amount of money kept at each teller's cage.

Police are also trying to cope with the situation, but with 700 banks in Metro it is difficult to watch them all. Perhaps there is scope here for a trick artist — say construction of trap doors in each cage which would give a robber a quick descent at the touch of a button by the teller.

U.S. Plans

Panama to Exercise More Control in Canal Zone

WASHINGTON (CP) — The U.S. is preparing to loosen its hold on the Panama Canal in deference to Latin - American nationalism.

But there is American opposition, although probably not enough to defeat approval for a new canal treaty with the Republic of Panama.

The critics sometimes sound like President Nasser of Egypt, who continues to reject the idea that Israel can use the Suez International waterway — especially now that Israeli troops hold one bank of the canal.

The new deal for Panama has been worked out in the last three years after a serious rioting, fanned generally by nationalistic sentiment and particularly by unfounded rumors started by the U.S. on the canal in Panamanian territory.

American officials are working steadily on the 100-member Senate, which must approve a by a 3-to-1 vote before it is official.

"What the U.S. is proposing here, is a shameful display of self-abnegation, in the needless surrender of valuable property rights," says conservative-minded columnist James J. Kilpatrick.

"And why in this? Why, sir, it is to curry the favor of those who hold property rights in your regard; it is to appease anticolonial sentiment. To accommodate a world of the blind, we propose to grow blind, eh, eye."

The U.S. gained sovereign rights over the Panama Canal back in 1903 when it already was regarded as the "colossus of the north."

Those rights were to be held in perpetuity.

"That Panama zone was just like a foreign embassy in Washington," argues Mrs. Leonore Sullivan, Missouri Democrat in the House of Representatives who is sponsoring one of several bills to sidetrack the revised treaty.

But only the Senate—not the House — has jurisdiction in treaties.

Under the new one, a new canal zone is established with recognized ultimate jurisdiction by Panama. Then comes a new joint administration in which the U.S. will have a majority edge of 5 to 4.

Panama has been getting an annual payment of about $2,000,000 on the canal traffic. Henceforth, it would get as much per ton of traffic or an estimated $20,000,000 annually—A sharp increase.

Another change would let Panamanian law prevail in the Canal Zone.

If a second canal is built—and President Johnson has just appointed a commission that has to be done sooner than expected —Panama also would retain full sovereign rights over it.

Urban Expert Raps Modern Development

Chicago News

Lewis Mumford, one of the world's experts on life in great urban centres, was asked the other day what he would do about New York's problem. All he could advise was: "Stop all your tracks! Put a moratorium on new buildings! Stop inviting more motor traffic into the city!" If this advice is desperate so is the problem. And other great American cities — like Chicago — show obvious symptoms of what Mumford sees in full burgeon when he confronts New York expressways that are the "last wasteful war" of getting around, long journeys to work that are "as miserable and depressing as possible." Faceless buildings that require "a superior intelligence to tell them apart," and the surrounding countryside "being massacred for the benefit of real estate developers."

$800 Million Hydro Plan In Labrador

Montreal Gazette

The Churchill Falls project was started with the boom of one-and-a-half tons of TNT last week. It was a bang that will be heard across the Continent.

The $800 million project, which has been talked about for many years, is now underway. It could be the beginning of massive development of Labrador and other parts of Quebec and the Canadian north.

The future of this country lies north. There is challenge enough in the Canadian north to occupy several generations of Canadians. The Churchill Falls project is part of the challenge.

It was appropriate that Sir Winston Churchill's grandson was present at the launching this week, because the massive falls were named after the great British statesman.

The man who presided over the ceremonies of course, was the President Premier of Newfoundland the project was started. The example already set by the two governments, it is hoped will be contagious.

The imaginative development then, is off to a booming start. Churchill Falls could be only a beginning of the development of the area, but a good beginning.

Bilingualism Out West

Calgary Albertan

What a fuss in direction dies parces nationaut has stirred up by putting bilingual shoulder flashes on uniformed employees in the Western parks and announcing the installation of bilingual directional signs! And how it has scraped back our thin Western skin to disclose the reverse separatism beneath it!

We think it will do park residents and Western Canadians generally no harm to see a few bilingual signs, and may well do them some good. The "French fact", or whatever one wishes to call it, is one of the things that makes Canada distinctive.

This pastoral land, peopled by gentle, peace-loving farmers, is feeling the probings of the conventional power of the Vietnam war. A member of the United Nations, the South East Treaty Organization and the Colombo Plan, Thailand has denied diplomatic recognition to mainland China and maintained diplomatic relations with the Nationalist Chinese in Taiwan.

Thailand's trade was tied to Japan during World War II, the United States did not recognize the 1942 Thai declaration of war but regarded the country as being occupied by an enemy of the U.S.

United States assistance to Thailand began in 1946; hundreds of millions of dollars have been poured into the economy. From 1946 to the end of September 1966 $457 million in economic aid and classified secret amounts of military aid have been contributed by the U.S.

An open secret for many months, three huge U.S. Air Force bases in Thailand launch more than 1000 sorties a week against North Vietnam targets and Viet Cong positions in South Viet. nam. March 1967 Thai Premier Kittichorn announced officially the U.S. would use Thai bases for strikes against Vietnam by B52 bombers. These huge planes were designed to carry nuclear weapons, but have been modified for conventional bomb loads.

The U.S. is committing "advisers" to the Thai forces to help control infiltration of anti-government subversives from the north and dissident groups within the country. The Viet Cong has threatened to strike counter-blows against Thailand for its support of the U.S. in Vietnam.

Women and Their Status

St. Catharines Standard

A British career woman recently suggested that the titles "Miss" and "Mrs." should be abolished. All they really reflect she said, is a girl's success in landing a husband.

Meanwhile, West Germany has taken a positive step that may go a long way to recognize a long-standing problem of etiquette: the at times ticklish question of whether to address an unmarried women entering, let's say, early middle age with the title "Miss" or "Mrs."

The West German ministry of the interior has given the lead by setting the dividing line at 30. All unmarried women over 30 working in government offices are now required to be addressed as "Mrs."

If the results of a recent public opinion poll are anything to go by, women themselves will probably settle the problem before long even without government help. The poll indicated that 70 per cent of West women over 30 and 64 per cent of all unmarried women (including some under 30) would like to be addressed as "Mrs." rather than "Miss". Of the population as a whole, male and female, 58 per cent would like all unmarried women over 30 to be called "Mrs." 19 per cent would like to see unmarried women regardless of age, retain the title "Miss", and 23 per cent apparently couldn't care less.

Language Reciprocity

Financial Post

From Milan comes a despatch critical of how English words such as playboy, sexy and bar-man have sullied the purity of Italian. They had better stop to think how many Italian words and expressions have become part of the English language.

To take only a few from the realm of music, consider brasso soprano, piano and mandolino. 'Brave', in applause, is straight Italian, as also is its derivative 'bravura'. A 'duet' is from the 'dolce far niente', and bonvoyage many Canadians talk about 'dolce vita'.

Modern Italian words and expressions have entered English from no less than ancient con. In Britain, espresso is synonymous with a kind of strong coffee. Here in Canada, when the C.N.R. puts on a new fast train between Toronto and Montreal-what does it call it? The Rapido —a straight steal from the track trains of modern Italy.

In language, as in trade, reciprocity enriches.

At Stampede
The Hippie Phenomenon

Letter to
Kingston Whig-Standard

Calgary had a close-up look at the new social phenomenon known as the "hippies" when some of the young, unwashed, long-haired proponents of the make-love-not-war philosophy were attracted here by the Stampede.

It seemed to be a case of nonstop fun and frolic from the start. The hippies thought the natives were downright unfriendly. One even complained of being cuffed by an elderly woman with an umbrella. Whether it was the ragged appearance of the visitors or their well-known aversion to work, the hippies didn't feel welcome.

Social scientists may some day be able to come up with an explanation for the kind of reception the hippies received here. But the sociologists will have to decide first just what exactly the hippies are. Do they represent a new subculture, a new way of life? There doesn't seem to be complete agreement on this even among hippies themselves at the present time.

They might get some help in this respect from Calgary magistrate R. Y. Read, who observed when one of the visitors appeared in his court last week that there isn't much difference between them and the ordinary rebel of yesterday.

In other words, the more things change, the more they remain the same.

Ulster's Poplin Tie Industry

BBC London Letter

One of Northern Ireland's oldest industries has moved on to a new phase of growth, thanks to the use of modern management techniques. The linen industry, the weaving of silk poplin, mainly for the making of Irish poplin neckties which sell all round the world.

In the BBC World Service program, Ulster Today, Dennis McGrath talked about Richard Atkinson and Sons Ltd., the firm which makes these famous ties.

The company found it was losing orders because of increased cost and the difficulty of training and keeping workers, he said.

What a lot of these ties and scarves called in, and they found that wages were still based on rates fixed for hand processes 200 years ago with separate rates of payment for every single operation. After discussion with operatives, the consultants introduced an incentive scheme and a new training system. As a result production went up nearly five times, and orders were met on time."

Atkinson's export 55 per cent of their sales and account for 40 per cent of the total export of British-made necktiez.

"Le Bang" Gets on the Nerves

New York Times

The latest discoveries about sonic boom — "le bang" as the French call it — are expensively provide scant comfort for enthusiasts of supersonic commercial air transport. In the new United States Government study, for example, the data indicate that this type of noise pollution is extremely hard for people to get used to.

Even after hearing many sonic booms, people tend to resent them. And in France, the shock wave of a supersonic flight has been indicated as the factor behind the collapse of an old French farmhouse in which three people were killed and a fourth seriously injured.

The Adventurous British

Ottawa Journal

Perhaps it's because Britain's winters are less severe than ours that Englishmen (four of them) can't resist trips to the Arctic at this time of year. Children and children notwithstanding, most inhabitants of the Ottawa valley have got a healthy tolerance between the summer warmth and the winter freeze and like to get out as long as possible.

Still it's with a silent Canadian admiration that the four heads of the latest and perhaps last Arctic trek being planned by Englishmen — Mount Everest, Point Barrow, on the North Alaska coast, to the Norwegian island of Spitsbergen across the polar icecap.

The trip will start this February and will end after 16 months of treacherous travel over ice floes which could very well break up beneath the travellers and sink into the sea. One part of the plan is to make camp for several months on the polar icefield and allow the camp (and its inhabitants) to be carried by drift of the Arctic drift past the North Pole.

Wally Herbert, the 33-year-old leader of the expedition, is reported in the Sunday Times as saying this is "the most challenging journey outside outer planet" and the Sunday Times goes on to comment that Herbert's patience is put in exploration for the sake of Royalty and Country..."

It would be better to be motivated by an ancient sense of honor. For it would be hard to imagine a more grim prospect than to spend two winters and a summer with three companions and 40 dogs in the lonely Arctic.

We will watch this trip, as we did Sir Francis Chichester's, with fascination.

France Tops List

Ottawa Can Shed Little Light on U.S. Foreign Aid Figures

WASHINGTON (CP) — Canada is listed in United States foreign-aid records as having received from $36,300,000 to $40,000,000 worth since July 1, 1946.

But trying to find out just what that covers is a frustrating experience. Canadian officials here say they cannot readily shed any light on the U.S. calculation.

The $40,000,000 figure, put in the official Congressional Record last year, is revived again in a Republican white paper on foreign aid published Sunday.

The data was prepared for Senate Republican Leader Everett Dirksen.

This says that the U.S. from mid-1946 to mid-1966, provided more than $117,000,000,000 in assistance to more than 100 countries.

It attributes the figures to the general accounting office of the U.S. government.

These figures show France leading the list at $9,467,200,000, followed by Britain at $9,389,800,000, South Korea is third at $6,215,200,000, followed by Italy and West Germany.

The report says South Vietnam, where it is estimated the war will cost the U.S. anywhere from $28,000,000,000 to $32,000,000,000 in this fiscal year, is a "special case." It shows only $3,383,700,000 in aid.

It lists part of Canada's $40,000,000 allocation as $3,700,000 in farm-commodity exports under barter contracts.

However, agriculture department spokesmen say these arrangements are straight business deals which need only the approval of the department.

Other figures on Canada's foreign aid records appear both in the ledgers of the Republican paper and the state department.

There are loans of $6,000,000 for "defence mobilization development" and of $11,500,000 for "strategic materials development."

Those loans were repaid in full, plus $1,360,000 in interest.

There is an entry for an Import-Export Bank loan of $5,700,000 repaid in full, plus $700,000 in interest.

There also is a listing of $13,100,000 for "military assistance" which—shorn of the farm barter item—totals up to $36,300,000.

An official of the Agency for International Development said there is nothing on the military books for Canada since 1951.

He surmised the earlier entries resulted from the Marshal plan, which resurrected Europe, or transactions under the Mutual Security Act in 1953-56.

CHILDREN at Northport on Saturday took advantage of the presence of the HMCS Carleton band to join in a chorus of Ca-Na-Da. The sing song was part of the Sophiasburg centennial celebrations.

Centennial Park at Northport Crowded for Official Opening

PICTON (Staff) — The usually quiet village of Northport was the scene Saturday afternoon, of much colorful activity. The occasion was the official opening of Sophiasburg's Centennial Park located in that village.

The park was officially declared open when Township Reeve Donald Ketchabaw along with Miss Dominion of Canada 1967 Donna Barker of Toronto cut the ribbon.

A crowd of over 900 attended the afternoon events which were led off by a chicken barbeque at 12.30.

The program included fine band music by the Navy Band of the HMCS Carleton — an Army Jeep Team competition and a drill by an Army drill team in their scarlet tunics.

A one-mile marathon swim from Big Island to the new Park at Northport was the feature of the day. Winners of the event were 1st Malvin Williams of Wellington who swam the mile in 19 minutes 20 seconds; 2 was Mary Thiesen of North Marysburgh, her time was 21.10. Third was Pamela Thompson representing Sophiasburgh Township with a time of 22.40. Fourth place was won by Harold Storms representing South Marysburgh. He swam the mile course in 27.05 min. Only four contestants entered the swim and all swam the full distance.

Hundreds of spectators were on the park beach to watch the arrival of the swimmers. Special guests for the opening ceremonies included Warden of Prince Edward County, Robert Boyce; Norris Whitney M.L.A.; Bobby Hull, NHL hockey star; Mayor H. J. McFarland of Picton; Princess Clearwater representing the Lake Ontario Regional Development Council; Miss Canada 1967, Donna Barker; Prince Edward County Dairy Princess Barbara Donker; the Prince Edward County Centennial Queen Mary Harrison and members of the Sophiasburg Township Council.

Warden Boyce officially welcomed everyone to the new park and boasted of the County's 500 miles of shoreline explaining to the visitors that there were 150 miles of Lake Ontario shoreline. Mayor McFarland extended greetings from the Town of Picton and praised the county's new celebrity Bobby Hull.

Bobby Hull reminisced upon his childhood and his parents home located across the Bay of Quinte from the park. Introducing the Dairy Princess, Barbara Donker, he said, "I hope you win the Ontario Dairy Princess title at the Toronto Exhibition, but don't worry, if you should lose out we'll make you a Beef Princess."

Wildcat Ferry Strike Strands 3,000; Three Days Needed to Clear Backlog

NORTH SYDNEY, N.S. (CP) — Ferry service between Newfoundland and Nova Scotia was back in operation early today following a weekend strike, but it may take up to three days to clear a backlog of passengers waiting to cross the Cabot Strait.

The CNR car ferries Leif Ericson and William Carson left their respective terminals here and at Port aux Basques, Nfld., just before dawn today.

The two ferries ordinarily make one six - hour crossing each day, but they will each make two crossings a day until all strikebound passengers are transported.

A spokesman at the CNR wharf said early today that no freight will be carried by the ferries, the only link between Newfoundland the mainland for motorists, until all delayed passenger traffic is cleared.

The Leif Ericson sailed with 300 passengers and another 300 people were still waiting at the wharf here.

The situation at Port aux Basques was more urgent, with more than 1,000 people reported stranded. The first load from there of about 300 people sailed on the William Carson.

An estimated 2,000 people were stranded at ferry terminals here and at Port aux Basques, Nfld., by an illegal walkout Saturday morning.

Crew members of the ferries William Carson and Leif Ericson left their jobs in a salary dispute with the CNR. However, they returned to work last Sunday after William J. Smith of Ottawa, president of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers, advised the men to return to their jobs, pending release of a conciliation board report on the dispute.

Mayor Mark Staple of Port Aux Basques, said Sunday that at least 1,500 people were stranded in the terminal town by the walkout.

The mayor said the town council had to grant special permission to a grocery store, usually closed on Sunday, to open to provide food for waiting ferry passengers.

Other passengers, who had run short of money, were fed by the Royal Canadian Legion branch.

He said hotels and motels were filled.

The situation was much the same at this Nova Scotia terminal, where residents answered a radio request with food and coffee for stranded travellers.

Most public halls were turned into emergency centres and the Salvation Army served meals to several hundred passengers.

Some annoyed passengers here said they would send telegrams to Prime Minister Pearson and Transport Minister Pickersgill.

Mr. Pickersgill was at his summer home in central Newfoundland.

Premier Joseph Smallwood said in St. John's the Newfoundland government would not intervene in the matter since it was a federal affair.

The deckhands, engineers, pursers and stewards, are seeking wage increases of $100 a month over two years. The latest CNR offer is $75 over a three-year period.

Current wages are $250-$319 monthly for deck personnel, $285-$43 for engineers and $340-$440 for pursers.

Scientist Deplores Male Domination

MONTREAL (CP)—Dr. Ashley Montagu, a British-born American author and anthropologist, said Friday women are capable of the same achievements as men if they are given the same opportunities.

"Delivering a lecture at the Hospitality pavilion of Expo on the natural superiority of women, part of a series on Women and her World, Dr. Montagu said:

"If women were given the same opportunities and took the same advantages as men they would make greater achievements than men do."

He said the reason women generally have been considered in the past to be inferior to men is because men throughout the ages has imposed his will on women. This was done simply because men are more muscular and bigger than woman.

Men have been credited in the past with all the great achievements of mankind, Dr. Montagu added. But only in recent years had women been given the opportunity for achievement.

Man constitutionally is weaker than women, is more subject to disease and has greater difficulty recovering from illness, the speaker said, adding that women are more valuable because of the part they play in the preservation of the species.

"The male can become a father in a matter of a few seconds and drop dead and it wouldn't make any difference in the preservation of the species. The female must survive."

Dr. Montagu told the audience consisting almost entirely of women that the male died earlier than the female because he takes in more energy, uses more energy, burns more energy—and thus burns himself out.

Despite this, he said, women work longer hours and manage to survive an average of almost six years longer in the United States, the average life-span of a women being 73.4 years and that of a man 67.7 years.

The lecture series is sponsored by Office Overload.

Women More Willing To Hire Handicapped

VANCOUVER (CP)—A former mental patient stands a better chance of getting a job if he is interviewed by a female personnel officer.

That is one of the conclusions of a recently-started study by Dr. Edro Signori, a University of British Columbia psychologist, on prejudices that influence hiring practices.

Dr. Signori began the five-year study to determine how employers feel about being socially handicapped people and why they feel that way.

He has since found that while employers think physically handicapped people lack stamina and are less capable than normal people in dealing with the public, they also consider such people kinder and more alert on the job.

The study will attempt to distinguish between fact and prejudice in employers' attitudes toward a wide group of people including physically and mentally handicapped, school drop-outs, older workers, ethnic groups and women.

Teaching Aids Travel To Rural Centres

VANCOUVER (CP)—Perhaps the CBC should seek its next television producer in British Columbia's hinterland.

The playback looked very real," said James Wilcox, in telling in a recent interview of a Grade 7 boy who recorded a Second World War battle on television.

The boy, making a study of the war, brought his toy soldiers, tanks and guns to school to set up his miniature battle-field at Burns Lake in the northern interior.

Mr. Wilcox, 25-year-old student at Simon Fraser University, shows striking commitment to the most modern teaching aids, including video tape, audio tape recorders, instant cameras, overhead projectors, telephone hookups and copying machines.

He says his video tape recorder is the hit of his mobile show, financed by a $50,000 grant from the Donner Canadian Foundation. He works in co-operation with SFU's faculty of education.

For many teachers and trustees and for most students, it has been the first experience with some of the technological aids to teaching.

The compact $1,500 video tape machine, complete with a neat little nine-inch TV monitor set, makes the biggest impact, says Mr. Wilcox.

"The children can see themselves on the TV screen within a few minutes—and they're always fascinated."

Most children are also fascinated by the audio tape recorder in which they hear their own voices for the first time.

"In fact most children seem very interested in all our technical equipment," Mr. Wilcox says. "They all want to try it. It shows that this type of aid can appeal to children everywhere."

Mr. Wilcox believes educationists are lagging badly in entering the technological age. This type of equipment has been developed in most phases of today's life.

"That's the theory behind the Donner project—to find ways of getting modern aids and methods to schools in smaller communities as well as the big cities."

The growth of television, particularly, has revolutionized a child's learning outside school hours. So TV must be adapted to learning within the school, Mr. Wilcox says.

"And some authorities say the computer is going to turn out to be the biggest development in education since the book."

Computers Find Date Bait

DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: What is your opinion of computerized marriages bureaus? I think marriage is a fragile arrangement.

No one can guarantee that one plus one will make a tightly-knit-together twosome. You can only try very hard to solve the problems which arise and to try to adapt to the presence of the continuing problems which will not go away ever, — toothpaste and advice to the contrary.

A computer might, I think, clear away some of the fringe elements and suggest reasonably possible and presumably agreeable people. — Widow

Dear Widow: That's about it. Yet a computer on its own is suspect. A good marriage service will attempt to match up interests, education, temperament traits; and make it possible for that magic thing — falling in love — to happen, if it is going to.

Part of this is done with questionnaires, which you could equate with a computer. The rest is by personal, skilled interview.

All any good service claims to do is help the possible mates to meet each other.

Dear Doris: I am 13. At recess in the winter another grade eighter and I play on a big snow hill shoving and sliding with some boys and girls from grade six. Now that it's May we play catch or a sort of softball.

Do you think I am acting too childish or boyishness for my age? The other girls my age stand around and talk, which my friend and I find childrenishing. I will be going to high school next fall. I think I should get my fun over this year. — Just a Tomboy

Dear Tomboy: Let's hope you never "get your fun over."

People are different; you are the athletic type. That's what the Pan American Games were all about — not to mention our national programs for physical fitness. When you get a little older you'll settle down to some special game or sport to be really good at.

Meanwhile, don't give up on physical fun of one kind or another. Most of us could use more of it and keep more fit.

Dear Doris: We let our 17-year-old daughter go to the States to nurse a sick niece but she stayed two years, and then added four months as a pet married there. We wanted her to come home where we could give her a nice wedding, but she said not. Finally we consented.

She sent out wedding invitations in our name. Did she have a right to do so? — Miffed Mom

Dear Miffed: Technically, no. This would give the impression you financed the wedding and would be there to welcome the guests.

But what was her alternative? To send invitations out in her own name? Or that of whoever did pay for it? This would suggest she had no parents.

Do you want to be discreeted? Why not swallow your hurt and treat your girl like a married woman? She may have to grow up fast. Other brides are going to need loving grandparents.

Doris welcomes your comments and ideas. Write to her, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.

Campers' Lifesavers

By MARY MOORE

Driving with Marianne and Herbie and their family of four from Hamilton to Expo I was about one car in every four with a camper-trailer.

My gang had come from Esquimalt and parked their camper-trailer in our garage then I joined them. I learned several good on route feeding tips from Marianne. One that impressed me as most practical was Marianne's lunch box.

When they were on the Trans Canada Highway they camped at National parks every night. Each morning after breakfast Marianne would pack lunch in a stainless steel large shallow sandwich box with a flat close-fitting lid. When lunchtime neared out came the Box. It covered and protected Marianne's lap as she doled out sandwiches, carrot and celery sticks, peeled oranges, etc. A towel and plastic bag containing damp wash cloth and tiny cake of soap were included.

MONDAY

Dinner Menu

Baked Country Sausage; New Spiced Applesauce; Corn-on-the-Cob; Creamed New Broccoli; Blueberry Pie with Cheese; Iced Tea.

Another life-saver was her "magic" black bag. No one was allowed to peek. When the children became restive she would hunt in its many pockets for little surprise treats that carried them a few more miles.

CAMPERS' LIFESAVERS

Quick Meal for Tired Campers:

1) Canned Corned Beef and Cabbage, Mustard, Mashed potatoes, Canned Bartlett Pears, Ginger Cookies, Juice for children, Coffee.

Instructions: a) Boil water in two containers. In one heat the canned corned beef (in the tin (being sure it does not boil dry or it might explode).

b) Cut cabbage in wedges, and cook it until crisply tender. While your husband is opening and slicing the corned beef and serving it on top of the cabbage wedges, you are making instant mashed potatoes according to instructions on box.

2) Bonfire Supper:

Fried Luncheon Meat with Onions in Hamburg Buns, Cole Slaw, Roasted Apples, Fruit Cake, Cocoa for children, Coffee.

Instructions: a) Wrap well choice apples in double heavy duty foil and place in centre of fire to roast while you cook and eat main course.

b) Slice canned luncheon meat and fry it with onions. (Note: 1) Onions, apples, cabbage and well-wrapped buns will keep well in your food box.) Serve in hamburg buns.

c) make plenty of slaw for your crowd will be hungry for fresh food.

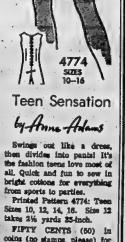
d) Make cocoa by mixing together 1 tbsp. cocoa, 2 tbsps. sugar, ¼ cup skim milk powder, dash of salt. When blended, add 3 cups boiling water over heat and stir until hot and smooth.

Note: 2) Fruit cake is an excellent item to have on hand. Make your own before leaving or buy and keep in foil-wrapped in tin box.

Note: 3) A gallon jug of pure water should be kept on hand for occasions when you cannot boil your lake or stream water.

Note: 4) When meals seem skimpy on protein give everybody a large piece of cheese with his main course.

Points for Parents



By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "Boys, stop that wrestling and behave yourselves."

Father: "Can't you calm them down. Their scuffling and bickering distracts me when I'm driving."

Young children confined to quarters will become restless and attention from each parent will make the trip more enjoyable for everyone.

Ann Landers

Fathers, Take Stock: Is Affection Lacking?

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Tears filled my eyes when I read the letter from the 18-year-old girl who complained because her father hugged and kissed her too much. She said it was embarrassing.

That girl doesn't know how lucky she is. I would have given anything if my father had kissed me even once a month. I really shouldn't blame him too much because he was almost 30 when he married Mom and he didn't know how to show affection to small children, although he had four of his own. Dad died three years ago. I was 13. I cherish the memory of the few hello and good-bye kisses he did give me.

I hope every father who reads this letter will ask himself when was the last time he kissed his children — yes, boys, too. They need affection as much as girls. There isn't enough love in the world today, and the place to learn how to give and receive love is at home. — RALEIGH MISS.

* * *

DEAR MISS: You are unusually wise and perceptive for an 18-year-old. And you have a forgiving heart, too, which is good. I hope the fathers in my reading audience will take inventory. Was Miss Raleigh speaking to you?

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband sold his business a few years ago and retired. We are not wealthy, but we have a nice income from past investments, plus Social Security.

I have always handled the money in the family. My husband doesn't know what it is to pay a bill. I also helped him in his business and paid the company bills as well.

Now that we are entering our golden years we should be relaxed, but we aren't. My husband is driving me crazy because I am not able to save any money. He keeps asking, "Where does it all go?"

I have tried to explain that the cost of living has gone up, taxes are up, club memberships are up, and we can't drive a car free.

We have not touched our principal. We live on interest and Social Security, but still he hollers, "Everyone should save something." Will you please give him an answer? — TIRED IN TOLEDO.

DEAR TIRED: He doesn't want an answer. He'd rather holler. It's probably his best form of recreation since he retired.

Start next month to keep an itemized account of every dime you spend. When he starts yelling, hand him the list. That should settle his hash.

* *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a 16-year-old boy who may be killed by his mother one of these days. I know she would never forgive herself, but I'd be dead just the same.

It is my job to empty the wastebaskets and the trash. My mother is always throwing aerosol cans into the wastebaskets. When I turn the trash the cans explode. Sometimes two or three cans explode in a row, and it sounds like a sonic boom.

I have read of people getting killed by these things and I don't want it to happen to me. I've told my mother three times to please keep the aerosol cans out of the wastebaskets, but she forgets. What can I do? — SHOCKED.

DEAR SHOCKED: You can stop depending on your mother and sort out the trash yourself, Bob.

Stapley on Cars

We Are Only as Safe on Roads As Are Cars of Other Drivers

It was recently reported that government officials are discussing the advisability of raising the speed limit on Highway 400 and the Macdonald - Cartier Freeway to 70 mph. I have spoken to safety officials who reason that these highways were built to cope with speeds greater than the existing 60 mph limit, and I agree with them. These highways, themselves, are fully capable of moving traffic a lot faster. Many motorists admit driving on them at 70 mph and sometimes more, regardless of the 60 mph limit, and it's common to see an endless chain of traffic belting along at 75 mph or even better, on these speedways. Full-sized, modern, well kept vehicles are built for higher speeds.

But the highways are not the only deciding factor when it comes to establishing safe speeds. Thousands of neglected derelicts roam our roads right now, with tires ready to blow, defective brakes and steering mechanism about to disintegrate.

As careful as we may be about maintaining our own cars, we are only as safe as the most neglected car with which we share the road, many of which would not be safe even at 20 mph. Strains and stresses multiply at high speeds, and the weak points in "tired" vehicles are more likely to fail. Frequently, highway-driven cars are loaded to capacity with passengers—sometimes a trailer is in tow. Overload leads to excessive heat in worn tires and wheel bearings. Add to this the increased centrifugal force at higher rpm, and a tire, seized wheel bearing or other vital component fails, resulting in upwards of two tons of uncontrollable metal. If we are to continue to allow neglected cars on our highways, they'd slower they move, the greater our chances of survival.

Another problem is fail-safing. Even a motorist who tries to remain a safe distance from the car ahead frequently finds a car cuts in in front of him, dangerously narrowing the gap.

Most of us have witnessed the dozens of rear end versus front grill type of accid e n t that occurs when an endless chain of traffic suddenly stops.

An official of the Ontario Safety League gave me the following figures compiled in a recent survey conducted in the U.S., pointing out the speed-fatality ratios. At 75 mph there is one fatality for every 8 accidents; at 65 mph, one in 39; at 55 mph, one in 50. Chances of death are over six times greater at 75 mph than at 55 mph.

In 1966, Britain enforced a 70 mph limit on roads that previously had not been subject to a speed limit, and recorded a 20 per cent decrease in the expected casualties. It is doubtful that the drivers increased their average speed to meet this new limit. On the contrary, it would seem that it slowed down those who enjoyed seeing the speedometer close to the top of the clock.

Seventy mph is almost 17 per cent higher than the present limit. Can drivers whose reflexes are already away below par improve their driving habits to cope with the 17 per cent increase in reaction that is obviously necessary if speed limits are raised by 17 per cent?

Seventy mph on these modern speedways under ideal weather conditions is fine for good drivers in sound vehicles. But until we are certain that all cars are properly maintained, and all drivers are alert and able to increase their reflex action to meet the demands of a 17 per cent speed increase, we should give a lot of thought before raising the existing speed limits.

Union Head Orders Sailors To Quit Ships Only in Ports

MONTREAL (CP) — Leonard McLaughlin, president of the Seafarers' International Union of Canada, issued a newsletter to the membership Sunday outlining strike policy which the SIU will follow in the event that the membership votes to walk out Thursday.

Mr. McLaughlin said Canadian ships will not be struck in American or foreign ports.

"We will bring them home and then we will strike them in the first Canadian terminal," he said.

This meant that if a Canadian vessel was in an American port at noon Aug. 17 or destined for an American port on or after the deadline, the voyage would continue and the ship loaded or unloaded.

Mr. McLaughlin said the Canada Shipping Act must be followed "to the letter." He pointed out to members that ships may be struck at a Canadian terminal provided the ships' cargo are placed in security to the satisfaction of the harbor master or captain.

On no account would vessels be struck in channels, canals or at anchorages where a full navigation watch would have to be maintained.

Where perishable cargo was involved, strike headquarters at Montreal would be consulted with respect to the removal of such cargo from any strikebound ship.

The SIU said Friday that half the returns in a strike vote among Great Lakes seamen indicate 87.1 per cent of the eligible SIU members support a walkout Thursday.

The union tabulated votes collected from SIU members in Halifax where the vote was 82 per cent in favor of a strike and 18 per cent against. Other ballots were spoiled.

In a similar vote in Quebec City, 99.4 per cent approved strike action. Earlier last week Montreal seamen members voted 87 per cent in favor.

About half of the 5,000 SIU members eligible to vote now have done so. They are voting in a dispute with 21 shipping companies which handle 23 per cent of the cargo transported on the Great Lakes and the St. Lawrence River.

The remaining voting will be held at Thorold, Ont., today, Toronto Tuesday and the Lakehead Wednesday. A two-thirds vote in favor of a strike would tie up the bulk of inland Canadian shipping within five days after the walkout.

Quakers Raise $90,000 For Vietnam Wounded

TORONTO (CP)— The Canadian Friends Service Committee has raised $90,000 in Canada and the United States since last September to buy medical supplies for both sides in the Vietnam war, the committee's general secretary said Sunday.

David Newlands said four complete shipments of medical supplies have been sent to Vietnam and part of a fifth shipment left Toronto July 28 for Saigon.

Each shipment is divided equally among the Red Cross organizations of North and South Vietnam and the National Liberation Front.

Another 6,400 pounds of medical supplies, valued at $30,000, sat in a church basement here awaiting shipment.

The supplies have been ready for two weeks but the committee is waiting for instructions from the Red Cross of the Soviet Union which pays the cost of shipping the supplies from Toronto to Hanoi.

Rev James Hord, secretary of the United Church's board of evangelism and social service, give the committee a cheque for $2,500 Friday. Dr. Hord received the money Aug. 6 after it was gathered at a Hiroshima anniversary peace rally on the Canada-U.S. border south of Vancouver.

Constitutional Issue Of Prime Importance

CHATHAM (CP) — Donald Fleming, one of nine contenders for the national leadership of the Progressive Conservative party, says Canada must reach a settlement of constitutional issues "above all and before everything else."

"We government in Canada can confidently look far ahead of its conscience embark on a new program if its role and powers are a matter of dispute or a source of grievance," the former finance minister said Saturday night.

He was speaking at a meeting of delegates to next month's Conservative leadership convention in Toronto.

It was "fundamental that we provide those guarantees and avenues of opportunity necessary for the maintenance of cultures of four founding races in a strong, united Canada."

Mr. Fleming said the individual's rights to educational opportunity, to work to housing and to a fully accepted place in our society "must be more guarded."

Especially, the citizen's rights to sympathetic hearing and adequate avenues of appeal must be safeguarded in his relations with the federal government."

Speaking on Canada's increasing urban population, Mr. Fleming said that "all levels of government control will bear responsibility for the location of future large concentrations of population and for provision of transportation facilities."

Text of his speech was given to reporters before delivery.

SPORTS SLICES

By Geo. H. Carver
Sports Editor

Where oh where and what has become of the hard-boiled, dyed-in-the-wool senior baseball fan of the good old yesteryear?

Unlike senior "A" hockey which bounced out of a six-year rest in a coffin of dormancy, the diamond sport failed to create any great degree of impact on, what was hoped, a large number of fans.

Mon Hunter, Coach Pierl Georgas and the gallant Lombardy gang that did its best to recreate the sport, deserved a better fate.

They, or the resurrection of the game, failed to build, as the saying goes, a better baseball mousetrap that would beat a path to the box-office turnstiles.

The Lombards were eliminated by Kingston in three games of the semi-final playoffs, in fairness to them they have played a lot better baseball than they showed in the third and deciding tilt. It was not one of their nights as three pitchers failed to quell the Kingston hate and afield they kicked the ball around for eight bobbies.

If it is any consolation to the Lombards, the fan situation, I am informed, is pretty general over the entire senior circuit.

None of the participating clubs will pay any financial dividends. In fact the lack of interest at times was apparent in the players themselves. On one or many occasions games were scheduled on certain dates because visiting clubs could not field teams. This was not the case with the Lombards.

An old saying goes and which probably originated when baseball was the first shot put title by downing Goliath, "give sports fans what they want and they'll beat a path to the box office."

Apparently senior baseball is not Eastern Ontario's sports cup of tea.

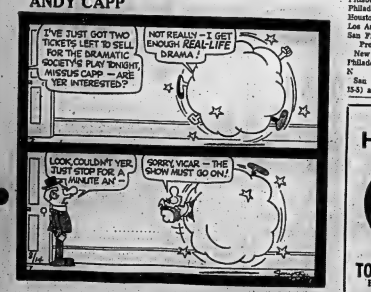
Times have greatly changed since the grand teams that represented this city in senior baseball brought home several championship sides of becoo.

"Them were the days" when convertibles, cabins, cottages, camps, field and stream and modern highways did not offer the recreation competition that exists today.

And with the big time hockey, football and baseball overlapping one another in the latter part of the season, the sit squatters in the living room or den holds more attraction than the lower amateur brackets of sport. And color, yet.

Be that as it may, The Lombards went down fighting after doing their best to give the city a good brand of baseball. They are to be commended for their efforts.

However, on the brighter side, Hunter, Georgas et al are staging an "Oldtimers-Lombards" game as a Centennial project at the Fair Grounds on August 21st starting 7.45 p.m.



They've dug a lot of the older chaps out of the foothills and some of the faces that brought titles to Belleville years ago will be on hand — even if they have to use wheelchairs.

Added to the list published sometime ago are former umpires Red Townsend, Don Thomas, Don Lee, Cy Young, Tim Williams and George Clapper. Young oldsters coming back are Bob Strahan, Stan Reid and Sid Forster.

Veterans of ancient days include Al Meagher, Vera Weir, Wicky Ross, Jack Kelleher, Chief Jack Williams and Freddie Geyer. Shades of the Grand Trunks!

Lombards players will be honored, Armand (The Great White Hunter) Duffy will present the Dow "Black Horse" Award to the most valuable player. The Ross Bunnett Memorial Trophy will go to the club's leading-hitter. The player voted the "most sportsmanlike" will receive the John S. Roberts Trophy along with $50 in cash which will be presented by Mr. Roberts, Mrs. Roberts or an accredited representative of the sponsoring Lombards Finance Company.

Jenkins Blanks Phils 1-0; Wins 16th

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ferguson Jenkins, who wanted to be a relief pitcher, registered his 16th major league victory as a starter Sunday as Chicago Cubs blanked Philadelphia Phillies 1-0 in the second game of a doubleheader.

The Chatham, Ont., native, who brought his record to 16-9, became the first National League pitcher to win 16.

In the first game, Ken Holtzman and Bill Stoneman combined on a six-hitter for a 6-3 victory and a sweep of the doubleheader. Despite the double victory, the Cubs remain in third place, nine games behind league-leading St. Louis Cardinals.

In other NL games Sunday, New York Mets swept a doubleheader from Pittsburgh Pirates, 3-0 and 11-9, Cincinnati Reds shut out Los Angeles Dodgers 3-0, St. Louis edged San Francisco Giants 2-1 and Atlanta Braves crushed Houston Astros 8-4.

Saturday, St. Louis beat San Francisco 3-2, Atlanta swept a doubleheader from Pittsburgh, Pirates, 3-0 and 12

Americans 'Steal' Rowing Title But New Zealanders Stole Show

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) - The Americans stole the championship, while the New Zealanders stole the show at the Grand Finals of the first North American rowing championships Sunday.

The U.S. crews won a gold medal in the pairs with oar event and silver medals in the fours with and without cox as well as the double sculls to pile up 33 points overall. The Dutch crew finished second with 25 points.

A hard - working crew of heavy sights from New Zealand, young together for the second time, swept to the most popular victory of the day.

"We told them to beat Germany between the 750 and 1,500 metres," said Russell Robertson, coach of the New Zealand crew.

"If they couldn't beat the Germans during that stretch, we told them to forget it."

The New Zealanders took the lead at the start and defeated Australia by four lengths in two seconds. Germany finished third.

The New Zealand crew had rowed together for the first time Thursday when they qualified for the Grand Finals in the opening-day heats.

Canada was kept off the list of medal winners during the seven-race event, although a crew of lightweight eights from the Leander Club in Hamilton had won an exhibition event during the Petit Finals Saturday.

The heavyweight eights crew from Harvard University came fourth. It was the first defeat in 20 starts for the Harvard crew, which hadn't lost a race since 1965.

Philip Johnson and Lawrence Hough of the Potomac Rowing Club of Washington also pulled an upset although they struck a buoy at the start and had stern trouble all the way.

"We just had to row a lot harder," said Johnson.

The Australian fours with cox had pulled the first upset of the day by winning the victory over the U.S. and Great Britain.

Niels Secher of Denmark won the single sculls. Jochen Mossner of Germany, who finished second, had defeated Secher in the 1966 world championships.

"He just seemed to give up after the 1,500-metre mark," Secher said. Alfred Heinzer of Switzerland finished third to pick up the bronze medal.

The Netherlands crew of Henk Scholbeek, Hadrianus Van Nes and cox R. T. Rijsdorp won the gold medal in the pairs with cox. Italy was second and Denmark third.

West Germany won the fours without cox. The U.S. was second and Denmark third. Maurin Studach and Melchior Burgin of Switzerland won the double sculls, while the U.S. finished second and Czechoslovakia third.

The host for the Canadian crews could manage was a fourth-place finish in the fours without cox. The Canadian crew of Rick Fearn, Andrew Netupsky, Philip Webber and Gordon Rose Clark, all of the University of British Columbia, covered the 1,000 metres in 6:37.36, more than 10 seconds behind the winners.

Leif Gothredsen and Douglas Clark, both of Toronto, had also finished fourth in the double sculls although only five crews were entered.

The Canadian crews finished last in the heavy eights, four with cox and pairs with cox.

Yugoslavia had won the heavy eights and the fours with cox in the Petit Finals Saturday, while Australia won the single sculls.

West Germany finished third with 24 points while Australia gained 18, Switzerland 17, New Zealand 12, Great Britain 9½, Netherlands 9, Canada 7½, Austria 7, Italy 5, Czechoslovakia 4, Sweden 3, France and Mexico 2.

Milestones On The Trail Of Sport

By BOB TRIMBEE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Yarns that grow with the ages and ironic background incidents are a big part of sports as winning and losing. Everyone has a favorite.

Who can forget the case involving Maurice Richard, who told coach Dick Irwin of Montreal Canadiens of the suspect too much from him one night because he had just helped move his family into a new home.

All the Rocket did in that game was collect five goals and three assists for a record eight points as Montreal beat Detroit Red Wings 9-1 Dec. 26, 1944. That was the year the Rocket scored 50 goals in 50 games.

In Canada's first century there have been many such yarns.

Remember Dune McNaughton of Vancouver? He won the 1932 Olympic gold medal in the high jump, the last for Canada in track and field.

Dune was picked on the team to compete at Los Angeles only because he was going to school in the area and would not be an expense to the money-short Canadian team. It turned out that he was Canada's only gold medallist in the Games.

And there's the fabled flop of Ten to Ace in the 1942 Canadian Derby, which then was held at Winnipeg. Ten to Ace, the 1941 Queen's Plate winner, was such a prohibitive favorite no public wagering was allowed.

A quarter of a mile from home the Eastern Canadian Horse led by 15 lengths. Ten only did he fail to win, but he crossed the finish line dead last.

Sometimes the story behind a victory is as interesting as the result. Take Gerry Ouellette's gold medal win in the small-bore rifle prone event in the 1954 Olympics at Melbourne, Australia.

The Windsor, Ont., marksman spent more than half his allotted time coaching Gil Rea, a team-mate from St. St. Catharines, Ont. Rea finished with a score of 598 out of 600, good enough for the bronze medal.

Ouellette took the same gun, and with Rea's help, fired a perfect 600 to win the gold.

The 1962 Fog Bowl in Toronto, when Winnipeg Blue bombers and Hamilton Tiger-Cats needed two days to decide the Grey Cup, recalled the 1954 game at Vancouver when Len Meltzer set a $50 fee for handling the 1910 Grey Cup game. He said $14 for his trade fare was enough because he was "well paid with the honor of handling such a memorable contest."

And fans only have to look back several weeks to recall a marathon run by a 13-year-old Toronto girl. Maureen Wilton, who was too young to be officially entered, was the sixth of 18 runners to complete the 26-mile, 385-yard run and her time was three hours, 15 minutes, 22.8 seconds.

That compared with the women's world record for the distance of 3:19:33.

With The Trotters

TORONTO (CP)— Greenwood Raceway's last harness meeting for the summer ended Saturday, with Blaze Pick scoring a half-length victory in the sixth race over H. A. Meadowland in the featured $5,000 Aucot Invitational.

Blaze Pick, Canada's rookie driver of the year in 1966, was driven by Keith Waples for the 5-year-old's eighth victory in 12 starts this season.

The horse, owned by Joan and Russell Miller of Dutton, Ont., finished in 2:10 2-5 and paid $4.00.

Second was H. A. Meadowland, driven by Ron Feagan, Arbon de Cee finished third, to put him one up on Waples.

The daily double of Muddy John and Jordan Almer paid $64.60. The exactor of Blaze Pick and H. A. Meadowland returned $17.30.

The harness races move to Mohawk Raceway Monday.

OBA Minors Had Tough Weekend

Belleville's EOBA minors were unsuccessful in all but one count on the weekend.

Oshawa outlasted Belleville bantams 8-3 in the first game of their EOBA final series, while Scott T.V. Lumber stopped an 11-3 decision to Peterborough in the third and deciding game on their semi - final series. Roly Rosary peewees split with Oshawa, meeting the visitors 14-4 on Saturday, then travelling to Oshawa on Sunday to absorb a 6-4 defeat.

Wayne Farrell and Terry Meagher handled Belleville's pitching chores against Oshawa in bantam. Dave Ross struck out 17 and gave up nine hits in hurling the win.

Meagher was best for Belleville at the plate with a triple and two singles. Glen Carleton had three base hits, while Moe Thompson, Rick Meagher and Paul Hall hit safely.

Jerry Cunningham, Tim Whelan and Pete Rizzi allowed only four Peterborough, in pitching for Scott T.V.

Tony Meagher, Rick Calkin, Pat McEnergy, Mike Holloway and Tim Whelan had the losers' hits.

John Mulvihill and Brian Cousins split Roly Rosary's pitching chore on Saturday, and gave up seven hits. Dan Lapointe clouted a home run, triple and single for Belleville. John Mulvihill had a homer, double and single, with Wayne Andrews, Allan Wood, Bill Coughlan, Brian Cousins and Stephen Burke also hitting.

Ron McTaggart of Roly Rosary and Dillen of Oshawa hooked up in a mound duel on Sunday. Dillen allowed five hits and fanned seven, while McTaggart gave up three hits and fanned nine.

Brian Cousins and Danny Lopenetto each singled twice for Belleville, and Wayne Andrews doubled.

REBOUND WIN

OTTAWA (CP) — Eastview Golden Eagles bounced back from a 13-point deficit Sunday to post a 26-13 win over Easton Chargers of Montreal in an Interprovincial Junior Football League contest.

Surprised To Win Shoot Medal

SOUTH MARCH, Ont. (CP)— Larry Pak of Oakville said he was "rather surprised" to win a Queen's medal in Dominion of Canada Rifle Association competition.

He was surprised because Nick Rizzuto of Montreal was named winner following the Friday match on Connaught Ranges range this community 20 miles west of Ottawa.

Bolkenny, a member of the Quebec Provincial Rifle Association, scored 131 out of a possible 150. He had the same score but officials named Bolkenny winner on the basis of better shot placement.

British Soccer

Spurs Tie United 3-3

MANCHESTER, England (CP)—Tottenham Hotspur goalkeeper Pat Jennings scored a fantastic goal against Manchester United Saturday in a chaotic soccer match here. The game ended in a 3-3 draw.

The ball was passed back to Jennings from a free kick and he booted it up the field. The wind caught it, and it bounced into the net over the head of United goalkeeper Alex Stepney, who had misjudged the bounce and came out too far.

Manchester United, the English Football League champions, forced the draw with Tottenham, the cup holders, after being two goals down in nine minutes.

Alan Gilbertson, Jennings and Frank Saul scored for Tottenham and Bobby Charlton, with two, and Francis Law for United. The clash was an English football association Shield charity game.

A goal by Jimmy Johnston one minute from the end gave European Cup-holders Celtic a 1-0 victory over Dundee United in the League Cup competition which opened the Scottish season.

United twice beat Celtic 3-2

Canadian Golf Girls Play Draw

SOUTHPORT, England (frwtrs)—The Canadian girls' golf team, on a three-week tour of England, ended to a draw in a foursomes match against four Lancashire County players on the Royal Birkdale championship course here Sunday.

Misses of Canadian winners were Jocelyn Bonnesse of Shawinigan Falls, Que., and Pamela Mitchell of Toronto, who beat Heather Stockton and Penny Burrows, 3 and 2.

Sandra Post of Oakville, Ont. and Jane Kirkpatrick of Toronto were beaten 4 and 3 by Sue Ashworth and Gill Cheetham.

A strong wind made the course a difficult test for the Canadians, who play another match at nearby Formby today.

S. Hastings Baseball Playoffs

Lasta stayed alive in a do-or-die situation and Read stumbled to the brink of disaster, in South Hastings playoff action on the weekend.

Yesterday afternoon Lasta pounced on Shannonville's Larry Lewis for four runs in the first inning en route a 5-3 win. The best - of-seven series now stands at 3-1 in favor of the losers.

Read Tuesday Canadiens pushed Read to the edge of elimination with a 9-3 decision, as Bernard Conolly and Garnet Adams combined for a three-hitter.

Lorne Cronkright hurled the win for Lasta and did not require help. He whiffed eight and walked one in route, while sprinkling nine hits over the circuit.

Bill Barberstock shutout the winners for the first three frames, and Lewis hurled the next three, allowing one run. Larry Lewis pitched the last inning and gave up five hits and four runs.

Ross Parks stroked four hits for Lasta, while Keith Ironsmith collected two of three-hitter over Read. They fanned seven and walked six.

Ted Ahrens and Cleve Milligan struck out eight and walked three for Read.

Hugh Peters slammed two doubles for Canadiens. Court Bentley and Howard Saxiby had a double each and Jack O'Neil, Bob Moon and Eric Emerson two hits each.

Eskimos Shed Tiger-Cats' Defence; Thomas Sparks 20-14 Win

HAMILTON (CP) — Late in the fourth quarter of Saturday's Canadian Football League game won 20-14 by Edmonton Eskimos symbolized the frustration suffered at night long by Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

After driving for their touchdown on their second play from scrimmage with quarterback Joe Zuger passing two yards to Hunter Steffler-Coffey, the Ticats offence bogged down the rest of the night.

In the meantime, Edmonton got two touchdowns from halfback Jim Thomas, a pair of field goals and two converts from end Peter Kempf, while Hamilton linebacker Jim Reynolds contributed Hamilton's second touchdown off an interception and Zuger kicked a 56-yard single.

In the crucial fourth-quarter drive, with the ball on the Edmonton 33-yard line, Zuger overthrew and Ted Watkins in the end zone. Zuger was held to a three-yard gain on the second down, then thrown for a three-yard loss on the third-down gamble.

It was the second time Zuger overthrew a receiver in the end zone, having missed end Hal Patterson early in the third quarter. Watkins, picked up from Ottawa Rough Riders earlier dropped three key passes from Zuger.

Thomas, generally conceded to be the key to the Edmonton offence, proved why for 22,435 Civic Stadium fans on his first touchdown-a- 46-yard romp.

His second was equally impressive as Edmonton quarterback Frank Cosentino, traded to Edmonton in the off-season following seven season as a Ticat, established a pattern with seven consecutive plays down the left side o fthe field before flipping the ball six-yards to Thomas at the goal line.

Hamilton made the most of its yardage in the air while Edmonton biggest gains were on the ground.

Of 217 yards gained on 18 first downs during the game, Edmonton got only 77 in the air as Cosentino completed seven of 15 attempts.

Zuger was good on 14 of 36 passes tried for 207 yards in the air compared with only 82 yards on the ground as the Ticats picked 13 first downs.

Cosentino was 29 yards on six carries and fullback Art Johnson 45 yards on 12 runs, but Thomas carried most of the Edmonton offence with 131 yards in 15 rushes. The most effective Hamilton runner was fullback Dick Cohee who gained 38 yards on 10 carries.

Thomas also topped Edmonton pass receivers, picking up 62 yards from three catches. But he was dwarfed by the 89 yards on seven catches gained by Coffey, picked up from Edmonton in the Cosentino trade, and 83 yards gained by Ticat fullback Willie Bethea on two catches.

Adding to the discomfort for Zuger, out to prove he can run the Ticats on the field without constant help, was the outstanding defensive play of Edmonton's Ed Rissmiller, Ron Forwick and tackles Earl Edwards and John LeGrow.

Canadian Open Tennis

Santana Upsets Emerson In Singles

MONTREAL (CP)—An upset victory over Roy Emerson of Australia Sunday gave Manuel Santana of Spain the men's singles title in straight sets at the Canadian Open tennis championships, 6-1, 10-8, 6-4.

Kathy Harter of Seal Beach, Calif., won the women's title 6-3, 3-6, 7-5 over Rita Bentley of Britain.

Top-seeded Emerson and Santana took the men's doubles trophy, defeating Torben Ulrich of Denmark and Jaikip Mukerjea of India in three sets, 6-4, 6-2, 6-3.

The women's doubles title was taken by top - seeded Vicki Berner of Vancouver and Faye Urban of Windsor, Ont., who defeated Maria Guzman of Ecuador and Patricia Montano of Mexico 6-3, 6-3.

Kay Kelcie of Australia and Kathy Harter upset the top seeded mixed doubles team of Keith Carpenter of Montreal and Mar Reisen, 6-4, 2-6, 6-4.

The Emerson-Santana match blended strong cautious tennis and tricky strategy.

Parrying hard drives, blooping to the corners and lobs just over the net, the two players matched each other almost game for game after the first set, which Santana won 6-1.

Throughout the match Emerson accomplished harder and trickier shots, but he also made more errors than the Spaniard. Both players jockeyed for net position, from which they clinched the most sensational points after forcing the opponent back with hard cross-court shots.

Emerson took the first game of the second set, but Santana took the next, and the two traded points back and forth when Santana pulled ahead to win 10-8.

It was Santana's first tournament in Canada. Emerson won the Canadian championships in 1964.

Provincial Title To Nova Scotia

SOUTH MARCH, Ont. (CP)—Nova Scotia won a clear-cut victory over Ontario and Prince Edward Island to win the Steele trophy in a provincial team match at the Dominion of Canada Rifle Association competition during the weekend.

The Nova Scotia team, led by CPO L. C. Brooks of Canadian Forces Base, Cornwallis, scored 1,111 points, three more than Ontario and five more than Prince Edward Island.

Canadian Archery

Carol Armstrong; Champion

Carol Anne Armstrong of Belleville added another feather to her rapidly growing cap of archery honors this past week. The city archer won the Canadian women's championship by a healthy margin over Joan MacDonald, Toronto, a former Canadian champion, in four days, of competition at Toronto.

Mrs. Armstrong's prowess with the bow became evident when she placed first on the Canadian national team. In the world championships in Holland she was top Canadian and also placed creditably among the world's best.

Belleville has added reason to be proud of its archers, as it has been announced that the three women who will represent Canada against the United States in the Ambassador Cup at Winnipeg are all from Belleville. Teaming up with Mrs. Armstrong are Linda Dunstetor and Eileen Donaldson.

In Toronto Mrs. Armstrong found heavy opposition in the early going. Former Canadian champion MacDonald of Toronto took a first day lead with 1099 to compare to Carol Ann's 1035.

In the second day Carol Ann broke the old record for the "Canadian" round with a score of 930, as compared to Mrs. MacDonald's 899 and the old record of 891. The local bowslayer set a new record in the field competition of the third day with a score of 437, far superior to MacDonald's 363.

The fourth day saw Carol Ann increase her lead with a 944 score in the "Field Hunter's round. Her winning total was 3007, compared to Joan MacDonald's 2985.

Canadians Capture Canoe Title

MONTREAL (CP) — Canada won nine of 13 events Saturday and Sunday to take the North American open canoeing championships at Expo 67's Regatta Lake.

The Canadian paddlers finished in first place in the overall standings with 63 points, 34 ahead of the United States, Mexico was third with two points. Bolivia, with only one paddler competing in the two-day competition, failed to register any points.

Canada, leading by a slim three points, 37-34 after Saturday's first nine events, stormed ahead Sunday by taking first place in all four 10,000-metre events.

"Our excellent performance in the four 10,000-metre races made us the decisive winners," said Tom Desmarais, coach of the Canadian squad.

Palmer Wins Classic

AKRON, Ohio (AP)—Arnold Palmer, the 37-year-old millionaire golfing great, was as happy as a kid Sunday after winning the $100,000 American Golf Classic.

It wasn't the $20,000 cheque or just another triumph in an ever-growing list that had Palmer grinning radiantly.

It was professional victory No. 50, a long sought milestone which was becoming more evasive with every attempt.

The $20,000 vaulted Palmer to $128,128 for the year to keep him well ahead of the pack, boosted his official career earnings to $952,640 and put him over the $1,000,000 mark in unofficial earnings.

Palmer started the final round Sunday tied with Jack Nicklaus, one stroke behind a relatively unknown trio of leaders — Jack McGowan, Allan Henning and Kermit Zarley.

McGowan, who recently returned to the tour after a three-month layoff because of hepatitis, went two over on the final hole to fall into a three-way tie for third place.

Doug Sanders finished second at 279 to take second money of $12,500.

Palmer's final-round 67 gave him a four-under-par 276 total.

Richmond Splits With Leafs

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Rochester Red Wings, International League leaders, have acquired a special liking for Richmond.

The Red Wings continued their mastery over the Mud Hens Sunday with a 9-2 victory at Toledo, the eighth straight time they have won on the Mud Hens' home field.

Meanwhile, Toronto Maple Leafs dropped second - place Richmond 2½ games off the pace by blanking the Braves 5-0 on Gary Sutherwith's five-hitter. In another game Sunday, Syracuse Chiefs shut out Columbus Jets 3-0. The Buffalo at Jacksonville game was postponed because of rain.

In Saturday's games, Richmond shaded Toronto 3-2, Rochester defeated Toledo 4-3 and Columbus swept a doubleheader from Syracuse, 8-3 and 4-3. Buffalo at Jacksonville was postponed.

Antique Cars To Put on Show at Fair

In this centennial year the Belleville Fair offers more in contrast than at any previous time.

Most people know about the Black Diamond Cheese Stakes race for a $2,400 purse providing the thrilling climax for the big fire day exhibition.

On the same day Saturday, August 19 in the morning antique cars, however, hold the spotlight. The old time models assemble at the shopping plaza at the east end of the city and proceed to the Fairgrounds via the downtown business section.

Already interest is keen in what is shaping into one of the greatest antique car parades of entries from the Ontario area. Antique car collector, Ken Vivian of Shannonville, is the person to contact to make arrangements to join in this procession and showing of yesteryear automobiles.

Boy Is Rescued From Well

WILLIAMSON, W.Va. (AP)—A 15-year-old boy who spent 24 hours of fear in a narrow, caved-in well said from his hospital bed here Sunday that "they helped pull me through."

Leonard Boyce was described as in "good condition."

He was without food, except for sips of water and hot chocolate that was fed him through a tube, during his ordeal.

Mosquito Bite Swells Like Balloon

Dear Dr. Molner: I have a severe reaction to mosquitoes. A bite can swell up to the size of a tennis ball. For example, I had a bite on the wrist and my arm swelled from elbow to knuckles. If I am bitten on the foot, I can't get a shoe on.

I have tried numerous repellents (but the mosquitoes seem to like them) and other things ranging from serum to penicillin and cortisone.

Yet when I am pregnant they do not bother me. Then I had a miscarriage and the mosquitoes wouldn't leave me alone. I would appreciate any help. I even called an allergy clinic, but they had no suggestion. — Mrs. R. P.

Individual reactions vary widely, and can be of an allergic type which seems to be the case with your mammoth swelling.

Your comment about not being bitten while pregnant is of interest. This problem has been studied, and it has been found that women can attract mosquitoes differently in accordance with the phases of the menstrual cycle. This is thought to be because of the amount of estrogen, or female hormone.

But the studies aimed at finding out more about why mosquitoes — and people — react the way they do are not of much practical use to you right now.

Inspite of your lack of success with the clinic, desensitization with mosquito extract has been reported to be successful, in the same sense that desensitization can protect to some degree against hay fever and other allergies.

I would check further in this direction. See if your physician can obtain this extract and give you treatment — you are not very far from one of the big medical schools, and he may find help there in obtaining the extract.

You might also discuss with him whether a quick-acting, long - acting antihistamine might be kept available to lessen the amount of swelling when you are bitten. Cortisone preparations should be helpful, but must be taken under your doctor's supervision, and they would not prevent you from being bitten.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am a medical assistant student. One of my courses is X-ray, one hour a day, five days a week. Only one person takes the X-ray and she is the only one protected from the rays. The rest of us just sit there and get the exposure. Could this be harmful? My classmates would be interested. — D.A.F.

Excessive exposure is harmful, but from your letter I cannot even estimate how much exposure you are receiving. I would assume — or at least hope — that any institution teaching such a subject would include training in protection and information in amounts that can be tolerated safely.

Monitoring badges are widely used in places where exposure must be measured. The badges contain small pieces of X-ray film, and when these are developed they indicate the exposure to which the wearer has been subjected.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is too much Vitamin C harmful for arthritis? — P. A.

No, too much Vitamin C isn't harmful for anything else either, since this vitamin, unlike some of the others, does not accumulate in the system if you get more than you need. You use what is useful and the rest is discharged.

That is why citrus or other juices high in Vitamin C is recommended every day — simply because the body uses or discards it promptly, and does not save it up.

Too Good to Eat

This wedding cake by master decorator Lorne Sheldrup of Vancouver looks almost too good to eat. Three tiers of the dark fruit cake are set on top of each other and decorated as one piece with pastel-shaded orchid blossoms. African Countries Use Pavilions To Tell Visitors About Countries

MONTREAL (CP) — Tropical lightning flashes lit up the grave young features of dancer Kigozi as he extolled Uganda. A downpour drenched two crocodiles, an impala and a warthog at a tumbling stream.

"But, I tell you, it's cooler in Uganda than it is in Montreal," said Mr. Kigozi.

For this was Expo 67 and the only things real in the simulated tropical storm at the Uganda pavilion were Mr. Kigozi, the baby crocodiles and the falling water.

An amble Sunday through African Place—which groups together the exhibits from 15 countries south of the Sahara—indicated that Canadians and other Expo-goers have a thirst for knowledge but some have whom about the land are long known as the Dark Continent.

Tanzania, formed by the union of Tanganyika and Zanzibar in East Africa, is sometimes confused with Tasmania, the Australian island state off the Australian mainland.

Pan-wambe, spokesman for the country ruled by President Julius Nyerere.

"Surprisingly few people know where Tanzania is, yet a good number know we get coconuts," Mr. Kilpanwambe added. "Some of them ask whether we are Communists or not.

"If they are Americans, we tell them that Canadian officers are training our defence force."

The Americans are apparently startled and reassured by this talk.

Kenya, which enjoys a happy position on a stopping place for many of the world's airlines, makes its pitch more directly to the tourist and looks forward to the day when mass tourism will come to East Africa with lowering air fares.

Spokesman for the three East African countries — Kenya, Uganda and Tanzania — said they hope the exposition will do much to remove misunderstandings about the geography and customs of Africa.

"They ask do we wear dresses in Kenya," said Mrs. Joyce Yabetsa as she stamped Expo "passports" for a group of visitors. "They ask do we have schools, do we speak English and do the wild animals disturb the people when they come into the cities."

The implication was that Kenyans were surprised that Canadians, fellow members of the Commonwealth, did not know the answer to these questions.

Having counted its 30,000,000th visitor during the weekend, Expo now is driving for 40,000,000.

The Quebec government was scheduled to receive today a full report on a meeting held Saturday to discuss Logexpo, the world fair's controversial lodging agency.

In another development, two Expo security guards were to appear in court today charged with theft and sale of stolen goods.

Television Is Confusing Business

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Television is a confusing business. Lucille Ball's current deal with CBS involves $12,000,000 for her season's output. Dean Martin's production company recently concluded a three-year, $394,000,000 contract. Johnny Carson is reportedly earning more than $1,000,000 a year.

But that is not profit to the stars—not by a long shot.

The Walt Disney Studios, in 13 years of weekly television, annually sinks between $500,000 and $1,000,000 more into its programs than it receives for the broadcasts. This would make a one-way street to financial disaster but it, too, is not what it seems.

Lucy and Desi produce their shows with most of their money; Carson has some of his staff to pay. And Disney figures its television loss as an advertising profit.

"Television is a great avenue for us to entertain the family when it is at home," explained the studio's production head, William G. Anderson. "It builds our image — and then there is that end-plug on each show that is part of our deal."

The end-plug is the portion of each show when the audience is told about the wonderful world of the Disneyland amusement park or the charms of the latest Disney film now in the theaters or their neighborhood theatres.

Walt Disney, who served as a producer on television series from its beginnings on ABC, died last December.

But about the only difference next season's viewers will notice is that the familiar, gentle-voiced creator of Mickey Mouse will not introduce each show.

City Won't Rent Home For Hippies

TORONTO (CP) — The Diggers, a self-help group for the hippie set in the city's Yorkville coffeehouse district, want to rent a mother house for homeless hippies.

David Deppe, a spokesman for the group, says the landlord—the city of Toronto—is stalling on when the Diggers can move into the seven-bedroom red-brick house.

He said the group has paid $25 deposit and are prepared to pay $225 a month rent as the house could become a drop-in centre for young people in need of a meal and a bed.

Ontario Duck Bags To Remain Unchanged

OTTAWA (CP)— Hunters in Western Canada will have largely bag limits for ducks and geese this season, the Canadian Wildlife Service announced Saturday. But hunting regulations in Eastern Canada will see few changes.

With the exception of mallard ducks and white-fronted geese, improved population levels in Western Canada have led to increased bag and possession limits under the 1967 federal migratory birds regulations.

The daily bag and possession limits are essentially unchanged at five and 10 for ducks and geese, 25 and 50 for Wilson's snipe and eight and 16 for Woodcock. Duck limits include maximums of four and four canvasbacks and four and eight wood ducks. From Oct. 14, two additional ducks or geese may be taken, with possession limit of four. Season openings vary from Sept. 15 to Sept. 30.

It is a pleasant report from the sick chairman that, as of last Saturday there were no members either in hospital or sick at home. It is sincerely hoped that the sick report board will remain blank for some time to come.

The membership chairman is now compiling his list of members for initiation, members with twenty-five years of continuous service and any member who has not received his or received his unit honorary life membership card. If any members in any of these categories is not certain that his name will be included please hand your name in to either the stewards or the membership committee. It is hoped to have these lists completed by September and with the co-operation of the entertainment chairman, a big night of camaraderie and entertainment will be arranged for some evening in early October.

Word has been received that the architect's plans for the ten thousand dollar bandshell, the Duke of Edinburgh Unit's Centennial project, have been completed and approved. Other arrangements are also near completion and it is hoped to call for tenders in the very near future and have the unveiling and dedication early in the fall.

Just an early reminder that a very important meeting will be held on Thursday, Sept. 14th. At this is the first general meeting for several months, there is a lot of business to do and your presence is urgently required so make a reservation now to attend and help out in the administration of your Club.

Private Dinner Hears Russian Assail Two of Canada's Friends

OTTAWA (CP)—Dmitri Polyansky, a tough-talking Kremlin leader with a deceptively mild appearance, was scheduled to confer with Prime Minister Pearson here today and the talks could produce some verbal fireworks.

Mr. Polyansky, Soviet first deputy premier, arrived Sunday for a Centennial visit and proceeded to lay charges of aggression against two friends of Canada—the United States and Israel.

The slight, pale-looking member of the Soviet Communist party's ruling politburo did not name either country by name in an address Sunday evening at dinner given in his honor by Mr. Pearson.

But his accusations were in line with frequent charges that the Kremlin has aimed at both the U.S. and Israel in the past.

"At present the international situation has seriously deteriorated as a result of the aggression against the Vietnamese people and against the Arab countries," said the 61-year-old Polyansky, making his second visit to Canada in little more than a year.

The dinner was billed as a private affair, but a text of Mr. Polyansky's address was released to the press afterward by the embassy.

Mr. Pearson, who had intended, first his own prior address would be off the record, thereupon agreed to make it public in general outline.

The prime minister struck a conscious that both the U.S. and saying Canada had grown more comcion that both the U.S. and the Soviet Union, who because of their immense power bore prime responsibility for maintaining peace, are its neighbors.

Canada rejoiced in every step that led to better understanding between the two powers.

He told Mr. Polyansky that Canada was not a satellite domination of any country. Canada cherished its independence and unity.

Mr. Polyansky's charge of "aggression" recalled a clash he had with External Affairs Minister Martin the last time he was in Ottawa.

That also occurred at a private dinner, and grew out of a charge of aggression that the Soviet visitor levelled against the U.S.

In contrast to his dinner address, Mr. Polyansky avoided contentious issues during his official, public welcome to Ottawa on Parliament Hill Sunday afternoon.

Replying to Mr. Pearson's address of greeting, he offered cordial congratulations to Canada on its centenary. Canada and Russia cooperated in peace to continue developing their resources. Their roughly identical geographical positions provided the prerequisites for mutually advantageous co - operation between Canada and the U.S.S.R., he added.

Prosecutor Is Accused Of Slaying Wife, Lover

LOS ANGELES (AP) — She was a high-fashion designer, with a 114-pound figure so trim she could model the gowns she sketched.

He was tall, rugged and handsome enough to play a television counterpart of what he really was, a public prosecutor.

They made a good - looking couple when they were out together, which was seldom. Togetherness was not a key factor in the marriage of Jack and Elaine Kirschke. Theirs was a swinging life, as sophisticated as tomorrow, and expensive.

It was shattered last April 8 by gunfire that took two lives and has placed a third in jeopardy.

Elaine Kirschke, 43, who under her professional name of Elaine Terry earned more than $20,000 a year, died with a bullet in her brain.

Her frequent companion, Orville (Bill) Dranhkan, 41, co-owner of a firm which installs electronic gear in planes, died beside her in her bedroom, also of a head wound.

Jack, 45 - year - old husband, Jack, who was the $18,000-a-year prosecutor in charge of the district attorney's office in nearby Downey, must stand trial accused of murdering them to end a relationship he had long accepted.

Jack knew for months that Elaine was seeing Bill Dranhkan. When Dranhkan was arrested Feb. 22 on charges of piloting a plane while drunk, Trachis posted his $250 bail. Elaine had been with Bill in the plane.

Dog Mauls Oshawa Tot, Age 3

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP)— Cindy Heurkens, 3, of nearby Port Perry, Ont., was in critical condition in hospital Sunday after being attacked and mauled Saturday by a German shepherd dog.

A 3½ - hour operation was performed on the girl's left ear, severely injured in the attack. The dog also tore the girl's scalp and bit her in the throat, arms, hands and face.

Doctors said she may lose the eye and plastic surgery will be required on her face.

Police said they have never had complaints before about the seven-year-old dog, owned by the Heurkens' neighbor, Robert Hotchkiss. The animal has been placed in 14-day quarantine so it can be tested for rabies.

Assistant Attorney-General Al Harris, who will prosecute Kirschke, contends Jack was so worried about Elaine's conduct that he hired a private investigator to make sure she and Bill did nothing to embarrass him and jeopardize his chances of winning a municipal judgeship, a $23,000-a-year plum reported in the offing as a reward for his political support of Governor Ronald Reagan of California.

Kirschke's lawyer, Al Ramsey, says Jack is too easy-going to be a killer, and that anyway he was far away, at a Rotary Club convention in Las Vegas, at the time.

Ramsay opposed Kirschke many times during Jacks's 11 years in the district attorney's office.

When police reached the Kirschkes' apartment April 9, Elaine was lying on a bed, clad in an embroidered pajama coat. Dranhkan, fully clothed, was on the floor beside her. There was no sign of a struggle.

The time of the shootings will be a major issue. A neighbor says he heard sounds like shots about 2:30 a.m. Saturday, April 8. Kirschke has produced witnesses who say he bought gasoline at their station near the California-Nevada border, a little more than 100 miles away, about that time.

Lightning May Have Goaded Bears Into Killing Two Girls

WEST GLACIER, Mont. (AP) The superintendent of Glacier National Park says lightning may have goaded two grizzly bears into killing two 19-year-old girls early Sunday as they slept in sleeping bags in rugged wilderness.

Killed in the separate incidents 20 miles apart in the mountainous park on the Montana-Canada border were Julie Helgeson of Alberta Park, Minn., and Michele Koons of San Diego, Calif., Roy Durst, 26, of Perrysburg, Ohio, was severely injured by the bear that killed Miss Helgeson.

Forrest Sput. Keith Nelson said his only theory on the attacks was that lightning strikes in the park alarmed the normally shy, near-sighted grizzlies into attacking.

Lightning started 14 forest fires in the park Saturday and Sunday.

"There is no scarcity of natural food and the grizzly is an unusually shy animal. It's strange for them to attack."

The Koons girl was killed when a bear attacked a group of campers at Trout Lake. Another bear attacked Miss Helgeson and Durst as they camped near Granite Park Chalet, about 30 air miles from Trout Lake.

All three were working during the summer months at hotels in the scenic, mountainous park.

Park rangers with high-powered rifles were searching for the bears.

The bear attacked Miss Helgeson first, then pounced on Durst. He escaped and the animal went back to the girl, dragging her 400 feet.

Ranger Gary Bonney led an armed party into the area and found Miss Helgeson, body mauled but still alive. She was given first aid and be taken by helicopter to a hospital in Kalispell, 40 air miles from the scene of the attack.

Durst was taken to a Kalispell hospital. At first, doctors said he would recover. He was bitten about the shoulders, back, buttocks and legs.

In the other incident, a bear charged into a campground at Trout Lake on the western side of the park about 4 a.m. Ranger crew said it sniffed at five sleeping bags while their occupants lay frozen with fear. Then it grabbed Miss Koons.

The four persons camped with her got out of their sleeping bags and escaped. Rangers said apparently the zipper on the girl's bag caught their shoe. Her body was dragged about 100 yards. None of the others was reported injured.

There is little chance one bear made both the attacks. The 30-mile distance between the two encounters consists of some of the most rugged country in the Northwest.

Retain Pensions

PM Denies Quebec Bid

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson has turned aside Quebec's request that it take over responsibility for old age pensions, saying such action would "grossly reduce and perhaps destroy" the federal government's ability to redistribute income among Canadians.

Mr. Pearson's office released today the text of his letter in reply to the request by Quebec's premier Johnson.

It referred to Mr. Johnson's statement of last December indicating the intention of Quebec to take over the whole of the personal income tax and to pay all old age pensions and family allowances, as well as other social security payments.

Mr. Pearson's reply said:

"Such action would greatly reduce and perhaps destroy the ability of Parliament to redistribute incomes in this way between Canadians of different incomes. It would harm all Canadians who benefit from such redistribution as it suggests, including the people of Quebec who on balance benefit substantially.

"Since the federal government has a responsibility for the welfare of Canadian citizens, in all the provinces, including the province of Quebec, it is not prepared to abandon the arrangements that Parliament has established to bring about a fairer distribution of income in Canada."

As expected, Mr. Pearson left the door open for Quebec to propose legislation that would supplement the federal pension payments if desired. He added that federal officials would be happy to discuss administrative co-ordination with Quebec officials in such a case.

Mr. Pearson said Parliament since 1951 has exercised powers "specifically entrusted to it" in the pension field by the British North America Act.

It would continue to do so unless "the law relating to them should as a result be found to be in any respect outside the powers of Parliament by reason of the operation of a provincial law."

"As things now stand, the federal government considered that it should . . . continue to pay old age pensions directly to the elderly people of this country wherever they may live.

"The federal government does not, of course, contest the right of the government of Quebec to propose legislation in relation to old age pensions, if it so wishes, since the constitution provides specifically for such a possibility.

"We understand your government may even wish to grant older people a supplement similar to that which you have decided to grant concerning the federal family allowances."

The federal government recognized the desirability of harmonizing social security programs, he said. But this did not necessarily mean administrative or legislative consolidation.

"There are many fields in which the various levels of government in Canada . . . have managed to co-ordinate their policies in a mutually satisfactory way which is of benefit to Canadians and which avoids waste of public funds through unnecessary administrative duplication."

There was no reason why this should not continue.

Since the question raised by Mr. Johnson's letter is of interest to all Quebecers, Mr. Pearson added, "I am following your course in releasing this letter as soon as you have had the opportunity to receive it."

Mr. Johnson announced last week that he had sent a letter to Mr. Pearson on the old age pensions. Mr. Pearson's reply was dated Monday, Aug. 14.

Hostlers at Work

The day was made for these young would-be engineers yesterday when they were permitted to help polish one of the old steam threshing engines prior to last night's Belleville Fair parade. Two steamers and several vintage gas-operated farm tractors form part of an antique exhibit at the fair.

May Have Key To Virus Ills

WASHINGTON (AP)—A drug firm reported Monday that its scientists have made a biological discovery "paving the way for" a possible new and practicable approach to the prevention of viral infection in man"—perhaps including cancer.

Merck Sharp and Dome of West Point, Pa., made public three reports of research team studies to be published in the proceedings of the National Academy of Sciences.

The scientists reported they have discovered the essential requirements of stimulating the human body to produce a natural germ-fighting chemical called interferon. They described also prompting results in animal tests with three newly-noted interferon-inducing substances. Human trials may be undertaken.

Interferon is a protein produced by the body in response to viral infection. But the body does not always produce enough to combat a full-blown virus attack.

Interferon inhibits spread of infection by preventing viral reproduction in cells. It works against a broad range of viruses, but only in the cell species in which it is produced.

Therefore, attention in recent years has been directed towards finding a safe and practicable substance that would induce the body to produce its own interferon in advance of viral infection.

Pants Banned, She Peels Them

LONDON (CP) — The head waiter at classy Claridge's Hotel was adamant when dress designer Susan Jane Griffiths, 23, turned up for lunch in a bright red trouser suit.

"I'm sorry, Madam, he said stiffly, "No trouser suits here."

"Right," retorted Susan promptly, "I'll take them off."

And slap in the middle of the restaurant entrance, as Mayfair luncheon gaped, she proceeded to peel off the pants, baring legs clad in tights under her long jacket.

Handing the trousers to an astonished waiter and calling the remainder of her costume a mini-skirt, she walked calmly to her table—with the full approval of the management.

"I'll be BLU. and you be the labor minister."

Seamen Favor Strike

MONTREAL (CP)—A canvassing vote on an Aug. 17 strike against Canada's inland shipping companies rolled well past the two-thirds majority Monday as Seafarers voted in the St. Catharines area.

"It doesn't look good," commented Benjamin Trask, chief negotiator for the 23 companies responsible for carrying the bulk of cargo passing through the Great Lakes.

Crew Is Slow Laying Pipe In Nudist Camp

HAMILTON (CP)—Three months was a little too long for a Dofasco Gas Co. crew to lay 1,320 feet of pipeline through a nudist camp, the operator of the camp suggested Monday.

Henry Stein, operator of the Ponderosa Nature Park, said the workmen took time off from the job for sessions with cameras and binoculars.

Several families left the camp when they saw the workmen.

But not everything was black. Two of the workmen came back with their families after the job was finally completed last weekend, and have decided to become nudists.

Drug Assists Locate Cancer

LONDON (Reuters)—The success of an antibiotic drug in diagnosing cancer was claimed Monday by a British drug company.

But the drug, tetracycline, showed no appreciable value as an anti-cancer agent, the company, Cyanamid, said.

Chief Justice Named

OTTAWA (CP)—Supreme Court Justice John Robert Cartwright was named chief justice of Canada today, succeeding Chief Justice Robert Taschereau, who is retiring because of ill health.

Mr. Justice Cartwright, a 72-year-old native of Toronto, was named puisne judge of the Supreme Court in 1949.

His appointment will be effective Sept. 1.

Mr. Justice Taschereau, 70, was named chief justice in 1963.

His letter of resignation to Prime Minister Pearson said he had "no other course" but to resign in view of the opinions of his doctors.

Mr. Justice Cartwright is a member of an historic United Empire Loyalist family long involved in law and government.

His great-grandfather, Richard Cartwright, was a judge and member of the legislative council of Upper Canada. His grandfather, John Solomon Cartwright, was a member of the Canadian legislative assembly and a bencher of the Law Society of Upper Canada.

His father, Sir Richard Strachan Cartwright, was master in chambers of the Supreme Court of Ontario.

Mr. Justice Cartwright himself was educated at Upper Canada College and Osgoode Hall in Toronto.

He served in the First World War with the 3rd Canadian Infantry Battalion and was twice wounded, at Festubert and Ploegsteert. He was awarded the Military Cross in 1917.

Want War? You Have It, Mao Told

HONG KONG (AP)—The Hong Kong Star reports that a Chinese general has threatened Mao Tse-tung with civil war if Mao keeps trying to get rid of him.

"If you want war, you can have it," the paper quotes the general, Chen Yaal-tao, as telling Mao in a cablegram. Chen commands forces in Wuhan province, which is torn with clashes between Maoists and anti-Maoists.

There were strong indications, the English-language Star says, that Chen may have joined forces with Gen. Wong En-Mao, military commander of Sinkiang province, where China has stockpiled its nuclear weaponry.

Sources quoted in The Star say there is still serious fighting in Wuhan and that it is spreading to Canton.

Too Busy To Retire Says PM

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson said today Parliament will be asked to pass 25 essential bills in 45 legislative days before Christmas.

These bills would include new legislation on divorce, capital punishment, abortion and birth control, Mr. Pearson told a news conference.

The work load leaves him no chance of a holiday or retirement this year and for next year the government has lined up 70 more pieces of legislation.

Mr. Pearson said the cabinet last week combed through all 1968-69 preliminary spending estimates and cut "many tens of millions" of dollars to avoid a higher deficit.

Every department would experience the cut through postponement of projects but the government would introduce medical care insurance July 1, 1968, as scheduled, Mr. Pearson declined to give

Pearson Wants Bill of Rights Enshrined in Constitution

OTTAWA — (CP) — Prime Minister Lester Pearson said today he is sending invitations to the provincial premiers this week for an autumn conference on the possibility of enshrining John Diefenbaker's 1960 Bill of Rights or an amended form of it in the Canadian constitution.

He said that if no progress can be made on a constitutional change on this fundamental issue of human rights, a full-dress constitutional conference as proposed by the Conservatives would be "a pretty dubious procedure."

What Do Politicians Know About War?

WASHINGTON (CP-AP)—Senate majority leader Mike Mansfield of Montana warned Monday that U.S. bombing raids on North Vietnamese targets near the Chinese border are "a very dangerous extension of the war," a contention brushed off by former president Eisenhower.

"What do politicians know about conducting a war?" Eisenhower asked. "We must use force and get done with it."

Eisenhower and Dirksen said that military targets are involved and the air attacks should be continued. They do not believe such raids risk bringing China into the conflict —a contention made in the Senate by Mansfield and echoed by Republican senators Charles Percy of Illinois and John Sherman Cooper of Kentucky.

In the face of this split of Republican opinion, Eisenhower told a press conference as he left Walter Reed Army Hospital after a 10-day stay, he hopes the conduct of the war does not become an issue in next year's presidential campaign. He said he doesn't want to be among those which could result in tens of thousands of additional casualties" by inviting Chinese intervention.

Senator Thruston Morton of Kentucky, former Republican national chairman said if the Republican presidential nominee is to be picked next summer could come up with a program for "honorable disengagement" in Vietnam, he could win in 1968.

Dirksen said that might be true, but added:

"How are you going to get honorable disengagement. Are we just going to walk out on the South Vietnamese and leave all of Asia to China? I don't think

Day Nursery Subsidy Increased; Enrolment Here to Climb to 40

"We've been expecting this for some time and are quite pleased that our day nursery will be one of the first in the province to be able to take advantage of the higher subsidy."

This was the comment today by Mayor J. R. Ellis following the announcement yesterday that the Ontario cabinet has proclaimed a new Day Nurseries Act to provide more aid toward offsetting costs of day nurseries run by municipalities.

The act, passed by the house in the spring session of 1966, increases to 80 per cent from 50 per cent the amount of operating costs a municipality can recover for running a day care centre.

It also provides an 80-per-cent grant toward the fees of children placed by municipalities in private nurseries.

The cabinet waited to proclaim the act until provincial authorities had formed negotiations to take advantage of the federal grants offered under the Canada Assistance Plan. The increased grants will be made retroactive to April 1.

The Canada Assistance Plan provides that Ottawa will pay 50 per cent of the operating costs of municipal nurseries and 50 per cent of the cost of fees at private nurseries for children of parents with established need. The province will pay 80 per cent of both.

Under the old Ontario Day Nurseries Act, the province paid 50 per cent of the operating costs without any federal assistance.

The Belleville day nursery, which went into operation last winter, has a budget of approximately $30,000 on which the city has been collecting 50 per cent subsidy, leaving $15,000 as the city's cost.

Under the new 80 per cent subsidy, the city's share of the cost would be reduced to $6,000.

Plans are to step up the day nursery program in Belleville to accommodate about 40 children. Mayor Ellis said this would slightly increase the present annual cost of the nursery.

School Staffs Ready for Opening

With the opening of Belleville schools less than a month away two teachers are still required to complete the staff of the public school system.

According to L. A. Kells, superintendent of Belleville Public Schools, interviews are taking place at the present time and the vacancies are expected to be filled within the next week.

"All teaching positions in the Bay of Quinte District school system have been filled," Mr. Kells, assistant superintendent said this morning. "We'll be using 213 teachers."

Enrollment in both systems is expected to increase over last year's figures.

"We had 8,300 students in the public schools last year and it's anybody's guess how much this will increase over the coming year," Mr. Kells said this morning.

The city of Quinte school officials say they're not to be surprised at least 100 and possibly 300 extra students this fall.

"We'll be using at least ten extra classrooms in Centennial School. Most of the student increase will be attending this school," Mr. Reid said.

Two portable classrooms have been added at Queen Elizabeth George School to meet the expected rise in public school population.

Gold Found in Madoc Township 101 Years Ago by Powell Bros.

Just 101 years ago today two young men prospecting for copper in Madoc township smashed a quartz rock with a creek that was heard throughout North America.

For Daniel and Marcus Powell found gold, not copper, in the rock, and the Madoc gold rush was on.

John Richardson's farm, where the brothers found the first gold strike, became the mecca of adventurers from the United States, the British Columbia Cariboo region and most of eastern Canada. The army of gold seekers is credited with opening up the country north of Belleville and giving this city — soon nick named the "golden gate to Eldorado" — a much needed economic boost during the late 1860s.

When the Powell brothers made their strike they were employed by a group of businessmen to prospect for copper. They didn't remain at the site (now the hamlet of Eldorado), but moved all to Malone, north east of Marmora, to build and operate a grist mill.

The luck followed them to Malone. In the silt deposited behind their mill dam on the Gilroy Creek by the spring run-off they found gold again. Following the crevices that fed the run-off into the creek, the brothers found the mother lode. They settled in stamping and crushing mills and operated their own private mine for a few years.

"There's still gold in the hills," says Daniel Powell's grandson, Hugh Stuart Powell of Frankford. "Forty years ago, when people still lived on the property at Malone, they told me they panned enough gold from silt dammed in the run-off crevices each spring to pay their taxes for the year."

Mr. Powell's father, the late William Reuben Powell of Foxhill, was the first child born in Malone, while his father and uncle were operating their mine and mill. Daniel and Marcus continued their prospecting on a less informal basis and eventually found deposits of talc, quartz and slate close together on their property — the only place in the world where these minerals are known to exist together.

The Powell brothers having struck the blow that opened the north, returned to the shores of the Bay of Quinte to begin another enterprise. There they established the first waterworks in Trenton, using hollow cedar logs they bored out themselves. These crude early pipes carried Trenton's water supply until about 40 years ago when the last were removed and replaced with conventional iron pipes.

Parade Draws Thousands

Carnival Air Hovers Over Picton Area

PICTON (Staff)—A carnival air hovers over the town of Picton this week. Leading off the annual "Loyalist Days" events is colorful parade drew thousands yesterday to the Main Street to watch floats, decorated cars, majorettes and bands as well as thousands of school children of the playground activities program. The mile-long parade was led off from the fair grounds by the smart Kingston Grenadiers Band and continued up the main street to the Onontaph. Following the parade the band provided a short concert in front of the old Picton Armories.

Old costumes and store windows decorated with antiques predominated in the town this week while merchants and businessmen sell their wares on the sidewalks. It's a gay week for Picton and the event apparently becomes more successful with each year. Many events are planned for the remainder of the week — dances, contests, a soap box derby race and the week will wind up with Sunday's sanctioned stock car races at Sandy Point Park, Waupoos.

Ambulance Service, Schools, Discussed At Prince Edward Council Meeting

PICTON (Staff) — After some discussion in County Council last night, Reeve George Cunningham, of Ameliasburgh announced the issue of a by-law passed last May to bring the Ameliasburgh portion of the Murray Township School area back into Ameliasburgh will be taken to arbitration following a rejection by Northumberland County. After 90 days following the rejection (the elapsed time necessary) the arbitration will be conducted with County Judges Winfrid Lane and County Clerk, Thomas Walker presiding.

What happens to Prince Edward County people, who need an ambulance service and the county's only ambulance is delivering an out of county patient to Kingston hospital, was asked council by Reeve Gordon Demore of Athol. The question came up under general business at last night's meeting of county council. Reeve Demore said that recently the ambulance in question received a call from Adolphustown to take a patient to Kingston leaving the county stranded. The Reeve continued, "Mutual aid is fine between municipalities that have ambulance services, but why should we subsidize a county that does not have one." County Warden Robert Boyce expressed his opinion, "I believe our answer", he said, "is to have this service set up as a mutual aid program."

At motion carried at the inaugural meeting of the Prince Edward County Planning Board asked council for the sum of $1,000, to unadvertise the costs until Dec. 31 was approved. Warden Boyce said that they may not need it but they would like to have the money to pay for possible expenses of speakers and for indemnity for the members. Bernard Hepburn - chairman of the finance committee answered that the county planning board was essential and that his committee expects the County will be able to handle the sum. "If we can't we'll have to show a deficit." he said. County Council voted unanimously to support the County Planning Board request and to provide the money as the Board needed it.

A recommendation to council, by a special committee, that County Welfare Officer Grant Harvey be detailed to conduct a survey of the Children's Aid Society and Welfare Department operations and to draft a plan for the organization and amalgamation of the two, was carried. It was decided that a Toronto man might replace Mr. Harvey during the period this survey was under way, which might take one month. Reeve Hepburn said, "The trial marriage of the two organizations looks promising however he added, more facts are needed." He termed the amalgamation an urgent matter because some politicians feel that Hastings and Prince Edward Children's Aid Societies should be joined. "Following this plan," he said, "other municipalities are seriously considering the possibilities of joining their CAS with the Welfare Departments.

A delay in the physicians reports on County Home residents is costing Prince Edward County $200 per month. This was brought to light at last night's County Council meeting when Deputy-Reeve Don Thompson requested County Clerk to take action to have Dr. L. Dockrill complete the documentation forthwith.

A low tender of $81,074.00 by Lightfoot Construction Co. Ltd. for the opening of Black Creek bridge was $20,000 over the budgeted estimated cost of $60,000. Consulting Engineer McCormick — Rankin estimated the $60,000 cost. Council felt that if they delayed until next year they would not make any greater saving — they were of the opinion they couldn't make any better deal and did not anticipate any trouble handling the extra $20,000 cost.

Batawa Couple Injured in 3-Car Crash

FRANKFORD — A Batawa couple were taken to hospital after a three-car crash north of the Trent River bridge here last night.

Mrs. Jamil Polak was admitted to Trenton Memorial Hospital with arm fractured and face cuts while her husband was released after treatment for minor injuries.

Police Chief Gerald Farington said the Polak vehicle was struck from the rear by a car driven by Joseph Mayo, 33, of Belleville. The impact sent the Polak automobile careening into a parked car owned by Horace Chard of Frankford.

Total damage was estimated at $3,000.

Four Youths Sent to Trial On Rape Count

Rodney Carter, Rodney Seiler, John Leonard and David F. Willshire were committed to trial yesterday in their preliminary hearing before Magistrate T. Y. Wills. All four were charged with rape.

Yesterday's testimony centred around the alleged rape victim who remained on the stand about four hours. Tearfully the witness stated that through the whole incident she had feared for her life.

The four youths face other charges of assault and abduction.

Directory to be Issued

Need service or advice — You'll be able to find out who and where to phone quickly and efficiently after Sept. 15.

Belleville will have its first directory of health, welfare, recreational, and educational services in the area. The directory, which is being compiled by United Community Services will include listings of all organizations, clubs, societies, agencies, churches and schools in the area (and some operating from Kingston and Toronto) whose services are available to the Belleville public.

Included under each listing will be the full name of the group, the name of its president, his address and phone number and a description of the services provided. Information regarding meetings, fees and membership will also be available.

Almost every community in Canada, the size of Belleville has a directory for the benefit of the public and also to afford other communities the opportunity to find out services offered in other cities across the country. There will be over 250 listings in Belleville's directory which will be available to anyone for a fee of $1.00. Copies should be available at the end of September, from the United Community Services.

Driving Not Absolute Right But Privilege

CAMPBELLFORD, Ont. (CP) — Ontario Liberal Leader Robert Nixon said Monday that he would impose a system of compulsory breath tests for drivers suspected of drinking, if he were premier.

Mr. Nixon, speaking to a Rotary Club meeting, said motorists could be asked when applying for licences to sign a statement agreeing to take the tests.

"I am aware of the legal implications involved," he said. "But to me driving is not an absolute right, but a privilege. And drinking drivers who can kill and maim innocent people abuse that privilege."

He also suggested periodic retesting of drivers, compulsory safety checks for cars, a department of highways task force to institute safety features on highways and strict enforcement of the demerit system.

Trenton Man Files Suit to Collect Prize

TORONTO (CP) — Canada's centennial emblem contains only 10 equal-sided triangles plus an angular tree, says Norman P. Hand of Trenton, Ont., and he is entitled to the $30,000 prize in a cigarette coupon contest.

Not so, says Rock City Tobacco Co., manufacturers of Number 7 cigarettes. The emblem contains 11 equal-sided triangles atop a stem.

Mr. Hand filed suit in the Ontario Supreme Court last Tuesday in an attempt to collect the prize he says he won by answering correctly a skill-testing question: How many equal-sided triangles comprise the centennial emblem?

The centennial commission's official publication shows the centre triangle on the bottom row of the emblem opening into double-lined stem of the symbolic maple leaf.

The figures in the emblem are supposed to represent the Canadian provinces and territories.

Liberal Leader Criticizes Crop Insurance Program

PICTON (Staff) — "Ontario's crop insurance program provides mini-skirt coverage." Provincial Liberal Party leader Robert Nixon told a group of party workers last night that the present scheme has three basic weaknesses:

The program doesn't appeal to farmers who may suffer extensive damage only once in 10 or 20 years.

The premiums are too high for those who really need the insurance — farmers in debt due to the purchase of equipment or supplies.

The program was late starting and will leave some crops unprotected during the next few years.

The Liberal leader said he would plug the gaps in the present system by providing a province wide program of catastrophe assistance for all crops.

"This new scheme would supplement the crop insurance program and give farmers aid if 30 per cent loss was sustained on a part or all of his crops."

The costs of the new program would be relatively inexpensive because unusual weather conditions which cause the crop loss do not occur often in most areas.

Mr. Nixon said farmers in Kent Bruce and Simcoe counties have been pushed to the wall this summer by unusually bad weather. "Their plight is particularly serious because under the present insurance system they cannot collect payments.

At the present time, the Liberal leader said, "an area can collect only if it is named a disaster area. Although money can be collected from the federal and provincial governments in such a case, the municipality generally must raise a third of the cost.

Other speakers at the meeting attended by 150 members of the Prince Edward-Lennox Liberal Association were Fred Evans, liberal candidate for the area, and Dr. Lionel Dockrill of Picton who introduced the guest speaker.

In his speech Mr. Evans said he was enthused about the turn out. The meeting was held at the Eastern Star Temple hall.

Governor Attends Lunch

Re-dedication to the principles of Rotary was urged by District Governor Howard Wright when he addressed Belleville Rotarians yesterday.

The Toronto-Leaside Rotarian said the organization had grown from a small start more than 60 years ago until today there are 60,000 members and 12,000 clubs in 134 countries.

"In other words, our basic principle if it was alone was not must be correct," said Mr. Wright.

A native of Missouri who came to Canada in 1952, Mr. Wright quoted a message from Rotary International President Angus Mac Hodgen urging members to make an even greater commitment to club and community work, whether in terms of time, ideas or just "old-fashioned work."

Mr. Hodge's message spoke of the fact that "there are no pockets of poverty on this continent but whole areas of despair."

"Loyalty to the past is often stories but loyalty to the future can be productive and creative."

The District Governor was introduced by Belleville Rotary President James Marker and thanked by Ron Cass.

Council Briefs

TRENTON — Motorists have complained that the town bridge here is being swung too often for boats with nine daily openings.

But Town council last night received a letter from the Trent Canal Authority relaying criticisms from boat owners that the bridge is open too seldom!

The letter requested council to consider opening the bridge — the town's main street link on Highway 2 — every half-hour.

Councillors decided to lay the request aside until the new bridge over the Trent — north of the present span — is open.

At the request of town welfare administrator, K. G. Davis, council's welfare committee will investigate establishing a home for the aged.

Councillor D. R. Fraser, however, last night had an alternative: "Why don't we see if it's possible to set up a Trenton wing in either the Northumberland or Hastings Counties homes?"

Councillors have been asked to revise estimates for yet another town project.

Councillor Duncan McDonald, recreation committee chairman, last night was authorized to spend $4,863 for reconstruction of dressing room areas in the town's Community Gardens.

Council originally was told the project would cost $3,000.

The Ontario Housing Commission will be asked to study this town's overall housing situation.

Town council last night approved a request to the OHC for a survey to determine the need for senior units.

Recommendations will be sought from the commission.

A town councillor says several Trenton residents are complaining about the use of the former post office property.

Councillor Edward Todd said last night he had been asked why the town is not using the hot behind the former post office for parking revenue.

Other matters agreed and the matter will be put to the town's parking authority.

Churches' Task

The role of the Christian church in the modern world is a changing one — as it must be if Christianity is to meet the needs of people in an increasingly challenging universe.

As a whole new generation is growing up whose questing spirits are at odds with the status quo, or what is left of the status quo that their parents knew. The gulf between parents and children is one that has always existed but today under the impact of such decadent manifestations as the hippie cult, Yorkville, LSD, marijuana and the concept of a something-for-nothing life, it has widened.

Technology is evolving so swiftly that the educational pressures on the rising generation are more demanding than ever. In such a world the church is hard put to it to keep pace, to retain a hold on the young. Nowhere has this been witnessed with greater poignancy than in the communist world.

In Lithuania, for example, church attendance declines every year. At the same time the volume of atheistic propaganda remains constant and the church is regarded as an undesirable left-over from the reactionary past.

The Baltic country was once predominantly Roman Catholic, and while churches remain open a recent news picture of a lone woman praying at one of the sanctuaries in Vilnius was indicative of the extent to which christianity has declined in face of materialist influences.

But the message of Christianity still carries into the far reaches of the world — and significantly, into areas which sustain populations of many different faiths as well as the advocates of communism and its companion creed, atheism.

And it is Christianity of a practical nature. Consider, for instance, the appointment by the Anglican Church of Canada of a "new look" bishop to head a task force charged with developing an intensified program of helping the people of South America.

Rev. John Marshall, of St. Stephen's parish, Toronto, will combine the interesting role of Suffragan Bishop of Trinidad and Tobago in the Caribbean with the title of bishop in Venezuela on the nearby mainland of South America.

The task of Mr. Marshall, 57, will be that of a "missionary in episcopal orders" serving without a diocese or a synod office and with a minimum of administrative duties when he goes this fall to Venezuela. A native of Yorkshire, his qualifications for the position include service with the mission to seamen in the Argentine where he learned Spanish.

That the appointment represents no crash program to counter the forces of communism, or any other alien creed in South America, is clear from the fact that the Anglicans' decision to intensify mission work in the region came after ten years of study and planning which began after the 1958 Lambeth conference called for such an operation.

This is the kind of initiative that must be taken not only overseas but among young people at home, with a view to perpetuating the Christian message in a world subjected to many counter distractions and influences.

Hong Kong Incident

The battle of wits and Stephen Potter-style "upmanship" continues between British authorities in Hong Kong and Chinese communist agitators.

The British had evened matters of late by arresting the originators of the recent communist-inspired disturbances, and the publisher of a communist newspaper who defected to Formosa admitted the rising had been a failure for this reason.

Now, however, the communists have scored a minor victory by sending across the border a group of "workmen" who disarmed the officers of a British border post and forced an official of the colonization agreeing to remove barbed wire around the post, compensate a man hurt in a border incident, and allow Chinese workmen to sing without interference.

Later one of the officers said with typical British candor: "We didn't lose any lives — but we certainly lost face."

However, it seems they had little alternative. They thus gave their "discretion is the better part of valor" evidently was the best course. Still, any more incidents like this and the Chinese may feel like pulling a few more stunts, with possible unfortunate consequences for the colony if Peking decides to go all the way and take over the British possession. — a more they could accomplish at any time with little difficulty.

One thing has detered the Chinese up to this point — the fact that Hong Kong is China's major outlet to the Western world and as such is as strategically valuable to the communists as it is to Britain and the west at large.

Canadians And Their Fast-Shrinking (66-Cent) Dollar

By GREG CONNOLLEY

OTTAWA — Canadian concern over the cost-of-living may well be the most significant political factor in the nation today.

All evidence is that citizens from coast - to - coast are distrubed—perhaps alarmed—by not be too strong a word — over the relentless increase in living costs.

The last figures from the Dominion Bureau of Statistics really carried a wallop. They said that the purchasing power of the 1949 dollar was now down to 66 cents.

What happens to the man who planned in 1949 to retire this year and finds that every dollar he saved is now only worth 66 cents? Does he just keep on working?

Federal officials point out that the Canada Pension Plan, coming into effect this year, will provide a kind of basic protection for people retiring in future years. It will be related to their best earning years and there is also provision for revision of the act if it appears to get out of line with living costs.

This though does nothing for private pension plans which many and have such safeguards and which may seriously deteriorate over the years through the hike in living costs.

Pensions are only one aspect of the difficulty. The more immediate problem for the great majority of Canadians is how to keep on existing at a reasonable level with a dollar that shrinks and shrinks.

Food and housing are two things Canadians can't do without. They are two factors that go up and up in the living index. Many citizens just can't afford certain quality foods. And the cost of new homes is now away out of reach for many Canadians.

Some government people do not like using that old 1949 cost-of-living index. A new base is being prepared that will employ a more recent year.

It is pointed out that U.S. consumer price index is based on 1957-59 prices equalling 100. If Canada used this system the July index for this country would show a 121 percent increase in living costs since 1957-59 — still the same sad story.

In his last budget Finance Minister Mitchell Sharp sounded many and grave warnings about the potential dangers of inflation. He called upon business and labor to exercise restraint in the price-wage spiral.

Mr. Sharp was not exhorted and pleaded with citizens to work hard, save money, show caution and try to hold the line on the cost-of-living. And having delivered himself of this lecture, he went on to announce a staggering $760,000,000 deficit.

A deficit of this kind just does not go hand in glove with Mr. Sharp's demand that Canadians themselves should demonstrate fiscal restraint.

And moreover there is no sign at all of a slowdown in government expenditure. It appears that Ottawa will be spending more and Mr. Sharp himself has forecast an increase in expenditures by the provincial and municipal governments.

Why didn't Mr. Sharp bring down a budget with tax increases, the most certain way of checking inflation? One reason cited was that along with inflation there are soft spots in the economy — prospects of unemployment and a slowdown in the increase of employment.

Perhaps too the cabinet did not want to oust the taxpayers in centenial year, at a time when millions of dollars were being spent on celebrations and on Expo 67.

Whatever his motivation for a lack of action in June, Mr. Sharp ought to move without delay to check the rising cost-of-living. A new budget in September when Parliament returns to work appears desirable.

Certainly if the Liberals won't move against inflation when the Conservatives will, who elsewhere — to the Conservatives or the New Democrats?

Government inaction in the face of mounting inflation that is really frightening citizens would certainly provide an opportunity for the new leader of the Conservative party, or for that matter, even if that leader continues to be John Diefenbaker.

The Lady and the Hippopotamus

Bruce West in The Globe and Mail

The other day I was just sitting at my desk drowsily enjoying a little bit of light summer reading in the form of a set of statistics recently released by the Ontario Department of Transport. These particular figures dealt with the number of motor accidents involving animals in this province in the past six months. It seems that quite a few animal-car crashes are tangled with automobiles on the Queen's highways during this period. Under the heading Animals Involved were the following neatly arranged statistics: Deer, 186; moose, 94; bears, 7; cattle, 96; horses, 17; dogs, 28; pigs, 8. All of which seemed fair and informative enough. But when I casually glanced at the very last category, titled Miscellaneous, I did a double take and-as it quickly as my chair. The tally under this heading merely said "6 (includes one hippopotamus)." I'll tell you it gives one a bad turn to encounter a shocking piece of information like the lurking there among those cold facts and figures. Not a word of additional explanation, mind you.

Is it possible, I thought, that the hippopotamus has somehow extended its grazing grounds or wallowing holes from far - off Africa to the formerly quiet and peaceful Ontario countryside?

After all, a lot of mighty peculiar things are taking place in this country these days.

However, some diligent research on my part brought up the information that the particular hippopotamus involved in this baffling statistic was one that escaped from Woodlands Park zoo near Brockville last June and lumbered out on Highway 2 right into the path of a car driven by Valerie Thresherall, of Brockville. Her car promptly bounced off the hippo and came to a stop 300 yards down the road — at least, I think it was down the road. I sure hope her car didn't bounce 300 yards back up the road. Damage of $150 was done to the front end of Miss Thibeault's car but she wasn't hurt, nor was the hippo, which merely shook itself a bit and meandered modestly back into the zoo.

So those, as Sergeant Joe Friday said in Dragnet, are just the facts, ma'am. But I certainly wish the Department of Transport wouldn't do things like that to me. When I read statistics, I want to know how the whole thing turns out.

Translator Shortage

Brandon Sun

It's rather a shock to learn the federal government has had to advertise in foreign newspapers to find enough translators to prepare documents in both the English and French languages.

The government found itself short of the needed complement of 250 translators. In the past 16 months there have been 1,154 applications from Canadians but only 59 persons were found qualified.

This is a bilingual country but as we have found, it is difficult enough to get English and French - speaking Canadians to learn the others' language. Even so, that it should be impossible to find 40 people who can translate foreign documents into English and French — in a population of 20 million — is hard to understand.

Though Democracy Survives...

Poverty, Illiteracy, Overpopulation Still Plagues India

By MYRON BELKIND

NEW DELHI (AP)—Twenty years ago next Tuesday the last British viceroy of India stood in his palace in New Delhi and watched the proclamation from King George VI granting independence to 330,000,000 Indians.

Jawaharlal Nehru, as the first prime minister of free India, strode to a microphone and in one of his most moving speeches said:

"India stands forth again after long centuries of servitude, awake, free and independent. A new star rises, the star of freedom in the East, a new hope comes into being. May the old never pass away that hope never be betrayed."

Independent but many of the hopes expressed in 1947 have dimmed. Poverty and illiteracy still plague India, whose population has grown to 510,000,000.

The rigid social system that segregates the population into castes from the scholarly Brahmin to the lowly untouchables still exists in practice, although it was outlawed in 1951.

Centuries of strife between predominantly Hindu and Moslem countries in 1947.

Concern about possible renewed hostilities with Pakistan over China has been used to justify an expenditure of $2 to 200,000,000 a year on defense. Even a portion of these funds spent on schools, or provide higher salaries to keep Indian scientists and doctors from rushing abroad.

How would Mohandas Gandhi, the leader of the freedom movement, who was assassinated in January, 1948, feel about the India of today?

One of his closest associated, Chakravarti Rajagopalachari, the first Indian governor-general and founder of the right-wing Swatantra party, told The Associated Press:

"I can confidently say Gandhi would not be happy with the state of today. He would be miserable over our heavy indebtedness to foreign governments, our heavy defense expenditure, our failure to provide the sanitary and living conditions in the rural areas, and last but not least our failure to establish friendly relations with Pakistan."

Despite India's failures, it has survived as a democratic nation, and this, say members of the governing Congress party, is its greatest achievement.

India's population is growing by more than 1,000,000 people a month.

Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's government has stressed the importance of family planning, and the health ministry is examining a proposal to introduce legislation requiring compulsory sterilization of men after the birth of a third child

Smiths Falls' "Dream" Subway

Ottawa Journal

The news from Smiths Falls the other day was enough to bring a sigh of relief audible Grenoghout Eastern Ontario. Town council voted by 5-2 in favor of widening the infamous Cornelia Street subway by an estimated five feet at a cost of $94,300. It asked the Board of Transport Commissioners to approve the plan so tenders could be called for the job.

There are motorists who like awake nights dreaming of the Cornelia Street subway. Highway travellers passing through Smiths Falls often feel a tightening in the throat as they approach what seems to be a passageway too narrow for one car, let alone two. Because of its depth, the subway seems even narrower than it is, for the scratches on its sides attest to its actual width and the effect it has on drivers. Residents of Smiths Falls who have learned to take the subway "in stride" can have great sport with first-time visitors to Smith Falls by taking them through the subway at "daredevil" speed — about 20 mph.

It might be hard to prove that the narrow subway is actually a serious barrier to travel to and through Smiths Falls on the Rideau Lakes, but the fact is there are many motorists who would far rather ride a bicycle on the Queensway than take a short trip through the Cornelia Street subway.

It could be quite a while before the actual construction begins. Not only does the plan need approval of outside agencies but it must also withstand a local pressure opposed to the spending of $94,000 on a project that railroad officials are reported to have given a 10-year useful life. One council member has already announced he will run for mayor and supports a different plan for widening the subway which he says is a better value for the taxpayers' money.

If money's a problem, they might consider passing the hat to drivers at the entrance to the subway. There are a lot of drivers who would pay dearly to avoid repeating the experience of the Cornelia Street subway.

UK Mail Service

Watertown Times

Can you imagine receiving a letter the day after it was posted? Or, how about getting one in the afternoon which was mailed that morning?

Unbelievable? Not at all. That is why Great Britain's mail service has little complaint from Britons — and only wide-eyed admiration from visiting Americans.

In London it is a standing rule that every letter should be delivered not later than the day after it is posted. The current rate of compliance with this schedule is 93 per cent — and that — in London there are either two or three deliveries of mail a day, depending on the district, and many letters mailed in the morning are delivered the same afternoon. Parcel post deliveries are almost equally as speedy.

This is exceptional swift service when one considers that mail traffic in the United Kingdom comes to 81,000,000 pieces of mail and 750,000 parcels per day. The London postal area alone covers 1,244 square miles and has an estimated population of 9,286,650 people.

Aberfan Bureaucracy Is the Culprit

Hamilton Spectator

No tribunal report, however scathing, could soothe the sorrows of Ab-rfan. Only bringing back the children buried beneath the slag-heap on October 21st could do that. And that is impossible.

Yet for those who sorrow some grim satisfaction may be derived from the report of the tribunal which investigated the disaster in which 144 persons, among them 116 children, lost their lives.

The report is brutally outspoken, as indeed it should be. There are no whitewashes. There are no fainthearted sign of any attempt to shield a reputation. The National Coal Board, which runs the nationalized mines, is blamed for its laxity, inefficiency and bureaucratic indifference. Back the chairman Lord Robens is name names and castigate individuals it believes deserve it, including Lord Robens, the board chairman.

Where a cruelty is avoidable, responsibility must fall somewhere. Many warnings and danger were ignored. The board chairman must bear the brunt of the blame, but the engineers, planners and officials cannot escape their own sciences.

But embracing all is bureaucracy — smug, smug and complacent, it is the real Aberfan culprit.

BC Inquiry Recommends Electronic Bugging Be Police Role Only

VICTORIA (CP)—Provincial legislation to outlaw eavesdropping, by anyone but police on federal authorities has been recommended by a British Columbia royal commission on invasion of privacy.

The commission, Supreme Court Judge R. A. Sargent, also proposed in a report, Monday that private detectives be permitted to use electronic eavesdropping devices in their work only when they show cause to justify such action in each specific case.

He said the incident English crime of eavesdropping should be revived and updated to meet modern problems and that possession of electronic eavesdropping equipment should be made illegal and with the onus on the accused to show he did not possess it for criminal use.

Mr. Sargent said, however, that police and federal authorities should be allowed to use such devices under controlled conditions in the course of the work.

The commission was established by the B.C. government last November, after a "bugging" device was found in the room of a Vancouver hotel where the Civil and Paper Workers of Canada were holding a convention.

Pat Gibbs, regional organizer for the rival International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers, later admitted he had hired a private detective to spy on the Canadian union. The unions were involved in a jurisdictional battle at a Vancouver Island pulp mill.

Mr. Sargent's report recommended the emancipation of Mr. O'Neal, and accused various officials of the PPWC of duplicity, forceful intimidation and the raiding of the other union's treasury of $40,000.

The report said car dealers who use electronic devices in sales cubicles are guilty of "perverted" business methods. But it endorsed such devices at dance studios and health spas to keep track of members and prevents.

Mr. Sargent, who heard 88 witnesses and more than 100,000 words of testimony during the 37 sitting days of his inquiry, rejected a submission of the civil liberties association of the Canadian Bar Association which questioned the use in court of evidence obtained illegally by police.

He said if the submission were accepted it "would confer on the Canadian criminal the greatest boon he could wish for, and on organized crime it would be laying down a welcome mat —an invitation to come in and set up business."

The report refused to clear the RCMP of complicity in the bugging incident that led to the inquiry. Counsel for the RCMP had asked that the commission find the force in no way involved.

Corporal Harry Read and Constable E. P Ouellette of the RCMP had given O'Neal advice about how to get inside information about the rival union, Mr. Sargent said.

Net income for the railway company and Canadian Pacific Investments totalled $2.24 a share, compared with $3.10 in the corresponding period last year.

Canadian Pacific Investments Ltd. and subsidiary companies reported consolidated income of $6,103,000 or $1.74 a share on income of $9,934,000 for the first six months compared with $5,417,000 and $10,098,000 last year.

Poor Productivity Hobbles Economy

GUELPH (CP)—Canada's performances in world markets is being hobbled by the relatively poor productivity of its industries, John Deutsch, chairman of the Economic Council of Canada, said Monday.

"Over the last 10 or 15 years Canada's rate of improvement in productivity has been slower than for most other industrial countries," he told the joint meeting of the American Farm Economics Association and the Canadian Agricultural Economics Society.

Mr. Deutsch, who retires next month as head of the government-appointed but independent long-range planning body, said only more rapid increases in productivity can bridge the gap in per-capita income between Canada and the U.S.

"Consequently, the Economic Council of Canada has been devoting an increasing amount of its efforts to the task of determining the basic causes of this disappointing performance, and the steps needed to improve it."

An earlier council report, he said, recommended more efficient use of manpower in the economy. Another recommended raising the educational standards of the Canadian labor force.

Mr. Deutsch said the council's next report, expected next month, will stress the need for industry to specialize and to extend production runs.

The main shortcoming of Canadian fiscal policy is in the development of procedures for longer-term planning and co-ordination of government capital outlays and other expenditures, Mr. Deutsch said.

TORONTO STOCKS TODAY

TORONTO (CP)—Speculative issues continued their high-flying ways in heavy morning trading today on the Toronto Stock Exchange and industrials edged higher.

By 11 a.m. volume totalled 1,613,000 shares compared with 1,390,000 at the same time yesterday. Most of the activity resulted from speculative buying.

PCE Explorations, delayed 15 minutes at the request of trade to match buy and sell orders, climbed 11 cents to 2.36 on 113,000 shares after opening at 2.45.

The company is drilling in the Coppermine River area of the Northwest Territories. Last month the company announced it had encountered copper mineralization on the property.

Among other speculatives, Satellite rose 8 to 74 cents on 162,000 shares and Midrim 10 cents to 1.80 on 140,000 shares.

Industrials moved fractionally higher after three consecutive days of decline.

Inco gained 1 to 104½, Levy ⅛ to 29 and Dofasco ¼ to 25½. CPR, which fell ¼ Monday, dropped 1¼ to 70¾ after the company announced lower six months earnings compared with the similar period last year.

On index, industrials were up .11 to 170.99, golds .44 to 176.24, base metals .28 to 102.87 and western oils .32 to 197.83.

Biafran Capital Bombed

LAGOS (Reuters)—Nigerian Air Force planes bombed the secessionist Biafran capital of Enugu Monday as federal troops advanced on the mid-western capital of Benin, capturing by Biafran troops last week.

Radio Nigeria, which said the air raid caused considerable damage, quoted a federal government spokesman as saying there was panic "all over the eastern region."

Meanwhile, the federal army, attacking on several fronts, was converging on the town of Benin, the radio said.

Nigeria's federal claims by Biafra radio that secessionist forces were 40 miles beyond the midwest in their advance into northern Nigeria and that three northern Nigerian towns already had fallen.

Biafra Radio claimed the troops had made a spectacular advance towards the Niger and Benue rivers from their mid-western stronghold during the weekend.

Police here were reported to be taking flak—the main tribe in Biafra—into protective custody because of anti-Eastern feeling which continued at a high level following the Easterners' advance into the midwest.

Announce New Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids...and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes, and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissue.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

Among these case histories were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief even occurred in cases of long standing, and most important of all, results were so thorough that this improvement may months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly heals and relieves pain and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination painful. It helps prevent infection which is a principal cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with applicator). Satisfaction or your money back.

One in 10 Students Defaults

OTTAWA (CP)—One in 10 university students with federally-guaranteed bank loans is reported to be in default after three years operation of the plan.

Loans made to students in need of help financing university or post-secondary education now total $30,000,000, and about $1,000,000 is in default, a source says.

Under the plan passed by Parliament, students should start repaying their loans with interest at least six months after graduation. The loans are interest-free while students remain in school.

The department is issuing a new student loan brochure making the terms of the loans clearer and impressing students with their responsibility to pay them off.

All Drivers Get Right To Pick Insurance Firm

TORONTO (CP)—Delegates from most of the more than 200 insurance companies operating in Ontario unanimously approved Monday proposed changes in the assigned risk plan due to go into effect Sept. 15.

The delegates, meeting with the All Canada Insurance Federation, examined clause - by - clause the changes which would give individual drivers the right to choose their own company when buying insurance.

Until now only a few companies would insure drivers with bad driving records at premiums of up to $1,800.

Under the new system, companies would form a re-insurance pool to spread the risk assigning $5 per cent to the pool with 15 per cent retained by individual company.

Premiums will be set at a maximum of $600 and extra charges based on the driver's record would be limited to $300 above the regular premium.

Another feature of the proposed plan is very limited coverage for poor-risk drivers, including collision insurance, up to $100,000 liability insurance and $25-deductible comprehensive coverage.

The proposed changes would end an insurance company's right to refuse to renew insurance, give only limited coverage to bad risks, or cancel contracts before the end of their terms.

South African Girl Reclassified as White

PRETORIA (AP)—An 11-year-old South African girl once accepted as white, then reclassified as colored or mulatto, has been reclassified as a white.

Sandra Laing's parents were listed as white under South Africa's racial classifications, but the girl was called colored because of her dark appearance. Police removed her from the whites-only school she attended.

The father, Abraham Laing, spent about $3,000 in legal costs pursuing the case through an unsuccessful appeal to the Pretoria Supreme Court.

Now the secretary of interior has ruled that descent and not appearance is the deciding factor in such cases.

Sandra wants to go back to school but is unlikely to re-enter the Piet Retief School where schoolmates taunted her about her appearance. The father said the family may move to another town for a fresh start.

Traditional Indian Costumes Paraded at Expo Style Show

MONTREAL (CP)—An explosion of color highlighted India's costumes, presented Monday at a sneak press preview of a fashion show to be held today at Expo 67, marking the 20th anniversary of India's independence.

The fashions reflect the skill and tradition of the Indian weaver, said Ayesha Baing, show moderator at India's pavilion.

"The rich resources of natural fibres, vegetable dyes that put the rainbow to shame, the skill of ages . . . and the labor of love are the story of Indian textiles and costumes."

India's famed Dacca muslin is a web so fine that a roll of five yards passes through a wedding ring effortlessly, said Miss Baig.

With the subtle strains of Indian music in the background, the pavilion's hostess es paraded a brilliant array of costumes worn in various parts of India for different occasions.

Outstanding was a bridal ensemble in a deep shocking pink. The outfit was lavishly trimmed with gold, further enhanced by an abundance of heavy gold jewelry which included the traditional forehead decoration and the jewelled nose ring.

"The nose ring does not symbolize slavery of anything like that," model Poornima Sahlani said with a laugh. "It is merely decorative and is worn traditionally by all Indian brides."

The Indian sari is complete contrast with the loosely-fitted saris modelled by other girls. The banjara consists of a swirling skirt in a vivid design, and a short blouse heavily appliqued with tiny colored mirrors. Silver jewelry and a necklace of silver coins is also typical.

The sari, recognized as the national costume of the Indian woman, is a length of material, six yards long and 45 inches wide. What surprises a Westerner is how the sari remains in place, considering it is neither pinned nor sewn.

The length of the sari is tucked into an ankle-length slip, taken round right to left and pleated at the front. The rest of the length is draped around the body once again and left loose over the left shoulder.

RUMOR

There is a rumor circulating in this area that Cherney's Furniture World will be selling VILAS FURNITURE, this coming Thursday at 20% LESS THAN THE FACTORY LIST PRICE.

This "story" is true — with reservations. The offer is one of many you will find in Cherney's Semi-Annual Inventory Sale circular. Watch for your copy! It's in the mail!

VILAS DINING ROOMS... BEDROOMS AND OCCASIONAL PIECES

Today each of the more than two hundred pieces created by Vilas is obvious testimony to yesterday's painstaking craftsmanship. You'll note the dovetailed centre-guided drawers with dust-proof dividers; you'll admire the authentic colonial styling with corners and edges "worn" to stimulate age and wear; you'll welcome the hand-rubbed finishes that enhance the mellow beauty of the natural wood grains. These are but a few of the fine features that will give you pride of ownership when you choose furniture bearing the "Pursued-la" Vilas trade mark — symbol of true craftsmanship.

Opposition to Women in Clergy Comes Mostly From Other Women

REGINA (CP)—Opposition to women in the clergy comes mostly from other women, says Rev. Joyce Reese of Morse, Sask.

Miss Reese, 37, is one of Saskatchewan's seven women ordained in the United Church of Canada.

"We women ministers have found that it is much easier to communicate with men in the congregation," she said. "However, the male minister is much more successful in dealing with female parishioners.

"To a woman minister, women are our biggest problem. They feel we are imposing on an area restricted only to men."

The dark-haired woman, who became no clerical collar, is to leave Canada soon for five years' work in rural north India.

She says women can provide new approaches to church problems in areas men are not as well accepted.

"If a male social worker, or a minister, would set foot into a native hut, he'd likely be rejected, whereas women are much more welcome.

"Town bachelors and suspicious women sometimes pose problems to the single woman minister, but on the whole we're still accepted by our congregations."

School Start Made

TORONTO (CP) — Sod was turned in July for the Queen Vadis school of nursing on the grounds of Queensway General Hospital. Parent-child Rejection Leads To Family Squabbles

Dear Doris: Why can't I get along with my parents? I've tried so hard. Tonight I told them I was going to the show. Well, my girl friend came along, so we went for a milk shake then she decided to go home to get something.

She was to come right back, and she did, screaming that some guy was chasing her. Then her boy friend came along in his car, and looked, but he saw no one. We drove around with him for a while.

Then I came home. I made up my mind to tell them the truth, but as soon as I stepped in the door, out came a long line of lies, with a big fight after.

Why didn't I tell the truth? I know that when I don't they can tell anyway. Of course, I inherited my father's horrible temper and we both yell at nothing, and we always end up fighting.

I can't ever beg my mother. They think I hate them. I don't, but to beg Mum, I don't know why, but it just seems so repulsive. I know it hurts her, but can't they ever see that it hurts me, too, to think there may be something abnormal about me? — Always Making Scenes

Dear Scenes: Why those first lies, away back? To keep out of trouble! Instead, you went on the defensive. Was it a rivalry with younger brother or sister? Or just a feeling of never learned self-control?

I'd say you rejected Mum and Dad because they seemed to reject you. How can you beg a person whose affection and confidence are unreliable?

You're not abnormal — but greatly in need of someone to talk things over with. Find a counselor; maybe a trusted school teacher or nurse. Or girls' worker.

Dear Doris: Do you have anything on hand care? Suddenly last night when I was playing bridge I noticed how old and dried up my hands looked. I rushed to hide them under the table before anyone saw them. — Fiftyish

Dear Fiftyish: They tell me a woman keeping house washes her hands about 16 times a day. This means manicures are scarcely have a chance to replace themselves between dunkings.

Hands become blue-veined and muscular with much use, Nails split. Knuckles wrinkle. The wonderful thing is that at just about any stage they will respond to care and good grooming. They need creams, massage, manicures, exercise and work gloves.

I'm sending you my leaflet, "Do Your Hands Speak Well of You?" which was done for us by a beauty expert. It gives chapter and verse about what to do. (Available to readers sending in ten cents and a large, five-cent-stamped envelope.)

Dear Doris: Leaving God out of the history of man's creation reminds me of a little jingle:

"First he was a tadpole, beginning to begin,

DORIS CLARK

Then he was a frog with his tail tucked in;

Now he's a monkey in a coconut tree;

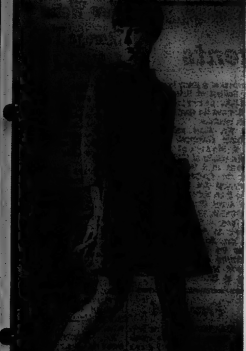
Now he's a professor with his Ph.D." — Mr. F. J. D.

Dear Mr. F. J. D.: The way you put it, it sounds like sleight of hand!

Doris knows Canadian resources and can guide you to the help you need. Write to her, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON



Mother: "We had to bring Julie in for some stitches in her leg. The mower picked up a stone and it hit her. We're lucky it wasn't her face."

Protect children from potential dangers even if accidents don't seem very likely to happen.

Don't let children walk, run or play close to the area where you are using a power mower. A rotary mower can hurt a stone with the speed of a bullet.

New for Fall

Cardin designed this afternoon dress in pure wool shetland plaid with roll collar, yoke cut on the straight and two patch pockets cleverly placed to follow the bias cut of the skirt.

Family Sails Around World

VICTORIA (CP)—Ron Robins was last in Victoria 10 years ago and he spent half that time getting back.

He and his wife Barbara took the long route—via Suez, Panama and Hawaii—in their 36-foot sloop-rigged sail craft.

"We've been in places where they would steal the fillings out of your teeth, but we didn't lose a thing," Mr. Roberts said when he returned to his home-town recently.

In fact, they gained a son-in-law when their daughter Patricia married last year when their cruise took them to the American Virgin Islands in the West Indies.

Mr. Roberts, a former army major, retired in Saigon where he was with the Vietnam International Control Commission and decided to take up sailing.

They set out from Singapore in 1962 and went through the Malacca Straits, to Penang, across the Indian Ocean to Ceylon and then through the Suez Canal.

The family spent two years in the Mediterranean before heading west to the Caribbean, the Panama Canal and Hawaii. They left Hawaii for Victoria in May.

They had no radio navigation throughout their world voyage which was done completely under sail, Mr. Roberts said with obvious pride.

"We have a chronometer and a sextant that's older than me," he noted.

The ship's small auxiliary motor was only used to charge batteries. By sailing in such a fix position they were able to maintain course for long periods of time.

"Once we sailed for four full days that way," said the skipper.

And although Victoria is home, the sea is still calling.

"We'll spend the summer here and then head for the Caribbean where it's warmer," said Mrs. Roberts.

Husband Should Pay Bills

VANCOUVER (CP)—That's a husband should pay all bills, says Lillian McCracken of Vancouver, president of Credit Women-International.

"I think the man of the family should actually write the cheques," she says. "It gives a man more independence. He likes to think he's the head of the family and has a right to say, and unless he really can't balance books he should do it."

Mrs. McCracken, an expert on credit and bill-paying, says her husband handles the books in the McCracken household despite her qualifications.

No matter who writes the cheques, she says, any family should be on a budget.

"The average family operates on some sort of budget and they usually know how much they're spending, but there are always some who don't, unfortunately."

Mrs. McCracken, who has worked for the Credit Bureau of Vancouver for 13 years, also had some words of wisdom for budget-conscious families.

"Credit payments shouldn't exceed the 25-per-cent mark of incoms that leaves enough for food, shelter and health."

STAR SKATER CHOSEN

WINNIPEG (CP) — Speed skater Doreen McConnell of Winnipeg was selected sports woman - of - the - year by the Sports Writers and Broadcasters Association of Greater Winnipeg. The 19-year-old skater, who is Canada's women's champion and Manitoba's outstanding female athlete of 1966, was selected over 10 other entrants.

Big Families Holiday Together

EDMONTON (CP)—Fourteen kids are twice as much fun as seven, say the Barnes and MacLennan families, since a radio broadcast accidentally introduced them.

A story from Edmonton last week described Dave and Elaine Barnes's carefully organized ski trips with their seven children. They told of their preparations for a trailer trip across Canada this summer.

In Sydney, N.S., 3,500 miles away, Dr. N. K. MacLennan heard the story and was "fascinated by curiosity."

His family also had seven children, all eldest; they were planning a centennial trailer tour. He wrote a letter extending an invitation.

The prairie family plan to join their Maritime hosts and travel Cape Breton Island's Cabot Trail in August.

On July the MacLennans came to Edmonton and were shown Jasper and Banff national parks and the Calgary Stampede in a two-family tour that Mrs. Barnes says looked like "a travelling circus."

"We had 14 kids, four adults, two trailers and one three-legged dog," she said. "These children are eight to 13; ours are five to 15, so it was perfect. They got along like shaved buddies.

"We built a snowman at the top of Whistler Mountain and had a snowball fight at the Columbia icefields.

"We got a special family rate on the chairlift at Whistler. The attendant didn't believe it, but he could only see four parents."

In the evenings, the children took over one trailer for ghost stories, while their parents absorbed the peace and quiet of the other.

Because even for the best-organized families, 14 kids are a lot.

"We never had our own family aboard," says Mrs. Barnes. "But we tried to keep seven in each car."

Teaching Aids Distract Some Children

TORONTO (CP)—Bulletin boards, bright posters and interesting targets in the middle of a lesson distract children with learning disorders and interfere with their ability to learn, Dr. S. D. Clements of Little Rock, Ark., said Friday.

He was speaking during the final day of a five-day workshop on minimal brain dysfunction in children attended by about 700 parents, teachers and professional people.

Dr. Clements, director of child guidance at the University of Arkansas medical center, said children with minimal brain dysfunction have trouble receiving, transforming and transmitting sensory data.

Give special teaching, most of them can overcome their disability.

Dr. Clements said he favors a system that allows children to attend special classes for part of the day and regular classes the rest of the time.

Belgian Beer-stewed Beef Is Popular Dish at Expo 67

By MARY MOORE

The chefs at the national building restaurants at Expo guard their recipes with their lives.

Sam Andrews is an exception for he gave us the recipe for Atlantic Clam Chowder, which I passed on to you on June 5th.

Before I went to Expo (for the third time) in July news had reached me that a dish called Carbonnade was stealing the limelight at the Belgian Pavilion and that at Prahs in the Czechoslovakia Restaurant Pork Stewed in Beer with Dumplings was ever so popular.

I have tried to lay my hands on both of these recipes and have been only half successful I have the recipe for

1 tbsp. flour
1 tsp. sugar
½ cup undiluted canned beef consumme
1 cup light beer

¼ tsp. pepper
1 bay leaf (or 1 tsp. whole, mixed pickling spice)

Dinner Menu

Oven-Fried Chicken Legs; Fluffy Rice; New Green Peas; Sliced Tomatoes with Parsley Mayonnaise; Peaches and Cream; Coffee.

In Dutch oven or large heavy frying pan (see note below) that has a tight-fitting cover, melt butter. Add 1 or 2 slices of meat and sear until meat is well browned on both sides. Continue until all meat is browned, removing slices as they are done and set aside. Add onions to pan and fry until limp. Stir in flavor and sugar and saute until golden. Stir in consomme and beer and return meat to pan. Add salt, pepper and bay leaf (or pickling spices), cover tightly and simmer 3½ hrs. Serves 6 to 8. Serve with noodles or boiled potatoes.

NOTES: 1) Carbonnade may be cooked in large pressure cooker at 6 or 7 lbs. pressure for 2 hrs.

2) This meat is tender and rich and similar to a well-made pot roast in flavor.

3) At Le Bruxelles Restaurant in the Belgian Pavilion at Expo it is $8 per order.

Amateur Masseuse Is Risking Reputation

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was a student nurse for two years but dropped out. While in training I learned to give massages. It was the part of nursing I liked best and I was very good at it.

ANN LANDERS

Within the week, two of his friends called and asked if I would give them massages — for money, of course. I enjoy massaging and I'm always short of money. I agreed.

Before long the word got around and I developed five steady customers. But here is the problem. A woman at the office told me I could get arrested for massaging without a license. Also she claims it is against the law to massage a person of the opposite sex.

Will you please advise me? — MAGIC FINGERS.

DEAR MAGIC: If you are interested in massaging as a career, complete your training and be a full-time physical therapist. State laws vary and you may or may not be breaking the law depending on a number of factors which I won't go into here.

In my opinion any girl who values her reputation is foolish to have a part-time massage parlor in her apartment. She may be completely innocent but it looks horrible and she sets herself up as a target for a lot of ugly talk.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Bless you for printing letters from people who are fighting against mental illness. You have no idea how much strength and encouragement I have received from those letters and from your compassionate and encouraging comments.

I, too, am fighting to stay balanced and it is far more agonizing than trying to conquer T.B. or cancer or heart disease. Friends, relatives and neighbors have sympathy for persons who are physically ill, but they consider people with emotional problems dangerous or nasty characters who must be handled with care lest they snap and perform some act of violence.

This is only part of it. Imagine scrubbing movies or church or parties because you are afraid of crowds. How does one explain that he can't go because he is afraid he will get dizzy or nauseated or the chest pains will start?

Please continue to educate your readers to the hell that is part of emotional illness. It could be them next. — HALF WAY BACK.

DEAR HALF WAY: You sound as if you are more than half way back. Congratulations. And you are right when you say, "It could be them next." Each person has his own threshold of tolerance and no one knows for certain just how much stress he can take without cracking. Thank you for writing.

Logexpo At Loggerheads with U.S. Travel Agents

NEW YORK (CP)—The American Society of Travel Agents said Monday complaints about accommodation for visitors to Expo 67 in Montreal are mounting and "as effective progress has, to date, been made to rectify them."

George Fichtenbaum, executive director of the society, said in a statement the society has sought "repeatedly" to direct Logexpo's attention to the deplorable practices involving Expo housing.

He said Robert Shaw, deputy commissioner-general of Expo, has sought unfairly to make a scapegoat of the travel agency industry because of the legitimate complaints of visitors to Expo who received shockingly inferior accommodations at outrageous prices, on referral by Logexpo," of the Expo lodging service

". . . Mr. Shaw has resorted to attacks upon the travel agency industry, claiming that travel agents were diverting prospective Montreal visitors to other areas because they, the agents, were not receiving commissions."

Fichtenbaum said this charge was "unfounded, untrue and unjustified."

"What is urgently needed is not self - governing justification," the statement said, "but action" to correct a disgraceful situation."

In Montreal, Mr. Shaw said it was obvious that Mr. Fichtenbaum "had not read my statement before issuing his own." He could give him a copy immediately."

Mr. Shaw said that while he had referred to "some" travel agents who steered their customers away from Expo, he had also said that "many reputable agents have been most helpful and have used Logexpo intelligently."

"I have had too much co-operation from travel agents all over the world not to agree basically with the director of the American Society of Travel Agents."

MONTREAL (CP)—The Soviet Union, the only country with more territory than Canada, marks its national day with a wide-ranging program at Expo 67 today.

Premier Johnson said, with pardonable pride:

"The place for today's ceremony at Expo's Place des Nations emphasized the very diversity that Mr. Johnson described—the area was virtually flooded with flags. For Russia, like Canada, 1967 is a festive year—the 50th anniversary of the revolution. Apart from the flags of the 81 sovereign participating countries which normally fly at one end of the open amphitheatre, the program featured a parade by 190 members of a group known as the Festival of Nations of the U.S.S.R., carrying the Soviet flag and the flags of the 15 Soviet republics.

While Mr. Shaw and Mr. Fichtenbaum exchanged statements, a Montreal judge imposed a penalty of $1,700 plus court costs on a woman who violated the Quebec Lodging Houses Control Act in renting rooms to Expo visitors.

Judge Alfred Chevalier fined Sylvia Schoner, 39, for her failure to post certification and rate cards in the rooms she rented. Mrs. Schoner testified she was too busy with the administration of the Montreal apartments to check on the postings in individual rooms.

Quebec is seeking constitutional changes recognizing "its both province" as the "mother land of the French - Canadian nation," Mr. Johnson said, with powers to deal with other nations.

New Water Storage Tank Is Needed

DESERONTO — Deseronto Town Council had some bad news last week when it learned that it must purchase a new storage water tank. The present one has been repeatedly repaired, but is now in such bad shape that a new one must be installed.

Clerk-treasurer Joseph Reynolds was instructed to advertise for tenders for a new tank.

A by-law was passed authorizing assistance to elderly people in the payment of taxes should such assistance be requested. On the death of people who have received this assistance, the taxes unpaid when due are collected from the estate, according to the new federal law.

The report of the welfare committee showed that there is little decrease in the number of people receiving welfare. Unemployment is higher than usual this summer.

The resignation of Hughie Burns as an employee of the streets department was received with regret. A replacement was discussed but no definite action was suggested. No action was taken.

During the two summer months only one meeting of council is held monthly. In September the custom of two regular meetings monthly will be resumed.

Sewer Construction Will Start in Spring

DESERONTO — "yor Gerald J. Lott state . t once a suitable "rental re..." has been arrived at by the Ontario Water Resources Commission and approved by town council, construction can proceed with the sewers.

Under a new provincial scheme, the Ontario government pays the full bill and the town "rents" the sewers from them until they are paid for.

Mayor Lott was of the opinion that since autumn is quickly approaching, it will probably be spring before construction can start. However, at that time, as previously reported, the sewers for the whole town will be installed rather than the step-at-a-time plan originally envisaged.

Centennial Parade To Mark Park Opening

DESERONTO — The official Centennial Park opening is Saturday, August 19th. Proceedings get under way with a Centennial Parade that leaves the old high school grounds at 2.15 p.m. There will be upwards of 20 units and floats, and three or four bands in attendance.

The ribbon cutting ceremony and dedication ceremonies are next at 4.30 p.m. with all churches to be represented.

People would be wise to bring a box supper to the new Centennial Park so that none of the events will be missed. There will be free pop and balloons for the children.

Following the official opening is a Centennial Fashion Show and old time Bathing Costume contest under the direction of Mrs. T. L. McCullough.

A talent contest, in the early evening, is being arranged by Mrs. M. L. Deller and Mrs. Chas. Griffiths.

Included in the evenings events are: a ski show by the Quinte Belles, along the waterfront; an old time and modern dancing; a Bingo game and concluding with a Mammoth Fireworks display at 11.30 p.m.

A special contest, in connection with this day, is a photo contest, judging to be done by Mrs. Dave Saunders. The best group of five pictures of the days events will be chosen winner. Contest will close two weeks after the "Centennial" Park opening.

At 8.00 p.m. a Civic Dinner for officials and visiting dignitaries is to be held in the Legion Hall. Approximately 75 guests are expected.

On Watch for Satellites

Future astronauts may find themselves on candid cameras when they pass over North America. This huge Baker-Nunn camera at Cold Lake, Alta., 180 miles northeast of Edmonton, can photograph light reflected from an object the size of a basketball 50,000 miles away. The camera is the most sensitive and precise instrument in NORAD's satellite detection and tracking network.

Cinerama Screen Being Used For First Time by Director

MADRID (AP)—The dark, unassuming young man rattled Spanish with fluent ease and seemed like one of the native workers on the movie set.

But he was the director, and he comes from the San Fernando Valley in California. His name: Bernard Kowalski.

The director was rehearsing a climactic scene for East of Java with his principal players: Maximilian Schell, Diane Baker, Rossano Brazzi, Sal Mineo and Barbara Werle. Speaking in quiet tones, he drilled them in their lines again and again until he was satisfied.

Bernie Kowalski sat in a corner of the set and mused about the massive change in his career as a film maker:

"Until this time I have been dealing with the small screen. Now for my first feature I've got the biggest screen of all."

A television veteran, Kowalski now faces the challenge of the limitless possibilities of Cinerama, in which East of Java is being filmed. Having titillated the public with everything from roller coaster rides to speed-car racing, the Cinerama people are going all-out in this one.

Everything is included, from hurricanes to underwater explosions to balloon ascension, ending with the eruption of the volcano Krakatoa, right there on the big cinerama screen.

You might think that at this would overwhelm Bernie Kowalski, who trained in Perry Mason and Rawhide. Not at all.

"I've been in the picture business for 21 years," he reckons.

"So I'm ready for anything that comes along."

Bernie started as an actor when he was five.

He became a director during the explosion of TV series filming.

He developed into a specialist in pilot films and scored an amazing 1,000 batting average in his last four: Mission: Impossible, Rat Patrol, The Monroes and next season's N.Y.P.D.

"That seemed to impress the Cinerama people, who were looking for a young director who could handle what looked like a pretty difficult picture," said the director.

He moved his wife and four children to Madrid to prepare for what did indeed turn out to be a difficult picture. Miniatures of the Krakatoa explosion already have been filmed in Italy. Kowalski began principal photography aboard a 100-year-old freighter called the Batavia Queen in the Mediterranean.

"We had more than our share of problems, because you can't control such varying conditions of weather, sea, children and animals," said Kowalski. "But nearly everyone here up under very trying circumstances. My wife was threatened only four times."

He found that his television background proved invaluable for improvising under pressure. It also helped that he could communicate immediately with the Spanish crew; he spoke Spanish at home during his childhood.

A Family Affair

Joanne McNevin is a member of a well-known Belleville family which shares common interest in classy riding stock. Mare and foal show horses also have family interest in the McNevin stables.

Not So Rusty!

This three-year-old pony is Rusty alright — but that's only the affectionate name given by its owner, Susan Boyce, of Cherry Gardens. Its form is another matter — to be tested at Belleville Fair.

Women Take Major Role in Show

A happy band of young people early today were touching mystal spurs to the heels of time — impatiently waiting the opening events of Belleville Fair.

With the starting signal, fairgoers are in for one of the more graceful, visual side benefits of the big, five-day event.

The pleasure comes from watching a combination in action: girl plus horse.

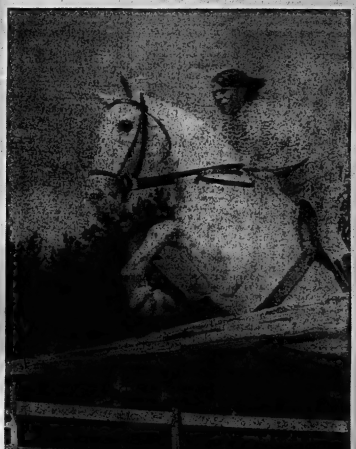
Horse-dealing may still be a matter for men, but when it comes to displaying the breeds, the women may be coming up fast.

Evidence of this is the number of girls and young women around the Quinte district whose first love seems centred on the quadruped.

It's a growing phenomenon, with the interest growing each year.

It could be a side effect of the industrial revolution, with young men's fancies being more technologically inclined.

Whatever the cause, the result is increasingly in evidence at such events as Belleville Fair, with more and more girls competing for top prizes in many classes.



It's also a happy result for fairgoers, who seem to find their imagination quickened by the sight of challenge being met with a feminine touch.

Tonight, spectators will have an opportunity to see how skilful that touch can be.

Feature opening night will be the Eastern Ontario Gymkhana Championships and western horse show.

With the biggest entry in all classes of any Belleville fair in history, the number of girl riders also is bound to be up — up and riding with the best of 'em.

Western Horse Show Attracts the Girls

Riverboat Has Touch of New Orleans

A new departure in theatre arrives in Belleville August 19 — by water.

It is Theatre de L'Escale, latest inspiration of Quebec's cultural revolution and — at present — probably the most inspired theatrical venture in Canada.

It's all a matter of environment, since:

(1) The theatre is no landbased establishment, but sails between centres aboard ship — a converted ferry.

(2) It's auditorium is only the centrepiece of a self-contained establishment with bars, a restaurant and cabaret.

The overall effect seeks to exemplify graceful, cultured living, with the necessary air detachment emphasized by its shipboard atmosphere.

Thus far, the sophisticated craft has run up nothing but success signals since its launching at Montreal May 28.

But the story goes back nearly five years earlier, when the ferry Arthur Cardin was tied up in the ice at Sorel. The idea of converting the ferry to a floating theatre was first conceived by actor Lionel Villeneuve.

His enthusiasm was matched by comrades - in - theatre George Carrere and Pierre Dufresne.

Private and public agencies caught the inspiration, with the Quebec government, the Centennial Commission and Quebec businessmen donating the necessary conversion funds.

Top priority, of course, went on the playing area, focal centre of the floating theatre.

What evolved as a fully-equipped stage and an auditorium seating nearly 530 patrons.

The one-time ferry thus qualified for its new occupation.

It has been drawing enthusiastic audiences in the St. Lawrence River area ever since it weighed anchor nearly 10 weeks ago.

When it visits Belleville — and Trenton the following night — a typical night's program for the visitor should go something like this:

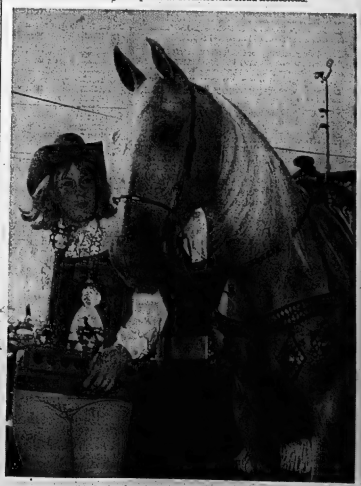
At 5 p.m., the restaurant opens. With places for 80 at one sitting, the establishment caters to a variety of tastes, with the emphasis on French cuisine.

Then, over to one of the bars for an interlude of relaxation before the theatre curtain rises at 8:30 p.m.

The play to be seen here will be a three-act comedy, Appelez moi Amedee, including in its cast Lionel Villeneuve, Gilles Pelletier, Andree Lachapelle, and Pierre Dufresne.

To assist members of the audience to follow the play's action and dialogue, its situations will be outlined in English preceding each act.

Following the play, patrons then may round out the evening with a rendezvous at the cabaret — or, pub — seating 125, relax and listen to music.



Over a final drink, some might ponder a historical footnote:

The first significant voyage down the Bay of Quinte also originated in Quebec — as Champlain discovered the waterway.

It was a long journey. The graceful arrival of L'Escale, in its own, may locally signify how far Canadians have come in that time.

Nautical Lines

Members of the cast of Theatre de l'Escale are captured during a highlight of play to be presented this weekend on their converted ferry boat.

Can A Horse Dream?

If so, Little Joe, favorite mount of Jane Parm, Cannifton Road, may well be sharing thoughts with owner of winning prize like Bishop's Seeds trophy at Belleville Fair tonight.

SPORTS SLICES

By Geo. H. Carver

What price glory? Bobby Hull knows it — and it's a very good price, at that.

Tonight Bobby and brother Dennis step into the exalted ranks of VIP's who ever a century have cut a ribbon in Toronto's open-air Exhibition Park.

What fair directors claim to be the best exhibition since ever a century ago when the farmer boys and gals drove in an ox-drawn wagon gate under way tonight and Bobby and brother Dennis will give it the green light.

It is a fine attribute to the National Hockey League stars with Dennis in the novice role and brother Bobby taking another public appearance in his stride.

Bobby gets more gains a lot further for hockey off-season. He has more requests for a public appearance than a movie starlet or one has for photographs. But he never forgets the down area. Jerry Toy of Quebec never suffers if they used Robert Marvin Hull. I hear he and Dennis will play softball with the 83 Dominion teams against Ellis Seniors at the Alamito on August 30 starting 7.30.

Millionaire golfer Arnold Palmer I read recently occupies second place with Bobby Hull by just edging as many irons in the enterprise fire than I am." Palmer had temps in cheek.

Bill Durnell in his Toronto Star column a while back recalls Stewart Marvin Hall, executive president of Bobby Hull Enterprises (Toronto, New York and Big Island in the Bay of Quinte) left 28,000 holes at bay in the field and 200 Hereford as the price he could shoot a bit of golf a few weeks ago in Toronto."

"This was succession," wrote Bill, "The Lido course, Rounds Road and Hillcrest Golf Club are the fringe jewels. When he appears at the Lido, it's His when he poses for the slick paper magazines in a Jantzen swim suit."

Wally Conboy who owns the Lido said "Bobby is a part owner. We gave him a piece of it because we want him to lead his score to 3 — and his pocket too. The best way to do it was have him join us."

Apparently there is quite a difference between a hockey goal net and a golf fairway. Dennis checked out Hull is far less accurate with a golf ball than with a hockey puck. He hits the ball long enough. It's his direction which is bad. They don't build the fairways wide enough."

The Black Hawks will open training camp on September 11 at the Chicago Stadium. That happens to be the day of a big production gala at St. Andrew's, Que. Bobby, his partner, Ralph Richards, and another breeder, Jack Dodds, will consign more than half the stock in that sale — 52 head of polled Herefords.

"I'd like to get a week off training camp so we can clean up the business of that sale," Bobby mentioned. "If I don't get it? I'd have to take it anyway I guess. Training camp is dragged out much longer than it need be."

Hull is satisfied by the reminder that hockey still is his main product. Hockey is why he has Herefords. That's why he gets paid to wear a certain hockey suit. That's why he needs Bobby Hull Enterprises to keep his business affairs neat and tidy.

Arnold Palmer was one man who discovered that his television commitments, his manufacturing concerns and his dry cleaning plants were keeping him away from the golf course. His game suffered. So his fame suffered. Had the head of Hull Enterprises thought of that?

"I have," he answered, "and I can't get upset. Remember the training season of 1966? It was the year I missed part of the camp because of the argument over barring my kids from the rink. That season, I got 14 goals. (Shortly an all-time Mark.)

"Last fall, I scarcely trained at all because of that injury to my hip. It got so bad I simply couldn't skate. Maybe I didn't set another record. But it wasn't what you'd call a bad season. I got 52 goals.

'Mad' Stamps Seek Vengeance

CALGARY (CP)—The Stampeders, still brooding from their 21-16 loss to Winnipeg Blue Bombers, were a team bent on vengeance as they practised strenuously for the tonight's game with Saskatchewan Roughriders.

"Lousy football," was Stamp coach Jerry Williams assessment of the Bomber game, and his annoyance appears to have spilled off on his Western Football Conference club, co-favored with the Riders to win the Western title this year.

"I wouldn't like to be playing for Saskatchewan . . .," said Terry Evanshen, an attitude that several Stampeders echoed in the locker room. It was evident their pride had to be soothed after they fumbled away the Winnipeg game.

But Saskatchewan coach Eagle Day simply shrugged off the threats against his defending Canadian champions as those of a team hungry "after a game like that one in Winnipeg."

A win by the Stampeders tonight would put them in a three-way tie for first place with Saskatchewan and Winnipeg. The Riders and Bombers are currently 2-0 while Calgary is 1-1 on season's play.

Roughriders have been hit hard by injuries for tonight's game at the right end spot, where Jim Letcavits is out with torn knee ligaments and backup man Jim Carphin with an eye injury.

Keys said Monday Worden could be out for six weeks or eight months.

Garner Ekstran was to go both ways but had a leg injury. However, he didn't appear too troubled during a light workout Monday and Keys's only comment on the condition was: "He'll be playing."

Jerry Campbell, who suffered a knee injury against B.C. Lions two weeks ago, was to return to his left corner linebacking slot, starting Monday man Ron Payne back to right defensive end.

Halfback Lee Sparks is out with a pulled groin and Roughriders were without defensive back Larry Dumelie who suffered a torn calf muscle.

CPGA Starts Pro-Am Today

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP)—The Canadian Professional Golfers' Association, preparing for its 50th championship Thursday, swings over today for the tournament of 288 players.

Practice rounds occupied the St. Catharines Golf Club course Monday when a hole-in-one by Al Nelson of Vancouver supplied the highlight.

Several name players were said to arrive for the pro-am tournament Tuesday — Tony Kandeon and Al Balding of Toronto and WIN Homenuk of Winnipeg, all former CPGA champions.

Veteran Stan Leonard of Vancouver arrived Monday too late for a practice round.

The championship tournament sends professionals into action paired with celebrity amateurs in a 54-hole, medal play show starting at all holes.

Leonard is paired with Charles Bronfman, president of the National Hockey League, Kandeon with N. E. Hardy, a Toronto businessman and Homenuk playing with Art Jackson of St. Catharines.

The 54-hole CPGA championship, with a record entry of 213, opens Thursday with top prize money of $2,000.

Senior players, those more than 50, will compete at the Rosedale Golf Club, Toronto, in their top money of $600. Their conference is champion-ship play is optional.

Nelson's ace Monday came on the par-three, 136-yard fourth hole. He holed out with a six iron.

Pressure On Lightfoots

Warnermen Nip Stinsons

Stewart Warner put the pressure on Lightfoots for the Commercial Softball League's final playoff spot last night.

The red - hot Warnermen nipped Stinson Construction 7-6 in Amalgamated last night to tie Lightfoots in fourth place.

But the matter is now out of Stewart Warner's hands.

They have completed their scheduled games while Lightfoots meet the weak Tibi Club squad in one of tonight's final games at Alexandra Park. Lightfoot win will eliminate Stewart Warner. Black Diamond City Club will find for top spot with Stinson's, tangle in the other game.

Stewart Warner made a scoreless tie with seven runs in the top of the fifth last night then held on as Stinson's bagged three in their half, two in the sixth and one in the seventh to nearly pull out the win.

A near riot occurred in the bottom of the sixth when plate umpire "Widge" Adams called Stinson runner Franklin Donovan out after catcher Chuck Rowbotham fumbled the ball. Adams claimed Donovan had deliberately knocked the ball out of the catcher's hands", according to the game report. Stinson catcher Jyle Thompson had been ejected from the game in the fifth inning and pitcher Larry Hall followed him in the sixth.

Doug Sills pitched the win, allowing seven hits, fanning five and walking five. The winners also collected seven hits off loser Bob Boyle and relievers Hall and Frank "Junior" Ash.

Gary Gow paced the winners' attack with a home run and double. Jim Sopha, Floyd Crawford, Dave Reid, Ellis and Cliff Hileman also hit safely. Donovan had two hits, one a double, and Jack O'Neil singled twice for Stinson's. Bob Boyle, Doug Reid and Jack "Deacon" Whiting added losers.

After 12 Years

Trainer Quits Smythe!

PORT ERIE (CP)—One of the most profitable and lasting associations in thoroughbred racing will end with the Woodbine season Oct. 21.

After 12 years of steady success, Trainer Johnny Starr is leaving the stables of Conn Smythe.

The dispute grew out of Starr's participation in and support of a strike by the Horsemen's Benevolent and Protective Association against Ontario tracks operated by the Jockey Club.

The strike over ruriside of purse distribution at Jockey Club tracks was settled by a compromise but the rancor remained with Smythe giving Starr the option of severing the connection with the HBPA or leaving Smythe's employ.

To succeed him he secured the services of the easy-going Starr and the crusty Smythe have been best year they had 26 winners worth a gross $130,093 and this year they have 24 scores of $141,350—more than any other Canadian stable.

Among the most notable horses they've handled here been this year's Queen's Plate winner Jammed Lovely and 1953 Queen's Plate winner Caledon Beau.

Five Strokes Up; Regina's Betty Cole Eyes Women's Close Title

SASKATOON (CP)—The ability to protect a lead has become equally important to a veteran of the Canadian women's golfing wars, and to a pretty little newcomer.

Betty Stanhope Cole of Regina fired a one-over-par 76 Monday for a 36-hole score of 148 and a five-stroke lead in the Canadian women's close golf championships at the Saskatoon Riverside Club. If she is to be caught, in today's final round, either she must break under pressure or one of the three competitors nearest her must shoot exceptional golf.

Coreen Brunham of Calgary, a cute little 17-year-old, is almost as well placed in the Canadian junior women's competition. She had a 78 Monday for a 36-hole total of 160, and her nearest competitor is three strokes away.

Mrs. Cole has never won the close championship, although she was runner-up in 1963. Her first major win was the Canadian junior in 1956 and since then she has collected an armful of titles and played for numerous provincial teams in Alberta, Ontario and Saskatchewan.

Defending Close champion Marilyn Palmer of Kamloops, B.C., who soared to an 80 after opening with a 73, is second with 153. At 154 are Graeme Goulet of Regina and Gail Harvey Moore of New Westminster, B.C.

After that, it's Barbara Renwick of Vancouver at 156 and Gayle Hitchens of Vancouver and Sue Hilton of London, Ont., both with 157.

Miss Brunham, golfing for only four years, until this season had never won an important golf event. But this season she won the Calgary city crown for juniors, and captured the Alberta title.

Closest to her is Liz Ferrier of Cooksville, Ont., at 163, followed by Tammy Asperig of Winnipeg with 168. Susan Kampman of Kitchener, Ont., and Helen Mariatt of Chilliwack, B.C., are deadlocked at 169.

The performances by Mrs. Cole and Miss Brunham were part of the senior and junior team competitions as well, one ending in heartbreaking defeat and the other ending in a come-from-behind win.

The Saskatchewan senior team, of which Mrs. Cole is a member, finished the 36-hole team competition in a tie with British Columbia at 625. Tournament officials awarded the team championship to B.C. for better second-round score. Saskatchewan has never won the title.

The Alberta junior team finished the first round in third place, four strokes behind Ontario and one behind Manitoba.

Miss Brunham and teammate Heather Munro of Edmonton overhauled Manitoba on the front nine Monday, then caught many thousands of Puerto Ricans whooping it up for Ortiz, the blue-eyed Puerto Rican born New Yorker.

Laguna's handlers say 2,000 Panamanians came here over the weekend to watch the flashy, 24-year-old challenger make his bid to regain the title he held briefly in 1965.

"This is all Ismael needs," said his manager, Hector Velo Valdez, a rich Panama millionaire who was educated at Villanova and Penn State University. "Look at his grin. He's happy as a lark. He really wants to flatten Ortiz."

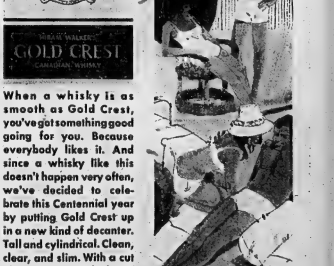
"I still say I'm going to stretch him out," said Ortiz, the 30-year-old champion as he loosened up in an uptown gym.

Ortiz is making the 10th defense in his two reigns as champion. He lost to Laguna at Panama City on April 15, 1965, and then regained the crown seven months later at San Juan, Puerto Rico.

Because of rioting that followed three fights involving Puerto Rican main events at the Garden, Ortiz and Laguna plan to make appeals for sportsmanship to the crowd before their fight.

Durelle Regains Title

FREDERICTON (CP)—Joey Durelle, ready to retire three years ago when stripped of his Canadian welterweight title, regained the championship Monday night and says he wants a crack at Milo Calhoun's British Empire middleweight crown.



The 27-year-old Trois Rivieres, Que., fighter impressed a standing room crowd of more than 2,400 fans in the Lady Beaverbrook rink with a unanimous 12-round decision over champion Lennie Sparks of Halifax.

Durelle's punching was crips despite a weekend drive with his family of nearly 1,000 miles —from his home in his native Baie Ste. Anne, N.B., and then to Fredericton.

Durelle weighed 144½ pounds; Sparks 145 for the first defence of the title he won two years ago from Peter Schmidt of Toronto.

Handsome new decanter. Smooth, light flavour.

Now you know why Hiram Walker's Gold Crest is the hit of every party.

When a whisky is as smooth as Gold Crest, you've got something good going for you. Because everybody likes it. And since a whisky like this doesn't happen very often, we've decided to celebrate this Centennial year by putting Gold Crest up in a new kind of decanter. Tall and cylindrical. Clean, clear, and slim. With a cut glass sunburst in the base. It lets you show off just a bit. Because it looks great, and tastes so smooth and light. It's the kind of whisky that goes well at any kind of party. Try it at your next party and see. Gold Crest. The Party Whisky.

Read Rallies, Staves Off Elimination

An eleventh - hour rally saved Read from elimination in their South Hastings Baseball League semi - finals series with Camilton Planes.

Read scored three runs in the bottom of the last inning to nip Camilton 7-6. The winners still trail the set three games to two with the next slated for Camilton on Wednesday evening.

The winners put together four hits in the seventh, with Milligan's two - run triple tying it 6-6 and Ken Abrams' single driving him home with the deciding tally.

Camilton had overcome an early 4-1 deficit with four runs in the fifth and one in the sixth.

Carm Milligan had a double and single to go with his two triples. Pete Enright and Gerry Brennan added two Read singles each, Wayne Pascoe and Ted Abrams doubles, Ken Abrams and Ed Lanier singles.

Bob Moon blasted a two - run homer and single, Ron Urch and Nole Emerson a double and single each and Pat O'Connor two singles for Camilton. Hugh Petrie, Howard Skelly, Larry Adams and John Tweedy also hit safely.

Neither could score a knockdown in their two previous 15-round title meetings.

Madoc Ties Pointers

Madoc came from three runs behind to grab a 6-5 tie with Point Anne in a Trent Valley round-robin playoff contest last night.

Madoc has won two and tied one in three tries, while Point Anne has a win, loss and tie to their credit. The third team involved, Trenton Carm's, have lost both of their games after running away with the league pennant.

The pitchers for both teams were sharp in the early going but folded midway through the battle. Ron Marcelo for Point Anne and Larry Griffin on the opposing mound allowed only two hits during the first five frames, Marcelo gave up three runs in each of the sixth and eighth innings, while Griffin was touched for tallies in the fourth, six and seventh.

Toward, timed in 1:42, finished six lengths ahead of runner-up Lady Tel, the 2-to-1 favorite who shaved three-fifths of a second off the former record.

Rookie James Kelly, who rode Toward to victory, also had three other winners to bring his season's total to 92, third in Canada behind Richard Grubb and Avelino Gomez.

Centennial Year and Sultan's Treat combined for a $9.50 daily double.

Peter Calvert Runner-Up

Jr. Champion

Peter Calvert, 14, runner-up to the Canadian junior archery champion at the championships held in Ballantrae, Ont., recently is not satisfied.

Peter son of Mr. and Mrs. Geoff. Calvert, 79 Shamrock Road brought home three silver medals after finishing with 895 points just 181 behind the junior champion who by the way just turned 16.

Both the champion and runner - up broke the Canadian junior record of 790 points in existence for the past five years.

However Peter has his eye on that junior crown next year.

So much so he brought home his dad a brochure on a new bow he would like to order "just to beat the champion in Regina next year".

Peter is the second member of the Belleville Archery Club to bring back honors in competition. Mrs. Carol Armstrong recently won the women's national championship.

Brundage Thinks So

After Expo, Olympics?!

MONTREAL (CP)—Avery Brundage, president of the International Olympic Committee, said Monday Expo 67 has given Montreal a chance to say future bid to hold the Olympic Games.

He was speaking at a press conference during a visit to the world's fair.

The possible future Canadian bid for the Games would be strengthened "by the fact that you have handled this Expo with such distinction," he said.

"It has been done with dignity and kindness and without commercialization."

Another way to help convince the committee would be for Montreal to "get international championships held here and then the officials organizing them familiar with the city and what it has to offer."

"As Lord Mayor Drapeau, sometimes cities have to apply half a dozen times before they eventually get the Olympics."

Last year, Montreal Mayor Jean Drapeau went to Rome, where the committee was meeting, in a bid to get the 1972 summer Olympic Games for Montreal. They were given to Munich.

"Generally good reports also have reached the committee about the way Canada organized the Pan-American Games in Winnipeg and this helps Canada," said Brundage.

Dymond Defends Bulk Buying Of Drugs for Hospital Use

TORONTO (CP)—The bulk buying of drugs at discount prices by governments and hospitals was both attacked and supported Monday at a convention of the Canadian Pharmaceutical Association.

Douglas Denholm of Toronto, association president, said the government and hospitals should not be allowed to enjoy discounts on bulk buying because such purchases must be subsidized by the drug-consuming public.

He called on drug manufacturers to raise their prices to government agencies and lower them for retail pharmacists.

Ontario Health Minister Matthew Dymond said, however, that bulk buying has saved Ontario taxpayers about $1,500,000 in the last seven years.

He said the health department started a program in 1960 whereby it buys drugs in large quantities by tender, although the lowest tender is not necessarily accepted.

Dr. Dymond said his department is considering establishment of a central pharmacy to provide further economies. Such a move, he said, would eliminate the need for Ontario hospitals to keep large stocks of drugs.

Mr. Denholm also warned that consumers should not expect to pay 12 per cent less for their medications after the federal sales tax on drugs is removed Sept. 1.

He said drugs which now cost the pharmacist $8 will cost $5.28 after the tax is removed. However the cost to consumers will be raised to $7.28 by the standard 82 druggists' fees.

The reduction on the wholesale price was 12 per cent, but only about 10 per cent on the retail price, Mr. Denholm said.

Dr. John F. McCreary, dean of the medical faculty at the University of British Columbia, told the convention that a better and safer method of getting drugs from the hospital pharmacy to the patient's bedside must be established.

He said student nurses nor interns are sufficiently trained in the handling of complicated drug dosages and suggested that the hospital pharmacist should be responsible for the dispensing of individual dosages.

Four-hour Siege of Terror by Bear Described by Four Young Survivors

WEST GLACIER, Mont. (AP) —Four terror-stricken young people who saw one of their friends killed by a grizzly bear in a Glacier National Park say they tried everything they knew to drive away the marauding animal.

They built a bonfire, but it didn't frighten the bear.

They lay motionless in their sleeping bags, but the bear attacked anyway.

One youth even punched the bear with his fist, he said, but the grizzly kept coming.

The students, who had come to the scenic park for a working vacation, told their story Monday after escaping from the ordeal of a bear, which threatened them for hours before finally attacking and killing Michele Koons, 19, of San Diego, Calif., early Sunday.

Seventy miles from the campsite where Michele died, another 19-year-old girl, Julie Heigens of Albert Lea, Minn., was killed in her sleeping bag by another park bear during the same night. One of her companions, Roy Ducat, 18, of Perrysburg, Ohio, was badly injured.

A hunt continued today for the killer bears after park rangers shot and killed two grizzlies Monday in the area where Miss Holgeson was slain. Tests were being made to try to determine whether one was the killer.

Will Miss Koons were Paul R. Dunn, 18, of Edina, Minn., Denise Huckle, 19, of Sam Mansell, Calif., and Ronald A. Noseck, 21, and his brother, Ray T. 23, both of Oracle, Ariz.

Saturday they had hiked to Trout Lake, pitched camp and caught some fish. Then while cooking the fish, the wind blew their campfire smoke into the trees and Michele said: "I suppose a bear."

The bear invaded the camp and the four ran 50 yards down the lakeshore. It ate their food and left with Michel's travel bag in its teeth.

"We discussed whether to stay where we were or try to go back," Dunn said. "It was dark and we weren't sure of the trail, so we built a big bonfire.'

They saw the bear again standing on a log jam in the lake.

"None of us really slept," Ray Noseck said. "We just kept putting wood on the fire."

Dunn continued: "I stuck my little dog, Squirt, started growling and I heard something in the water," Denise Huckle said. "I knew there was a bear near us."

Between 2 a.m. and 4.30 a.m., the bear stayed at the edge of the area lit by the campfire, moving about in the bush.

"When the attack started, I was the first to see the bear," Miss Huckle said. "Squirt start ed to squeal. I locked over a log and the bear was loping straight toward the camp. The firm was big and I could see his face and the upper half of his body. Then about four or five feet from me, he stopped.

"By that time I was back under the covers," she said. "All of a sudden he grabbed one of the packs and we could hear him ripping the pack. Then he stopped and I could hear him breathing. I kept Squirt very quiet."

"Then he came toward me," Dunn said. "I could bear him come. I remained perfectly still and he just sniffed. It was kind o' hard because I could hear

"I said 'Michele, get out of your bag, run, climb a tree,' and she said, 'I can't, he's got the zipper.'

"Then she screamed, 'Oh my God, I'm dead!'"

Heresy Anachronism Episcopal Group Says

NEW YORK (AP)—Heresy trials are an anachronism, no longer useful for dealing with questions confronting Christianity, a special Episcopal Church committee said Monday. The Episcopal Church is the U.S. branch of the Anglican communion.

The Episcopal committee recommended that the term "heresy" should be limited to theological disputes—such as that surrounding Bishop James A. Pike.

"It is a weapon far too easily found in the hands of those fearful of any change," the panel of scholars said in their report to the church's presiding bishop, Rt. Rev. John E. Hines.

He set up the panel last January as a result of controversy over the unconventional teachings of Bishop Pike, and demands by some that he be tried for heresy.

The report dealt with the general issue, however, not the specific case.

Declaring that the concept of heresy implies a "static fortress" of fixed pre-judgments, closed over insights of history and culture, the committee proposed "drastic revision" of church law on the matter.

Procedures for removal of a bishop should be made "extra ordinarily difficult," the report said. The committee suggested that the church should be able to disassociate itself from unacceptable teachings without judging the teachers or their motives.

"The rebel against the tradition of the community is still linked to the community," the committee said.

Summing up its 10,000-word report, they said: "God makes men free. It does not behoove His church to try to bobble their minds or inhibit their search for new insights into truth."

Constitutional Council Is Proposed by Hees

SHERBROOKE, Que. (CP) — George Hees, one of the federal Conservative party's nine leadership hopefuls, says that if he were prime minister he would establish a council of distinguished citizens to make recommendations on changing Canada's constitution.

Speaking Monday to delegates and associates to the party's leadership convention at Toronto next month, Mr. Hees said the question now is not whether there will be constitutional change, but rather, what the changes will be.

He reiterated a suggestion that he would sponsor a federal-provincial conference on trade and culture. The conference would consider the relationship of federal foreign policy to matters under provincial jurisdiction.

The former trade and transport minister in the Diefenbaker cabinet said also he would establish a standing Commons committee on federal-provincial relations because, "there is a danger today that the House of Commons is being altogether bypassed in the discussions. . . ."

Hamilton Claims Ontario Plurality

FORT QUAPPELLE, Sask. (CP) — Alvin Hamilton, former agriculture minister, says he has strong backing in Ontario for his bid for the national Conservative party leadership and is optimistic about his chances in British Columbia and Quebec.

"I have concentrated on British Columbia, Ontario and Quebec where the gains have to be made," he told 400 people at a picnic rally Sunday in this resort community northeast of Regina.

"I have not made any claims of numbers of delegates but it appears that I now have a plurality over any other candidates in Ontario and that I am very close to a plurality in B.C."

Fulton Wants College To Teach Party Creed

SARNIA (CP) — Davie Fulton, a candidate for the Conservative party leadership, called Monday for establishment of a "Conservative college."

He said in a statement such a college would offer formal courses designed to acquaint Canadians with the party's point of view and to develop positions on major national problems.

Mr. Fulton proposed the colleges as one means to establish "a permanent and continuing alliance between the Conservative party and the various groups in Canada whose purposes is to generate ideas and develop policy."

"The Liberal party is already and irrevocably the party of ad-mass; we must become the party of idea-men," Mr. Fulton said.

He proposed establishment of a "bureau of policy development" at Conservative headquarters and the holding of regular seminars across Canada to encourage participation of local party members in formation of policy.

Stanfield Campaigns In Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP) — Premier Robert Stanfield of Nova Scotia, PC leadership contender who arrived in Ottawa Sunday, spent Monday meeting riding delegates from the Ottawa area after a morning press conference. He plans to tour the Ottawa Valley today.

Mr. Stanfield conferred with 14 members of Parliament as his supporters mapped plans to start a Stanfield bandwagon rolling toward September's leadership convention.

MPs supporting Mr. Stanfield estimated yesterday he will arrive at the convention with 400 of a possible total of about 450 votes from the four Atlantic provinces.

His supporters count on picking up about 100 votes in Ontario and 50 in the West, principally Alberta.

Sevigny Says He's 'Acceptable'

MONTREAL (CP)—Pierre Sevigny, a former associate defence minister, said Monday he is "accepted and acceptable" by the Progressive Conservative party's inner circles despite his involvement in the Munsinger affair.

Consequently, he will run in the next federal election as a Conservative, he said in a television interview on the CBC's French-language network.

Mr. Sevigny also said the Canadian constitution must be changed "to guarantee the absolute equality of the two founding groups."

His party could not abandon Quebec merely to win the vote of English-speaking Canadians.

Mr. Sevigny was named in a report on the Munsinger security and security affair tabled in Parliament in 1966. Mr. Justice W. F. Spence said in the report that Mr. Sevigny's relationship to Gerda Munsinger—who was described as a prostitute—constituted a "startling" security risk, but no actual breach of security was evident.

Mr. Sevigny was associated minister of national defence in the Diefenbaker government in 1959 and resigned from the cabinet in 1963.

He was defeated at the polls in the 1963 general election which he contested in the Montreal-area riding of Longueuil.

COURT FINES CANADIAN

AYR, Scotland (CP)—A 23-year-old Canadian on holiday in Scotland was fined £12 (£36) Monday on a charge of assault. Alexander William Hamby of London, Ont., admitted assaulting a woman doctor at a homecoming party at nearby Dogmillington.

Roblin Tours Ontario Cities

TORONTO (CP) — Premier Duff Roblin of Manitoba, a late entry in the battle for the national Conservative party leadership, was due to woo supporters in Kitchener, Hamilton and Port Arthur today before moving on to Sarnia, Windsor, Essex, Chatham and Simcoe later this week.

Mr. Roblin spent a quiet day Monday preparing for his Ontario tour. He spent much of last week in Quebec province, trying to line up votes for the Toronto convention.

PM, Polansky Fail to Agree On War Crises

OTTAWA (CP)—The positions of Russia and Canada on two pressing international questions remained far apart Monday following talks between First Deputy Premier Dmitri Polyansky and Prime Minister Pearson.

The two men conferred for an hour on Vietnam and the Middle East without narrowing their differences on either contentious issue.

A Canadian spokesman described the talk as frank and useful, the customary diplomatic way of saying that no agreement was reached. The meeting was also described as business-like and cordial.

Both sides restated long-standing views, with Mr. Polyansky apparently charging the United States with aggression in Vietnam, and Israel with aggression in the Mideast, and Mr. Pearson apparently disputing this version of recent events.

Russia has called many times for the unconditional withdrawal of American forces from South Vietnam and Israeli forces from Arab territory overrun in the Middle East desert war of early June.

Canada's view is that withdrawal in either case should be coupled with international arrangements to underwrite the security of the areas and countries involved.

Mr. Polyansky, here on a centennial visit, also spent an hour discussing Canadian-Soviet bilateral relations with Mr. Pearson.

The two leaders apparently found more common ground during this part of their talk, with general satisfaction being expressed by both sides about the state of relations and hope being expressed that they will continue to improve.

Sitting in with Mr. Pearson were External Affairs Minister Martin and Robert Ford, Canadian ambassador to the Soviet Union, while Mr. Polyansky was accompanied by Ivan Shpakin, Soviet ambassador to Canada.

Mr. Polyansky gave Mr. Pearson a letter from Soviet Premier Kosygin, the fourth letter in an exchange that the two heads of government have been conducting over the last year or so.

Contents of the letter were not divulged.

Negro Mayor Will Quit

FLINT, Mich. (AP)—Mayor Floyd J. McCree, the only Negro in the United States heading a city of 200,000 or larger, declares he is resigning because the city commission has rejected an open occupancy housing law.

"I'm not going to sit up here any longer and live an equal opportunity lie," the 44-year-old mayor said Monday night after the commission voted down the law, 5 to 3.

The auto plant foreman, elected in November, 1965, said he will resign Monday.

McCree said he also will resign as commissioner of Flint's heavily-negro third ward. He had represented the third ward for eight years when he was elected mayor by his fellow commissioners. About 25 per cent of Flint's 200,000 residents are Negroes.

Fruit Crops Smaller

Spokesmen for fruit growers said Monday that Ontario's fruit crops are expected to be below last year's figures with the exception of sour cherries.

They said this year's late spring, with wet weather, resulted in a poor blossom set in some crops and extensive winter damage had forced heavy pruning.

"We expect that the peach crop will only run to between 90 and 70 per cent of the average crop of the last five years," said J. M. Sandham, manager of the Ontario Fresh Fruit Marketing Board.

Robert Wilcox, extension specialist with the Ontario department of agriculture, said crops this year are spotty with some areas having no peaches—and others with only a light crop.

Keith Mattlie, secretary to the Ontario Fruit Growers Marketing Board, said canning varieties of peaches were expected to be down in volume from last year. Grapes and pears also would be less than last year he added.

QUAKER ENDS VIGIL

WASHINGTON (AP)—Ross Flanagan, a New York Quaker who had staged a one-man sit-in at the U.S. treasury department since May 29, ended his vigil Monday with a plea to the government to stop bombing Vietnam immediately. Flanagan has been protesting against the department's refusal to license shipments of medical supplies to North Vietnam and a treasury freeze on two Philadelphia bank accounts opened by the Quakers for Vietnam relief.

"How did you know I was back here?"

Teen-agers Mourn End Of Pirate Radio Era

LONDON (Reuters)—The three-year reign of Britain's pirate radio stations ended Monday night in a riot by more than 1,000 screaming teen-age fans.

As a new broadcasting law came into effect, teen-agers wearing mock mourning bands surged wildly through London's Liverpool Street railroad station to greet disc jockeys returning from the closed stations.

Girls were trampled underfoot, policemen knocked down and a train window smashed in the melee.

The new Marine Offences Act, which threatened fines and prison terms, came into force at midnight Monday night.

With one exception, the pirate stations closed down and Britain's airwaves were again controlled by the BBC.

The exception was Radio Caroline, which began the wave of pirate transmissions from outside territorial waters three years ago. It planned to set up its administrative headquarters in Holland and continue shore-to-ship pop music, punctuated by commercials.

KCs Deny Taxes On Property Evaded

MONTREAL (CP)—The head of the Knights of Columbus today denied a published report that the Roman Catholic society receives tax concessions on religious grounds.

Supreme Knight John W. McDevitt said the allegation was made by a retired Episcopal bishop who "insinuated that the order pays no taxes on the grounds under Yankee Stadium on other such investments which it holds to protect its commitment to insurances members."

The official, from Malden, Mass., was addressing delegates of the 1,200,000 - member fraternity at their 85th annual meeting which opened Monday.

The only freedom from federal and state income taxes which the fraternity receives is an exemption from premium taxes, he added. This was based on the fact that his group is a "non-profit fraternal benefit society."

An article by Episcopal Bishop James A. Pike of California appeared in the April issue of Playboy, citing the Knights of Columbus as an example of a church society which escapes paying a fair share of income or property taxes.

Family Of Nine Slain

SHELL LAKE, Sask. (CP)—An investigation into Tuesday's slaying of seven children and their parents in a farm home near this community, 37 miles west of Prince Albert, is being hampered by lack of an apparent motive.

Twenty-four hours after the murder of farmer James Peterson, 47, his wife Evelyn, 42, and seven of their nine children, police are without a motive, a murder weapon and suspects.

Insp. Brian Sawyer of North Battleford, 80 miles southwest of Shell Lake, the RCMP officer heading the investigation, said in an interview lack of a motive is a major problem facing police.

The victims were found about 9 a.m. by neighbor W. J. Lange, who was seeking help with haying on his nearby farm. He opened the door to the Peterson's staple-storey home, thinking the family had slept in, and found Mr. Peterson's body face-down by the kitchen door.

The children slain in two double beds in one room were: Joan, 17; Mary, 13; Dorothy, 11; Pearl, 9; William, 5, and Colin, 2.

Mrs. Peterson and one-year-old Larry were found shot outside a window, found ajar and from which they were believed to have tried to escape.

Four-year-old Phyllis was unharmed in bed with her brothers and sisters. All had been shot once while asleep except the eldest at home, Jean, who had bullet wounds to the forehead and skull.

A coroner's jury called to the scene to view the bodies estimated that 24 shots had been fired. Police found five spent cartridges on the farm property.

Coroner Dr. Calvin S. Lambert of Leoville said the family was slain about 2 a.m. Tuesday. He discounted any possibility of suicide involved because no murder weapon was found.

Dr. Lambert said Mr. Peterson may have struggled with the killer or killers. He had been shot in the abdomen.

The coroner speculated that Mrs. Peterson and son Larry, might have come to see, what was happening, tried to escape through the window and were shot just outside the four-room house. They also were shot in the head.

Two Die In Car Flip Is Fatal

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

FRANKFORD — Provincial police today were still probing details of an accident near here late last night, which saw a carload of young people spilled on Highway 33, instantly killing two, sending three others to hospital.

Victims of the fatal crash were identified as Gerrit Wolvers, 25, of Canniffon, father of two, and 16-year-old Blanch Scriver, of Smithfield.

They were killed when the car in which they were riding flipped on a sharp curve, south of here, throwing all five occupants on the road.

Injured were Olga Mountenay, 18, of Smithfield, (possible arm fractures); William Benton, 22, of 10 Donald Street, Belleville (bruises), and Barry Dafoe, 24, of RR 1 Foxboro (dislocated hip).

Police were not positive who was the driver of the car, a 1963 Mustang, wrecked in the mishap.

Neither were they certain where the occupants were coming from, or headed for, at the time of the crash.

Wolvers was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Adrianus Wolvers, of St Grier Street, Belleville.

He served in the Army Signal Corps during 1960-63.

Wolvers leaves his wife, the former Carol Anderson, two sons, his parents, two brothers, Robert, of Oshawa, and Theodore, of Belleville, and two sisters, Luty and Rosemarie, at home.

Israel Wants Hills

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A Syrian official said today his government would not agree to end its state of war with Israel in return for Israeli withdrawal from captured land, while an Israeli leader called for keeping some Syrian territory.

Syrian Foreign Minister Ibrahim Makhos told army officers in Damascus:

"Attaching such conditions sets a dangerous precedent in international relations.

"It means giving in to military occupation as an accomplished fact and as a means of solving outstanding issues, a course which undermines the principle of world peace."

In Israel, Labor Minister Yigal Allon said Syria's Golan Heights should not be returned to Syria because they could be used for shelling Israeli villages.

The newspaper Al Moharrer reported in Beirut, Lebanon, that Syrian commandos have reconquered an Israeli-held observatory on biblical Mount Hermon. It quoted a person it described as an eyewitness as saying the commandos captured the station Monday night. There were no reports of casualties.

The exact location and function of the observatory was not given. Part of Mount Hermon lies in southern Syria.

Viet Cong Use Shells As Mines

SAIGON (Reuters)—A hidden Viet Cong device made from two heavy artillery shells exploded and killed eight U.S. marines and wounded 16 in northern Quang Nam province Tuesday, a military spokesman said today.

The Americans from the 1st Marine Regiment were three miles east of the town of Hoi An when a mine detonated the first part of the trap—a rigged 155-millimetre artillery shell—which killed two marines and wounded two others.

As more marines moved in to evacuate the dead and wounded, a second hidden shell of the same calibre exploded among them. Six more were killed and eight wounded.

Biafrans Say Revolt Spreads

DOUALA, Cameroon (Reuters)—Radio Biafra claimed today that the people of Ibadan, capital of Nigeria's Western state, had risen against the federal government of Maj.-Gen. Yakubu Gowan as Biafran troops advanced into Western territory.

Ibadan, about 80 miles north of Lagos, the federal capital, is Nigeria's biggest city with a population of 600,000.

The radio quoted a war correspondent as saying that Biafran troops now controlled several towns in the Western Region, where they were given an enthusiastic welcome by the local populace.

Fighting between Biafran and federal troops in the Western Region was reported Tuesday, following the capture of the country's Midwestern state by Biafran forces last week.

ATHENS (Reuters)—Former foreign minister Evangelos Averoff was sentenced to five years in jail by a Greek military court today for holding an unauthorized meeting at his home.

Third of Bombs Dumped in Sea

WASHINGTON (AP) — There's a hint of an old, enormously expensive game going on among U.S. Navy pilots operating off North Vietnam. The goal: Get rid of every bomb and fly often to keep up combat records.

"About a third of our ordnance was dumped in the water, and that's a conservative estimate," said Alex Walser, 32, a chemical company analyst in Midland, Mich.

Walser, an A-1 Skyraider pilot aboard the carrier Ticonderoga until his discharge in February after nine years' service, said pilots were told to beat the other carriers' records on numbers of bombing missions.

"We would zip up and down the coast and unload, or dump them in the water," Walser said. "That way, the carrier would get credit for a sortie."

Black Power Group Annoys Jews and Liberal Leaders

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — The Student Non-violent Co-ordinating Committee's charge that Jews are committing atrocities against Arabs has brought censure of the Black Power group from Jewish and civil rights leaders.

"Israel is and always has been the tool and foothold for American and British exploitation in the Middle East and Africa," said Ralph Featherstone, SNCC program director.

Whitney Young, executive director of the National Urban League, a Negro group, said in New York that SNCC's "divorce from reality is best illustrated by the resemblance of their comments to those of the American Nazi party on this question."

In a joint statement A. Philip Randolph, vice-president of the AFL-CIO and president of the Sleeping Car Porters, and Bayard Rustin, executive director of the A. Philip Randolph Institute, said SNCC apparently "has formed an unconscious alliance with right-wing anti-Semites and extremists, while consciously trying to undermine liberal forces in this country."

Havelock Robbery Foiled

Thugs Flee as Their Shotgun Goes Off in Banker's Home

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

HAVELOCK — A possibly well - planned crime literally blew up in the faces of three armed bandits here late last night.

Today — after a night of intensive activity in the Belleville - Peterborough region—police still are trying to trace the masked trio that walked into the home of bank manager John Coburn in this village, and ordered him at gunpoint to black out his house.

But, for all its sinister intent, the incident has farcical relief.

The three desperadoes had just surprised the Coburn couple — quietly watching TV — when the sawed-off shotgun carried by one of the men unexpectedly discharged.

The shot smashed into a nearby wall and — the bandits fled back into the night!

"I don't know what caused it to discharge," Mr. Coburn told the Intelligencer in a telephone interview shortly after. "The only thing I was happy about was they didn't point it at me!"

Mr. Coburn, who came here two years ago from Wyoming, Ontario, to manage the local Toronto - Dominion Bank branch, said the men came through an unlocked kitchen door into the living room about 10.15 p.m.

"They had hoods on over their heads and hats on over that," he said.

No threats were used: "They just had us turn out the lights."

The intent of the armed entrance wasn't clear, Mr. Coburn confessed, when asked about the possibility the bandits may have had designs on his bank, two blocks away.

"They didn't get around that far when the gun went off — and of course they ran."

The shot, said Mr. Coburn, crashed into a wall "not too close to me."

However, police reacted quickly after Mr. Coburn recovered and gave the alarm.

Roadblocks were thrown up around the Quinte and Peterborough areas for four hours, while mobile patrols checked out all reported leads in the region.

Trenton Seeks Marina Aid

TRENTON — Town officials have announced the first step towards the creation of extensive marina facilities at the foot of the new centennial park.

In a special meeting town council resolved to make applications through a Toronto consulting firm to the federal department of public works.

If the $400,000 project is approved there could be mooring spots and services for 100 boats at the mouth of the Trent River by 1969.

The town's share of the marina project would be an estimated $215,000 over a five-year period. This figure would provide for some 200 moorings and services, a gasoline dock, and a boat-launching ramp.

The 650,000 square feet marina would probably be operated on a lease basis by a private concern.

The presentation to the department of public works lists the following points in support of establishing the marina at Trenton: lack of sufficient mooring facilities for visitors; the fact there is an unusual potential for marina facilities at the entrance of the Trent canal system; the fact the marina would be part of an overall park development.

The Toronto consulting firm estimates daily revenue per boat at the marina would be $3.50 and surveys indicate the average transient boater spends an additional $15-$20 daily on shopping and services in the area.

Town planners had the project in mind when the original blueprints for the new centennial park were drawn up. Part of the waterfront facelifting was realized with the official park opening June 14.

The marina facilities are expected to be co-ordinated into the overall park development to lure tourist dollars into Trenton.

IN MEMORIAM

SPENCER — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Donald Spencer, who passed away August 16, 1966.

This month comes with deep regret,
It brings a day we will never forget.
You were called away without warning,
Not a moment of you will never die.
As we pass remembered by wife Daisy and children Richard, Alan, Brian, Douglas, Lorleen and Carol.

SPENCER — In loving memory of our brother Donald Spencer, who passed away August 16, 1966.

What would we give if we could say,
Hello Don in the same old way.
To hear his voice and see his smile,
To sit with him and chat awhile,
But God in heaven has numbered his days.
To love and cherish and never forget.
—Sadly missed and lovingly remembered by sister Gladys, brother-in-law Fletcher and family.

WILLIS — In loving memory of my dear wife Jessie, who passed away August 16, 1966.

Though her smile is gone forever,
And her hand we cannot touch,
Still we have so many memories,
Of the one we loved so much.
Deep in our hearts she lingers,
With whom we'll meet again,
God has her in His keeping,
We have her in our hearts.
—Sadly missed by her loving husband Bill.

CARDS OF THANKS

We wish to express our thanks to all our friends who have been so kind, for all the flowers, cards, and phone calls received. Also for the gift, for the many who have called at the home and the policy and the assurance of their prayers. We are glad to testify that Christ is sufficient and more than enough, and Mrs. R. Snyder and David.

Chicago Hockey Stars Send Fair on Way Before Jammed Crowd in Grandstand

Bobby and Dennis Hull, evil-known National Hockey League stars, stepped into off-season character here last night and officially opened the 1967 edition of the Belleville Fair.

Their personalities reaching out across the track and into a crowded grandstand the Chicago Black Hawks dynamic blond Bomber and fleeter brother Dennis, now a recognized star with the Hawks, for mally "clipped the ribbon" that sent Exhibition '67 on its way.

Introduced by Jack Devine, the National Hockey League stars received standing ovations from the largest opening night crowd in many years.

First-called Dennis shyly conceded the place of honor to brother Bobby. "He always does the talking — so he can do it now. I'm as nervous as a horse."

Bobby greeted the crowd with "Ladies and Gentlemen and Chicago fans" and smiled broadly when a spectator shouted "Yea Maple Leafs."

He said the brothers were gratified with the large number of friends who came to see them at their cattle barns. (They had 11 beef cattle exhibited.)

He paid tribute to his mother, wife and other members of his family present, also to Mayor E. J. McFarland of Picton.

He reminisced of his early playing days but never referred to his own exploits.

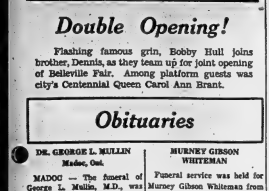
"I was proud to have been a part of Hastings county and proud of being a resident of Prince Edward. I owe them a lot."

He said he, like everyone else, was proud of the Fair, and "I am happy to be a part of it."

Then came the "opening chorus" and the fair was officially underway.

The obedient "senator" Harry Rollins was at his master-of-ceremonies best, and introduced the attending municipal, political and other attending dignitaries both on the official dais and in the stands.

A "troop" of mounted riders colorful in western garb, formed a guard of honor during the opening ceremonies.



On the platform were Fair Board president Dr. Harry Burns, the Centennial Queen Miss Carol Ann Brant, Mayor Jack Ellis; the guard of honor; Jack Devine, vice-presidents Cameron Bunnet, Jack Bush and Bob Phillips; Bill Bishop; Clarke Rollins, MLA; Elmer Sandercock, MLA; Norris Whitney, MLA; Lee Grills, MP; Douglas Allenbeck, MP; Warden William Shannon of Hastings County and Warden Robert Boyce of Prince Edward.

In the stands were fair life directors Willis Reid, Ben Bleecker and Carl Thompson, reeve of Thurlow; Mayor H. J. MacFarland, Picton; Mayor James MacDonald, Trenton; Reeve Ercie Kells, Sidney; Reeve George Cunningham, Ameliasburg; Mr. Donald Lennon, Owen Sound, president Ontario Association of Fairs; Phil Dodds, Picton, district director OAF, and Judge J. C. Anderson.

Mayor Ellis extended the city's welcome. "The city is extremely proud of the fair, which gets better every year. I can hardly be proud as ever of the exhibition."

He paid special tribute to Elmer Sandercock and Clarke Rollins, MLA's recovering from recent illnesses.

Fair president Dr. Burns paid tribute to his board of directors "and to you people who have helped make the fair a success each year. Every year it seems to be just a little bit better. People of the city and the counties of Hastings and Prince Edward besides visitors from other parts help to make it the fine institution it is."

Double Opening!

Flashing famous grin, Bobby Hull joins brother, Dennis, as they team up for joint opening of Belleville Fair. Among platform guests was city's Centennial Queen Carol Ann Brant.

Splendid Displays Seen in Building

Quinte district cheesemakers and creamery operators have an attractive display of dairy products at the Belleville Fair.

The dairy show exhibit is in a refrigerated (behind glass) display area in the manufacturers building.

Included in the display are 90-pound cheese, 40 pound square cheese as well as stilton. Special arrangement cheese displays serve to brighten up the exhibit.

Also in the manufacturers building is the farm fruit and vegetable display, as well as the hay and grain exhibit.

Included is a display of garden vegetables and a particularly attractive display of apples and pears.

You think it might be too early in the season for nice red apples. Not so, says Mr. Harold Weese of Prince Edward county, one of the main exhibitors.

Only two plates of apples in the entire display — both late maturing varieties, — are last year's crop out of storage.

"That's My Boy!"

The proud cry of any father fits eight-year-old Blain Way, of Milford, as he romps home to win chariot race against adults during Belleville Fair gymkhana last night. Only problem here is the fact Blain's dad — Lavergne Way — is somewhere down the track — running second to his offspring's winning spurt.

Well, Isn't That A Dandy!

Everything's fine for Wayne Kelsey as he receives wife's congratulations for winning Eastern Ontario gymkhana at Belleville fair. But, eight-year-old winning steed Jim Dandy looks like he's only getting a look-in — and knows it.

Athens Rider Wins Gymkhana

The rhythm of rushing hoofbeats last night raised the curtain on the 1967 Belleville fair's grandstand show series.

Feature spot for the first night also introduce another first for fair patrons — the Eastern Ontario horse gymkhana, with riders from eight districts in the region facing — and racing — off in competition.

Top rider of the night was Wayne Delaney, R. R. 1, Athens, standard-bearer of the Brockville-area Legion district, who carried away the first award of the Bishop Seed's trophy.

The prize, sponsored by a long-established Belleville firm of the same name, was introduced specially for the competition to be perpetuated parallel with the gymkhanas.

However, probably the biggest hand of the evening went to Joanne McNevin, popular young Belleville horsewoman, already a multi-berthoned veteran of horse riding challenges around the region.

Dashing through the gymkhana's three events in the grandstand ring, Joanne raced away with the opening barrel race.

She placed fourth in the middle event — the pole-bending challenge.

Lighter diversions between races — the opening run of competitions saw chariot which had spectators cheering by the youngest challenger of the night.

He was eight-year-old Blain Way of Milford, who placed first, trimming a field that also included Laverne Way, also of Milford.

The Ways have more than a name and address in common.

They're foster and son!

The Canadian Economy

Observing the Canadian buying public making their daily purchases, it is interesting to reflect what would happen to the economy if consumers suddenly decided to deny themselves items they acquire in the ordinary way whether they can afford them at the time or not.

If they really stop to think about it, the vast spending spree that Canadians indulge in every day is a combination of habit, recreation (an outlet for thousands), "the system" — the business of producing more and more to keep the economy going and the country competitive — and, of course, consumer necessity.

If people suddenly decided they could do without many items, live simply and turn their thoughts and endeavors into other, more cultural pursuits, then the economy would surely suffer.

These ideas arise from a reading of observations by Arthur J. R. Smith, the new chairman of the Economic Council of Canada. As a Globe and Mail representative who interviewed him noted: "Mr. Smith, son of missionary parents, needs no reminder from John Kenneth Galbraith (the Canadian-born U.S. economic expert) that production is not everything . . ."

Mr. Smith, who is 41, said in part: "I've never wanted to carry criticism of a growing GNP (gross national product) too far. I think it is very important to achieve growth in output as per capita income, but this represents improvement in the standard of living.

"But we have to be careful not to worship improved living standards per se . . . You must be very much concerned about the quality of life — not living standards by themselves but how resources are used, so as to provide a better environment, a larger scope for cultural activities and tackling the many problems that could almost suffocate urban society."

And what are these problems? Well Mr. Smith spoke of regional growth and the need to ensure that some such regions do not fall behind (a factor that perhaps applies as much to Quinte as to any other region). He also touched on pollution control and education and said the Economic Council's review in September will pay detailed attention to what he termed "mounting urban problems."

We have to take a good look at the way our cities are evolving and the administrative problems they are encountering," he said. "There is scope for greater federal participation in this field." Northern development is another prospect the council intends to probe further.

That Canada must continue to take a realistic approach to economic truths by increasing production still further is implicit in the fact that the labor force is growing apace, thus creating a need for more jobs and industrial activity.

Noting an anticipated growth of the labor force in the next five times the European figure, Mr. Smith said between today and 1980 the increase in Canada will equal the total labor force in Sweden at present. Canada and the United States together will add a total equivalent to today's German or British labor force.

It is an exciting prospect, but it is appropriate that as one who spent 12 years in India Mr. Smith should also be concerned with other problems of the world are more enduring than mere materialist gain, important as it is in the economic scheme of things.

Adoption Issue

The case of two little sisters living with foster parents in Preston, and threatened with a parting of them when Mrs. Crough adopts the separate families, is indicative of the heartlessness and dogmatic insistence on procedural guidelines that oftentimes afflicts organizations charged with the care of parentless children.

In this case the children, aged five and three, were living in a home where they were being afforded the sort of companionship, love and security they need. Then along came representatives of the Ontario Children's Aid Society with instructions to remove the children for adoption by two separate homes.

A complicating factor is that the children are Roman Catholics but members of the foster family they have been living with are Anglicans.

Be that as it may the family has found an ally in John Yaremko, provincial minister of social and family services, who has indicated he is opposed to the CAS plans to separate the girls.

The foster parents say they will try and adopt the girls formally despite the difference in religion. However, the important thing is that whatever happens it appears the sisters will not be separated.

Advice They Do Not Need

Ottawa Journal

There are some things a young man should know. He should know, for instance, that there are books which young women read purporting to tell them how to attract young men. He should also know that most young women don't really need such books, but the fact is they do read them and sometimes even follow the advice.

World Housing

Technology and Mass Production Are Key Factors

Here is an opportunity the Canadian home building industry may be missing, says DR. J. A. BLANAR, president of Planet Associates Ltd., Montreal management consultants, in an article in Canadian Business.

Dr. Blanar, who has had several years' experience in the field of prefabricated housing in Europe, says the world needs millions of houses — and Canada could supply them.

Canada's capacity to produce shelter is enormous. It is bigger than its capacity to produce food.

Raw materials and mass production facilities available to the Canadian industry, combined with technical know - how, could make Canada possibly the most important supplier of shelter in the world.

Canada already is supplying lumber, building materials and metals to the world's housing industry. Canada could just as well supply complete hous i n g units, with all appliances and furnishings. Countries smaller than Canada and less endowed with natural resources have already been doing this for many decades.

—Despite advances in other fields, however, technology in the building industry is making only slow progress. Yet population increases and higher living standards demand more and better housing. Convention al methods of manufacture cannot solve this problem. The development of more efficient mass production, more construction in the maximum utilization of every resource, especially of labor and material, is needed.

Consider the world's housing needs for the period 1960-1970, as published by the Department of Economic and Social Affairs of the United Nations. The number of additional dwellings required during this 10-year period because of an increase in population, loss of dwellings through obsolescence or demolition, and the need to replace inadequate housing, is, in various regions of the world, as follows:

United States	29,000,000
Canada	2,300,000
Europe	14,300,000
Australia and New Zealand	1,300,000
Latin America	45,000,000
Africa	49,000,000
Asia	277,300,000
Total	418,000,000

These figures do not include requirements for above-average standard of living, recreation or industrial and institutional building.

Some considerable effort is obviously needed to meet this increasingly urgent problem. We must mobilize the necessary economic resources, intensify research into low-cost housing design relative to the climate, materials and culture of the various regions, and, especially, introduce industrial techniques for the mass production a n d mass construction of dwellings. Since means of mass production and mass construction are not available in developing countries, and self-help is limited by lack of training, the only solution to the housing problem of these countries is to import prefabricated housing units which require only a minimum of skills for erection on site.

The housing problem in these countries is further aggravated because building materials suitable for mass production of shelter, especially soft woods, are not available in these areas, or at best are available only in limited quantities. This applies especially in areas of greatest need — Africa, Asia and Latin America. The only way to alleviate the most pressing housing needs is to supply housing from areas that have the suitable natural resources, the facilities to produce various building materials, and the knowhow to manufacture housing on a large scale by industrial methods of production.

Long Hair And Rights Of Fair Sex

Christian Science Monitor

It was high time someone made a thorough, objective study to find out why so many young men of today wear their hair long. Their elders are greatly puzzled when they see a young masculine face framed by flowing girl-type locks. They have the boys shunned the shears, they'll ask.

Now a London barbers' association, naturally deeply concerned, has made a survey. This group, called Brush (British Representative Unit for Styl is tic Hair) interviewed 3,000 men and boys, ages 15 to 40 years, to get their ideas on hairdressing. They were especially interested in the replies of 560 who were what the girls call "long boys."

We don't know just what the young men said, but the survey makers drew from their remarks a surprising conclusion. They think the young heads let their hair grow because they believe women get better breaks than men in modern society and "if you can't lick 'em, join 'em." The men want equal rights. So they adopt a feminine style, just as the suffragettes in the early years of the century often adopted male modes as an expression of the civil equality they claimed.

This is a neat theory, but we don't buy it. Short hair has not been on style for the men. As recently as the last century presidents as well as poets were pictured with unrestrained tresses, sometimes brushed down.

We cannot believe that these men felt inferior to women and let their hair grow to assert their equality. One thing the survey didn't bring out: It is natural for a man's hair to grow long. It might be that today's trend will follow the advice.

Hippies of Yesteryear

Windsor Star

Not everyone over 40 likes the sight of young men wearing long hair, beards, and rumpled and unforgettable clothing. But then not everyone over 40 remembers the extremes of style when he was young. And some rather frightening styles there were.

To many oldsters, today's styles seem to have bit a new high in aggressive ostentation. Nothing is left to chance, they feel, can equal the long, greasy hair, the sloppy clothing, or the general slouchiness so popular today. Some date the current fad for wearing running shoes without laces, or with no laces untied.

But let's look back over the years, at a few of the styles condemned by the middle-aged and worn by the young. Ivy League, still popular in square circles, had its beginnings in the Edwardian era. A little later, the cuffless appeared in trousers — only on the sides. No gentleman was a gentleman, in those days, unless he wore his jacket slicked back and parted in the middle.

Plus fours and houndstooth checks, Argyle socks and brogan golf shoes had their day. So did the neat suit, compleat with vest pleat. The pleat slept in (mercifully brief) reign. And here and there were the wide the the bell-bedched coat, spats, the pointed-toe shoe, the porkpie hat, the car coat, and the straw boater. And these are only random examples.

Courage, ye of the grey flannel suit and narrow striped tie. The shaggy look will pass and be forgotten, as quickly and as conveniently as have forgotten your own lost suit of the not too distant past.

Computers Join Ranks Of Teachers

Wall Street Journal

In primary school, where nearly all teachers are women, girls usually learn reading more rapidly than the boys do. When a Stanford research team substituted a computer for the teacher, however, it found that boys and girls progressed at the same pace.

The implication may be that later teachers pay more attention to the little girls. Or that the boys, even at that early age, pay too much attention to the ladies and too little to their studies—although computers are actually better looking than one or two of the primary school pedagogues of our memory.

To His Family—with Love

Windsor Star

Mr. Christopher Phillip Roberts Warren left something money cannot buy in his wonderful will which has been probated at the Essex County registrar's office. It was a written legacy of love.

In it he testified to the love and happiness he had enjoyed with his wife; the pleasures his three children had given him in their family life and to his grandchildren the hope of a beautiful childhood and a contented useful adulthood. He also mentioned his sons-in-law and daughter-in-law in his good wishes.

Wills usually are concerned primarily with money and property. How a man who sets beyond all this into the nature of life's lucid and what it means. He had not a large estate as modern estates go, but in his written testimonial to his family he left an incomparable treasure in his expression of love for them and his hopes and wishes for them.

Munition Stocks Do Well

Financial Post

Munition company stocks do well during wartime, but peacetime industries do even better. That was the impression conclusion following a recent stock market comparison of how share prices of 80 different U.S. industries performed during World War II. Investors would do well to note how this seeming disparity occurs.

Between 1942 and 1946, war stocks (aircraft, missiles, military equipment, oil, ships and so on) doubled in price generally. In contrast, the peace stocks—those not directly dealing in war material production (building, office equipment, paper, cars, retail sales)—more than tripled.

The war boom, of course, activated the whole economy and not just those parts directly connected to the war effort. But why did peace stocks prices perform better? Charles J. Collins, founder of Investment Counsel, Inc., Detroit, and the man who made the studies, thinks that despite the war, peace stocks had more attraction.

"For one thing, their profits are not subject to renegotiation. For another thing, when the war ends, there is the knowledge that the bottom of the peacetime industries will continue, as against probable letdown in war industry orders," Collins explains.

It need only be added that none of this has much meaning if the war is lost. And there are not going to be many winners if peace or war stocks have to contend with World War III.

Medicare and the Provinces

Montreal Gazette

Perhaps the most interesting thing to emerge from the meeting of the provincial premiers at Fredericton has been their want of agreement on the federal proposals for medicare. The proposal of the federal Government is intended to replace a scheme next year, on July 1, is one that will have to undergo thorough reconsideration. It is what the federal Government faces is not only a difference of opinion among the premiers of the provinces: it is the even more serious fact that these provincial premiers reflect doubts that lie deep in the plan itself.

One of these doubts is whether the scheme is flexible enough to take on heavier medical burdens as this time. Premier Robich—d of New Brunswick, for example, questions whether either Ottawa or the provinces could get themselves ready for such a plan by the date proposed.

Ottawa has a shortage of doctors and medical personnel r a dically, with little prospect of Canadian universities supplying. As Gaston Rodrigue said, at a convention last year of the Quebec Hospitals Association: "Before thinking of offering more service, we must think of the personnel needs." Or as Dr. J. M. Breed, a member for Saskatchewan, said in the House of Commons: "What we are tryin: to do is to provide services from inadequate resources and this disturbs me a great deal."

Immigration Over the Years

Oshawa Times

A recent compilation of immigration figures for Canada shows:

In 1852, 29,307 persons came to Canada.

In 1906, 194,743 entered the country.

The lowest years in the list: 1859 and 1860 when the numbers were 6,300 and 6,276 respectively.

The biggest year: 1957 with 282,164 arrivals.

Immigration jumped from 47,000 in 1896 to 141,838 in 1902, then 133,624 in 1903 and 103,824 in 1904.

Between 1886 and 1902, the number dropped again, the highest figure being 91,600 in 1893. Then it rose to 128,364 in 1896.

Undoubtedly some research might furnish explanations for these fluctuations.

For instance in 1902, just after the Boer War the Revivals increased to 138,600 from 89,102 in 1901.

After the first world war, in 1919, immigrants pumbered 107,032 compared to 41,845 the year before.

After the second world war, 1946 saw 71,719 arrive compared to 22,722 the previous year; 1947 saw a reduction to 64,727, followed on a short lapse in 1961, 1962 and 1963 by a steadily climbed to the high figures shown in 1957.

Where do they all go?

Ontario shows the highest influx with 1,057,000 in 1951. Next come next with 29,198, then British Columbia with 24,746 and Alberta with 19,003. The other provinces show comparatively small numbers.

Where they come from? Great Britain, 63,293; Italy, 31,625, United States, 17,314, Germany, 15,253, Netherlands, 7,920 and France, 7,872. The smallest contingent: Iceland with 15.

Mr. Sharp's Dilemma

Winnipeg Free Press

Mr. Sharp is caught in a wrenching dilemma. If he ceases to inflate the currency interest rates will continue to rise, by the law of supply and demand, and the government will be blamed for them by every corporate or private borrower. If he continues to pump out more money from the central bank he will run the risk of raising prices even faster than his budget predicted, and will be blamed by every housewife in the land. If the American government's broad diagnosis is correct, and if the Canadian government cannot reduce its deficits either by economy or tax increases, or both, then Mr. Sharp may find himself, sooner or later, in the position of his predecessor Mr. Donald Fleming, where deficit budgets finally produced the panic currency devaluation of 1962.

Under these conditions, if they occur, it remains to be seen whether the Liberal party will have the courage to adopt the proper, painful policies when it approaches a difficult leadership convention next year, as President Johnson approaches a difficult election.

Bankers at Queen's

Cash Reserve Best Way to Influence Banks: Rasminsky

KINGSTON (CP)—The Bank of Canada will have more direct influence over the cash reserves of the chartered banks certy next year when the new Bank Act comes fully into effect, Governor Louis Rasminsky of the central bank said Tuesday.

Delivering the opening lecture at a summer school for 200 bankers from more than 50 countries at Queen's University, Mr. Rasminsky said the Bank of Canada prefers to rely primarily on the cash reserve mechanism in implementing monetary policy.

Under this mechanism, the central bank can affect the cash the chartered banks have available for lending by buying and selling securities, or transferring government cash accounts from the Bank of Canada into or out of the chartered banks.

Monetary policy involves the availability of credit or loans, and the interest rates. When the central bank wants to loosen a tight money situation it can start buying bonds on the open market which puts cash into the banking system, allowing the banks to make more loans by lowering interest rates.

Mr. Rasminsky said the Bank of Canada finds under the new Bank Act, passed this spring, that an increase in the money supply—currency in circulation and chartered bank deposits—is not as clear a monetary policy feature as it used to be.

The money supply on Aug. 2 totalled $23,626,000,000, an increase of $2,331,000,000 or more than 10 per cent in the past year.

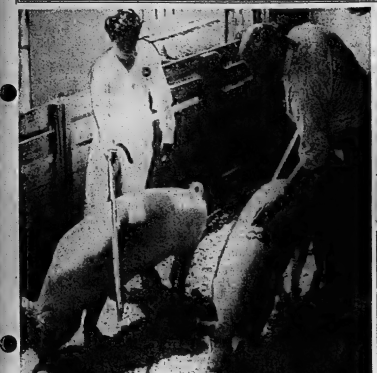
Mr. Rasminsky said that under the new act this figure now includes sums not readily available—the deposit balances the chartered banks require some borrowers to keep inactive, to compensate them for loans in addition to interest, and some Canadian dollars owned for foreign currency under agreements to convert back to Canadian dollars at a later date.

The old Bank Act required the chartered banks to keep at least eight per cent of their Canadian deposit liabilities in cash or deposited with the Bank of Canada. Under the new act this is gradually being adjusted until next February, when the cash reserve requirement will, in effect, be 6% per cent.

Under the old act, the chartered banks had to stick to the eight per cent minimum on a monthly average basis. Actually, they averaged 8.06 per cent in the first half of 1967. Under the new act, they will be required to figure their ratios on a semi-monthly basis.

"It is the view of the Bank of Canada, which I should perhaps add is not universally shared by the chartered banks, that a shorter averaging period will reduce lags in the response of the banking system to the changes in cash reserves," Mr. Rasminsky said.

The governor also said there are limitations imposed by Canada's proximity and free exchange with the United States that restrict the Bank of Canada's ability to manage monetary affairs in Canada independently.



The capital markets of the two countries are so closely linked that changes in credit conditions here can give rise to large inflows or outflows of capital.

"This is a factor that the monetary authorities must always take into account if international equilibrium is to be maintained, and it could of course be a particular limitation in view of the arrangements with the U.S. by which we have undertaken to work to certain reserve targets in exchange for exemption from the interest equalization tax for new issues of Canadian securities in the capital markets of the United States."

Moreover, tightened money conditions in Canada affect regions of the country to different degrees. They first hit house construction severely.

"If our economic goals are to be achieved a good deal of reliance must be placed on the other economic policies, including policies which are pinpointed to particular situations, that can be combined with monetary policy," Mr. Rasminsky said.

He said that while the Bank of Canada has the responsibility to help bring about credit conditions that are appropriate to this country's economic circumstances, the allocation of credit is left mainly to the competitive workings of the private sector of the financial system. This embraces the chartered banks, other financial intermediaries, and the remainder of the capital market.

Contrary Hogs Well Handled

There is an old rural saying that nothing is as contrary as a pig.

But when those same hogs are being coaxed about the show ring by experienced young 4-H club members, they don't seem quite so contrary.

There were 16 entries in the special Ontario Hog Producers show — one of three in Ontario. The others are being held later at Stratford and Owen Sound. There were three classes — heavyweight, over 204 pounds; medium weight, from 196 to 204 pounds, and lightweight, 195 or less. The two top hogs in each division are forwarded to Toronto for entry in the special carcass after slaughtering.

Yesterday's winners were heavyweight class — Myles McDonell, Stirling and Richard Stein of Woodstock. Medium weight — Brian Deroche and Stephen Loshaw; lightweight — Stephen Loshaw and Reg. Birkema.

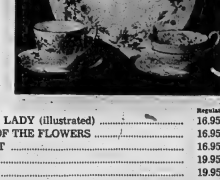
"Many men and women who do not have a secondary school graduation certificate are capable of completing successfully a wide range of college-level courses. Thousands, in fact, have done so. Placed in appropriate courses, these 'mature matriculants' frequently demonstrate a will-to-learn which far exceeds that of other students with the orthodox credentials".



"To men and women age 19 or older who have completed grade 10 and who have been out of school for one or more years, Loyalist College offers the opportunity to qualify for admission to any course for which a secondary school graduation certificate is the usual prerequisite."

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Child: "I won't know the way to school — or where to cross the street. I don't think I'll like going to school."

Mother: "I'll go with you on the first day and you'll soon learn the way."

Mother: "We'll walk up to the schoolyard the way you're supposed to go. You wait here until the light turns green and then you can go across. Jean will show you where your room is on the first day."

Prepare a child for school several weeks beforehand. Walk the route to school and point out the corners where he may cross. He will not fear a routine that is familiar.

Successful Living

Men in Armed Forces Can Be Gentlemen

Dear Doris: About the teenager who wants to join the Air Force. Her mother seems to think she would get into trouble. Well let me tell her as one whose daughter was in the services that my girl was in England, Belgium, Holland and Germany, and she came home the same way she went.

The men in the armed forces are gentlemen if a girl keeps her place. Did it ever occur to that mother that those lads went through hell to keep our head free? Did her man put on any of the uniform?

Doris, I have three sons-in-law and a grandson in uniform and I am proud of them all. If girls respect themselves, men will respect them. Look how many girls get in trouble that have not got the uniform on! If mothers would only tell their girls that their character is all that they have and money won't buy it. Maybe she measures others' corn by her own half bushel. — Proud

DORIS CLARK

Of The Uniform.

Dear Proud: "Three cheers for the red, white and blue!" — Pardon me — it's just red and white now, isn't it?

"Confidential to Dim View: You could have an advanced case of a serious eye disease like glaucoma before the symptoms would be bad enough to alarm you. Glaucoma is the major cause of all loss of sight. It is raised pressure inside the eyeball, like filling a tire too full of air. The pressure pinches the seeing nerve.

An infection or shock could start it. Since your mother had it, you may have inherited the tendency. A specialist in eye diseases can spot it right away; and if glaucoma is caught soon enough, it can be treated with success.

Dear Doris: I'm 17. I don't ever get asked out. I've wondered if boys don't ask me out because my father is a minister. Sometimes girls are afraid to say certain things in front of me because they think I'm an innocent little girl.

I don't want you to think that I'm ashamed of my father, because I'm not. I love him and Mom very much. They think I'm silly to worry and that my friends are crazy to be going out with boys.

I'd just love to meet someone special who would like me. — Sorry or Myself.

Dear Sorry: You're right. It's the halo effect.

Would Mum and dad please come down to earth with their nice, normal teen-ager long enough to put on a party at the parsonage? Then if Dad would show up and say pop with the girls and boys — for only a few minutes, mind you — things just might improve on the dating front.

Doris has studied human behavior and can shed light on your dilemma. Write to her, enclosing a stamped, private reply.

Ann Landers

Medical Checkups Stave Off Widowhood

DEAR ANN LANDERS: There are many theories on why women live longer than men. The scientific reason makes sense, but I would like to discuss what I feel is Number One. Men Won't Go To A Doctor.

ANN LANDERS

Most women have babies, which means they must see a doctor from time to time so they become accustomed to doctors and check ups. If a woman notices a danger signal she will go find out what it means. Most men are afraid of doctors and will not go to one unless they become very sick. Often, by that time, it is too late.

My own husband (age 45) never went to a doctor in his life. He had a physical before he went into the Army and that was it.

Two years ago he got it into his head that he had heart trouble. He started to drink, lost weight, couldn't sleep. He got so nervous it began to affect his work. Finally I dragged him to a doctor. He was shocked from head to toe and the doctor said he was in very good physical condition and his heart was perfect, but he was run down from worrying about the heart trouble he didn't have.

That was three weeks ago and my husband is like a new man. He said he could kick himself for behaving like a fool. Please print my letter for wives who have this problem. Maybe if they show this to their husbands it will get them to go to a doctor and stave off widowhood for 10 or 20 years. — MERCED, CALIF.

DEAR MERCED: Here's your letter — and a very good one it is. I hope the men who recognize themselves will get along and do something about it. Every husband owes it to his family to get an annual check up. The time and inconvenience is a small price to pay for better health and added years of life.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am 23, have a good job, and everyone says I have good sense. Several months ago I started to date a man who is divorced and I am pretty sure we are in love.

Last week he asked me to marry him, but because of his first bad experience he does not wish to take any more chances. He feels that we should live together a few months to see how we get along under domestic circumstances. He wants to see if I am a good cook and housekeeper, how I behave in the morning, and what my night habits are.

He says he is almost sure I will pass the test, but he wants to make certain. If I refuse to go along with his proposal, I might lose him. Yet if I agree he may tire of me and not marry me after all.

Please give me some practical advice, Ann. I want to marry this man. — 23 OR NOT 23.

DEAR B: If you want to offer yourself for a 30-day free trial, like a vacuum cleaner, go ahead, but don't expect it to enhance your chance for marriage. If anything it will diminish them.

Your proposal is not really a proposal. It is a proposition. Dummy.

Pioneer Displays Highlight Women's Division at Fair

Pioneer domestic industries featured the Women's division exhibits in the horticultural building at Belleville Fair this year.

Attics and cupboards of Hastings County have been ransacked by Women's Institute members for this displays of pioneer artifacts, china and glass. All the implements of cooking, baking, candle and butter marking are on show along with Victorian decorating accessories such as clocks and coverlets.

A rare and valuable butter print carved with the figure of a cow would make the fair admission price worthwhile to any antique buff. It is part of the Rankin WI exhibit.

In an opposite corner of the building the women directors have arranged a pioneer corner to demonstrate early domestic industry in action. Mrs. H. Harrison and Miss Helen Sulman, both in authentic period dresses, were on hand yesterday to show the many processes the pioneer woman performed on a newly shorn fleece to turn it into woolen cloth.

Proving that some of that early industriousness survives in the 20th century are the entries in the needlework and home baking, handicraft and school sections.

Typical of the women whose busy fingers turn out handcrafted articles are Mrs. L. W. Bryant and Mrs. G. R. Putnam of Wooler. For over 25 years the two women have exhibited their needlework at district faire. This year Mrs. Bryant entered 33 items and Mrs. Putnam 36. They plan to show at about 15 fall fairs before the season is over.

Coming along in the footsteps of the veterans are eight new exhibitors who have entered work for the first time this year. Donna Egleton, 13, tempted the palates of the junior division judges with her tarts. Already an old pro at the exhibiting game is Holly Walker, also 13, RR 6, Belleville, who entered about eight classes in the junior section in an attempt to repeat her performance of last year with a win in every class entered.

Special emphasis was placed this year on baked goods made or decorated suitably for centennial year. Cakes and cookies shaped into the 11 triangle motif were prominent among the entries.

MR. AND MRS. ALBERT GERALD BULL

Bull – Schamerhorn

Christ Church, Belleville, was the scene of the marriage of Sharon Elizabeth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Schamerhorn, Belleville and Albert Gerald Bull, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Bull, Belleville. Rev. Allen Lauder officiated at the ceremony Aug. 12, 1967 at 7.30 p.m. John Whithers played the wedding music and accompanied selections sung by six choir boys.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length periwinkle blue chiffon over taffeta gown styled with Empire waistline, lace bodice and detachable lace ring collar with floor length chiffon panel falling over her shoulders and arms. She wore a matching flower-wreath headdress with simulated seed pearls and short face veil and carried a cascade bouquet of pink roses and baby's breath.

Mrs. Irene Lasher, Belleville, matron of honor, wore a floor-length gown of pastel yellow peau-de-soie and carried a nosegay of yellow and white 'mums. Miss Victoria Mitchell, Toronto, bridesmaid, wore a similar gown in apple green with a nosegay of white and mint green tinted 'mums.

Howard Adamson, Belleville, was his brother-in-law's attendant and the usher was Bruce Hicks, Belleville.

To receive the guests at the reception at Johnny's Restaurant, the bride's mother was attired in a mint green lace over taffeta tent dress, white accessories and a corsage of white carnations. The bridegroom's mother chose a cornflower blue crepe sheath trimmed with Guipure lace, white accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

For her wedding trip to Peterborough and northern points, the bride chose an off-white brocaded two-piece dress with matching accessories and a yellow rose corsage. The couple will live at 35 North Park St., Belleville.

Many Requests Received For Making Freezer Jams

By MARY MOORE

Freezer jams have been an overnight success — even hundreds — of requests for releases giving the method.

Today I am giving you two more: Orange-Apricot and Plum.

FREEZER ORANGE-APRICOT JAM (six 8-oz. jars)

1½ cups unpeeled, pitted apricots, ground
1 tbsp. lemon juice
Grated rind 1 med. orange
1 cup orange pulp without any membrane
1 box Certo crystals
¾ cup water
4½ cups sugar

Grind washed, unpeeled, pitted apricots through coarse knife of grinder and measure. Add lemon juice and grated orange rind. Pare about 4 medium oranges, including the one from which you have grated the rind, and cut out the pulp, excluding all membrane. Measure. Add to apricot mixture. Stir in sugar thoroughly. Set aside.

In a small saucepan mix together the Certo crystals and water. Cook, stirring constantly, and boil, stirring 1 minute. (NOTE: This lumps a little but lumps eventually stir out.) Add to apricot-orange-sugar mixture, a ½ cup at a time, and stir 3 min. Some sugar granules will remain. Pour into 8-oz. sterile jars or eight 6-oz. sterile jars, leaving ½" headspace, and cover tightly. Let stand 24 hours at room temperature. Freeze.

FREEZER PLUM JAM

2 cups prepared ripe plums (see below)
5½ cups sugar
¾ cup water
1 box powdered pectin (Certo crystals)

Wash the plums. (I counted the number I washed. I needed 20 to make 3 cups.) Cut plums and remove stones but not skins. Chop. You must chop them or the pieces of skin will be too big. I cut each plum into about 4 little pieces. Measure 3 cups well-packed. Add ¼ cup of the water to them and bring to boil, then simmer covered for 5 min. Remove from heat. Now add the sugar and stir for 2 or 3 min. to dissolve it. In a small saucepan mix together the remaining ¼ cup water and the fruit pectin. Stir over heat until boiling and stir until it boils 1 min. Add to fruit and stir for 3 or 3 min. However, appearance is not the judges' first consideration in choosing a winner.

"I look primarily for flavor," said Mrs. Jack Vanloughnet of Napanee, one of the three cooking judges. "Texture, uniformity and appearance are secondary."

Also on display in the same building are the horticulture entries. The 4-H Homemaking Clubs have their projects, "Meat on the Menu" and "Cotton May Be Smart", set up in the Commodore Building.

WEDNESDAY

Dinner Menu

Baked Sliced Baby Beef Liver with Cream of Vegetable Soupsauce; Oven French Fries; Quick Cooked Shredded Green Cabbage; Sliced Cucumbers Vinaigrette; Fluffy Summer Applesauce; Homemade Bread and Butter; Tea.

Pour into small freezer containers or jars, cover at once with tight-fitting lids or seals. Allow to stand at room temperature for 24 hours. Then store in freezer. This will keep and freeze all winter but if you will be using the jam up within 2 or 3 weeks it may be kept in the storage part of your refrigerator.

Bringing Up Baby.

Hints Collected by Mrs. Dan Gerber, Mother of Five

GROOMING WITH A GRIN

Trimming baby's nails can be a chore at times, especially if he's a confirmed fist-clencher. Two clever-mother suggestions:

■ You might try snipping them right after a meal, when your wee one's drowsy, his fingers relaxed.

■ If baby's a steady sitter, try placing him on your lap in front of a mirror for the manicure. Self-reflected glory is absorbing.

Start to finish. Don't forget that baby cereals provide special nutritional benefits right through the toddler stage. Gerber Cereals have added iron and B-vitamins: thiamine (B1), riboflavin (B2) and niacin. All six are wonderfully delicate in flavour, so easy to mix.

Substitute plan. If your baby should occasionally rebel at a cereal, why force the issue when you can easily substitute another? With Rice Cereal, Oatmeal, Barley, Mixed Cereal, Protein Cereal Food and Mixed Cereal with Banana. It's simple to change about.

Beauty course. Whenever you give baby his oil or lotion beauty treatment, watch a few drops for the backs of your hands. Wonderfully satisfying, also helps keep cuticles soft.

Smile Center. Grins galore are usually in store for baby when you top off his main course with a Gerber Strained or Junior Custard occasionally. Delicately flavoured and delightfully smooth, any one will make a happy ending for a baby meal. Made with egg yolks and other good ingredients, they're wholesome as can be. Newest dessert surprises: Gerber Cherry-Vanilla Custard. Luscious in flavour, deep-pink in colour, it's a real smile - inducer for both babies and toddlers. Gerber Baby Foods, Niagara Falls, Canada.

CNE Women's Director Has Year-round Job

TORONTO (CP)—Ellen Jenkins receives a chatty letters about granddaughters' weddings, thank you notes and poems such as roses are red . . . the Ex is grand and we love you.

The letters and notes pour in from school children and women who have entered the Canadian National Exhibition competitions.

"People feel very personal about the Ex," says Mrs. Jenkins. As manager of the women's division, she is organizer of the annual school art and women's handicraft contests.

These, plus other duties, make her job a full-time, year-round affair.

"A large part of my CNE job is planning. I never sit at home in the evenings without a pad and pencil, never go to bed without one. It's difficult, after you've been at a job 18 years, to keep coming up with fresh ideas and stay within the budget."

Planning begins with the closing of the Ex. Her staff grows each new year from one secretary to several hundred persons.

Each season requires Mrs. Jenkins to journey across Canada and abroad in a search of talent for the exposition.

She visits schools to make sure contest subjects will fit into the curriculum. Handicraft people also get visits from Mrs. Jenkins who always considers suggestions for new craft categories.

"Sometimes we can help create an interest in a craft or an courage one like her making because it is sound. We still get more knitting than anything else."

She plans fashion shows, food displays, food demonstrations and sells space for the exposition.

Mrs. Jenkins may also be giving a boost to the tea industry. She estimates she entertains more than 25,000 women at tea during the exhibition.

Some of Mrs. Jenkins's personal likes help her at work.

"I am very interested in fashion, and to be abreast of that is a constant thing.

"I'm terribly interested in art and young people and all the things that deal with women. I'm a very enthusiastic cook, and bring back menus from other countries. I wanted to do a CNE cook book—not an original idea, I admit—but my board nearly fainted at the idea."

Mrs. Jenkins belongs to the sports committee, the Toronto Fashion Group, the Women's Press Club and served for two years with the women's advisory committee of the provincial department of economics and development.

Before joining the CNE in 1953, Mrs. Jenkins was a television announcer, a fashion writer, editor of a fashion magazine and taught handicrafts for the YWCA.

Hearing Adjourned

Trio Ask to See Transcripts of Securities' Evidence

TORONTO (CP)—Demands for transcripts of evidence given to the Ontario Securities Commission were heard Tuesday at the preliminary hearing of three Toronto men charged with conspiring to defraud the public of $100,000,000.

The demands were made by two of the accused, Myer Rush, 43, a stock promoter, and Joseph Williams, 58, a lawyer. Also charged in connection with the sale of shares in Darien Explorations and British Overseas Mutual Funds is Manuel Brittone, 49.

The hearing was but short and adjourned until today to give the commission time to consider the demands.

Anthony Bazos, legal counsel for Mr. Rush, claimed he is entitled to cross-examine on previous evidence.

"I have to have the documents. I think the Securities Commission is a party to the action." Mr. Williams, not represented by counsel, made a personal appeal for similar consideration.

Both accused claimed they were handicapped in cross-examination without transcripts of the evidence given the commission.

Mr. Bazos said that as the charge is a joint one, he should be able to study documents seized from Mr. Brittone and Mr. Williams.

H. E. Langford, commission chairman, said the documents are in the custody of the court. "The only question is whether we let you have transcripts of evidence by witnesses at this trial," Mr. Langford said.

Mr. Bazos said that if his demands are "not met, he will seek a ruling from a higher court.

Joseph Taylor, an aluminum siding salesman from Kingston, Ont., testified earlier that he began selling stock when asked by Mr. Rush to handle shares of Darien Explorations by telephone.

Rush, Williams and Bristone have been charged in connection with the sale of shares in Darien Explorations and British Overseas Mutual Funds.

Taylor said he was provided with a list of potential buyers and told to inform them the company was "digging on one of its holdings and expected a substantial find there" and to suggest that Darien which sold for 15 to 60 cents, might "in a period of time be substantially higher."

He said prospective buyers were lured by expectations the company would find gold, copper or industrial diamonds.

He testified that he made four to six calls a day to the U.S. and received about $1,500 in commissions.

After about two months, he said, Rush advised him the sale of Darien stock was being stopped.

Nearly Blind Student Top Scholar

TORONTO (CP) — Gordon Legge, a 19-year-old nearly-blind Toronto student is the top scholar among the 46,000 Ontario students who this June wrote the last provincially-set Grade 13 examinations.

Gordon, who lost most of his sight 13 years ago through illness, had an average of 97.5 on his seven best papers.

He scored 95 in mathematics A, 100 in mathematics B, 99 in physics, 96 in English, 96 in chemistry and 91 in history.

"I'm utterly amazed and astounded," he declared on hearing the news.

Gordon, a student at the University of Toronto Schools, used braille on six exams. He plans to attend Massachusetts Institute of Technology in the fall.

The department of education said Tuesday 80 per cent of candidates passed the exams. Some 2,300 won $400 Ontario Scholarships by obtaining 80 per cent or more on seven credits.

Close behind Gordon was another Toronto student, Jane Lownsbrough, 18, whose average was 96.0.

This is the last year for province-wide Grade 13 finals. They have been abolished by the department of education; to relieve the pressure on students and to make the year a better preparation for university.

Entrance to university will in future be based on the student's previous record and tests indicating his potential to succeed in higher education.

Results for most schools in the province were expected to be available today.

Library Is Working Tool

TORONTO (CP)—A modern library has to be more than a status symbol preserving the heritage of the past, the International Federation of Library Associations was told Tuesday.

Dr. Herman Liebaers of the Bibliotheque Royale in Belgium read the address for IFLA president Sir Frank Francis who is ill.

"We must stress the importance of the library as an up-to-date working tool; as one of the major weapons in the struggle against illiteracy and the fight for economic development."

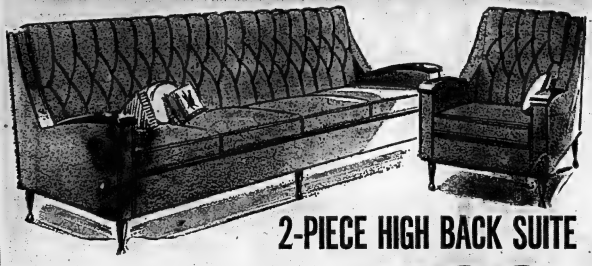
Plan New Well

EDMONTON (CP) — Pan-American Petroleum Corp. has announced it plans to build a gas processing and sulphur plant at Bigstone Creek, 175 miles northwest of the Alberta capital. The installation will cost $15,000,000 and turn out 17,000,000 cubic feet of natural gas a day.

Can't Name Right Team, Pays Fine

PEMBROKE (CP)—A Petawawa soldier discovered Tuesday that one sure way of getting a conviction on an impaired driving charge is to name Pittsburgh as a National Hockey League team.

Harry E. Pearce was fined $75 an costs when he failed to satisfy Magistrate S. C. Plaxton he knew who was playing April 21 shortly before his car was stopped on Pembroke Street and he was charged with being impaired.



Pearce told the court he had drunk four pints of beer at a nearby hotel while watching a hockey playoff game on television.

"Who was playing that night," asked Magistrate Plaxton. "Chicago or Pittsburgh?"

"Pittsburgh," replied Pearce.

He paid the fine.

'Copters and Boats Carry 10,000 From Flooded Alaskan City

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP)—Helicopters and river boats, moving past dangling power lines, carried 10,000 Alaskans to safety from this city when fast deep in floodwater, and the danger of fire posed a new element of disaster today.

Three persons were known dead in the flood that Governor Walter Hickel said will have greater impact on the state than the Good Friday earthquake of March, 1964. "Every piece of property has been touched," he said.

Firefighters, blocked by deep and swift running water, watched helplessly as six buildings burned in the downtown area Tuesday.

Mayor H. A. Boucher warned: "If anything major breaks out we'd need a fireboat to fight it and Fairbanks doesn't have a fireboat."

Weather forecasters predicted some rain late today as the Chena River, which loops through this city of 30,000, ran up to nine feet deep in the heart of the downtown business district, spilling the waters that it accumulated during four days of rain.

Even if there was no more rain, one forecaster said, it would take days for the river just to return to the flood level.

Planes brought rations, medicine, typhoid serum for 40,000 people, and federal disaster and rescue personnel including doctors, nurses and Red Cross workers. The army set up water purification units and handed out rations to refugees.

A house-to-house check of every building in the flooded sections of the city—that included virtually all of Fairbanks—was started Tuesday.

Boucher estimated the check would continue until well into Thursday but said most people stranded on roofs of houses and business houses had been rescued by nightfall Tuesday.

The mayor, who estimated total damages starting at $150,000,000 to $200,000,000, said about 10,000 people were moved to evacuation centres by helicopters and boats.

Hickel said mass evacuation of the city was being considered "because there will be no way to feed or house all of the residents" if they remain where they are.

But immediate mass evacuation was thought impossible because all roads and railways were blocked by flood. Only the Fairbanks International Airport remained open for emergency commercial and military flights.

The only telephone communication with the city was to a heavily-monitored Alaska communications system building, where disaster headquarters were set up.

Boucher estimated that 75 per cent of the business establishments suffered major damage. Only a few homes were spared heavy damage, and none were reported crumbling from the pressure of the floodwaters.

Final Votes Cast by Sailors on Inland Shipping Strike

MONTREAL (CP)—Sailors in Fort William and Port Arthur, Ont. cast their ballots today on an inland shipping strike called for noon Thursday against "an industry lagging 30 years behind the times."

The Ontario voters are the final 20 per cent of 5,400 Seafarers' International Union members marking their ballots and do so too late to change the course of events.

Seafarers in ports from Halifax to Toronto have already put the pro- strike vote well over the needed two-thirds majority.

Barring an unanticipated last-minute settlement, union officials intend to announce the decision to strike formally late today.

The 5,400 seafarers will walk off an estimated 180 lake carriers operated by 22 shipping companies whose spokesmen say the industry is unable to afford the Seafarers' demand for a 40-hour work week and improved conditions.

And they will halt about 82 per cent of cargo passing over the Great Lakes, including ore shipments that at this time of year are about the most important bulk items carried by the long ships.

Overseas grain and wheat shipments—seriously affected by last summer's 39-day longshoremen's strike—now are moving through Churchill, Man., and should escape the scheduled strike unless it lasts well into the fall.

An SIU spokesman said the two big stumbling blocks to any agreement remain the union's 40-hour-week demand and a request for elimination of a work-spread system that keeps sailors on call for 24-hour periods.

Also important was the Seafarers' request that overtime worked in excess of 48 hours be "banked" while the men are aboard ship and taken as paid holidays when their vessel reaches port.

The SIU has announced approval of conciliation board recommendations of a 35-per-cent wage and fringe benefit increase spread over three years.

But Benjamin Truax, chief negotiator for the company, says union leaders demand closer to 55 per cent when talking to the company in private.

Racism Rampant ---King

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—Rev. Martin Luther King Jr., describing the United States Congress as "wild with racism," said Tuesday his organization is considering a massive Negro sweep-out in Washington as part of a new campaign of civil disobedience in the racial struggle.

"I think we've got to do something before Congress adjourns," King said at a news conference after proposing a mass civil disobedience in a speech to the Southern Christian Leadership Conference.

King said he has in mind taking people from Mississippi and camping in the capital and refusing to move or act until action is taken to alleviate slum conditions and economic deprivation of Negroes.

King, president of the SCLC which opened its 10th annual convention Tuesday, said he could not go into detail about the civil disobedience proposal. He said SCLC executive staff members will meet in the next three weeks to map a program.

"Our real problem is that there is no disposition by the administration or Congress to seek fundamental remedies beyond police measures," said King.

Quebec Can Decide Pensions

QUEBEC (CP)—Premier Daniel Johnson said Tuesday it is not up to the prime minister of Canada to decide whether Quebec establishes its own old age pension.

At a news conference before a regular session of the provincial cabinet, he said Quebec has the authority to create its own pension system.

He said a bill to set up a Quebec pension plan has been prepared.

The premier said he has not yet read Prime Minister Pearson's letter which turned aside Quebec's request to take over from the federal government responsibility for old age pensions.

Mr. Johnson said:

"All I have to say today is that the right of the province of Quebec or any other province to legislate in this field is not subject to any authority, even that of the prime minister of Canada."

'Habitat' Could Be Living Lab

TORONTO (CP)—The chairman of the International Group for Studies in National Planning suggested Tuesday that planners should concentrate on building the "city of man" rather than "the city of things."

Prof. Bertram Gross told the 10-day world conference on urban problems meeting here that cities should become ideal centres for the activities of men but planners cannot build such cities unless they involve the people who live in them in the planning process.

Prof. Gross, director of the national planning studies program at Syracuse University, suggested that Toronto should buy Habitat, the $10,500,000 experimental housing project at Expo 67, and turn it into the world's first laboratory for human living.

The University of Toronto would fill Habitat with married students and their children and test their reactions to living there, he said.

The conference, sponsored by the Toronto-based Bureau of Municipal Research, ends today. It brought together planners, researchers, economists, architects and politicians from 40 of the world's largest metropolitan areas.

Vancouver Businessman Slain in Office

VANCOUVER (CP)—One of Vancouver's better known businessmen and community workers was shot and killed by three bullets in his office Tuesday. His brother is to appear in magistrate's court today on a charge of capital murder.

Jack Dietrich, 48, was arrested in the office of Dietrich-Colliss Equipment Ltd. after the firm's president, 51-year-old Fred H. Dietrich, was found dead.

A man had driven up to the building, walked into the office, pulled a small automatic pistol and fired three shots.

All three bullets struck Fred Dietrich in the chest, one reaching his heart. He slumped to the floor just as a company vice-president, John Rosenvik, rushed into the office.

City prosecutor Stewart McMorran said the shooting followed an apparent financial dispute.

Company employees said the man who entered the office just before the shots were fired had been a frequent visitor in the last few weeks.

Fred Dietrich was vice-president and a director of the Bank of British Columbia, a governor of Simon Fraser University, vice-president of the Canadian Forestry Association, and president of the Junior Forest Wardens of Canada.

He also was a director of the Boys' Clubs of Canada and a past-president of the Boys' Clubs of Vancouver. He was a director of Big Brothers of B.C. day. Funeral plans have not been announced.

Fred Dietrich leaves his wife, Elizabeth, daughter Mary Lee, sons Gary Scott and John Hawthorne and his widowed mother.

Pope Issues Call For Prayer

CASTEL GANDOLFO, Italy (AP)—Pope Paul called Tuesday for prayers to bring peace to Vietnam and to combat the rise of evil forces in the world.

He told several hundred pilgrims at his summer residence that concepts of peace and brotherhood are threatened by dangerous decadence.

The Pope also condemned "the cult of force, the school of terrorism and revolution in one's own and other countries, contempt for others' lives, egoism in international relations, the spirit of reprisal and vendetta."

Gold Smuggling Finances Riots by Reds

LONDON (AP)—Scotland Yard officials believe they are on the trail of an international gold smuggling ring financing Chinese Communist terrorism and rioting in Hong Kong, police sources said today.

Sub-machine-guns, rifles, revolvers, ammunition and moulds for counterfeit coins were uncovered in raids Thursday in a Bedfordshire farmhouse and in a bakery shop in Middlesex.

Sources said detention of several British businessmen who make regular trips abroad is planned. Messages were dispatched to Interpol and other police forces in continental Europe and in the Far East.

Former British speedway ace Francis Waterman, 45, and his fiancee, Avril Priston, 28, were charged Tuesday with attempted illegal exportation of gold. Customs officers stripped Waterman's car as it was about to be taken aboard a French ferry at Newhaven, England. They found £10,000 ($20,000) in gold bars.

British intelligence reports show that recent troubles and riots in the British colony of Hong Kong have doubled the price of gold on the black market. The bullion is said to be urgently needed to help finance the Communist-led rioting against British colonial authority and to supply arms and ammunition.

More than 3,000 persons have been arrested on charges of terrorism and rioting, and Hong Kong police have smashed dozens of Communist headquarters and hideouts, seizing large stores of weapons and explosives.

Police raided the red-brick country house at Bedfordshire and found there gunpowder of arms and counterfeiting and other forgery equipment from the house and by experts.

Police were watched with shells known to have been used in some of England's biggest armed gold thefts.

Officers collected dies for which were seized and examined

At dawn Tuesday, Bullets and outbuildings.

At the bakery, in northern suburbs of London, metal cruciples that can be used for smelting gold bullion has been retrieved.

More than £1,000,000 ($2,800,000) worth of gold bullion has been stolen in London alone in the last three years. Little

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League
Eastern Ontario Club

QUESTION: We are planning a trip next week through the Bruce Peninsula to Tobermory and would like to carry on to Manitoulin Island. Could you tell us if there is a ferry, times, cost, etc.

ANSWER: The S.S. Norisle, and M.S. Norgoma both sail from Tobermory daily. The schedule from June 23 to Sept. 4 is as follows: leaves Tobermory 7:00 a.m., 11 a.m., 3 p.m., and 7 p.m.

Leaves South Bay Mouth 7:00 a.m., 11 a.m., 3 p.m., and 7 p.m.

The trip one way takes 2 hours.

There are extra trips on Friday and Saturday until Sept. 2, leaving at 10.30 p.m.

The rates are: passengers, 3.15 one way; children 5 and under 12, $1.45; under 5 free, automobiles $6.30; Trailers empty or loaded with small boats or tourist effects under 12 feet in overall length $6.50; boats, canoes and luggage carriers, $1.75. If you have a larger trailer or boat trailer you must phone for reservations as they are only carried on the Norisle. Phone 2212, Tobermory Ferry Dock.

It is not necessary to make reservations ahead for automobiles, but, if desired, they may be made for the last scheduled sailing each day.

There are staterooms and dining rooms aboard each ferry. The rates for staterooms are: Overnight berth, double occupancy $3.45 each, single overnight berths, $6.90; and 2-berth stateroom for crossing only, $2.30.

If you wish to cross over to the north shore and come home by Highway 17 there is also a ferry from Meldrum Bay to Red River.

QUESTION: We are considering spending our holidays exploring the Gaspe Peninsula. Is there a provincial park with camping facilities? We would be most grateful for any information you could give us on this area of Canada.

ANSWER: This is a delightful spot, and well worth spending some time exploring it.

The Gaspe Peninsula, the site of Jacques Cartier's landing in Canada, remained almost unknown until the early 20th century. Once this section of Quebec, first settled by Frenchmen from the Breton coast, could be reached only by boat. Since villages were linked by footpaths and contact with the "outside" was infrequent, the people of Gaspe developed their own culture and customs.

Today, however, a highway skirts the peninsula. On the northern coast, old French villages cling to the shoreline and are isolated from their neighbors by gigantic cliffs. The section of the trip from Ste. Flavie to Perce offers most interesting scenery, with Baie des Chaleurs on the one side breaking up into a great many bays and sandy beaches.

Four public fishing streams on the peninsula are the Matane, part of the St. Jean, Port Daniel and the Cascapedia.

We would suggest that you cross to the south shore at Levis, take Highway 2 (Trans-Canada) to Riviere - du - loup, continuing down the coast on Highway 10, to Ste. Flavie. Then take Highway 6 to Ste.-Anne-des-Monts, where there is a road inland along the Ste. Anne River into the Gaspesian Park, which could be your headquarters.

The Gaspesian Park, covering a mountain area of 1,300 square miles, includes the Shickshock Mountains whose peaks rise more than 4,000 feet.

An impressive view of the countryside is available from Mont Albert (3,900 feet). The top of the mountain is a sanctuary for caribou, which frequent the area in the late summer. There are daily excursions from Riviere a Claude on Highway 6 to the top of Mont Jacques Cartier (4,300 feet).

Camp grounds, accommodations, fishing and guides are available. Information and reservations may be acquired from Gaspesian Park Office, Gaspe P.Q.

Mounties Were Mum

HAY RIVER, N.W.T. (CP) —Donald Taylor told a one-man royal commission Tuesday that the Hay River RCMP detachment regularly refused to give him information in his capacity as an editor and reporter.

Mr. Taylor, a 37-year-old bachelor, is editor and owner of the weekly newspaper Tapwe here.

He said the Mounties would simply give the excuse that "we don't want the story in the paper."

The royal commission was sparked by articles in Tapwe which alleged irregularities in the administration of justice in this area 700 miles north of Edmonton.

Tattoo Preview Is Given

OTTAWA (CP)—Parliament Hill echoed to the roar of musket and cannon and the wail of the bagpipes over the noon hour Tuesday as the Canadian armed forces treated tourists and lunching civil servants to a half-hour summary of their touring military tatoo.

ONE HOUR

Small Town Policing Is Studied

MOUNT FOREST, Ont. (CP) —The future policing of Mount Forest depends on the completion of a province-wide study of small police forces.

The Ontario Police Commission has told council that the OPP will not take over policing here on a permanent basis "at the present time."

The commission recommended the town form its own municipal force.

R. P. Milligan, commission chairman, said Tuesday the commission will make recommendations on take-overs when the study is complete.

OPP have been assisting the town's only officer (two other members of the three-man force resigned) for about a month.

Legislation has been passed permitting the OPP to take over policing of towns up to 5,000 population and with up to five-man forces.

Mount Forest has a population of about 3,000.

Senator Morse Sees Pentagon Taking Over Foreign Policy

WASHINGTON (CP-AP) — President Johnson's Vietnam critics and backers are to testify, by Admiral U.S. Grant Sharp, U.S. Pacific commander, the emergence of a new administration position that the Vietnamese war can be won only through heavier bombing of the North.

Critics view the heavier bombing as a policy shift ending hopes for a negotiated settlement, which backers called it more likely to make North Vietnam agree to peace.

Senator Wayne Morse (Dem. Ore.), one of Johnson's severest Vietnam critics, saw grave misgivings in the role the military is taking in determining U.S. foreign policy.

He warned in an interview Tuesday: "The Pentagon is taking over foreign policy. We are near a military takeover. Despite the charades of democracy with which they clothe it, a military takeover is not impossible in this country."

Johnson remained publicly uncommitted on Sharp's contention the ground war in the South is defensive in nature and on the argument that heavier bombing offers the best chance of getting North Vietnam to talk peace.

But the release of testimony by Sharp that the war must be won by air attacks on supply and infiltration targets convinced many senators that his views had full White House approval.

Chairman John Stennis, (Dem. Miss.) made public Tuesday testimony taken in a closed session of his Senate preparedness subcommittee Aug. 8 in which the admiral said:

"We must continue these operations in the North. They are the offensive element of our strategy. No war is ever brought to a successful conclusion by defensive action alone."

Chairman J. W. Fulbright of the Senate foreign relations committee said release of Sharp's full testimony by the Pentagon after the subcommittee had rejected a previous heavily-censored version indicated the administration is taking the position the war can be ended only by bombing the North.

"This evidently means more and bigger bombings, precluding any possibility of a lull which might invite any offer for negotiations," the Arkansas Democrat said.

Senator Gaylor Nelson (Dem.-Wis.), long-time critic of Johnson's handling of the war, said he thinks the bombings have not been effective. He added: "I don't see any way we can win this war."

But Senate Republic Leader Everett M. Dirksen, a Vietnam policy backer, told a press conference that if the United States destroys vital enemy targets in the North the guerrillas may have to fold up in the South.

"If you want to lick 'em, probably that's the best way," he said.

Michigan Governor George Romney, a potential republican presidential nominee in 1968, told a Lansing, Mich., press conference he doubts the bombings will force North Vietnam to the conference table.

Romney said he thought it was a mistake for the United States ever to have become entangled in Vietnam, "and I think it would have been better if we had never become involved."

Canada's Position Explained

OTTAWA (CP)—The Soviet position on Vietnam is "not black and white," Prime Minister Pearson said Tuesday.

The Canadian position is not, the prime minister added at a news conference, and said he had made that clear to visiting Deputy Premier Dmitri Polyansky.

Mr. Pearson disclosed that he has been corresponding with Russian Premier Kosygin regularly for the last two years. The latest letter from Moscow was delivered to him personally Monday by Mr. Polyansky, "a very friendly and very vigorous man."

The prime minister said in his latest letter Mr. Kosygin expressed pleasure at the development of Canada-Russian relations. It had also restated the Soviet position on the Middle East.

Mr. Pearson said he and Mr. Polyansky discussed Vietnam and the Middle East.

On the latter, the two agreed that Israeli forces should be withdrawn from occupied Arab territory, and that Israel should be recognized by the Arab states and its borders made secure.

However, Russia felt withdrawals of forces should precede recognition and boundary security; Canada felt they should be simultaneous.

Mr. Pearson said Russian arms shipments to Egypt had been mentioned in his talks with Mr. Polyansky but that he would not go beyond that.

The prime minister said that so far there has been no interference in trade between Canada and China despite something approaching chaos and anarchy there.

No one seemed to know what was happening over in Canton, which was near Hong Kong.

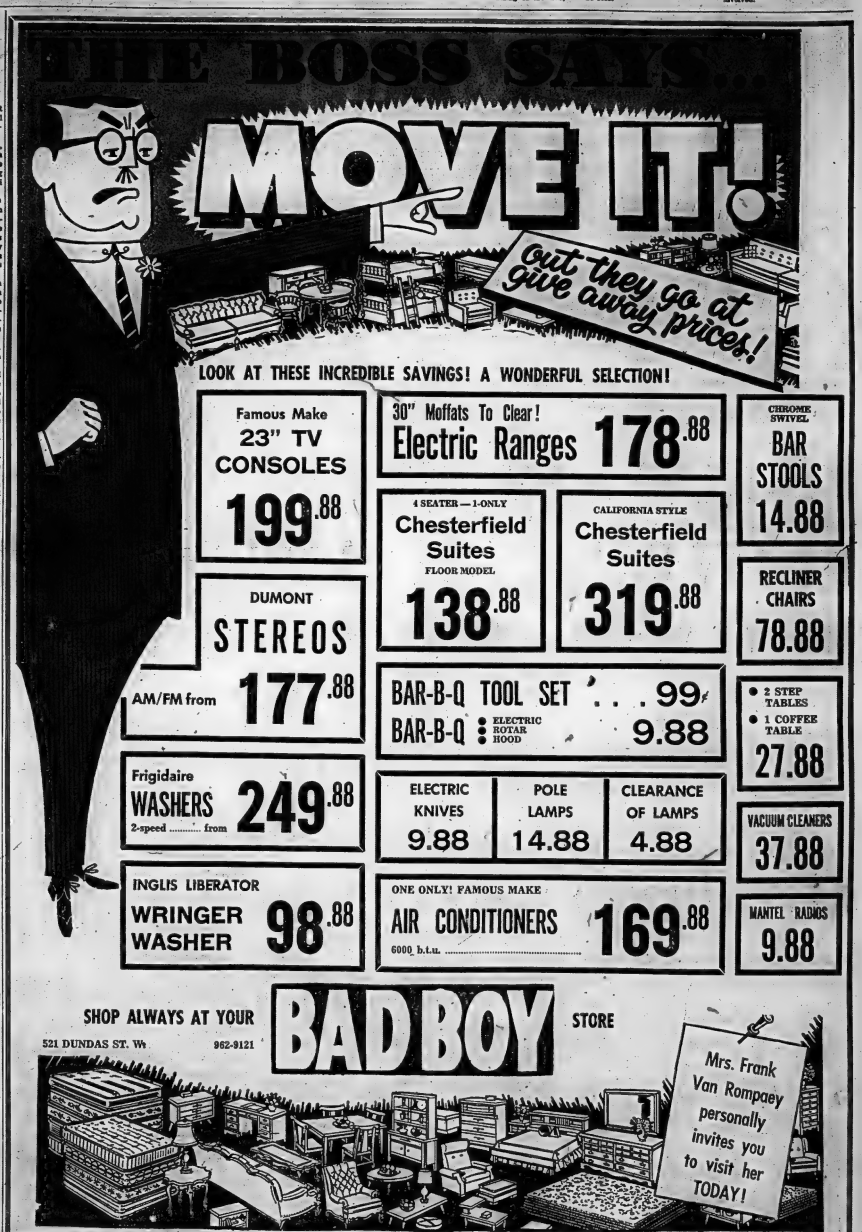
Mr. Pearson warned that normal Spade relations could not be counted on "with that kind of chaos."

Minimum Pensions Doubled

TORONTO (CP)—The average salary gain for women public school teachers in Ontario this year was between $500 and $1,000, Dorothy Martin, executive secretary, told the Federation of Women Teachers' Associations of Ontario Tuesday.

The 27,000-member federation achieved a long-term goal, Miss Martin said, when the provincial government increased the minimum pension for teachers in Jantary. It was doubled to $1,200.

The federation sent nearly $34,000 to teachers in Quebec to help them fight Bill 25, passed by the Quebec legislature in February, she said. The bill restricts teachers' right to strike.



Federation president Melba Woolley of Ottawa told delegates the challenge facing teachers in the next decade is the need to experiment and the need for fresh thinking about teaching.

Youths Row Across Erie

COLCHESTER, Ont. (CP)—Two tired Ohio youths were sleeping in a police constable's garage here Tuesday night after crossing Lake Erie in two days of "hard rowing."

Police constable Robert Lang of Ontario Provincial Police detachment here, 30 miles southeast of Windsor, said the two youths—Edward Neal, 18, of Cleveland Michael Kerwin, 16, of Shaker Heights—left Sandusky, Ohio, at 8 a.m. Monday.

The two said they had crossed Lake Erie "to see what the other side looked like."

Babies-All 91-Gurgle, While Judges Ogle

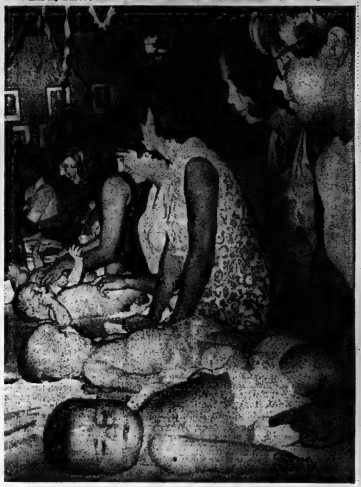
By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

The gurgle and coo set had its day at Belleville Fair Tuesday and a very young woman got in the last word.

She was Miss Susan Ruth Bate, winner of the championship ribbon in the baby show.

The 12-months-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Bate, 33 Applewood Dr., Belleville, topped 91 other competitors, aged three to 18 months, for the honor.

The young contestants good naturedly submitted to undressing, weighing and measuring by the three judges, registered nurses Mrs. Doreen Frederick, Mrs. Doreen Hackett and Mrs. Annita Storms, all of Belleville. Assisting were Mrs. D. Deryaw and Mrs. O. Hansen of the St. John Ambulance Brigade. Mrs. Harry Rollins was in charge.



Only two sets of twins were entered this year. The winning pair was Christopher and Anthony Angelo, three-month-old sons of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Angelo, 85 Goldale Rd., Belleville.

Other winners were: boys, 3 to 6 months, Michael Isaacus, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Isaacus, Belleville; boys, 7 to 12 months, Robert Dale Montgomery, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Montgomery, Stirling; boys 13 to 18 months, Steven Douglas Butler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert D. Butler, Belleville; girls, 3 to 6 months, Kimberley Lynn Clapp, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Clapp, Belleville; girls 7 to 12 months, Susan Ruth Bate, the champion; and girls, 13 to 18 months, Christine Anne Mofina, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Mofina, Belleville.

Tammy and Terry Davenport, seven-month-old twin daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Davenport, Belleville, find a way to relieve the tedium of waiting to be judged at Belleville Fair's baby show Tuesday afternoon.

Lined Up for Inspection

Only a few squawks of protest were heard yesterday afternoon as mothers undressed their babies for judging at Belleville Fair's baby show.

SPORTS SLICES

By Geo. H. Carver
Sports Editor

Ken Carr-Brisbil, coach of Canada's national weightlifting team arrived home for the Pan-American Games in Winnipeg this week a little disappointed but with some rather vivid impressions on Canadian amateur sports.

In view of the competition, Carr-Brisbil said, "without making excuses we did a pretty fair job" and brome medal and narrowly missed another silver."

Said Ken: — "The Americans were our big competition as they were in other sports. Most of them start giving university scholarships we are going to stay a long way behind them."

"I do not mean to suggest something for nothing," Carr-Brisbil pointed out, "rather that if a boy shows promise and his marks are good then a scholarship should be available in his chosen sport."

"The proof of the pudding is in the eating," he went on, "and one only has to look to find out that some of our top athletes are in university south of the border — or have been there. To name a few, Dave Steen, shot put; George Pace, track sprint and discus; Harry Jerome, sprints, Sue McDonnell, gymnastics."

"University scholarships are one way of helping our limping amateur sports program."

"One of the things that rankles" me," Ken said, "and I got a lot of it afterwards — why didn't we do better? An event like the Games is complex and very difficult to answer broadly."

"There are a lot of reasons," he said, "one is that in Europe there is as much emphasis on doing well in sports as doing well in school — and that nasty word "drop-out" isn't taken so badly. The sports programs in schools are well developed instead of always being low man on the"totem pole as they are here."

Carr-Brisbil feels that more people in Europe are interested in all sports as a whole than here and audience participation in sports is much greater to grow.

"One thing I am sure of," he said, "is that next year our country forges ahead just a little bit, just enough to be encouraging, and this is probably what keeps Europe following the myself going — and that much more before we stop and somebody else carries on."

Ken, I believe, has hit the nail on the head regarding amateur sports in Europe and this side of the pond. I also feel considerable credit is due the Canadian national team "did not do better" but it should be remembered that we (Canada) were up against the best in Europe and South America. To get even a silver and bronze medal in face of the sort of competition is something worth while.

Carr-Brisbil has done a magnificent job in his chosen field of sport. From a small city to a small city ,so to speak, he has developed British Empire and national champions, no mean feats in any man's sport.

I can understand the man's disappointment in the Canadian scene after seeing and experiencing the results of national backing of amateur sport in foreign countries.

And I agree with his opinion that a youngster prolific in sport as well as education should be given encouragement as far as university scholarships are concerned.

In this day and age, as a late former Belleville mayor once put it a dozen years ago, "The time is coming when a boy will need a Grade 13 diploma to get a job as a hotel elevator boy." No truer prediction was ever made.

While it is perhaps true that sports superstars are born not made, there are a heiress lot of youngsters who could go a long way in the realm of athletics if they were given the proper financial and other encouragements.

Senior A Hockey

A's Fire Ted Power

WOODSTOCK (CP) — Woodstock Athletics Tuesday fired Ted Power as playing coach and named Don MacGregor to succeed him.

General manager-vice president Grover McCardle said, "we've been OHA champions twice, been to the Eastern Canadian finals and the Allan Cup finals. . . . but we've never won it all. Frankly, I think we will this year."

Power served four seasons as playing coach of the A's after leaving Chatham where he helped the Maroons win the Allan Cup in 1960.

"If I said -I wasn't disappointed with their decision I'd be lying," said Power, a 15-year veteran of senior hockey.

"The team executive and me myself had a few disagreements over the capabilities certain players and that's probably what made them decide to change coaches.

MacGregor, a defenceman, was a teammate of Power at Chatham when they won the Canadian senior title in '60. He played in Woodstock last year.

Trenton Sprinter Wins Award

OTTAWA (CP)—A 19-year-old sprinter from the Canadian Forces base at Trenton, Ont., captured the NATO Cup as the top individual champion at the first annual Canadian armed forces national track and field championships Tuesday.

LAC Harold Hendee, a native of Montreal, won the 100-, 220- and 440-yard dashes at the championships. His times were 10.2 seconds in the 100, 22.8 in the 220 and 51.9 in the 440.

Meeder, with his three first-place finishes, led the southern Ontario zone to the zone championship. Northern Ontario was second followed by the combined Alberta and Yukon zone.

Training Command based in Winnipeg won the command-level championship. Mobile Command, St. Hubert, Que., was a close second and Air Transport Command, Trenton, third.

Lieut. Dave Dorman, 25, of Winnipeg was the standout competitor in field events. He captured the long jump with a distance of 22 feet, four and one-quarter inches, and the high jump by leaping six feet, one inch.

Minor Softball

Canadians won the East Hill championship in BMSA tyke by defeating Ellarmon Hornets 9-4.

The final banter standings have Jets first with 15 points, AC travellers and Selah Construction a close second with 14, and Aces trailing in last with 4.

Goofs Lead To Touchdowns

Stamps Crush Fumbling Roughies

CALGARY (CP)—Calgary Stampeders crushed the Grey Cup champion Saskatchewan Roughriders 36-10 in a Western Football Conference game Tuesday night and moved into a first-place tie in the WFC with Winnipeg Blue Bombers and the Riders, each with two wins.

Calgary capitalized on Saskatchewan errors for six victory. Saskatchewan fumbled five times and each fumble led to a Calgary score.

Playing before a record crowd of 32,046 at McMahon Stadium, Calgary quarterback Peter Liske displayed some of the form lacking when the Stampeders dropped a 27-16 decision to the Blue Bombers in Winnipeg last week.

Liske threw two touchdown passes to Herman Harrison and one to Gerry Shaw. He also sent Bob Parsons in for a touchdown on a 43-yard pass-and-run play. Art Cross scored the ACs' Calgary touchdown after recovering a fumble on a punt. Bill Goode converted three of the touchdowns and kicked two singles and Jim Furlong kicked one single in addition to the rest of the Calgary scoring.

Saskatchewan's only touchdown came when 260-pound defensive lineman Ed McQueen picked off a Liske pass and rambled 67 yards to score. Jack Abendschan added a field goal and conversion to round out the Riders' scoring.

The Stampeders rolled up 122 yards on the ground and Liske completed 23 of 37 passes for another 321 yards. The Riders gained 71 yards along the ground and 211 through the air.

Saskatchewan quarterback Ron Lancaster completed 13 of 25 passes.

Action in the Canadian Football League continues tonight with Toronto Argonauts meeting the winless British Columbia Lions in Vancouver and Ottawa Rough Riders playing the Rouge-Men in Winnipeg.

B.C. Lions coach Dave Skrien will have to do some improving in his lineup for the encounter with the Argonauts.

Ted Gerela, rookie place-kicking specialist and halfback, sprained an ankle during practice. Other Lions are suffering from assorted bruises and bumps.

Jim Young, halfback who was with Minnesota Vikings of the National Football League before joining the Lions this year, is also on the limp. Young sprained his foot when the Lions were dumped by Saskatchewan last Friday.

Five Argonauts will be having a homecoming when they meet the Lions in Vancouver tonight. Dick Fouts, RB, Frank Bill Symons, Bob Swift and Mel Profit all have served time with the Lions and they will be out to prove their victory over Montreal in the Eastern Conference opening game was not a fluke.

In Winnipeg, the focus will be on quarterback Kenny Ploen as defensive back Norm Rauhaus, both out to reach medical milestones.

to do is overplain six passes to reach the 2,000 mark.

An interception for Rauhaus will make him the all-time Blue Bomber pass defender.

CPGA Tournament

Fires 65 To Capture Pro-Am

ST. CHATINES, Ont. (CP)—Adrien Bigras of Montreal fired a seven-under-par 65 Tuesday to be teamed with Don Littler of London, Ont., to capture the pro-am competition before the Canadian Professional Golfers' Association championship.

Bigras' performance over the par-72 course was matched by Moe Norman of Barrie, Ont., and Bob Breen of Toronto, but neither Norman nor Breen could match the heat-belt 65 turned in by the winners.

Littler, an insurance executive, won a new set of clubs and a bag for his efforts. Bigras received $250, first prize for the professionals.

Norman and Bob Panther, Earl Campbell of St. Catharines, tied George Knudson of Toronto and his amateur partner, Peter Hardy of London, Ont., for second in the best-ball competition.

The pro-am tournament helped set the stage for the 54-hole CPGA championship which begins Thursday.

Despite withdrawal Tuesday by touring pro Al Balding of Toronto and five others, a record field of 214 is ready for the opening. The old record was 208 in the 1962 championship at Whitby.

Balding dropped out to play in the Insurance Open at Hartford, Conn., a regular stop on the United States pro tour.

With Balding out, Knudson becomes the only regular touring pro in the CPGA field.

Balding was forced to enter the insurance Open to qualify for all PGA tournaments in the U.S. next year. The top 60 money-winners are exempt from qualifying and Balding is within reach.

The other five scratches from the CPGA were Dennis Gauthier, Montreal, Bob Brocker, Brantford, Ont., Ken Jacobs, Toronto, Harry Mulligan, East Aylmer, Que., and Clayton Robb, Prince Albert, Sask.

Canadian Amateur

Champions Tee Off!

VICTORIA (CP)—Several international champions teed off against each other today as match play began in the Canadian amateur golf tournament.

The first pairing in today's draw had medalist Bill Britten, the 1966 Australian amateur titleholder, against Derek Kemp, South Africa's 1967 champion.

Gary Cowan of, Kitchener, Ont., the current Canadian champion, found himself facing Ponrie Du Toit of South Africa, the 1966 South African and Brazilian amateur champion.

Another pairing expected to produce good golf had John Fourie of South Africa against Doris Yerich of New Zealand. Both represented their countries in last week's Commonwealth matches.

Hugh Baiocchi was one interesting national amateur star who barely reached the top 64 following 36 holes of qualifying play Monday and Tuesday.

Baiocchi, who celebrated his 21st birthday Tuesday, had to survive a playoff with 12 others tied at 151 after 36 holes of qualifying play. Six made the cut.

Medalist Britten, a 20-year-old promotional director, first had to struggle to equal par then had to tussle with two other golfers before he could claim the low qualifier's medal in another playoff.

He teed off against Vancouver's Wayne Vollmer, who led opening-day play with a two-under-par 68, and Du Toit.

The three were the only ones on the field of 161 to equal par for two days over the tough, 6,507-yard, par 35-35—70 Royal Colwood golf course.

Stan Ahrens led the victors' attack with two doubles and a single while Gene Francis had three singles. Peg Kellar got a double and single, Dwight Rathwell two singles, Jack Francis a double, Bob Fraser and Russ Empey a base hit each.

Orioles Nip Yankees 11-10 In 13; Astros Edge Dodgers In 12

By ED SCHUYLER JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

Bruce Von Hoff thought all day about making his first major league start and now that it's over National League batters have something to think about.

"I was told this week by Spock Richardson (Houston general manager) that I was going to pitch," said the 22-year-old right-hander who was called up from Amarillo of the Texas League Monday. "I thought about it all day."

After eight innings of Tuesday night's game against Los Angeles Dodgers Von Hoff gave up four hits and no runs before being lifted for a pinch hitter in the bottom of the eighth.

However, he did not get the victory. But Houston did, 2-1 in 12 innings. The Astros had been their 10 previous games by scoring a total of 23 runs while their pitchers gave up 39 and completed just one game.

In other National League games, St. Louis Cardinals, the Chicago Cubs 6-4, Philadelphia Phillies swept New York Mets 3-2 in 12 innings and 7-5, San Francisco Giants topped Atlanta Braves 6-4, and Cincinnati Reds edged Pittsburgh Pirates 2-1.

Dave Morehead's six-hitter and Boston's 4-0 victory over Detroit Tigers Tuesday night may have marked the end of the trail in his comeback attempt from an arm problem that struck just when he seemed on the way to greatness.

The last complete-game shutout Morehead pitched was a no-hitter against Detroit Sept. 18, 1965. But in April of 1966 he came up with a sore arm that held him down to 12 appearances and a 1-2 record.

When no improvement showed during the spring he was sent to Toronto of the International League where he compiled an 11-5 record before being recalled recently.

In two other National League games Tuesday, Chicago White Sox split with Kansas City Athletics, winning 4-3 and losing by the same score, Minnesota Twins shut out California Angels 4-0, Baltimore Orioles outlasted New York Yankees 11-10 in 13 innings and Cleveland Indians blanked Washington Senators 3-0.

"I don't think anyone can pitch any better than Dave pitched tonight," said catcher Elston Howard. "He was really hitting the glove and he had real good stuff all the way."

The Red Sox didn't do much hitting off Detroit pitching, either, getting only five hits, but three of them were homers —by Reggie Smith, George Scott and Carl Yastrzemski.

Chicago's split with the Athletics knocked the White Sox another half-game down the ladder to the American League pennant race. They now trail Minnesota by 1½ games.

Rocky Colavito's three-run homer provided the Chicago victory in the opener, but Rick Monday came back with a three-run blast that made the difference in the finale.

Jim Perry turned in a six-hit shutout for the Twins who have now won six in a row. Tony Oliva had three hits and drove in a run and Harmon Killebrew and Jerry Zimmerman each rove in runs with singles.

The slugfest at Yankee Stadium was decided by a balk as Fritz Peterson committed the miscue in the 13th, sending Andy Etchebarren home from third. Bill Robinson, Joe Pepitone and Horace Clarke hit homers for the Yanks.

Stan Williams stopped the Senators on four hits and Max Alvis hit a two-run homer for the Indians.

Intrepid Wins Opener

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP)—Newly-favored Intrepid overcame an early lead by Constellation and swept to victory in the opening race of the final America's Cup trials off Newport Tuesday.

In the other opening-day qualifying race, Columbia defeated American Eagle.

Intrepid, which dominated the earlier observation trials in June and July by winning all her races, overcame Constellation's lead at the Brenville mark in the 36-mile outing.

Columbia's triumph was the most impressive, 10 minutes and 81 seconds ahead of American Eagle.

Intrepid's victory over Constellation was only five minutes, 15 seconds.

In today's pairings, Columbia meets Intrepid in a crucial test and Eagle and Constellation will oppose each other.

Willingdon Golf

BC Team Wins Title

VICTORIA (CP)—Par golf wasn't needed Tuesday as British Columbia withstood a late Alberta charge and captured the Willingdon Cup interprovincial team championship for the fifth time.

The four-man B.C. team carded a 573, three strokes better than defending champion Alberta, over the two-day, 36-hole tourney.

None of the nine teams that represented all 10 provinces beat par on either of the two 18-hole rounds.

B.C. finished closest to regulation figures on the par 35-35 —70 Royal Colwood golf course layout of 6,507 yards but, still was 18 strokes over.

Ontario, which began final round play in second place, six strokes back of B.C., placed third with 583; Quebec fourth with a 606; followed by Manitoba at 610.

Jim Sciasons of Saskatoon fashioned a three-over-par 143 for the two days of play and led Saskatchewan to a sixth-place finish with a 618 total.

The combined New Brunswick-Prince Edward Island shot 626 over the 36 holes. Nova Scotia placed eighth at 626 and Newfoundland was sadly outclassed at 665.

Lightweights Shoot Off

"Hot Time In Old Town Tonight!"

NEW YORK (AP)—Both lightweight champion Carlos Ortiz and challenger Ismael Laguna predict knockout victories tonight. If either comes through with a kayo job it could make for the best kind of finish to the widely criticized title fight at Shea Stadium.

This is the fight the Police Commissioner Howard Leary said New York could do without this riot-troubled summer.

Leary also had in mind the three minute-throwing riots during a 22-months span at Madison Square Garden following three decisions against main eventers of Puerto Rican descent.

The 15-rounder is a third and rubber bout between Ortiz, a 30-year-old Puerto Rican-born New Yorker, and Laguna, the 24-year-old "Tiger" of Panama.

Laguna dethroned Ortiz in Panama on April 10, 1965, and then was beaten in a return at San Juan, Puerto Rico, seven months later. Not a single knockdown was scored by either in the 30 rounds. Neither ever has been stopped.

Laguna, a skinny five foot nine package of punching fury, boasts: "I'm going to knock him out. He's getting old and is ready to be taken."

"Great, let him put on the heat," retorted Ortiz. "I'll stretch him out. I know what he can do now and I'm gonna blast him out in the 10th or 11th, maybe even sooner."

Meanwhile the Garden has beefed up the security police for the ball-park.

"We will have more than adequate policing of the stadium", said Harry Markson, director of boxing for the Garden. "We expect to have an outstanding fight and no trouble."

Girl Golf Champions Sweat It Out; But Wait Well Worth It

SASKATOON (CP)—Betty Strahope Cole of Regina and Curseen Brunham of Calgary became champions Tuesday at the Canadian women's golf championships, but both had to pace around the clubhouse and the 18th green for awhile before they could be sure.

Mrs. Cole shot a final-round 80 for a 54-hole total of 228 to win the Canadian women's close championship. Miss Brunham carded a final 82 for a 243 total to become the Canadian junior champ.

But they both had an agonizing wait while golfers still on the course took a run at them.

Both won by two strokes.

Joanne Goulet of Regina finished second to the close with a 230 total. Lis Ferrier of Cochrane, Ont., was second in the junior with 245.

Miss Brunham squirmed and Edgeted with her hat while Miss Ferrier lined up a 25-foot putt on the final green that would have given her a tie for the three-putted and fell two strokes back.

Third place in the close went to Gayle Hitchens of Vancouver with 231. Others near the top were Gail Harvey Moore, New Westminster, B.C., 232; last year's close champion, Marilyn Palmer, of Kamloops, B.C., 235; Helene Gagnon, Arivda, Que., 234; Sue Hilton, London, Ont., 235; Barbara Turnbull, Saskatoon, 235; and Barbara Renwick, Vancouver, 236.

From there scores jumped to Miss Brunham's 243.

Following Miss Ferrier's 245 were Susan Kempman, Kitchener, Ont., 253; Holly Botham, Pitt Meadows, B.C., 256; Barbara Drake, Winnipeg, 257; Tannys Aspevig, Winnipeg, 257; and Helen Mariatt, Chilliwack, B.C., 259.

Mrs. Cole's final 80 was her worst of the tournament. Most of her trouble came on the 222-yard, par-3 fifth hole.

She pulled her tee shot to the left, recovered to get on the green in three, then three-putted.

The win was her first close championship although she had been runner-up in 1963 and 1964.

Miss Brunham, 17, is the current Alberta and Calgary City junior champion, although those were the first titles she had won in four years at the game.

She led the Alberta junior team to victory in the junior team competition Monday.

Also settled Tuesday were the 64 berths in the championship flight for the Open which begins today.

Medal honors went to Miss Hitchens for her 76-74—150. Second was Dinah Oxley of West Byfleet, Surrey, England, with 151. Miss Gagnon had 152 for third place.

Miss Hitchens and Miss Oxley both had 76s in the final qualifying round, the best scores of the day on the par 36-37—73 Riverside course.

Match play in the championship and two other flights begins at 8 a.m. The first championship match is due off the tee at 9:50 a.m.

Shannonville Enters S.H. Finals

Lasta crept to within one in the third, allowed another run, and then scored again, leaving themselves one run behind at the end.

Bill Barberstock hurled a four hitter and struck out six, for the winners. Lorne Cronkright relieved Shaw in the first, and together they allowed four hits and fanned four.

Mike Hill smacked a homer, and Bud Hill, Larry Lewis and Dave Lewis had singles, for Shannonville.

Larry Mavety clouted a two-run homer, and Ross Parks, Bob Smith and Doug Geen added base hits.

Ontario Lawn Bowling

Oshawa Captures Fours

TORONTO (CP)—A rink skipped by Bill Joyce of Oshawa upset the favored Toronto side, led by veterans Bill Swan 12-13, Tuesday night to capture the fours championship of the Ontario lawn bowling tournament.

Joyce, with teammates Ewart Clemence, Clint Baxter and Dan Gibbs, swept seven straight points in the two-day to event to take the Eaton gold cup.

He broke out in front early in the match and never looked back as the surprised Swan rink ran into difficulty getting bowls around the kitty.

More than 900 competitors from Ontario and the United States are participating in the weeklong tournament. Doubles competition begin today with the singles scheduled for Friday, last day of the meet.

Joyce scored in an extra end to join Cockburn of Toronto Leaside 15-15 earlier to earn a berth in the finals. Swan's rink defeated John Sneddon of Detroit 18-10 in the semi-finals.

Rifle Shoot

Shoot-Off Necessary

SOUTH MARCH, Ont. (CP)—The Letson match, first event in the three-stage Governor-General's match representing Canadian shooting supremacy, was to be fired today at Connaught Ranges.

Governor-General winner will be chosen on the basis of total scores, two Friday matches and a Saturday match.

Tuesday 471 riflemen fired the individual Palma match in the Dominion of Canada Rifle Association competition at these ranges 30 miles west of Ottawa.

The match plus scores from the earlier matches determine the 32-man Canadian team that will compete against teams from the United States and Britain in the Palma team match Thursday.

A test of endurance and concentration, the individual match was won by 39-year-old Ralph Grant, of Dartmouth, N.S. after a tie-breaking shoot-off with Pat Lawrence, 34, of Hull, aQue.

Down Ottawa Way

Senior League Disbands

OTTAWA (CP)—The St. Lawrence Senior Hockey League disbanded Tuesday night with plans to form an intermediate league this winter, possibly expanding from five to eight or even 10 teams.

All teams in the league last year, three from Ontario and two from Quebec, had financial problems and officials agreed they had little chance of producing Allan Cup competitors.

But with a national championship scheduled for intermediate competition this winter, they decided to drop down to intermediate ranks.

All five teams from last season—Ottawa, Morrisburg and Perth-Smiths Falls in Ontario and Shawville and Buckhorn in Quebec—are expected to ice teams this season.

League officials said they hope to attract entries from other eastern Ontario centres, including Brockville, Cornwall, Hawkesbury, Pembroke and possibly Renfrew.

Minor Baseball

The East and West hill crowns were decided in peewee Monday night, as IBEW clobbered Fountain Park 10-3 on the West and Bad Boys upended Tip Top 5-2 on the East.

Tip Top had ran away with the league crown but hit a downdraft in the playoffs.

In the deciding encounter, Danny Coulson and Brian Coulahs combined for a two - hit shutout. They threw third strikes past 17 and did not yield a walk.

Dave Smith started for the losers with Dean Laing relieving him midway through the game. They gave up six hits, walked two and fanned 16.

Brian Coulas led Bad Boys at the plate, stroking three singles. Dan Coulson slammed a homer and double, and Andy Richetts added a safety.

John Tracey tripled and Willard Soulnier singled, for the losers.

Mike Burley and Allan Wood hurled a three - hitter and struck out four in IBEW's win. John Mulvihill and Jim Richardson threw on the losers' mound, allowing eight hits and striking out four.

Terry Collins and Vic Power each stroked a triple and single, while Mike Wager, Allan Wood, Thomas Burke and Bill Coughlan had base hits.

Bad boys and IBEW now meet in the city championship.

Parkdale whipped Mead Johnson 14-3 to advance to the city finals against Farrells, in BNHA bantam playoff action last night.

Stan Brooks and Terry Meaghan hurled the win, allowing six hits and striking out four. Mike Goegan took the loss giving up 12 hits and striking out one.

Terry Meagher slammed two home runs for Parkdale. Glen Carleton and Rick Graham had a triple and double each, Randy Burke tripled and singled, Mike Semark and Rick Meagher added hits.

Mike Gorgan clouted a triple and two base hits for the losers. Dick Griffin, Dan Anger and Barry Culkin had singles.

Cubans Will Miss Track Meet

TORONTO (CP)—Cuba will not take part in the Centennial Invitation International track and field meet at the Canadian National Exhibition Sunday.

CNE sports director George Duthie said that the eight athletes and two coaches were unable to get an airlift Tuesday from Havana to Mexico City to connect with a flight to Toronto.

The 10 Cubans were booked on a flight from Havana to Mexico City, but the flight was cancelled because there wasn't a sufficient number of reservations and the freight load was below normal.

Athletes from Canada, including Vancouver's Harry Jerome, the United States, Jamaica and Trinidad-Tobago will be here for Sunday's meet.

Yesterday's Stars

Pitching—Stan Williams, Indians, stopped Washington on five hits as Cleveland beat the Senators 2-0.

Batting—Rocky Colavito, White Sox, hit a three-run homer, sending Chicago to a 4-2 decision over Kansas City in the first game of a twi-night doubleheader. The Athletics won the second game 4-2.

Firemen Capture Pennant

The Fire Department captured the Departmental Softball League pennant in their last scheduled game of the season last night by burning back the Combines 8-4.

A win would have also given the Combines the pennant but Fireman pitcher Bob Davenport blanked them without a bit until the sixth inning while his mates built an 8-0 lead.

With first and second places decided and The Intelligencer also assured of a third spot, Electric Motors and Police are still fighting for the other position. Police must play Combines and the Motormen in the loop's two remaining postponed games. Police must win both games in order to pass Electric Motors.

Davenport gave up three hits in pitching the win as Combines scored once in the sixth and three times in the seventh. He struck out seven.

Gary Reid was tagged for 11 hits in a losing effort. He fanned three.

Craig Rump and Davenport collected three hits each, Grant Parks and Bill MacCormick two each to lead the Firemen to victory.

Combines' three base hits were to Gordie Green, Gary Reid and Jim Prouty.

Playoffs, which will start as soon as the postponed games are completed, will pit first-place Firemen against the third-place finishers; second-place Combines against the fourth-place club.

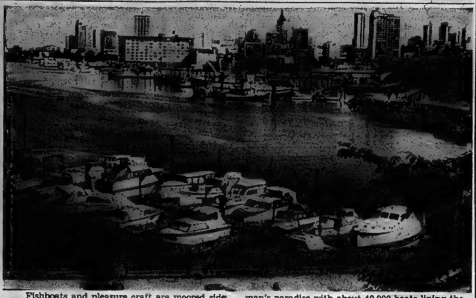
Marchand Says Russia No Example for Quebec



MONTREAL (CP)—Manpower Minister Jean Marchand, leader of the federal Liberals in Quebec, criticized Premier Daniel Johnson Tuesday for praising the Soviet Union's solution to the problem of uniting more than one culture in a single nation.

Mr. Marchand said at a news conference that the Soviet solution would be repugnant to French-Canadians because everyone in the 15 Soviet republics is required to learn Russian.

The manpower minister also discussed the Quebec Liberal "thinkers'" conference to be held Sept. 13-17 in the Quebec City suburb of Montmorency.

He said the conference will differ from the recent Progressive Conservative "thinkers'" meeting, because it will consider "concrete" issues such as a guaranteed annual wage rather than discuss such topics as the "two nations" concept of Canada.

He said conference sessions will be closed to the press, to give delegates and outside experts a chance to say what they really think.

South Vietnam Vote Provides Moment of Truth for Policy

Canadian Press Staff Writer

The United States has been committing troops to the Vietnam war in face of mounting criticism throughout the world.

In the process, it has lost some opportunities to thwe, at least slightly, the cold war and has had about 12,000 of its young men killed.

All this is being done in the name of defending the right of the South Vietnamese to determine their own destiny and not have it decided for them by insurrectionists and "invaders" from the North.

The moment of truth comes Sept. 3 when the South Vietnamese vote to elect a president, vice-president and Senate.

Unless there is a radical change, it would appear the Johnson administration will have as difficult a time defending U.S. participation in the war after the election as before.

No matter what happens, anti-war and anti-American propagandists will find no need to change their tune about the "puppet" regime in Saigon.

There never has been much doubt about the election of Nguyen Van Thieu, present head of state, and Nguyen Cao Ky, present premier, as president and vice-president respectively.

They have the advantage of being in power, the backing of the military and they are the only candidates known to the majority of Vietnamese.

But reports from South Vietnam indicate the two have not been above using their influence to lengthen the odds against the 10 civilian candidates.

Politicians in Washington, even some who have supported President Johnson's war policy, have expressed doubt that the elections will be fair and free. Johnson has found it necessary to inform Thieu and Ky of the meaning of democracy.

The American-supported Thieu-Ky junta has not built an immaculate reputation. There is corruption in government. And the South Vietnamese Army, despite American attempts to improve its image, is considerably less than an efficient military machine.

Now the government is going to be "legitimized" through an election.

But much of the world will consider it is business as usual in Saigon.

The danger is to the South Vietnamese government itself the Johnson administration and, indirectly, the West.

The Johnson government, in dealing with the Eastern and non-aligned countries—and even with its own countrymen—will find it difficult to point with pride to the beginnings of democracy in South Vietnam.

The Communists still will be able to talk of American "aggression" and find listeners.

Vietnam will come into every cold war discussion—and whether it likes it or not, Washington still does most of the talking for the west.

Two Killer Bears Believed Bagged

WEST GLACIER, Mont. (AP)—Two grizzly bears whose coats bore matted blood and whose claws showed traces of something which may be human flesh, have been killed by Glacier National Park rangers.

The Rangers expressed belief the bears were the animals which killed two 19-year-old girls Sunday and severely mauled a youth.

The bears were shot Monday night, but the word didn't get out until Tuesday. Two other bears had been shot Sunday.

Killed by enraged grizzlies in separate accidents were Julie Helgeson and Michele Koons. Injured and still in hospital was Roy Ducat. All were summer employees in the park.

External examinations of the bears, said Don Nelson of the park staff, indicated the two slain Monday were the killers.

The carcasses will be dismembered, refrigerated a nd sent to a laboratory for detailed examination, Nelson announced.

"We just don't know what caused two bears at two different locations to act the way they did," Nelson said.

Rangers continued to tour remote park areas with high-powered rifles, but apparently there will be no more killing of bears, Nelson reported.

Hiking trails into the Granite Park and Trout Lake areas, where the attacks occurred, have been closed to overnight campers.

Puppet Show Will Be Presented at New Park

DESERONTO — For the past few weeks, all the efforts of the children participating in the recreation Program at the centennial park, have been aimed at the preparation of the puppet show "Hansel and Gretel".

Under the leadership of Miss Carol Kimmett, the children, who range in ages from 6-12 years, have made the scenery and the background, and the puppets complete with papier-mache heads and hand sewn bodies.

This production is planned for the afternoon of August 19th when the Centennial Park will be officially opened.

The recreation program under the leadership of Miss Kimmett and Jimmy Sharpe operates from 9-12 a.m. and 1.30-4.30 p.m., throughout the week and is expected to continue until the end of August.

Besides working at such projects as the 'Hansel and Gretel' Show, the children do other handicraft, play games and go on picnic hikes to Sucker Creek, or the nearby woods.

Loyalist Days at Picton

Good weather and a sidewalk sale have drawn throngs of people to Picton over the past few days during Loyalist Days celebrations. The event is sponsored by the Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce.

Champion of Individual Rights Is Canada's New Chief Justice

OTTAWA (CP)—A gentle-voiced jurist with a penchant for Chesterton and a reputation among lawyers as a champion of individual rights is to become the next chief justice of Canada.

John Robert Cartwright, still bright of eye and sharp of wit at 72, will take over as head of the Supreme Court of Canada Sept. 1. He was named Tuesday by Prime Minister Pearson to succeed Chief Justice Robert Taschereau, 70, who is retiring due to poor health.

The chief justice-designate has served on the nine-member Supreme Court since 1949, the year in which Parliament designated it as Canada's final court of appeal and wiped out the traditional avenue of appeal to the British Privy Council.

In the 18 years since, the quiet and scholarly judge has won the respect and admiration of lawyers across the country for his gentle but penetrating courteous manner on his clearly-written judgments.

Mr. Justice Cartwright himself refuses to be drawn into a discussion of judicial principles or aims.

"I believe the bench, like the navy, should be a silent service," he told an interviewer Tuesday after his appointment was announced. Judges should be read, not heard.

But close observers of the court say they have long noted his special interest in cases involving individual rights and freedoms. In recent years he appeared to have a particularly sympathetic attitude towards appeals involving persons convicted as habitual criminals and faced with a lifetime behind bars.

They say he leans to the view that the courts at all levels should pay very careful, even unusual, attention towards cases in which a person may lose his liberty forever.

A slight man with greying hair and mustache, he has a deceptive grandfatherly appearance behind his horn-rimmed glasses. More than one lawyer has been jolted to see the bead raise from study of a brief and stop him in mid-sentence with a polite but shattering query.

The judge is only three years from the automatic retirement age of 75 when he will have to relinquish his $35,000-a-year post, a level $5,000 above that of the other members of the court.

Born in Toronto of a distinguished family descended from United Empire Loyalists, he left law studies at the outbreak of the First World War to join the machine-gun section of the 3rd Toronto Battalion as a private.

Twice wounded and twice returned to action, he was commissioned in the field, won the Military Cross for gallantry, served in later years on the staff of three generals and finished the war a captain. On the side, he acquired fluency in French.

Back in Toronto, he crammed his remaining three years of law study into one and graduated from Osgoode Hall with honors and a silver medal.

For the next 29 years he built up a sound law practice in Toronto devoted mainly to courtroom work in civil actions.

In 1946 he was selected as one of the special prosecutors in the espionage trials arising from Igor Gouzenko's revelations about the existence of a Soviet spy apparatus.

Mr. Justice Cartwright's chief relaxation is reading the works of the English poets with an occasional departure into quality detective fiction, particularly G. K. Chesterton.

On a wall in his office is a small watercolor by his first wife, who died last year, and an oil painting by their only child, Mrs. John D. Leitch of Toronto.

The judge two months ago married the former Mabel Ethelwyn Parmelee of Quebec City, widow of Brig. Arthur Tremaine.

Hospital Pharmacists Fail To Fulfill Potential Role

TORONTO (CP)—Hospital pharmacists too often do not fulfill their potential as drug experts, the Canadian Society of Hospital Pharmacists convention was told Tuesday.

C. B. Rosenfeldt, a senior consultant in hospital administration to the department of national health and welfare, said hospital pharmacists often ignore their advisory role to physicians and are content to be highly-paid stock clerks.

Changing patterns in the medical profession will increase the importance of the pharmacist and will enlarge the opportunities available to him, Mr. Rosenfeldt predicted.

Pharmacists should mingle with physicians and examine patients' charts in order to give the expert advice they are capable of on drugs needed and their possible side-effects, he said.

Mr. Rosenfeldt urged pharmacists to rid themselves of much of their routine work, through automation, increased departmental efficiency or employment of technicians. They would then be available for consultant work.

Centralia Agriculture School Has 40 Pupils

CENTRALIA, Ont. (CP)—The first year's operation of the new Centralia School of Agriculture and Home Economics has been assured by the acceptance of 40 students.

Principal James MacDonald Tuesday said 20 girls and 20 boys have been accepted for the two-year home economics and agricultural courses being given at the former officers' quarters at the air station.

The students will be accommodated in the former women officers' quarters at the air station while classes will be held in the former officer cadet school.

The technical school is the first of several major industrial and educational facilities expected to settle at the abandoned air station. Purchased by the provincial government, the air base is being refurbished by the Ontario Development Council and its first industry is expected to be announced shortly.

The God That Is Dead Is Santa-style One

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Several readers have asked me to explain a recent paragraph, in which I said that "to thank God" for having spared your family in a tornado, when families across the street have been blown up, is a blasphemy against the true God."

The God they give thanks to, in cases like these, is the one who has been proclaimed "dead." This is what the new theologians mean by the phrase.

They mean that being blown up, or not blown up, in a tornado, is a natural phenomenon, having nothing to do with God. He does not arbitrarily spare some and send others.

The phrase "God is dead," so widely misunderstood, is not a slogan of atheism; it is simply a different way of looking at the creative purpose behind the universe.

It is an attack on what the new theologians conceive as idolatry, superstition, and infantile fantasies. The God they proclaim "dead" was always a kind of Santa Claus, beard and all, rewarding the "good," people and punishing the "bad" ones.

To thank God because we were spared in a catastrophe, while those around us perished, is indeed a kind of blasphemy. It assumes that God shoots dice with human lives, lives, that He has decided to be particularly good to us, for reasons we are unaware of.

And this is the kind of God that many modern people have refused to believe in — a capricious deity, dispensing favors and punishments, protecting "our" soldiers in a war, and giving us prosperity and contentment if we obey His rules and regulations.

And belief in that kind of God has permitted so-called "religious" people for centuries to ignore their social and moral obligations, to think of religion as totally irrelevant to contemporary problems, to imagine that following dogmas and rituals assures them a place in heaven, or at least a partial remission for their sins.

The new theologians stress that God is the one who gives us freedom, gives us love, gives us reason, gives us moral choice, and gives us personhood. Whether we accept these or not, is up to us. The new demand is that we become mature — and the first step is giving up the child's concept of God, which has only succeeded in turning into atheists some of the finest, kindest, most loving, reasonable persons ever created.

Expert Sees End of Population Growth

GUELPH, Ont. (CP)—A Chicago specialist says curbing the population growth has become the "popular folk culture of the world."

Dr. Donald S. Bogue said Tuesday the world is being swept up by a "unanimous movement to take emergency action to reduce human fertility quickly to within limits needed for orderly human progress. . . ."

He described the movement as "one of the commandments of the emerging world moral fly."

Head of the community and family study centre of the University of Chicago, he was speaking to 1,000 delegates attending a joint meeting of the American Farm Economics Association and the Canadian Agricultural Economics Society.

Predicting that by the year 2000 the world population growth will have slowed to almost zero, he said the movement is accepted without question.

Theodore W. Schultz, also of the University of Chicago, said underdeveloped nations would find it highly profitable to pay high salaries to attract agricultural scientists.

He said Mexico used the principle to build a corps of specialists from 1943 to 1963 that brought an annual return of 300 per cent on research.

Correct standing is important in the show ring. Here Holstein showman nudges animal into position during Black and White Day competition.

Field Crop Competition Results Given

TWEED — The field competition in barley (it is in a different grain each year) was judged by Mr. Douglas Harry, of Trenton. (Mr. Harry was at one time a Junior Farmer, and he went to the exhibition in Toronto, and went on numerous judging tours and then was granted the job of judging for the crop competition).

This years points are as follows: Ken Thompson, of Moira, 90; Owen Ketcheson, Moira, 89; Ross Ketcheson, Moira, 88; Douglas Farrell, Moira, 87; Arthur Palmateer, RR 4, Tweed, 87; Wesley Farrell, Moira, 86; Martin Grertsma, Tweed, 85; Burton Malnes, RR 2, Thomasburg, 85; Thomas Cassidy, Stoco, 82 and Marcelius La Berge, RR 2, Thomasburg, 74.

Black and White Day

Allan B. McComb and Son, R.R.3 Belleville, showed the senior and grand champion female at yesterday's Black and White Day competition at Belleville Fair.

The show, restricted to Hastings county purebred Holstein breeders saw six entries who competed for cash prizes and special trophies.

George Burkitt of Frankford showed the reserve grand champion female.

The Junior and Grand Champion bull of the fair was shown by Charles Treverton and Son of Plainfield with the Senior and Reserve Championship going to Harold Detlor of Stirling.

Exhibitors in the show were Garnet R. Denyes, Harold Detlor and Sons, Hudson L. Ketcheson, Allan B. McComb and Son, Char. F. Treverton and Son, Chas. F. Treverton and Sons.

Thursday will be "open" day at the fair for Quinte district Holstein breeders.

Youngsters Galore Enjoy Fair Midway

Kids, kids, kids and still more kids. They all seemed to be on hand at the Belleville fair for a special kiddies' day yesterday afternoon.

Thousands of youngsters of all ages were on hand to welcome the midway and try out the various rides.

Although many parents, who brought along their kiddies, seemed to wilt in the sweltering heat the small fry didn't even notice the glaring sun — after all they were having fun.

Some of the big draws as far as the kiddies were concerned were the pony ride, the Centennial train, the ageless merry-go-round, speedboats for the young aquatic buffs to go along with a myriad of other rides.

And then there was food — the kiddies started with cotton candy and moved on through candy apples, hot dogs, french fries and all the other delicacies available on the fairgrounds.

Many of the children also had a look at the horse show and other fair exhibits but they always seemed to find their way back to the midway.

After all, what youngster would turn down a chance of winning a panda bear!

Baby Not Walking at Twenty Months

By DR. JOSEPH G. MOLNER

Dear Dr. Molner: My daughter is 20 months old and is not even close to walking. She can crawl, but would rather drag herself along on her stomach.

She can stand as long as there is something to hold onto but she just collapses if you try to get her to stand alone.

Everyone says she's just slow, "she'll walk when she's ready," but I can't help worrying.

This same child was manipulating a walker through some pretty tough obstacle courses when she was six months old, and would stand alone in the walker for a minute or two at a time.

When she was nine months I decided she should learn to crawl before she walked (she would just fuss when put down on the floor) so I took the walker away.

Well, it took her about four months to get up on her hands and knees and crawl, and ever since I've wondered if I did the right thing in taking the walker away. Can you give me any advice? — Mrs. M. D. W.

What goes on in that little girl's head is hard to guess. Perhaps, since she got along so well in the walker, she thinks it doesn't make much sense to crawl. Or she may have gathered the idea (when the walker disappeared) that she wasn't supposed to walk. Who knows?

In short, she may have been conditioned by the early use of the walker, and her pattern of locomotion was disturbed. It is best to let youngsters do what comes naturally.

They usually start to creep at about 10 to 12 months, to walk with one hand held (or holding onto something) at a little over a year, and to toddle alone about 15 or 16 months. Remember that these are averages; some walk sooner; some later.

I do not think you should rebuke yourself over using and then withdrawing the walker. I don't advise doing that, but I can't think that you've done any irreparable harm.

But neither do I go along with those who say she will "walk when she is ready." Rather, I would have the child checked by your doctor for any possible defects in her feet and her muscular co-ordination, after which he can tell you whether you should wait or whether something needs to be done. Then stop worrying.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have alsisted with the wigiets and ways had very fine hair so am hair pieces available now. Is there any possibility that overuse of them could contribute to hair loss? I attach them with bobby pins: will that damage my hair?—Mrs. J. E.G.

I see no cause for worry. The bobby pins might conceivably break off some of the hair shafts, but the hair would grow out again, a n y way. There would be no hair loss.

Ordinary hygiene is necessary — just the normal periodic shampoos, and keeping the wig itself clean.

Dear Dr. Molner: How long are smallpox vaccinations effective? Do they last a lifetime? If not, how often should a person be vaccinated? — Mrs. S. W.

No, they do not last a lifetime, which is a fact that many of us have been trying to make clear. Re-vaccination every five years is the safe rule. However, if you go abroad, you must, to return to your own country, show that you have had such a vaccination within three years. Otherwise you are subject to retention in quarantine on arrival in the country.

Dear Dr. Molner: Does a woman become frigid if she has her fallopian tubes tied? Will it affect marital relations in any way? Can having this surgery ruin a woman's health? — Mrs. A. F. T.

No, no, and no.

Flower Girl

Lorna Holmes, 2½-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Holmes, Belleville, is awed by sunflowers almost as big as herself in the horticultural entries at Belleville Fair.

At the Fair

Rustic Scene Draws Attention

An unusually fine array of cut and potted flowers were arranged in the centre of the Horticultural building for judging yesterday morning.

But almost before the judges could reach them the blooms were suffering from the too-eager curiosity of small-fry fairgoers. The younger set couldn't resist poking and prodding the petals to see how they were put together.

Inside the door of the building Belleville Horticultural Society had arranged a rustic introductory note — a quiet woodland scene with wishing pond and fountain. A gravel path and moss-covered rocks lead through flowering borders to the fountain, making a tempting but forbidden path for children to tread.

Jack Webb Brings Dragnet Unchanged in Format to NBC

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Jack Webb, who for almost two decades of radio and television has crewcut, sober-faced Sgt. Joe Friday has created the image of a good, hard-working police officer, is a member of a small Hollywood group: the quadruple hyphenates.

A hyphenate, in current movie-TV jargon, is a man with more than one job in a show.

But where most hyphenates can merely put writer-director or producer-director after their names, Webb is Dragnet's star-producer-creator-director — and he has a hand in turning out the final scripts and casting his shows as well.

Dragnet had been retired to profitable syndication reruns in 1959, but bounced back on the NBC screens as a mid-year replacement last season. Unchanged in format and viewpoint—We're on the side of the law and order and our policemen are, for the most part, good guys"—the show jumped right back to a comfortable high spot in the Nielsen list.

Webb, 47, often inserts short, pro-police opinions into the series, deploring uncontrolled gun buying or appealing for citizens' co-operation.

"We have no access to the Los Angeles police files," Webb explained, "but we do have an arrangement so that when there is a case we can use, the investigating officer writes it up in three pages—without names—and our writers fill it out."

"We take no licence with police work and we're not an exposé show," Webb said. "Last season I did a little speech I'd written in a show—it was about a policeman's life. We got more than 15,000 letters asking for a copy of it, so I guess we're doing something right."

Camp's Foreign Policy Talk Disavowed by Fleming, Roblin

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Candidates for the Conservative party leadership took a variety of approaches Tuesday as they continued efforts to pick up delegate support for the Sept. 2-9 convention in Toronto.

Most of the activity was concentrated in Ontario.

Premier Robert Stanfield of Nova Scotia projected a quiet, "call me Bob" image during a day-long tour of the Annapolis Valley.

The other premier in the race, Duff Roblin of Manitoba, issued a call for national unity in Toronto after visits earlier in the day to Kitchener and Hamilton.

George Hees, former trade minister, told a Toronto rally he will abolish the Company of Young Canadians if he becomes prime minister and Davie Fulton, former justice minister, told a London meeting he has found multitudes of uncommitted voters looking for a political home which the Conservative party could provide.

In Regina, another former cabinet minister, Donald Fleming, turned his attention to Dalton Camp, the party president who spearheaded the drive to hold the leadership convention over the objections of present Leader John Diefenbaker.

Mr. Fleming, who called for a federal-provincial meeting on fiscal matters, told a press conference that Mr. Camp's recent suggestion that Canada should get out of military alliances does not reflect the views of the party generally.

He said he personally supports Canada's membership in

In Toronto, Mr. Roblin repeated his calls for a system of priorities in government spending, and suggested a second look at the universal and compulsory nature of the government's medical care insurance program due to take effect next July 1.

Mr. Roblin also disagreed with Mr. Camp's NATO statement, although he said Canada's foreign policy and defence strategy should be examined to see "if it meets the needs of the seventies."

Premier Stanfield told a small gathering at Arnprior, Ont., he was encouraged by support in Ontario and the Atlantic provinces, as well as his impact in Alberta and British Columbia, which "exceeded my expectations."

Mr. Hees said the Company of Young Canadians "is a complete waste of money and I personally can't see any good that it's doing." He said the volunteer youth organization, founded last year by Parliament to help community development, was an example of the Liberal government's mismanagement and inefficiency.

Mr. Fulton said his $6,000 miles of campaigning has shown him that many voters are undecided and frustrated because "they don't like the kind of government they've been getting." Mr. Fulton had one good word for Prime Minister Pearson. He told his London meeting he agreed with Mr. Pearson's note to French President de Gaulle that prompted the French leader to cut short his visit to Canada after becoming embroiled in a separatist controversy.

He said he seldom agreed with Mr. Pearson but in this case the prime minister "spoke for Canada with authority and in moderation, and I support him.

Algeria Hesitates To Trust Mobutu In Tshombe Case

ALGIERS (AP)—Both the Algerian and Congolese governments seem to be having second thoughts about extending Moise Tshombe to The Congo to face the death penalty.

Algeria's Col. Houari Boumediense is in no hurry to hand Tshombe over to Congo President Joseph D. Mobutu despite the Algerian Supreme Court's July 21 decision recommending extradition.

Tshombe, 47, former Katanga separatist leader and former premier of the Congo was kidnapped on a flight over the Mediterranean and brought to Algeria June 30 but was later convicted in absentia of treason and conspiracy against the Mobutu regime.

Algerian officials and the government-controlled press have repeatedly hinted that the Boumediense government may set up an international revolutionary tribunal to try Tshombe in Algeria for "crimes against Africa."

These hints imply that Algeria does not regard the Mobutu regime as sufficiently revolutionary to be trusted to deal with Tshombe in true revolutionary fashion.

Once Tshombe is extradited, Algeria would no longer have any control over what happens to him.

Diplomatic sources said Mobutu has refused to make the political concessions which might have persuaded Algeria to extradite Tshombe without delay.

Such concessions are reported to include a Congolese break with Israel, a disengagement from U.S. influence and an amnesty for Congolese leftist leaders in exile, including and thought about existing

Lakes Seamen Strike

MONTREAL (CP)—Crews on lake carriers operated by 32 shipping companies left their ships at noon today in a strike that is expected to tie up about 25 per cent of Canada's inland maritime transportation.

"We just don't have any more money to offer," the chief negotiator for the shipping companies said as talks were resumed about 10:45 a.m. today.

An SIU spokesman said more than 70 of 121 lake carriers would be tied up today by the strike. Another 60 would lose their crews by Friday.

The talks today were being held under Judge Rene Lippe, head of the three-man tribunal board concerned with maritime union affairs.

Get Mad With Aim His Advice

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Negro congressman told an angry Harlem delegation—visiting Capitol Hill to demand a cut in anti-discrimination law—to transform its frustrations into political action.

"I'm as sick and tired of this crap as anyone," Representative John Conyers Jr. (Dem.-Mich.) told the group from New York City's Negro slum section Wednesday.

"I know you're mad at everyone including me and that's your privilege—but it's about time that black, mad, angry, frustrated Americans begin to turn the hate into some political channels," Conyers added.

Thousand GIs Desert Annually

LONDON (Reuters)—The Times says U.S. servicemen disaffected by the war in Vietnam are deserting from American bases in Europe at the rate of 1,000 a year.

The story finds their way is being cleared by an "underground railroad" run by groups whose techniques often are remarkable.

The Times says it could not prove the figures, especially the U.S. Army co-operation, but its investigations in Britain, France, Holland, West Germany and Sweden indicated the number was not exaggerated.

Deseronto Boy Killed by Train

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

NAPANEE — A boyish escapade for two young brothers ended in tragedy last night when seven-year-old Harold Barnhardt of Deseronto was cut down by a five-coach passenger train on a bridge over the town.

The disappearance of his brother, George, 11, immediately after the fatal accident was solved more than three hours later when the boy turned up uninjured at a house here.

Police Chief Joseph Paquette said both boys disappeared without knowledge of their parents — Mr. and Mrs. Chester Barnhardt—sometime Tuesday night. Their disappearance was reported Wednesday.

The boys apparently spent the time "running around" the countryside between Deseronto and Napanee, turning up on the Canadian National Railway's bridge here about 7.30 p.m.

They were walking the long span stretching across Highway 2 and the Napanee River, when the train, bound from Toronto to Montreal and Ottawa, bore down on the bridge.

Police said the boys were on the westbound track and the youngest boy apparently fell as the train's sudden appearance startled them into a run.

He picked himself up, then dashed into the path of the locomotive, driven by Belleville engineer John R. Hetzel.

The engineer managed to get the train stopped within about 200 yards, but when crew and police dashed to the scene there was no sign of the second boy.

Police searched the area and at first there were fears the other boy might have leaped from the bridge — possibly into the river. However, these fears were later discounted and a lookout was kept for the missing lad in the vicinity.

About three hours later, said Chief Paquette, George Barnhardt approached a group of boys in the town and told them it was his brother who was involved in the fatal mishap on the bridge.

One of the boys took him home and called the chief.

Chief Paquette said today an inquest would be held into the incident.

There are five other children in the Barnhardt family—Janice, 9, Edward, 8, Christopher, 3, and Ralph, 2.

Funeral service for the dead boy will be held Friday afternoon.

Fair Crowds Pushing Toward Record Total

Belleville Fair has bounced into its third day, bubbling with optimism for breaking records.

By last night, more than 14,700 sightseers had streamed through the turnstiles — to justify soaring hopes for the biggest attendance yet when the five - day fair closes Saturday.

Statistics support enthusiastic predictions.

Last year, the fair, in a four-day run, drew a total paid attendance of some 22,000.

By tonight, with the 1967 presentation just over its halfway mark, fair board directors are hoping public response will have nearly matched last year's total admissions.

If so, there's good reason to surmise that the big package of agriculture, industry and gala grandstand presentations could double its 1966 attendance.

There are two main pointers in that direction — both of them aimed at grandstand productions — giving fair organizers a double - fisted, peak punch at the record.

Tomorrow night sees the most spectacular — in sheer thrills: Running of the Canadian motorcycle championships.

The championships have the chemical combination of crowd excitement, speed, challenge and a hint of danger.

The races always have packed the grandstand to overflowing and are certain to uphold that record tomorrow night.

Saturday night brings the fair's finale, with another popular program item for grandstand crowds — pari-mutuel horse racing, climaxed by running of the Black Diamond Cheese Stakes.

Like streets like, and people bring more people. If tradition holds good, the big grandstand crowds expected to pack both climaxing events should spill over onto the midway and among the static exhibitions, further boosting overall attendance.

Meantime, at last report, tonight's main attraction — the Quinte Amateur Show, emceed by CBC personality Gordie Tapp — also is selling out fast.

Militant U.S. Farmers Threaten Full Boycott

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP)—The militant National Farmers Organization has given United States food processors an ultimatum: Increase prices for farm products or face an all-out market boycott by farmers that could "shut down the agricultural plant of America."

More than 25,000 NFO members shouted their approval of the plan and adopted the slogan, "No prices, no production," at a meeting Wednesday.

No deadline for the desired price boosts was set, but NFO President Oren Lee Staley of Bea., Mo., indicated that the board of directors will not hesitate to order the all-commodity boycott if market conditions fail to improve.

NFO members also authorized the directors to order holding actions of three to four days on milk plus regional market boycotts on livestock and to establish an NFO "grain bank" in hopes of putting a "floor" under grain prices.

Staley announced the NFO target on prices is $1.50 a bushel on corn; $3 a bushel on soybeans and $2 for wheat. On milk it is $6 a hundredweight, about 75 cents over the prevailing price in the Des Moines federally regulated market.

Love Leads Two Girls Into Viet Cong Ranks

THANH DIEN, South Vietnam (AP)—She was 32, a thoughtful, compassionate black-eyed girl who had yearned all her life to be a nurse.

The Viet Cong asked her to help them. She did.

There was another girl, 18, a happy, teasing, teen-ager who was proud of long raven hair, who giggled with the boys and used to sneak from her home to meet a boyfriend.

Her boyfriend joined the Viet Cong. She did, too.

Two women—now 26 and 30. Two girls who became women under fire, not so much because of political conviction as personal conviction; not so much to fight as to love.

Both girls now are in a camp for Viet Cong returnees. Both turned themselves in to government forces, saying they were heartsick and tired of hiding, of war, and of bloodied friends.

Nguyen Thi Cua, 26, and Tran Thi Anh, 30, had never met one another before they surrendered. Now they share a bunk at Chieu Hoi—Open Arms—camp near Thanh Dien, 50 miles northwest of Saigon near the Cambodian border.

They live in a barbed wire compound with 72 other VC returnees. Twice a day, they eat in an open-air dining room. Like the rest, they share a reindoctrination period. They will stay another month—maybe two.

Can speaks softly through an interpreter.

"I was not afraid of VC. I was happy there. When I joined VC everyone in my village was VC. Not now. We only ran and hid and it was tiring. Everyday, they teach me more about being a nurse.

"They teach communism, too. Every day for a while. I didn't mind. I thought if they teach me what I want, I listen to what they want. They were very good to me."

Anh is a spirited girl, more gregarious, more easily swayed.

She, too, speaks through an interpreter.

"There were lots of girls my age in the VC camp. We had lots of fun. Men and women had separate rooms. Men were very nice. We did many things together, we ate and talked and had a good time."

Then why leave?

"I missed my family. I left for the VC when I got mad at my family. They wouldn't let me do all the things I wanted. I couldn't see my boyfriend all I wanted.

"I am not mad anymore. I have nice brothers and sisters and I miss them. They are not VC. I know they worried. So I came home. I like the VC okay, but I got tired of so much moving and hiding."

"Today, both are afraid; afraid of the VC, afraid of retaliation against their families, afraid of Americans.

Fling on A Flying Coaster

Three young ladies at the Belleville Fair come off the ramp on the flying coaster with expressions of glee. They apparently enjoyed the ride — they stayed on it for a second time.

Women Get More Thrills Than Men On Scary Rides At Fair Midway

Get your kicks on the thrill rides at the fair — you have your choice of the Roll-a-Plane, Twister, Flying Coaster, Octopus and Paratrooper as well as many others but who seeks the thrills most often — men or women?

It seems that the female population has the greatest affinity for that scary ride. Mrs. R. Quillnan who sells tickets for the Roll-a-Plane thought that it was because "it scares them more than men — they get more of kick out of it."

It is, however, not just a question of isolated opinions which determines why women like those high-flying, fast-turning, scream-getting rides more than the men.

Ray Coffing, who is manager of the Conklin Bros. rides at the Belleville Fair explained the psychology behind the rides and gave reasons women prefer them to men.

"In the first place, said Mr. Coffing, "they get more of a thrill out of it than men. The higher the speed or the faster it goes and especially if it turns upside down, the better they like it and the more they scream."

Continuing Mr. Coffing stated that "the best advertising for a ride is a woman's scream."

Music apparently has a lot to do with how attractive a ride is to people. "In fact, Mr. Coffing said, we would lose 15 per cent of our ride business if we eliminated the music that goes along with the ride."

Some more of the psychology involved is the fact that men like being a protector, Mr. Coffing stated, and when a boy and a girl are on a ride and the woman is scared, the man can assume a role of a bravado in order to comfort the supposedly weaker sex.

"All in all," he finished the explanation, "the rougher it is the better."

The owner of the Flying Coaster said that "a lot more women than men go on the ride." When asked what he thought the reason was for this peculiarity, his cool reply was: "How the hell do I know — I won't go on the thing but my wife will."

Susan Preston, a young female thrill seeker, commented, "We just go on them for laughs cause they're so slick."

An interesting ride at the fair is the Auto Scooter where you can drive an electrically powered vehicle and continuously ram your neighbor. It was more interesting to find that out of 100 participants, 95 of them were male.

It seems that the only thrill ride at the fair where the men out-weigh the women is the Auto-Scooter, however, for the rest of the rides it is the female population that takes the initiative.

Perhaps Kay Fellows, the ticket seller for the Octopus has the answer, "Why they're mostly women of course, they're just naturally attracted to me."

Kick by Horse Is Fatal

A resident of Belleville for the past 40 years and retired Quinte district transport owner, Mr. Everett Henry Black, 232 MacDonald Ave., was kicked to death Wednesday night when trapped between two fighting horses at his farm west of Trenton.

The racehorse stable owner was bathing one of his horse's legs when another horse undercut the stable and the two animals began kicking and biting.

Trapped between the horses, Mr. Black was kicked in the chest and fatally injured.

Born in Trenton, he was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Henry Black and for many years had operated Black's Transport out of Belleville. He retired in 1959.

He was a past president and charter member of the Quinte Curling Club; was a member of the Belleville Power Squadron and of Trent Lodge, A.F. and A.M. No. 36 Trenton. He was actively interested in horse racing and had recently purchased a pair of trotters.

He was a member of St. Thomas' Anglican Church.

He is survived by his wife, the former Katherine Elizabeth Simmons, and one sister Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Black, at home.

There are two sisters, Mrs. Nelson (Mary) Fisher of Grosse Point, Mich., and Miss Elsie Black of Trenton, and one brother William James Black, also of Trenton.

The funeral will be held Friday afternoon from the Grant Funeral Home with service in the chapel at 2.00 p.m. conducted by Archdeacon A. E. McConnell. Interment will be in Belleville Cemetery.

Trenton Rotarian Albert Ward and Mrs. Ralph Hotson find out just how cool a cucumber is. The "experimen t" took place at the cucumber patch used by the Trenton club in raising funds for local projects.

Rotary's Cool Cucumber

TRENTON — In case you feel unqualified in saying "no-and-so's as cool as a cucumber," put your mind at rest. Several scientific-minded Trenton Rotary Club members put the adage to the test this week, with confirming results.

A standard variety thermometer, much like one found in a home medicine cabinet, was adroitly i n s e r t ed into the guinea cucumber, and sure enough, the mercury slowly began to dip.

When the fluid dropped to the 94-degree mark, however, the experimenters realised the error of their ways. They had ignored the true scientif i c spirit, but used a proper laboratory thermometer, and had to be content that cucumbers are at least four degrees cooler than people.

Actually, the caper served as a diversion from the business at hand — the picking of bushels of potential pickles to be sold to a commercial producer. The proceeds ($200 is data) help finance community projects sponsored by Trenton Rotarians.

Picking in shifts of a dozen or so every other night, Rotarians and their families a re making use of an acre of land donated to the cucumber cause by Dr. David Zimmerman.

"It's a change from selling tickets," commented one kneesore picker.

He and other Rotarians are "pickled tink" with their new venture.

The Battle of the Cattle

Those graceful horns once so characteristic of Ayrshire cattle are fast disappearing as safety rather than appearance is emphasized. Here Gladwin Clement (left) and W. C. Mann hold cattle showing the contrast of Ayrshire with and without horns.

Ringside Judges

Spectators are invited to take part in the judging game at the Red and White Day show. Here a trio of juniors compare cards as they compete for the cash prizes offered.

Ayrshires, Devoid of Horns, in Majority at Exhibition

Those handsome Ayrshire cattle of a decade or so have undergone a big transformation in recent years.

The once conquered (very small Ayrshire has grown bigger — almost as big as a Holstein — and for the most part the gracefully curved horns, characteristic of this breed of cattle, have all but disappeared.

The story of the disappearing horns on Ayrshire cattle was quite evident at Belleville Fair yesterday as the annual Red and White Day competition was held.

Approximately 60 Ayrshires were paraded in the show ring and at least 75 per cent of the cattle entered were without horns. All the larger Ayrshire breeders have done away with horns in their herd and herdsmen say that it won't be long before they will all have disappeared.

Even the old time breeders who for years said they would go out of Ayrshires before they cut the horns, are beginning to see the light.

The reason of course is that those graceful horns can at the same time be dangerous.

"There is always a bossy cow in the herd," is the way W. C. Mann of Peterborough, president of the Canadian Ayrshire Breeders' Association, puts it. Mr. Mann has been an Ayrshire exhibitor at Belleville Fair for many years.

Other breeders showing in Day competition were W. G. Reid, Ashburn, Warren Ramer, Richmond Hill, Jack Lumley, Picton, Gladwin Clement and Son, Beth, Donald Kerr and Son, Campbellford, R. B. Murray, Stirling, R. B. Smith, Odessa, and R. Goodman, Campbellcroft.

The grand champion female of the Ayrshire show was exhibited by R. B. Murray with the reserve championship going to W. G. Reid.

The top Junior sire and grand champion was shown by Gladwin Clement with the reserve going to Jack Lumley.

Guernsey and Jersey classes were also judged yesterday in the regular fair classes.

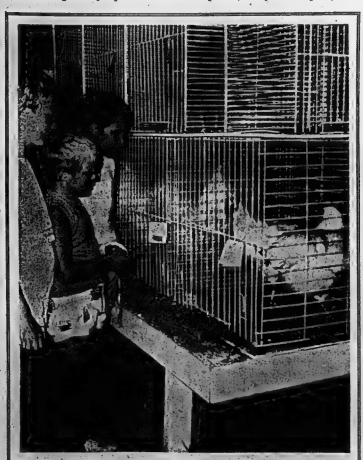
Hell-Driver Slides Through Fire

Hell-Driver Roger Lussier performs his "Slide for Life" at the grandstand show at the Belleville Fair last night. He jumps off the back of a speeding car and slides on his posterior through gravel soaked with gasoline and then ignited. What a way to live up to your name!

Drivers Stage Red Alert Show

The—game pouring in for last night's grandstand performance at the Belleville Fair. The Trans-Canada Hell-Drivers thrilled a crowd of almost 2,000 spectators, and Happy, the Hell-Drivers clown, made them laugh.

The performance began on schedule with the introduction of the drivers and a parade of cars and then, on with the show!



The six drivers, Timmy Page, Ross Clymer, Roger Lussier, Cliff Varey and the Williams brothers performed 21 different types of feat which became more difficult and dangerous as the night progressed.

They began with two car ball-driving followed by Roger Lussier's famous slide for life and then worked up to three cars and ramps before the intermission. Of course, Happy did a lot of clowning in between.

It was the second half of the show that was the real crowd pleaser and the most dangerous. LaSalle Ambulance, City Ambulance as well as Belleville Fire Truck No. 7 were nearby during the entire performance but for the second part of the show they were on alert.

First came a contest to see how many times Bill Williams could roll over a car before it was demolished. After the car would no longer run they set it up in front of a ramp and Roger Lussier drove over a ramp and hit the already badly damaged car head on. They then took Roger's car, put it in front of the roll-over car and Roger again took to the air and dove head-long into the mêlée.

The grand finale was when the Williams brother, organizers of Hell Drivers, made the dangerous ramp to ramp jump. One car went between the ramps by a matter of inches and was an excellent audience although on several occasions the show was held up in order to clear spectators out of the danger areas.

Prime Minister's Retirement Plans Cause Speculation

OTTAWA — Prime Minister Pearson went in for a medical check-up the other day and as far as one can determine he got a good report from the doctors.

Perhaps the one trouble he has been having is putting on weight — a kind of penance he pays during occasional year attending so many banquets.

But if Mr. Pearson is in good health — and he certainly looks it — this means he can still carry on indefinitely as Prime Minister. Or, it means that if he plans on an early retirement he can enjoy his leisure wholeheartedly.

Mr. Pearson says himself that he won't stick around too long. He does not want to be one of those politicians who overstays his welcome.

Well, the guesswork is on again as fall speed in Ottawa as to what the Prime Minister will do. There is certainly some anticipation among certain cabinet ministers that he won't stay on much longer because they are getting ready to succeed him.

One of Mr. Pearson's aides said privately a few weeks ago that he had six months to get another job. That would bring the Pearson announcement of retirement to about the end of 1967.

Last December the Prime Minister held a press conference and he told reporters that that he would be back next year to wish them seasonal greetings.

So there are two little bits of evidence that he may step down at year-end.

On the other hand, during the course of the Throne Speech address earlier this year, Mr. Pearson noted critically that the pace of legislation was too long-winded.

He said then that when the next Throne Speech was due — presumably in January, February or March — he would try to reduce it in length. He was confident that Governor-General Michener would give him a helping hand in this regard.

You may also note that Mr. Pearson has bought a home in Ottawa. You recall too that he talks fondly of returning to the academic life. He even says he would just like to sit around the house for a while and take it easy.

Mrs. Pearson grimaces at this last ambition. She doesn't want Lester B. sitting in a rocking chair — she wants him to take her on that long-planned voyage to Greece, the Acropolis and all that.

It has to be accepted that he will be retiring some time in the fairly near future. Perhaps he will announce plans this December, enable a convention in February and then hand over to his successor.

But the question of an heir is just as vexing a matter as is Mr. Pearson's own retirement. Who will it be?

Defence Minister Paul Hellyer is already an announced candidate. Finance Minister Mitchell Sharp looks like one although he says that when the time comes he will "examine the circumstances."

And if External Affairs Minister Paul Martin isn't a candidate then the political prophets will have to retire, permanently.

There has been talk too about Privy Council President Walter Gordon, Supply Minister Jean Marchand, Registrar-General John Turner and others. But in the words past Messrs. Sharp, Hellyer and Martin have been the leaders in the pre-convention guessework.

Mr. Hellyer believes he can do it despite unpopularity gained through the armed forces unification bill. Mr. Sharp thinks he is the man despite being finance minister and producing assorted unpopular taxes and awesome deficits.

And Paul Martin is quietly confident that he will become next leader of the Liberal party despite the fact he is something of an old-timer around Parliament Hill.

These are all top candidates but the one that hasn't been getting much of a rush is Trade Minister Winters. Here, surely, is a man who could take it all, with some hard campaigning and good fortune.

Now back in Parliament after a very successful business career, Mr. Winters looks better and better. He handles the Trade and Commerce Department with competent and authoritative manner.

He is knowledgeable, intelligent, a good speaker and with a wealth of political, parliamentary and business experience. Bob Winters hasn't lost his humour since in the fray. Parliament — even the best meetings of John Diefenbaker couldn't quash that.

He has pressence in the Commons and enjoys the respect of the opposition members. Critics look at him and say — "this man would make a good, maybe even a great prime minister."

One Conservative MP said the other day — "boy, how we could use a man like Winters at our leadership convention."

The question is whether Mr. Winters wants to be party leader badly enough to go after it in earnest.

One recalls a conversation with Prime Minister Pearson during the 1963 election campaign. He said he wouldn't contest another election and the talk moved around to possible successors.

Mr. Pearson mentioned several names and referred to Mr. Sharp and Mr. Winters. He thought that both men could be formidable candidates and that organizational strength would be a key factor.

As of right now Finance Minister Sharp is probably well ahead on the organization side but Trade Minister Winters is no slouch either in this field.

And talking about organization, the Hon. Paul Martin probably could show both these chaps a few little tricks and he may just do that when Mr. Pearson finally waves farewell.

Productivity Vital

Productivity, as everyone knows, is the key to economic advancement and the maintenance of high living standards. But Canada, for all its material progress, is not in the van of productive capacity. That is the message from John J. Deutsch, chairman of the Economic Council of Canada.

In a recent address at the University of Guelph, Mr. Deutsch said the council, in its study of the Canadian economy since 1963, had become aware of Canada's relatively poor productivity. He noted that during the past 10 or 15 years this country's rate of growth has been slower than most industrial nations.

Study of the causes of productivity loss and means of stimulating it have been the concern of the council since its inception. It notes for instance that the gap in per capita incomes between Canada and the United States can only be reduced "by more rapid increases in productivity."

In its first report the council recommended manpower measures that would improve the use of human resources. The second emphasized upgrading of the educational standards of the labor force. Another report, to be published soon, will examine the role of manufacturing in maintaining productivity.

Dr. Deutsch made a point also raised by Arthur Smith, who succeeds him shortly in the office of chairman. And that is the imbalance in growth from region to region. Both note that the council is concerned with this problem. The council chairman says further that better procedures for longer-term planning and co-ordination of Government capital outlays and other expenditures are needed.

Related directly to productivity is the health of Canadian business enterprises. Unhappily, success does not attend the efforts of all in this regard. In fact incompetency was the greatest cause of business failure in Canada last year.

That is the word from Dun and Bradstreet of Canada Ltd., Toronto. The firm points out that slightly more than 6 per cent of the 8,418 businesses that went into bankruptcy or ceased operations without meeting their obligations failed because of management weakness.

Thirty of the more than 2,000 failures were a result of fraud. And it is not difficult to detect the human tragedy lying beneath the fact that another 30 went down from neglect which in turn was caused by illness or marital difficulties involving principals. Insurance could have saved some at least of another 20 which failed because of fire, flood or employee fraud.

By and large the Canadian economy is healthy, but the rate of growth has been sluggish and little if any acceleration in the pace of business is expected for the remainder of the year. We have escaped the pitfall of recession, but it was close enough thing. The key factor in the maintenance of growth remains, as ever, productivity.

Meddling Diplomats

Remember Dmitri Polyansky, the charmer from Russia who for all his handsome and smiling ways said his anti-American piece on Vietnam in the course of a visit to Canada when he was in Canada a year or so ago.

On that occasion the Soviet first deputy premier made his remarks at a private dinner just before he returned to Russia. The audience of prominent Canadians was aghast and External Affairs Minister Paul Martin delivered a sharp rebuttal.

Back in Canada again on a Centennial visit, Mr. Polyansky has laid charges of aggression against the United States and Israel.

It is the old business of politics. More and more these days the diplomatic niceties are being ignored and nationals leader are talking off in all directions. It is a pity though that Canada should be made the stooge for this kind of behavior. There was Polyansky a year ago. Then de Gaulle in recent weeks and now Polyansky again.

Why doesn't Prime Minister Pearson arrange to visit the Soviet Union. Inevitably there would be a state reception, and Mr. Pearson could use the occasion to deliver some home truths about the denial of freedom to the people of Czechoslovakia, Hungary, and the Baltic countries. Things may be better than they were in these countries, but the heavy arm of the secret police is still apparent.

It is time Canada put out the "not welcome" sign to the representatives of foreign powers who abuse our hospitality by meddling either in Canada's own affairs or attacking this country's friends and allies.

High-risk Insurance Overhauled

London Free Press

Under increasing pressure from both public and government the automobile insurance industry has agreed to overhaul its high-risk system. In return, the industry asks that the Ontario government accept a responsible it should have assumed long ago.

The government appears receptive to the industry's request that it set up an independent review board to rule off the road — perhaps for life — drivers with bad records.

The industry has been criticized because, by setting prohibitive rates of up to $1,800 a year for bad risks, under the Compulsory Automobile Assigned Risk Plan, it in effect has usurped a government function of deciding who may drive.

Now the maximum premium will be $600. The companies will set up a pooling of losses scheme under which they would insure themselves against bad driver claims.

Insurance men may say this plan, combined with a government review board, should prevent any further rate increase for Ontario motorists.

This is a vast improvement in an increasingly contentious field. It is not universal, compulsory insurance, but it protects the insurance companies and it protects the motorist in two ways: by halting the exorbitant spiral of insurance costs, and by culling out the dangerous driver from the roads.

If it works, it should end most of the major complaints against the industry.

Guarding Against Lightning

Peterborough Examiner

A recent article in the Toronto Star notes that in an average year there are 80 people killed and more than 1,800 injured by lightning in Canada and the United States. The article is a good primer for those people caught during the frequent thunderstorms of the summer months.

The safest places to be are in houses, steel-structured buildings, or in a motor car. If caught in a thunderstorm while in your car it is best to stop your car. However, should the car be struck it is best to remain in it for some time. This will give time for the electric charge to disperse. If it is essential to get out of the car the person should 'open the door wide and leap clear, being careful not to touch the car surface and the ground at the same time. Otherwise you act as a conductor and the electricity goes through you from the car to the ground.' Clear enough.

Further advice is that one must not be the highest object in the area — no doubt, this means that if you are the tallest person in a crowd you should immediately drop to your hands and knees. One is also advised never to seek shelter under a tree — golfers and bovines take note. However, you should seek shelter in a wood rather than stay in the open, but make sure you stay in the underbrush, away from the trunks of trees.' This piece of sage advice is wasted on the majority of golfers. They have been doing this for eons.

One of the better kept spots in the city is the grounds surrounding the cenotaph on Station St. It has drawn the attention of people residing in that vicinity who also have high appraise of the fine well-kept appearance of the ground. And this is due mainly to the efforts of Cyril Holland, son of William Holland, a member of the executive of the Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans here.

Month - watering luscious peaches are growing in Bellville far from their haunts in the Niagara district. Four trees groaning with their load of the golden fruit are attracting a lot of attention in the garden of Jack Bennett, 17 Sinclair St. The peaches are of excellent size and texture and their flavor is comparable to any of the imported variety.

Man the Despoiler

Ogdensburg Journal

A population expert has stated publicly what many an individual specimen of our booming population has thought to himself.

People would be better off if it weren't for people!

The population explosion is all very well for business, Dudley J. Kirk, director of the Population Council in New York, told a North American Wildlife Conference in San Francisco recently, but it does have its drawbacks.

The beauty of California, for instance, said Kirk, has been "smothered by smog, scarred by bulldozers, corroded by subdivisions, and put out of bounds by fear of fire and trampling human feet."

Yet, he pointed out, all this unpleasantness has brought profits and a good living to many people.

It adds up to a tough problem that practically stops humans haven't come up so far with a ready effective plan to stop humans from producing humans so prodigiously.

It brings to mind the often quoted discovery that most of the people who favor birth control have already been born.

It also proves again that people are more capable than anyone of outsmarting themselves.

Opportunity for Canada

World-Wide Home Building Boom Is Envisaged

Dr. J. A. Bizzar in Canadian Business

(Second of Two Articles)

The demand created by the postwar reconstruction of Europe, and heavy emigration from Europe to other parts of the world, gave impetus to the spread of industrial fabrication and prefabrication. For early in the Scandinavian countries but also in Austria, Czechoslovakia, France, Germany and Russia, improved technology and economies of production resulted in aspects of large quantities of prefabricated houses and institutional buildings to other European countries, the Middle East, Africa and as far as Australia and New Zealand.

Today, new concepts in design, and the development of new building materials, make it possible to supply prefabricated homes that in quality are often superior to conventional housing and can match it in appearance as well. Even more important — they are less expensive.

The number of houses the developing countries can absorb is limited only by lack of funds. However, even the less developed countries now have much better financial facilities. Their governments realize that financial preparedness must go hand in hand with industrial preparedness, so they are making sure that adequate supply of long-term capital at reasonable rates is available.

The housing situation in Asia, Africa and Latin America has become critical. The United States and Europe are entering a building boom because of the new wave of household formation by postwar babies. Canada, with its natural resources, its advanced building material technology and its mass production facilities, could become a dominant supplier of shelter to the world.

This, however, cannot be achieved without hard work and the co-operation of governments, business and labor. Some of the steps which need to be taken are:

• Research should be intensified in factory fabrication and prefabrication of shelter. A wealth of information is available from the National Research Council, Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation and various research centres of the economic departments of the federal government. These agencies and other public and private research centres could co-ordinate their research efforts. This research should cover not only economical building techniques and materials, but also quality standards, packaging of housing units for export, problems of transportation, and other aspects of the international housing trade.

• Since a larger domestic market for factory fabricated and prefabricated shelter will improve economics of production and facilitate exports, municipal and provincial building codes should be updated in accordance with the technological improvement of industrial fabrication and prefabrication.

• Technical education in universities and vocational schools in related trades should disseminate more information in this field.

• Finance and insurance companies should adapt mortgage and insurance policies to technological development in the construction industry.

Today, more uniform building standards and codes promoted throughout the world by various national and international agencies make planning and programming of production on a large scale easier. Great progress has been made in techniques of packaging, transportation and assembly of structural and international financing is available on a large scale. The "second house" market is becoming more and more a reality to interest for prefabrication; the increasing mobile home market depends on it entirely.

Some Canadian companies have already realized this, and are preparing for the world-wide housing boom. Their success in foreign markets will depend not only on economics of production but also to a large extent on development of design and building systems suitable to any climate and flexible enough to offer many applications.

The cost of transportation will govern the depth of the export market, and it in turn will be governed by the size of the market and the location of the industry in relation to markets. Although the transportation and handling costs are generally high, the transportation charges can be substantially widened by increased productivity in industrial fabrication, economical packaging and handling, and by careful organization of shipments for speedy assembly on site.

Successful export of housing will depend not only on shipping items of a proper quantity but also on solving all the other cost factor problems which determine the price of an erected housing unit.

The job of exporting housing is not an easy one. The writer knows, however, from his many years of experience in the international housing business that it is not only feasible but can be profitable as well.

Kiddies visiting Belleville Fair find Old MacDonald's Farm a feature attraction. Here Old MacDonald and the fiddling Kansas Farmer, (left), give kiddies a closeup of young piglet.

Old MacDonald's Farm at Fair Interesting Place for Children

Old MacDonald's Farm is again a feature attraction at Belleville Fair—but the Junior Farmer sponsors have had to go with a substitute farmer.

All arrangements had been made for last year's farmer MacDonald to do a repeat performance, but the day before the fair opened he fell off a load of hay suffering a badly sprained ankle.

So a retired city man, R. F. Gunnoluy, Foster Ave., was called in to do some pinch hitting.

"I happened to be at the fair on opening day and one of the fair officials coaxed me to act as the substitute," Mr. Gunnolo said.

The substitute farmer MacDonald may not be sporting the traditional attire, but Old MacDonald's Farm is real enough for the dozens of visiting kiddies who flock through the feature tent each day.

There are geese, ducks and chickens, a Hereford cow and her young calf, a handsome Jersey with twin calves, a mother pig and her brood, rabbits and even a braying donkey.

Prison inmates at the farm last their cook when George Edward Cooper, slipped away July 19.

Cooper, due for release Oct. 2, was recaptured several days later.

His secret gin recipe isn't a secret anymore.

In 1769, a Highland Scot named Alexander Gordon arrived in London. And started, of all things, a gin distillery.

Soon, Mr. Gordon was making the finest gin the English had ever tasted.

From a secret recipe known only to him. (And later, only to his descendants.)

Now, 200 years later, Gordon's Gin is still made exactly the same.

Only now, it's the largest selling gin in the world. Made in nine countries, including Canada.

To make sure its wonderful taste never varied from place to place, however, we had to let nine other people in on the secret.

We hope you won't hold it against us.

After all, Alexander Gordon didn't keep his secret either.

Successful Living

Girl Would Rather Dream Than Live Up to Reality

Dear Doris: I have a bad habit of daydreaming; drifting off an imagining myself as a famous heroine. This almost egotistical feeling is beginning to show up in real life. I like, more and more, to be praised. Consequently, I am becoming quite self-centred and conceited, and I hate myself for it.

My parents have given me lots of opportunities to develop my talents. I have wonderful friends, a really nice boy friend, good marks at school, and several hobbies and sports.

So I really haven't too much reason for "wishing" as I do, but it seems I would rather

DORIS CLAIRE

do this than face reality. — Dreamer

Dear Dreamer: It seems the image has taken over. We all daydream at times, but when we begin to believe what we dream up, we'd better set the alarm clock.

Real life is letting you down somehow. Are your parents expecting too much of you? What stresses and strains are frustrating you? Better talk about this with an understanding person you can trust.

Dear Doris: Did you get the poem you asked for about men being descended from monkeys and the monkeys swinging the whole idea? I'm sending a copy just in case. — ANON.

Incidentally, Darwin is a bit behind the times, is he not? Our children learn in school that the human body is composed of calcium, iron, water, and more than 80 elements of the ground.

This confirms the statement in Genesis that man is made from the dust of the ground and our recent knowledge of such scientific principles as the laws of inertia, equilibrium, conservation of mass energy and biogenesis.

These principles confirm the necessity of an outside force for creation. — G. S.

Dear G. S.: Darwin would be the first to agree with you. What intrigued him and many another is the method by which it was, and is, being done.

Thanks for the copy of poem.

Another geriatrician says: "Every docotr knows that the best prescription for many diseases is work. It will do most anything but grow hair on a bald head.

"Try one thing," he says, "it will give us something to talk about. Like the frog that fell into the churn, if we keep jumping we eventually create a lump of butter upon which we can sit and croak."

Points for Parents

By MARY REYSON

Daughter: "May I have 50 cents? Susie wants me to go swimming with her."

Mother: "Your allowance is supposed to cover these things."

Grandmother: "Here, I'll give you the money. It's such a nice day for swimming."

Mother: "We're trying to help Janie learn to stay within her allowance so she'll be used to managing her money before she goes to college. Don't give her extra money when she asks for it."

Grandmother: "I hate to see her disappointed, but I know you're wise to teach her how to budget."

Learning to budget and plan ahead will not become automatic if a source of supply can be tapped too easily.

Summer Apple Pie Tasty Dessert

By MARY MOORE

August projects are nearly swamping me but I am managing to keep my head above water.

For one thing nine-year-old Davey stayed behind for the month of August when his family returned to Esquimalt. He wants to (and does!) help with the cooking, gardening, ironing and washes the car.

He peeled the apples for my first summer apple pie of the season.

SUMMER APPLE PIE

Pastry: 2 cups unsifted all-purpose flour
1 tsp. salt
⅔ cup shortening
2½ to 3 tbsps butter
2 or 3½ tbsps. ice cold water
Apple Filling:
4 cups well packed pared and sliced early summer apples (see note below)
¾ (or ⅔) cup sugar
1-3 tsp. nutmeg.

Make Pastry by cutting shortening and butter into flour and salt with pastry blender until size of peas. Drizzle in water as you toss with fork until you can press dough into a ball between your palms. Divide in half and roll out one half on lightly floured board to fit 9" deep pie plate. Trim edges.

Turn half of apples into pastry-lined pie plate and sprinkle with half of sugar. Repeat. Sprinkle with nutmeg. Roll out second half of dough, gash at centre, seal to moistened rim of bottom crust with mixture of one tbsp. each milk and sugar. Bake on centre rack of oven at 425 deg. Fahr. for 35 to 40 min., or until juices bubbles through gashes. Serve with Cheddar cheese.

NOTE: This year I tried a new variety of early apples, called "Close" because that is the name of the man who propagated it. It was delicious. Other summer beauties are Wellie, Lodie, Astrakhans, Yellow Transparents or those that are favorites in your locality. In September my favorites are Gravensteins and Wolfe River.

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I had a bridge game last night and invited a substitute. The woman hadn't been in my home 20 minutes when she received a phone call. It seems her poodle was upset when she left the house and her husband couldn't quiet her. We heard him say, "Madame Lazonga is having a nervous breakdown. Please speak to her for a few minutes."

The woman talked to that dog for 12 minutes. I could feel my blood pressure mounting. After she hung up she said, "Madame Lazonga is just like a child. You girls who have children know what it's like when a youngster won't go to sleep."

I resented the interruption, but I resented the comparison even more. Will you comment please? — STILL STEAMING.

DEAR STILL: Well, here we go again. Every time I say pets are pets and could not be confused with people, about 20,000 animal lovers accuse me of being a mean old woman, a Communist and mentally ill.-I will simply say there is a line to be drawn and raised people know where to draw it.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Recently you printed a letter from a wife who was mad because her husband wouldn't roll up the tube of toothpaste. Then a nitwit wrote that she was ready to leave her husband because he kept saying "without" instead of "unless". Another nut was hysterical because her husband wouldn't let her see him without his dentures. She felt "left out."

An old maid wants to call the police because her neighbor hangs out the wash on Sunday. A teen-ager gripes because Mom flicks the porch like off and one while she is saying good night to her boy friend. A young kid screams his head off because he spent 25¢ on a girl and she didn't kiss him good night.

The trouble with these lunatics is they have never had any real trouble in their lives. Why do people write about these trifles anyway? And why do you print such nonsense? — OTTAWA MALE.

DEAR OT: Letters like the ones you describe serve a useful purpose because they help put the two-bit, penny ante gripes in proper perspective. Now what is your problem, Mister?

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a 15-year-old girl who lives in Wisconsin. Isn't it dumb for Mother's Day to Fall on the first day of fishing season? Every Mother's Day as far back as I can remember, my mother has set home while her corsage wilted in the refrigerator, and Dad went fishing. Is there a solution to this annual problem? — EAU CLAIRE READER.

DEAR EAU CLAIRE: From what I know about Wisconsin fishermen, it would be easier to change Mother's Day than to get them to stay home. Celebrate Mother's Day one day early — on Saturday — and tell your Dad that's HIS father's Day present.

One Can Enjoy Roast Beef Dinner at the Fair

Where can you get a home-cooked roast beef dinner for $1.50?

Where else but at Belleville Fair. There, for five days each year the best mealtime value in town is served in the Commodore building to hundreds of fairgoers by four groups of district women.

The women of Trinity United Church, Roslin, are typical of the Women's Institutes and UCW members who turn professional caterers at fair time each year.

For nine years the Roslin women have raised funds for their church in this way. About 30 women co-operate in bake pies, (nothing but home baking is served), shred vegetables for salads, make sandwiches, and man the tiny, cramped kitchen. The Fair Board provides space, electricity and hot water. The women themselves must bring in tables, chairs and dishes.

About 15 girls, 4-H and CGIT members, take on waitresses duties and a husband is pressed into service each day as a "runner". He stands by to pick up supplies and fetch replacements for sold - out items.

Secret of the Impervious restaurant's low prices lies in the free labor of the hard-working women who run the service. In addition, certain items on the menu, pies in particular, are all donated by members of the catering groups.

Some of the credit for the success of the operation goes to an unexpected quarter.

"Give a plug to the men who stay home eating sandwiches and looking after the home while we are at the fair," said one grateful organizer.

CENTER HARBOR, N.H. (AP) — Rev. George Palovsky, a Russian Orthodox priest who is a fellow in history and religion at Princeton, told a conference of Protestant, Roman Catholic and Orthodox churchmen that Christian baptism should unite the churches.

The Experts Say

Woman's Best Accessory Is Well-dressed Man

TORONTO (CP)—The best accessory for a woman is a well-dressed man, says Sid Frohman of the Men's Fashion Council of Canada.

And, he says, the woman who wants her man well-dressed will usually have to cajole, flatter and advise.

"About 80 per cent of the men's furnishings—shirts, ties and socks—are bought by women. About 70 per cent of men's clothing purchases are influenced by women who go along and say "Yes, dear, you look great in that."

"Women are always fashion conscious. Not so with men, they wear their clothes until they're in shreds."

The council is sponsoring a men's fashion show at the Canadian National Exhibition this year, and it's aimed at women. Its theme is how to keep your man well dressed.

Mr. Frohman says color co-ordination and suitability are two of the most important criteria in being well dressed.

"Proper color co-ordination is the primary key. You must wear the right shoes with the right hose and the right suit, going up to the hat.

"You should also be wearing the right type of clothes for the function. When you go to a cocktail party, the women are beautifully dressed and you take a look at their husbands—they look as if they've just rolled out of bed."

Mr. Frohman urges color co-ordinated shirts before five and white shirts after five. He says a man is not properly dressed for business unless he is wearing a hat.

Among the most common faults in men's dress, he says, are ill-fitting jackets, trouser too wide and too baggy, too little shirt showing and unshined shoes.

"Men should realize the business world today is very competitive and being well dressed and well groomed is important."

Mr. Frohman says saddle and sage will be fall's fashionable colors. Saddle shades are bright browns, sage is blue-green.

"Men are getting away from black and blue suits into color."

Fabrics will be in checks and plaids. Suits will be styled with two-button jackets with side vents and slant pockets. Soil trousers but not sports slacks will have cuffs, and both will be pleated.

You may see sports outfits with reversible vests. One side matches the jacket, the other the slacks, and the hat will match the jacket.

Some suits will be sold with matching top coats and hats.

Dinner jackets will appear in gold, royal blue, jade green. Tuxedos will be more elegant, with brocades and braid.

"Men should not think this is effeminate clothing; it is not. Men's clothes are dull now, it's fun to dress well."

Mr. Frohman says Mod styles have influenced men's clothes, and have helped create some fashion excitement.

"And thanks to Mod, 14 and 15-year-olds are wearing suits. Boys haven't usually started wearing them until they were 18 or 19.

"Young men are more style conscious than their fathers and in many cases are educating them."

Cheerleader Charlotte Steals Show As She Backs Her Boy Senator Wally

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP)—A couple of old-line Conservatives—Senator Wallace McCutcheon and former Ottawa mayor Charlotte Whitton—got together in public Tuesday night and had a ball.

At times it was hard to tell whether the Ottawa area voting delegates to the Progressive Conservative leadership convention were there to see and hear the candidate, Senator McCutcheon, or his volunteer straight man, Miss Whitton. They saw and heard both, in spades.

At one point, the 61-year-old client-spoken senator objected to a questioner calling him dogmatic. He opted for pragmatic.

"If you tell the leadership convention meeting in Toronto that," piped up Miss Whitton, "it's like saying they're indecent."

Senator McCutcheon, emphasizing his view that the federal government should keep out of fields of provincial jurisdiction, expressed "regret that Premier Robarts hasn't opted out of some of these federal programs."

"Hear, hear," said Miss Whitton, adding that the federal government should return to the position that municipalities are "creatures" of the provinces and should deal only with the provinces and not the municipalities.

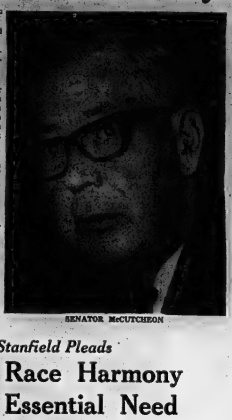
After another Whitton intervention, Senator McCutcheon remarked:

"You wouldn't call the federal government, God, would you Charlotte."

"It's about the only God they've left us," she shot back.

Carleton MP Dick Bell, former federal cabinet colleague of the senator, raised the question of a national capital area.

The senator got no further than saying Ontario seems ready to discuss a capital area embracing both sides of the Ottawa River. Miss Whitton was off and talking on her pet peeve.



"The British North" America Act says that until the Queen directs otherwise the seat of federal government shall be in Ottawa," she said with emphasis.

"In our government, bilingualism means someone born in Quebec who doesn't speak English," she said.

After the senator said bluntly to another question that on "absolute free trade, of course I'm opposed to it," Miss Whitton supplemented him by adding that the basic position of real Conservatives is preferential treatment to domestic industries.

CHARLOTTE WHITTON

SENATOR McCUTCHEON

Half Delegates Uncommitted

OTTAWA (CP) — Senator M. Wallace McCutcheon Wednesday called on the Conservative party to take its traditional position in the political spectrum — to the right of centre — and curb big government, big spending and "the drift toward socialism."

The 61-year-old national leadership candidate told a news conference that he "pleased and optimistic" at his prospects and the response to his bid to succeed John Diefenbaker.

He said tests of delegate opinion indicated a "very inconclusive" picture at the moment of leadership pronouncements.

"I would guess that more than half the delegates are going to the convention without commitments to any candidate even on the first ballot."

He said that he agrees with Premier Manning of Alberta whose recent book Political Realignment had suggested a polarization of left and right. The result would be to attract scores of thousands of disillusioned voters who feel they have no meaningful choice at the polls.

"I want to see an end to the Liberals trying to outflank the NDP and the Conservatives trying to outflank the Liberals, right across the board but especially in social measures."

He urged that the principle of selectivity, rather than universality, be applied to social measures and said the medical care insurance program should not be instituted next July 1 as scheduled.

Many social welfare programs could be reviewed and made more selective. He questioned whether to provide for 30 per cent of the population it was necessary also to make provision for the other 70 per cent.

Fleming Plans

Lack of Unity Is PC Problem

MOOSE JAW, Sask. (CP)—Donald Fleming Wednesday outlined the steps he would take in the "urgent task" of re-organizing the Progressive Conservative Party if he is elected its leader.

The former finance minister, making a tour of the West, told a news conference the party needs a "thorough" reorganization of its national office, field forces and research staff. It also needed "intensive organization" in all parts of Canada.

Mr. Fleming said Canada's most pressing problem is lack of unity. He proposed a federal-provincial constitutional conference at the "earliest possible moment" and a federal-provincial conference aimed at re-structuring fiscal relations at all levels.

He also advocated a move to two-party politics at the federal level.

Earlier, in Yorkton, Sask., he told a dinner meeting two of the potentially most harmful Carter report recommendations are those for abolition of three-year tax holidays for new mining developments and for abolition of depletion allowances for mining industries.

Mr. Fleming said the Carter commission's recommendation for establishment of a capital gains tax in Canada would be harmful to the country's economy if implemented.

Pick Man To Win Urges Hees

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP)—George Hees, former federal trade and commerce minister, said Wednesday he would call a federal-provincial conference to hear specific problems confronting the provinces as soon as he became prime minister.

Mr. Hees, one of nine candidates for the national leadership of the Progressive Conservative Party, said the main issue in the race is which man can win in a general election.

Fulton Bids For Backing Of Female Vote

TAVISTOCK, Ont. (CP)—Davie Fulton added a fresh approach to his Progressive Conservative leadership campaign here Wednesday — a pitch for the female vote.

Mr. Fulton, former justice minister and one of nine candidates for his party's federal leadership, wants a special women's affairs bureau set up by his party.

He divulged his idea to a small delegation from the Oxford and Perth County PC Association. Tavistock is about 10 miles north of Woodstock.

Federal Concern

PORT DOVER, Ont. (CP)—Davie Fulton, a Progressive Conservative party leadership candidate, said here Wednesday, university education should be handled by the federal government.

With the federal government handling university education, he said, it would allow the provinces to relieve the municipal governments in secondary and elementary education.

Stanfield Pleads

Race Harmony Essential Need

FREDERICTON (CP) — Premier Stanfield of Nova Scotia said Wednesday that a harmonious relationship between French-speaking and English-speaking Canadians is the greatest need facing the country today.

The candidate for national leadership of the Progressive Conservative party told a news conference he could not consider leading his party "without a substantial body of Quebec support."

If the party did not get the confidence of Quebec people it would fail politically, he said, repeating a view he expressed in Winnipeg last April.

The premier issued a statement commenting on a news story and editorial in the Toronto Globe and Mail. The newspaper Tuesday quoted members of Parliament supporting Mr. Stanfield as saying they "have virtually written off Quebec" and do not expect many Stanfield votes from that province at next month's Conservative leadership convention. The editorial in Wednesday's edition suggested Mr. Stanfield should speak for himself on this subject.

In his statement the premier said:

"Since the day on which I announced my candidacy and on every day since then I have emphasized my conviction that the major responsibility facing our party and indeed all Canadians is the determination of a proper and harmonious relationship between French-speaking and English-speaking Canada.

"At recent public meetings in cities as far apart as St. John's, Nfld., and Vancouver such a conviction has been given first priority. . . .

Some People Invite Insults

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Thoughts at large::

People who are forever feeling themselves "insulted" are not only looking for it, but are actually encouraging it — unconsciously but purposefully by setting up situations in which their self-esteem is bound to be bruised.

There is hardly a minority, no matter how wrong for its own time, that has not been right for some future time, and whose doctrines have not proved valuable generations hence; therefore, all minorities must be allowed free expression, not merely as a moral right, but because all doors must be left open to the future.

When I hear an unattractive woman deplore the mistakes, I am reminded of H. G. Wells' remark that "Moral indignation is jealousy with a halo."

As long as there are human beings, there will be the idea of brotherhood — and the almost total inability to practice it.

Few things are more disconcerting than being utterly agreed with by a person whose general views one finds revolting.

In rebelling against the conventional division of people into "good" and "bad," Oscar Wilde redivided them into the "charming" and the "tedious" — but had he lived longer, he might have learned that ultimately no one can be as tedious as the relentlessly charming.

It used to be true that "knowledge is power" — but in a technological age, power simply buys knowledge, and harnesses it for its own ends.

A systematic philosopher likes to think that his theory is as wide as reality — but, in most cases, his perception of reality tends to be as narrow as his theory.

Until modern times — say, the last 300 years — all previous civilizations looked backward to a Golden Era that might be restored; only in modern times have we had a looking forward into a Golden Era that might be attained; and is it not possible that our vision of the future is as much a delusion (of infantile wishing) as their vision of the past?

"The world must be made safe from democracy", said Woodrow Wilson in his War Address to Congress in 1917; now, exactly 50 years and two World Wars later, there is less democracy in the world than there was then — and we are still trying to make it "safe" by increasing arm aments every year.

A hard-of-hearing husband and a myopic wife make the best combination for a lasting and congenial marriage.

Mass Civil Disobedience Last Chance to Avoid Insurrection

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—Racial conflict in the United States is moving toward a critical crossroads—new tactics for Negroes or violent insurrection—says Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., advocate of non-violent tactics.

King considers his plan for mass civil disobedience a last resort.

"This is something like a last plea to the nation to respond to non-violence," he said in an interview Wednesday.

"There is a great deal of bitterness.

"Abid if there is not provided a channel of constructive action, this bitterness will lead to desperation, riots and social disruption." If his mass civil disobedience campaign—involving boycotts, sit-ins at factories and camping in Washington—results in repressive steps by the government and by whites, then the violence "will become planned insurrection," King predicted.

King said he was motivated to announce the campaign this week by the growing violent temper of many Negroes. King said that he was not singling out Black Power.

King had finished a speech to delegates to the Southern Christian Leadership Conference of which he is president. He answered questions in a somewhat subdued, resigned manner.

This convention reflected a similar mood. The old zeal and spirit of the movement now seemed muted.

Missing were the bearded youths and denim-clad zealots who once swarmed into the movement with fervor-pitch idealism and hope.

Even the singing of the familiar We Shall Overcome lacked the ring of faith that had roched Birmingham, Selma, St. Augustine, Fla., Albany, Ga., and other battlefields of the past.

Armed Prairie Farmers Sit Up Until Dawn Fearing Killer

SHELL LAKE, Sask. (CP)— Few clues were reported from an intensified search by 30 police Wednesday into the slayings of seven children and their parents.

Police at one point were asking the exit around the family home, overturning rocks and checking barns on surrounding farms.

Wednesday night operations had been hampered by lack of a suspect, a murder weapon or a motive in what appeared to be a pointless crime. RCMP declined to comment on what four-year-old Phyllis was able to tell them. She was the only survivor of the slayings and was staying with her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Helmer Helgeton. Their home, 3½ miles from the Peterson farm, was guarded by police.

The dead children were Jean, 17; Mary, 15; Dorothy, 11; Pearl, 9; William, 8; Colin, 5, and Larry, 3. All had been shot.

Phyllis, found unharmed surrounded by the bodies of her family, was asleep when a neighbor came to help Mr. Peterson with his haying.

Also staying at the Helgeton home was the family's other surviving daughter, Mrs. Leo Hill, 19, of Chetwynd, B.C.

Tension ran high in the sparsely-populated farming region. Outdoor lights blazed at night and farmers sat up until dawn with rifles across their knees.

Locals being followed included several reports of strange cars seen in the area before the crime.

COMING EVENTS ROUNDUP

Considered an outstanding success in its inaugural last year the Bay of Quinte Country Club's second annual "Silver Top Tournament" looks like a repeat in 1967.

Entries must be fifty years of age and over and last season's tournament attracted over fifty entries from the club-membership roster.

It is slated this year for August 20th and present indications point to an augmented entry list.

The "old boys" battle (and there are some good golfers in the ranks) for the Silver Top Trophy and other awards topped off with a buffet dinner.

Some members were of the opinion the tournament should be made a district affair, but last year's success drew a veto on the part of the directors. The consensus was "confine it to club membership."

Speaking of golf the Ontario Golf Association is holding its "Southpaw Tournament" at the country club August 25th where the top lefthanders of the province will vie for the Wiser Trophy and the Wiser Cup. Last year the tournament drew over 200 entries.

Harry Myles, of the sponsoring Wiser's Distillery, will be on hand to award the trophies while OGA officials will conduct the tournament.

OGA people are of the opinion the tough Bay of Quinte course will offer a distinct challenge to the boys who shoot from the farthside of the tee.

Next Monday Moe Hunter and the boys of the Lumbering senior baseball club have lined up a diamond battle that will bring out a number of former stars of the city and district.

Many famous and familiar faces of the old days will be on hand in the sports extravaganza they loved so much as fans, umpires, too have been scanned out of enforced seclusion. And some of those old birds are not so old after. They could come up with some surprises. Don't miss this one.

Then on August 28 the B and D Umpires take on the Ellis Seniors in a charity exhibition at the Athletic Park. It is a double header of sorts because the Shriners and Alhambra will play a friendly match preceding the feature event.

It is stated that Bobby and Dennis Hull will play for the Umpires squad while the Shriners are making efforts to have two mighty wrestlers, Lord Athol Layton and Whipper Billy Watson, in their lineup.

The proceeds will go to the Shrine Crippled Kiddies Fund and the Alhambra Retarded Children Fund.

Tomorrow night could be called Thrill-and-Spill night at the Belleville Fair with the cream of Canadian and American motorcycle riders vying for the Canadian Championship.

Riders whose names are household ones in motorcycle racing circles will be here to grab off the gold and the glory.

Belleville has a goodly share of motorcycle racing fans and with the championships at stake a specially crewd will be on hand to get its "kicks and chills" from the bike-riding hellions.

Saturday night at the Fair the harness racing crowd comes into its own with the running of the famous Black Diamond Cheese Stakes for a purse of $2,400 and the trophy.

The cream of the districts pacers and trotters is entered for the feature event which consists of three eliminations and the final. Other heats round out a highly entertaining program.

And this approaching week, Belleville's fine young peewee baseball team, Holy Rosary, will play in the annual Ontario championship tournament at the CNE in Toronto. The Rosary squad meets Niagara Falls in their first game Monday, at 5.30, and a win would send them against Oakville or Ozark Scout on Wednesday. First continues until August 30 but a loss eliminates a team. There are 20 top entries and the winner will play in the all-Canada tourney, also at the Exhibition, from August 30 to September 2. Belleville will make a strong big for the honors.

NEW YORK (AP) — Dick Walsh, commissioner of the United Soccer Association, said Wednesday committees representing his circuit and the National Professional Soccer League had held merger talks. He declined, however, to disclose any additional details.

MONTREAL (CP) — Sam Pollock, general manager of the Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League, announced Wednesday that veteran right winger Claude Provost has signed his contract for the 1967-68 season. It will be the 13th consecutive season Provost has played for the Canadiens.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Fines totalling $300 have been levied against three players who took part in a fight near the conclusion of the Saskatchewan-British Columbia football game in Vancouver Aug. 5. They were against B.C. Lions players Jerry West and Jim Young, and Saskatchewan's Ron Atchison. They were each fined $100.

Riders Bury Bombers

Argos Nip Lions, Share Top Spot

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Western football clubs took their lumps Wednesday and the head coach of British Columbia Lions found it one of the most disappointing days in his life.

Winnipeg Blue Bombers were humbled 40-7 by Ottawa Rough Riders in Winnipeg while Toronto Argonauts edged the Lions 18-17 at Vancouver in a game that was shadowed by the startler announcement that B.C. head coach Dave Skrien had been fired.

Skrien was given the axe after his club lost three straight league games, following a last-place finish in the Western Conference in 1966.

The Lions crossing room was subdued after the loss to the Argos, who remain undefeated in two starts and share the Eastern Conference lead with Ottawa. Argos finished last in the East last year.

Many of the B.C. players took the loss hard, feeling they had let Skrien and themselves down.

Al Evans, who shared the coaching job last night with Tony Knap and Ron Morris, said:

"Th many of them, Skrien getting fired was similar to having one of their best friends cut from the team."

Skrien's successor is Jim Champion who worked under Skrien before going to St. Louis Cardinals of the NFL as an assistant coach two years ago. He was to arrive in Vancouver today.

Skrien was on the last year of a three-year contract, valued at about $25,000 a year, plus bonuses.

Lions appeared headed for victory Wednesday until late in the final quarter when Ottawa quarterback Wally Gabler led a spirited downfield march that ended when he plunged across the goal line from two yards out. It tied the game at 17-17.

John Gregory added the convert, but an offside ruling against B.C. gave Vilmas another chance. He made it good.

DAVE SKREIN

Vilmas also converted Larry Ferguson's touchdown in the first quarter and kicked a 32-yard field goal midway through the last quarter.

B.C. touchdowns were scored by rookie Leroy Sledge, in the first quarter, and Jim Young, another newcomer, in the third. Ted Gerela converted both and kicked a 20-yard field goal in the second quarter.

At Winnipeg, Ottawa quarterback Russ Jackson was the key man in the Riders' win over the Bombers who still share first place in the West with Calgary and Saskatchewan each with 3-1 records.

Jackson blended short and long passes to set up touchdowns by Rick Black, Bo Scott, Whit Tucker and Jay Roberts. Moe Racine kicked two field goals and four converts.

Winnipeg's only touchdown was scored by Ken Nielsen. Roger Hamelin added a single.

Skrien Fired

Jackson ran up 374 yards passing and his backfield passing and his backfield ground. Winnipeg managed 275 yards on the only eight yards rushing and picked up 177 through the air.

Ti-Cats, Als Seeking First Victory

MONTREAL (CP)—Hamilton Tiger-Cats tonight meet the Montreal Alouettes who have problems aplenty.

Both teams are seeking their first win of the Canadian Football League season.

Montreal's starting quarterback George Bork has been only infrequent action in the team's three exhibition games. He is reported to have lost a lot of snap to his passing through lack of work but is an experienced ball handler.

Hamilton quarterback Joe Zuger was in fine form last Saturday when the Tiger-Cats lost to Edmonton Eskimos 30-14. Most of his passes were on target.

However, end Ted Watkins missed passes in key situations where Ticats would have been in a position to score.

Hamilton coach Ralph Sazio says Watkins will be watched closely tonight. He will continue to use the one-time all-star as part of his twin-flanker system against the Alouettes featuring Tommy Grant and Tommy Joe Coffey with Hal Patterson and Watkins as the ends.

Canadian Amateur
Early Exits For Weslock, Cowan

VICTORIA (CP)—Four top Canadian contenders for the Canadian amateur golf crown were eliminated on the first day of match play Wednesday.

Biggest victim was defending champion Nick Weslock of Burlington, Ont., who ran into a sub-par performance fashioned by Nick Mickoski, former National Hockey League star from Winnipeg.

Mickoski, who had to survive a playoff to get into the top 64 qualifiers, dumped the 43-year-old cornflour engineer 3 and 2.

Mickoski fired a 73 to Weslock, who was seeking his fifth win in the amateur, told him as they were walking the 16th fairway that they've got to play good every day—you can't call anything that happened in the past."

Another who was Gary Cowan, the 28-year-old belter from Kitchener, Ont. He was humbled 5 and 4 by Conrie Du Toit, 1966 South African and Brazilian champion.

Du Toit, who prevented the current U.S. amateur titleholder from winning a hole during the contest, finished about four strokes below par—best performance of the day over the 6,507-yard, par 36-35—70 Royal Colwood golf course.

In match play medal scores can only be approximated because the golfers concede putts.

Next to fall was Vancouver's Wayne Vollmer who ran into Victoria's Rick Rent and was defeated 2 and 1.

Johnny Johnston, who was the amateur title in 1950 when it was played at his home course in Vancouver, was defeated by hot putting Jim Weeks of San Diego, Calif., 1 up.

Thirty Canadians began match play Wednesday but only 13 survived to Sunday's draw. There are nine Americans, four South Africans, four New Zealanders, an Englishman and an Australian.

The Aussie is medallist Bill Britten, a 20-year-old promotional representative who held his country's amateur championship last year.

Britten won a tough 2 and 1 decision from Derek Kemp, the 1967 South African champion, and fared equally well when he met New Zealand's Ross Murray in today's opening draw.

City Whips Stinsons
Playoff Spots Decided

Ray Paquette took over the pitching reins in the second inning and pitched City Select to a 10-3 decision over Stinson's, in a sudden-death commercial softball playoff game to decide second and third place.

The semi-finals will pit pennant-winning Black Diamond against Stinson's, and City against Lightfoot, starting with a doubleheader at the Alemite next Tuesday.

City jumped into a 4-3 lead in the first, and 7-5 after two frames. The losers were unable to get any closer as Paquette entered the game and shut them out with a three-hit effort over five innings.

The winners added three runs later in the game to retain their scores.

Mark Sheridan started for the City and lasted until the second, when he left in favor of Paquette. The former gave up five runs and five hits. Paquette struck out seven and did not walk a man.

Junior Day was saddled with Stinson's loss, as he allowed nine runs and eight hits. He fanned three. Larry Hull pitched the final two frames and was scratched for one hit.

Gerry Greenwood led City's attack with a triple, double and two singles. Doug Hull had a double and single, and Dave Feeney, Bob Brown and Bob Lloyd added base hits.

Paul Stinson led the losers with a home run and single. Frank Donovan had two safeties, Larry Hiller a double, and Lyle Thompson, Jack Whiting and Doug Fitzsimons single.

Stinson's: 220 000 0— 5-8-3
City Hotel: 430 201 x—10-9-2
Batteries: Day, L. Hull (3) and L. Thompson; M. Sheridan, R. Paquette (2) and Smith.

Midgets Win On Luffman's 3-Run Triple

Belleville Ellis' used a four-run uprising in the fifth to defeat Oshawa 6-4 in the first game of the EOBA midget finals, at Oshawa last night.

Bob Luffman slammed a triple with the bases loaded in the fifth to give Belleville the victory.

Ellis' notched two runs in the second inning but saw their lead disappear as Oshawa pushed one run in the third and two more in the fourth. The losers managed another marker late in the game but could not make up the two run difference.

Ted Shaw hurled a six-hitter and fanned 16 for Belleville. He walked nine. Oshawa hurler Jim Kilde also gave up six hits and struck out 10. He issued four walks.

Luffman added a single to his game winning triple. Brian Coughlin also tripled, and Doug Geen, Steve Moore and Ron Jury added base hits.

McGuire led the losers with a triple and double.

The second game is slated for Sunday at Parkdale.

White Sox Explode, Twins Keep Pace; Injury Ruins No-Hit Bid

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Chicago White Sox, who sometimes seem to win with mirrors, did it Wednesday night with a hitter who can't run, a runner who suddenly can hit and—would you believe—three home runs.

The notoriously light-hitting White Sox sprayed 17 safeties around including two home runs by Pete Ward and one by Gerry McNertney and walloped Kansas City Athletics 16-2.

Ken Boyer, sidelined by a pulled muscle in his left leg, came off the bench in the fourth inning and delivered a bases-loaded single that drove in three runs. The ball soared over left fielder Danny Cater's head and the three runners scored easily. But Boyer, limping badly, barely made it to first base.

Sandy Alomar, lashed two Chicago singles and scored two runs. Alomar has been touted as a good fielder but player throughout his career.

First place Minnesota Twins won their seventh straight, 5-1 from California Angels.

Boston Red Sox moved into third place by beating Detroit Tigers 6-3. Cleveland Indians nipped Washington Senators 1-0 and Baltimore Orioles edged New York Yankees 5-4.

Montreal-born Ward's two homers drove in three runs for the White Sox but the blow that broke the game wide open was Gary Peters, who hadn't won since July 23, picked up his 13th victory on a four-hitter.

Minnesota bunched four hits and two walks for five first inning runs against California and that was enough for Dean Chance, who won his 18th game.

George Scott drove in four runs with a pair of homers and Reggie Smith contributed a solo shot as Boston rapped Detroit.

The fate of the tape—that's the story of a serious, but unsuccessful bid for the first no-hitter in the 59-year history of Pittsburgh's Forbes Field.

Tape around the right ankle of Cincinnati's Jim Maloney enabled the veteran right-hander to make the bid Wednesday night.

But it didn't prevent him from aggravating an injury which forced him to leave in the seventh inning of the game won by Cincinnati 4-0.

Billy McCool took over and was touched for both Pirate hits in the eighth inning.

St. Louis Cardinals nipped Chicago Cubs 4-3, Atlanta Braves topped San Francisco Giants 6-3, New York Mets beat Philadelphia Phillies 5-3 and Los Angeles Dodgers trounced Houston Astros 7-1 in other National League games.

Maloney stepped into a hole with his right foot in delivering a fourth ball to Matty Alou, making Alou the first Pirate base runner.

Maloney said he suffered the ankle injury last Friday night against Los Angeles.

"I haven't been able to run as it at all, and the only way I could pitch tonight was because of the tape," he said.

Jose Pagan kept the Forbes Field fans from a repeat of a no-hitter late with a one-out single in the eighth off McCool.

Red Wings Toppled; Leafs Lose

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A rookie pitcher made an impressive debut in the International League Wednesday and Rochester Red Wings fell from first place for the first time in more than three months.

The pitcher, Phil Henderson, restricted Toronto Maple Leafs to three hits as Buffalo Bisons posted a 6-1 victory. Rochester fell to second place after losing 2-1 and 6-7 to Syracuse Chiefs while Richmond Braves repped Jacksonville Suns 3-2.

In the only other game, Toledo Mud Hens downed Columbus Jets 4-3.

A two-run rally in the sixth inning and clutch relief pitching by Larry Maxie highlighted Richmond's triumph.

Maxie took over with two out in the sixth and pitched blitzes ball until pinch-hitter Marv Staehle tripled in the tenth.

Bob Lasko's five-hit pitching and Tom Shopay's home run gave Syracuse its first victory over Rochester. Relief pitcher Dale Robert's sequence bunt sent home Ellis Rodrigues with the winning run in the 10th inning of the nightcap.

CORRALING FISH

Trap and Gun Results

Lloyd Blue, George Roberts, and Earl Marvin had perfect scores of 25 at the Quinte Trap and Gun club's Wednesday shoots.

Harry Farnell, Gord Rates, and Doug Johnson broke 23, Brad Lee and Duke Pringle 22, Bob Pope and Barry Peterson 21, and Mike Quinn 20.

In the handicap round, Earl Marvin scored 21 and Bob Pope 20.

George Roberts shot another score of 50 straight.

Homers Lead Hotel Gals Into Finals

City Hotel gals gained a berth in the Women's Softball League finals with their second consecutive victory over the Pointer last night.

City took an 18-8 decision and will meet the Dixie Lee—Quilty's Express winners for the loop crown.

Evalina Maracle had a big night with the bat for the winners. She slammed three home runs and a triple while teammate Verna Hill homered once and added two triples.

Best at the plate in defeat were Bonny Miller with a home run and Sharon Hill with a double.

Donna Barberstock hurled the victory and Yvonne Mandl was the losing pitcher.

Carmel Win Puts Club In Semi-Final

Carmel won the EOSA peewee "C" crown last night by defeating Frankford 7-5. Carmel won the series three games to two.

The win advances Carmel to the Ontario semi-finals, but before tackling provincial competition they will play a home-and-home exhibition series with Welcome's peewee "D" team.

Carm McCaffery buried a three-bit victory and also slammed a double, is leading his team's effort. John Masterson struck two base hits, Dale Van Volkenburg, Robin Allison, Dave DeMille, Dale Bamber, and Stu Hodson had singles.

G. Payne took the loss and contributed a single, while Bruce Hoyle and J. Hoyle also hit safely, for Frankford.

WASTE NOT WANT NOT

MOSCOW (AP)—Soviet state farm workers will be fined 50 per cent of the value of oat and grain they waste and will receive bonuses amounting to 35 per cent of the fuel they save, the government newspaper Izvestia announced.

Read Still Coming Back

Read trailed in last place during most of the South Hastings league season before mounting a seven game winning streak to wind up the schedule in second place.

In the playoffs with Canifton it has been a similar story, as they dropped behind Plane's 3-1 in the series, but with two close victories have managed to force the seventh game, Read nipped Canifton 4-3 last night, and on Sunday the two teams meet in the final game of the series. The winner meets Shannonville for the championship.

The losers took an early 2-0 lead but faltered in the fourth, when Read tied it 2-2. Two errors and a base hit gave Read two more runs in the fifth, but Canifton crept to within one run with a lone tally in the same inning.

Relief pitcher Ted Abrams shutout Canifton in the final frame to preserve the win.

Frank Farrell started for Read, walking five and striking out four, while giving up five hits.

Garnet Adams struck out nine, walked one, and allowed seven hits for the losers, Plane's spares.

Carm Milligan rapped three singles, and Pete Enright, Ted Abrams, Gerry Brennan and Harold Read added one base hit each, for Read.

Ron Urch had two safeties, and Court Bralley, Bob Moon and Carson Adams one each, for Plane's.

Paraplegic Seeks CPGA Title

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP)—Impressive practice rounds become meaningless today as a paraplegic tees off to open the 54-hole Canadian Professional Golfers' Association championship.

Ed Membery, who entered the record field of 210 through special legislation of the CPGA, uses a special golf cart which can even be taken on the greens.

Co-owner of the Golf Haven Club at Gilford, Ont., he is capable of shooting in the 70s by holding his cart with one hand and swinging his club with the other.

Defending champion Moe Norman is the touring pro at Golf Haven, 45 miles north of Toronto.

A hole-in-one, the second of the season, also was turned in Wednesday by Jim Lowrie of Fort William, Ont., who used a six iron at the 176-yard fourth hole.

The first ace was scored on the same hole Monday by Al Nelson of Vancouver, a CPGA director.

Free say the St. Catharines Golf Club course is fast, with deceptive greens and a need for accuracy on the fairways and tees.

The par-72 course has been cut to 6,616 yards from 6,901 yards, but the reduced distances leave all holes at championship standards.

Dick Allen of Vancouver turned in the best reported score in Wednesday's practice rounds, a four-under-par 68.

Eyes Third Crown

Champ Ortiz Scores Easy Victory

NEW YORK (AP)—Carlos Ortiz, his fifth straight successful lightweight championship defence behind him, had a slightly puffy eye cocked toward bigger and better things.

"Give me two months," the Puerto Rican-born New Yorker said in his dressing room after solidly trouncing Irish-Canadian Jimmy Ellis in 15 rounds Wednesday night, "and I'll be ready to fight again."

"Two months. Then bring on Cokes."

The reference was to Ortiz's Cokes, the world welterweight champion.

"I don't need the money," the happy Ortiz said. "I'm loaded. But I would like to be the first Puerto Rican to hold three titles."

Ortiz, 30, held the world junior welterweight title before taking the lightweight championship from Joe Brown in 1962. In lightweight title fights he is 11-1, losing the title to Leguizo in Panama in 1965 on a 15-round decision, then winning it back seven months later in Puerto Rico.

This time there was little doubt.

The broad-shouldered Ortiz started and finished strongly, rocking the 24-year-old Laguna repeatedly with a solid right hand.

Referee Art Mercante and judge Al Berl each had Ortiz ahead in rounds 10-4-1. Judge Jack Gordon had Ortiz the winner 11-3-1. The Associated Press scored for Ortiz 10-4-1.

"I'm very proud of my people," Ortiz said of the Puerto Ricans among the nearly 20,000 in the audience. "We don't want to do anything against our citizenship. I say, 'But I don't think there would be any trouble if I hadn't.' But I fought extra hard to be sure."

Hundreds of extra police were on duty to prevent a recurrence of the riots that developed in Madison Square Garden the last three times Puerto Rican fighters were involved. There wasn't a hint of trouble.

DeMille Tops Dawe

Picton Nips Cobourg 2-0

If the Picton Kinsmen have a "Most Valuable Player" award, Kenny DeMille should have a front grip on it by now.

He has led his squad both pitching wise and at the plate most of the season.

Last night was no exception as Picton blanked Cobourg 2-0 in the opening game of their OASA Intermediate "B" playdown series.

DeMille out - pitched Cobourg ace Jim "Sleepy" Dawe in a great duel and also had both his club's hits.

DeMille and Dawe traded two - hitters but one of the Picton safeties drove in a run. DeMille blew third strikes past 18 Cobourg batters and issued only one walk. He got fine support from Carl Stacey who made the play of the game and a tremendous throw to rob Cobourg of a home run. Dawe had 10 strikeouts and walked a pair.

Picton scored once in the first inning when a walk and error put goes on first and third. One fanz scored while another was being thrown out at second.

Keith MacDonald, who had drawn the first walk, got another in the fourth and after a force, out, DeMille unloaded a double to drive in the second run. That was Picton's first hit and DeMille also singled in the seventh for their other one.

Cobourg had a double by Paul Terbenche and a single by D. Jenkins.

Other drivers who will race for $100,000 prize money in the 200-mile race are Chris Amon of New Zealand, Dan Gurney of the U.S.A., Denis Hulme of New Zealand, Jochen Rindt of Austria, Pedro Rodriguez of Mexico and Mike Spence and Jackie Stewart of England.

Camp Opens Saturday

Bownass To Coach Canadian Seconds

OTTAWA (CP)—Jack Bownass, 37-year-old veteran of professional and international hockey, was named Wednesday to coach Canada's second national team in Hull, Que., this season.

Bownass was a defenceman with the original Winnipeg-based national team last season but is not eligible for the 1968 Olympic tournament this winter because of his professional career.

He told a news conference he will be a playing coach "for this winter at least," while his club plays in the Quebec Provincial Senior Hockey League.

"But I can't say whether I'll be playing next season.

"It depends on how good the team becomes."

Bownass said in an interview that he has few ideas about players for the new team. He had 22 players due at a one-week training camp opening in Kingston Saturday and expects to keep about half of them for the regular camp which opens in Hull the following week.

He will take a look at Ottawa-area senior players at the camp, and later pick up about four or five men from the Winnipeg team camp which opened Aug. 8.

Bownass, a veteran of 14 pro seasons spent most of his days in the minors although he played three seasons for New York Rangers of the National Hockey League and had a brief playoff stint with Montreal Canadiens.

the team a chance at first place in the standings. Five of the 20 home games will be played at Montreal Forum.

But the Hull club will not participate in league playoffs because it will not have to abide by regular Canadian Amateur Hockey Association player transfer regulations.

He was a playing coach with Los Angeles in the Western League for two years and coached the Winnipeg Rangers junior team for one year before joining the Nationals in Winnipeg last season.

He is a native of Winnipeg.

Bownass admitted his club may have a rough initial season, playing in what many persons regard as the top senior league in Canada. The QPHSL has provided the Eastern Canada Allan Cup finalists for the last three years and two clubs, Sherbrooke in 1964-65 and Drummondville in 1965-67, won the Canadian senior title.

The Hull club, to be known as the Eastern Canada National Team, will play 40 games as the sixth team in the league, 40 fewer than the other five teams. Ten of the games will be four-point contests, to give the team also faces a considerable exhibition schedule both at home and abroad. It will play at least four games against touring Russian, Swedish or Rumanian clubs, as well as against Ontario Hockey Association senior and junior teams.

It will leave for a European tour Nov. 30 to play two games in Sweden, one in East Germany and six in a tournament in Moscow.

As with the Winnipeg team, the players will not be paid, although players losing time on tours will be reimbursed for lost salary. Bownass hopes to attract most of the younger players with scholarships at Ottawa's two universities, University of Ottawa and Carleton. Most of the scholarships will be provided by the Canadian Hockey Foundation.

The pair combined Wednesday to win the third race with Longshot Spring Damsel, a $29.30 winner of the third race. It was their second longshot victory in three days of racing at the east-Toronto course.

Tuesday afternoon Annesley and Bell likewise teamed to get Newsy home first and made for a $21.10 payoff.

The daily double of Royal Victory and Tralpsin' Woman paid $131.20 while the exactor of Nanook and Double Sal, to the fifth, returned $13.80. The combo of No Reasoning and Cosmic Grey paid $18.40.

Junior Golf

Ontario Outplays Quebec

QUEBEC (CP)—Ontario lived up to expectations by outplaying Quebec Wednesday to carry a six-point lead into today's final round of the two-day Quebec-Ontario junior golf team matches.

Ontario, winner of the event eight times in the last nine years, picked up 10½ points to Quebec's 4½ points over the par 35-36—72 Royal Quebec golf club course in the first round of the four-ball, best-ball tournament.

Ontario swept the maximum three points in the 18-, 16-, and 15-year-old age groups and split 1½ points with Quebec in the 17-year-old class. Quebec took the maximum three points in the 15-year-old age group.

Teams were awarded one point for leading after the first nine holes, another point for leading after the second nine holes and one point for winning the match. In a case where one team won one nine and the other team took the other nine, each was awarded half a point for the match.

Ontario picked up three points in the 16-year-old class as Peter Lago of Guelph and Alec Lockington of Dundas had a best-ball score of 67 for the 18 holes.

Lago had an individual score of 36-36 for an even-par 72 and Lockington was right behind him with a 73.

Quebec's 18-year-old team of Mike Kazakoff of Montreal and Barry Lapham of Ottawa had a best-ball score of 78.

The 17-year-old class teams took 1½ points each as Ontario won going out and Quebec won the back nine.

Bruce Wetherly of Montreal and Miles Saunders of Pembroke, Ont., Quebec junior golf championship winner earlier this month, had a best-ball score of 71, as did Ontario's team of Danny Johnson of Windsor and Wayne Bond of Orkville.

Eyeball Dexterity Needed to See Expo (?) Properly

MONTREAL (CP) — Never ogle, cross your neck or turn your head, and practise "eyeball dexterity," says the president of the Americas Society of Girl Watchers.

Ray Baur of New York set out the qualities that make for an expert girl-watcher as a 30-day search got under way Wednesday for "the most watchable girls at Expo."

"Despite what some people say, we've found there's nothing whatsoever cold or conservative about Canada," he said at an earlier press conference.

"It's a thriving, vibrant place. And the Montreal girls make it a veritable girl-watcher's paradise."

While acknowledging that Montreal men, like ardent girl-watchers in any city, do spend a lot of time gazing at the opposite sex, Mr. Baur was critical of some of their "sloppy and disorganized" methods.

Never-ogle

He said a girl should be aware she is being watched "but she must never, never be ogled . . . One of the signs of the amateur is the craning of the neck and the turning of the head."

Mr. Baur advises that girl watchers practise "eyeball dexterity" to overcome such faults.

"With practice they may even equal the champion, a Frenchman named Pulot who lived in the 19th century in Paris. He once succeeded in watching 31 women at once, though of course he passed away immediately afterwards."

The American Society of Girl Watchers started as a gag thing in New York in 1954, but now its a business enterprise with tie-ins with several corporations.

Mr. Baur estimates it has about 25,000 members around the world, including about 500 Montrealers who in the last few weeks have joined or indicated they will join. The society even has a Girl Watcher's Guide book.

Many of the Montreal members and potential members were at the press conference in the Montreal Men's Press Club at which girl-watching theme music was played.

But they weren't there to hear Mr. Baur. Several young hostesses from a variety of national pavilions at Expo were invited as guests—and targets for practising watchers.

Steam Enthusiasts

Three generations of steam loving Stapleys, Kenneth, Wallace and Frank, pose before one of their steam traction engines.

Old Steam Traction Engine Exhibited by Stapley Family

The Stapleys of Stirling and Campbellford are a three-generation family of "steam" lovers.

That is the old-fashioned steam traction engines and the old time threshers and other farm equipment which they operated.

And this year being Centennial Year when everything old is being trotted out, they are having more than a barrel full of fun attending fall fairs and other events with a Centennial flair.

Over at Campbellford, Mr. Wallace Stapley, machine tool shop operator, has a full menagerie of old steamers and steam operated equipment and much of it is on display at an exhibit of antique farm machinery at Belleville Fair.

On hand to help operate the equipment is Mr. Stapley's 82-year-old father of Stirling, and his son Kenneth, 13.

For 83-year-old Frank Stapley operating a steam traction engine is something which comes naturally. It should "come nearest" for it is something he had done all his life.

The steamer which the older Mr. Stapley operated in Monday night's Belleville Fair parade is more than 50 years old — an still runs like a clock. He says there isn't any reason the old engine shouldn't keep operating that way for at least another 25 years.

Two vintage gas operated tractors at the fair exhibition are owned by the Howe family of the Trenton district.

Movie Column

More Economical to Produce Movie in Spain Than U.S.

MADRID (AP)—Why would a Hollywood producer come to Spain to film a movie about Pancho Villa, Mexico's bandit revolutionary?

The reasons are mostly economic, partly political, says Ted Richmond, veteran of filming in Hollywood.

He will soon begin shooting Villa Rides, starring Yul Brynner and Robert Mitchum. The new film bears no relationship to the memorable 1934 movie Viva Villa! starring Wallace Berry.

"This is an entirely new story," says Richmond, "and we are doing everything to bring it up to date. For instance, Villa commands his army from a 1910 Dodge, which is based on fact. And Mitchum plays a pilot who flies recon noitring missions for Villa (Brynner)."

The Paramount film could have been made in Mexico or California, either of which offers landscape approximating that marvelled by Villa just before the U.S. entered the First World War. Yet Richmond chose to make Villa Rides in Spain.

He hinted that the problems with Mexico were largely political the government there has been increasingly concerned with the Mexican image in films, as evidenced by the recently lifted ban of Frank Sinatra because of alleged slurs against Mexican divorce laws in his film Divorce on the Rocks.

But such problems appear to be minor compared to those of an economic nature. The fact remains that filming in Spain is much less expensive than in Hollywood or Mexico.

"We can make this picture in Spain for $3,500,000," said the producer. "The same production values in an American-made film would be double the cost."

Ambulance Corps On Duty at Fair

Things may change every year at Belleville fair, but there's one service that repeats its presentation each year — and the public wouldn't have it any other way.

It's actually a multiplicity of services all under one banner — that of St. John Ambulance.

Centre of operations this year is the east end of the fairgrounds — where the brigade keeps a large tent and a small trailer.

The tent is the brigade's own — the trailer on loan from a friendly donor.

Opening day of the fair saw both sides as busy as expected — with the attention invariably centring on the smaller fry.

The trailer is set aside as a sick-bay, equipped with a bed, ready to treat any upset and despatch any patient diagnosed in need of further care.

The tent usually takes the bulk of the bustle, however, with St. John women taking care of lost children, calming their distress until parents arrive.

Here too, is also accommodation for infants in need of temporary care, with the first-aid women doubling as baby-sitters.

The site is only a base of operations for the rest of the Belleville St. John corps, who patrol the fairgrounds through the day, keeping an eye for emergencies at the centres of crowded attention.

However, the tent for them also comes in handy for brief breaks. Even a volunteer first-aid worker needs a break.

Shot Youth In Defence

DETROIT (AP)—A Detroit police officer, in a statement introduced as evidence at a pre-trial hearing Wednesday, admitted he shot and killed a Negro youth during the recent riot here, but insisted it was in self-defence.

No immediate decision was made on whether Patrolmen Ronald August and Robert Paille, both white, should be tried in the slayings of Aubrey Pollard, 18, and Fred Temple, 18, both Negroes, during a police raid on the Algiers Motel July 25.

Judge Robert DeMascio said he intends to announce a decision today as to whether either or both of the accused police men should be tried.

The death of a third youth, Carl Cooper, 17, was still under investigation.

The Caretakers

Ready to take care of almost any situation at the fairgrounds are St. John Ambulance workers like Mrs. Lillian Ashley, here baby-sitting 3-months-old Katrina Koss, of Belleville. Little boy lost — Richard King, 8, Amelisaburg — helps out while waiting for his parents.

U.S. Takes Over HARP

MONTREAL (CP)—McGill University's unique space exploration program, involving the use of converted naval guns to fire projectiles into the upper atmosphere, will be transferred to the United States lock, stock and barrel Sept. 1.

The transfer of the project, known as HARP for High Altitude Research Project, follows the Canadian government's decision to withdraw from joint sponsorship of the project with the U.S. government.

Quarter of Ships On Lakes Tie Up

MONTREAL (CP)—Shipping along the Great Lakes and St. Lawrence River began grinding to a halt Thursday, while negotiating teams met into the day in an attempt to bring about a quick end to a major seamen's strike which began at noon.

The post-strike discussions were ended about 6 p.m., when the two sides left a downtown Montreal office, declaring they had reached a stalemate. No time or date was set for resumption of talks.

About one-quarter of the 181 ships owned by 32 Great Lakes shipping companies were reported tied up in Ontario and Quebec ports late Thursday as 8,400 members of the Seafarers' International Union started halting operations, mainly in protest against tre companies' refusal to grant them a 40-hour week.

Charges and counter-charges began pouring in and out of the Montreal headquarters of the SIU soon after the noon strike deadline was passed.

Shipping companies complained that some ships had been abandoned and that some cargoes were left unloaded.

However, officialsoreman in most ports were refusing to unload struck ships and the SIU had several requests from shipowners to extend the strike deadline while unloading proceeded.

The union complied with one request and ordered members to sail the tankers Edward Simard and Joseph Simard which carry vital supplies for department of national defence bases from northern ports.

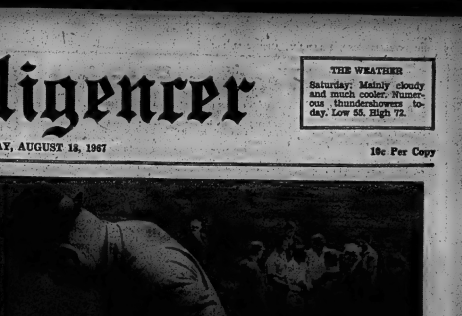
The mining and grain industries, both heavy users of the Great Lake-St. Lawrence waterway system, will probably be the first to feel the pinch of the strike. About 70 per cent of the tonnage of iron ore, coal and grain.

On the north shore of the Gulf of St. Lawrence, through which ore from Labrador and Quebec mines is moved, port authorities placed a ban on all ships manned by SIU seamen.

In Regina, the Saskatchewan Wheat Pool said a prolonged strike would harm Canada's wheat exports and exports of other important commodities.

On the Winnipeg Grain Exchange, trade was a little less active than would normally be expected, but nothing critical developed.

On the Atlantic coast, officials were not especially concerned about the strike. Port and union officers at Halifax said the strike would have only a minimal effect on the port, one of Canada's principal deepsea terminals.



The strike is not expected to have any effect on the West Coast.

Leonard McLaughlin, president of the SIU, said in Montreal Thursday the walkout is "a situation on fire" and that the union is determined to satisfy four basic demands, the major one being a 40-hour week.

He said the other demands are paid holidays, a new manning scale and changes in a work-upward system that keeps sailors on call over a 24-hour period.

Mr. McLaughlin said that neither side had budged on any of their demands during the eleventh-hour talks. Benjamin Trusz, negotiator for the shipping companies, said the two sides were still far apart.

In Ottawa, Labor Minister Nicholson said he did not think the circumstances "warranted direct government intervention at this time."

Canada Will Stay Out Of NATO Naval Force

OTTAWA (CP)—The government will decide against Canadian participation in a standing NATO naval force, informed sources say. The force it scheduled to come into being in January.

The decision will be taken on strictly military grounds but it also may be a sign of how the political winds are blowing in Canada in the defence field.

NATO plans to establish a destroyer flotilla for operations mainly in the eastern Atlantic. Canada for three years has participated with the United States, Britain and The Netherlands in an experimental NATO squadron known as Maclennaker.

Informants say that though the Canadian navy will not take part in a permanent NATO force, it would likely provide a destroyer and perhaps a corvette or escort group if and when the force was operating in the Canadian area—that is, the northwestern Atlantic.

The RCN has nine helicopter-carrying destroyers on the East Coast. But it is felt none of them should be sent permanently to the eastern Atlantic where they would be far from Canadian ship and helicopter maintenance bases.

Five of seven Restigouche-class destroyers are on the East Coast. But they are undergoing major refits. The conversation program would have to be postponed if any become part of a standing NATO flotilla.

350 Fires Burn in BC Forests

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

At least 350 forest fires were burning throughout British Columbia today, with conditions ing hot weathe forecast.

Hardest hit is the Nelson forest district in the interior, where 13 new fires Thursday brought the total to 136. There were 111 burning today in the Kamloops forest district.

Although there were fewer fires in the Vancouver forest district, which ranges roughly 100 miles east and 200 miles north from Vancouver and includes all of Vancouver Island, it contained one of the worst in the province.

A 10-square-mile blaze west of Port Alberni or Vancouver Island was still burning fiercely early today in a timber-rich, tourist-favored area.

With the only road into the area cut by the flames, an estimated 2,000 persons on the east coast of the island have only air or sea links to the outside.

Pope Cuts Curia Term To 5 Years

VATICAN CITY (CP)—Pope Paul today shook loose four centuries of iron control by the Roman Curia in governing the Roman Catholic Church by reducing Curia terms from lifetimes to five years and revamping the Curia from top to bottom.

The Pope set up the equivalents of Vatican foreign and finance ministries.

The changes were outlined in a 15,000-word document entitled De Romanis Curia—On the Roman Curia.

The document, long advocated by Church progressives and bitterly opposed by conservatives, was four years in the making. It took longer to produce than any other document in Pope Paul's reign.

It is part of a continuing process in reforming the traditionally conservative and Italian-dominated Curia. The reform was recommended by the Ecumenical Council.

Refugees Return To Israel

ALLENBY BRIDGE (Reuters)—Jordanian refugees who fled their homes after June's Arab-Israeli war streamed back to the Israeli-occupied West Bank of Jordan today.

The return began under a broiling early morning sun. Up to 1,200 were expected to return today.

Israel has agreed to take them back in an arrangement with Jordan supervised by the International Red Cross.

A wide new timber span across the twisted girders of the bridge made the return easier than the flight in terror over a makeshift bridge of planks.

The refugees produced pink slips of paper showing they had been screened by the Israeli interior ministry and permitted to return. Doctors and nurses were on hand to assist children and old people.

The refugees brought few personal belongings with them apart from clothes.

Israel said 150,000 persons left the West Bank in the wake of the six-day war. Jordan claimed the figure was much higher.

The International Red Cross said 22,000 repatriation forms, representing 80,000 persons, have been turned over to Israeli authorities for clearance.

Israel set Aug. 31 as the deadline for repatriation to be completed.

Pamphlets were circulated during the last 24 hours in Jerusalem urging Jordanian teachers to boycott schools when they open Sept. 1.

Negroes Escorted Through Klam Land

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) —Racial violence flared anew in Syracuse Thursday night and early today, with more than a score of persons arrested, while in Louisiana 650 national guardsmen and 175 state troopers were mobilized to escort a band of Negroes through Ku Klux Klan territory.

The second night of racial unrest in Syracuse, a central New York city of 220,000, including 17,000 Negroes, brought police tear gas into use to disperse unruly gatherings.

Hundreds of police and sheriff's deputies fought to enforce a dusk-to-dawn curfew imposed by Mayor William F. Walsh.

Jeering mobs smashed store windows and pelted police with rocks and bottles. One policeman was reported hurt after being struck in the head by a rock. Scattered looting was reported.

The Negro march through Louisiana resulted today at Walker. The demonstrators halted there two days ago after whites charged them with flying fists Thursday and Wednesday.

Governor John McKeithen activated two battalions of national guardsmen to reinforce state police in guarding the marchers through the Ku Klux Klan bastion of Livingston Parish.

"There is no other choice," McKeithen said Thursday. "If we don't let them march and we might have federal troops and everything like that."

Two Nassau detectives flew to George Town on Exuma Island, 120 miles south of here, Wednesday after the vessel's Australian captain, Ted Falconi-Barker, reported that Scotsman Hugh McDonald had been killed during a hunt for lost Spanish gold.

'No Definite Suspect' in Killing of Nine in Saskatchewan

SHELL LAKE, Sask. (CP)— Police were operating today from a relocated headquarters in this town's municipal hall, nearer to the farm home where nine members of one family were slain early Tuesday.

Police spokesmen repeated earlier notes of optimism that an inquiry would produce clues to the shooting deaths of Mr. and Mrs. James Peterson and seven of their nine children.

Police reporter Thursday night they had no suspects in mind.

The couple and their children, ranging in age from one to 17 years, were to be buried Saturday in two large graves in a small cemetery here.

While police say they have found no motive or decided on how many persons were involved in the killings, residents are asking:

—If someone had a grudge against Mr. or Mrs. Peterson, why were the children killed?

—Was this the work of a psychopath, one who kills for kicks?

—Was this the work of an outsider or someone locally?

Staff Sgt. Ronald Sondergaard said Thursday night police "have no definite suspect in mind."

Police will let no one near the Peterson house.

Mr. Peterson was described by other farmers in the area as a man without an enemy in the world.

The Petersons appeared to be a closely-knit family and did not participate in community affairs at Shell Lake, 87 miles west of Prince Albert. But Mr. Peterson was a member of the Royal Canadian Legion, having served overseas with the Royal Canadian Armored Service Corps during the Second World War.

"Jim was a good man," said Albert Bellida, who operates a farm three miles south of Spiritwood. "He didn't ever hurt anyone."

"I have never heard him say anything against anyone."

R. W. Hein drives a transport truck and farms 1,500 acres near Spiritwood.

"Jim had about 25 head of Holstein. Most were milking cows. He also had some hogs. I would say his major source of income probably was his cream cheques and family allowance. He'd get about $10 a five-gallon can for milk. He shipped 1½ cans a week. That would give him a monthly income from milk of about $60.....

"The family was what you might call self sufficient."

Others said that while the Petersons had relatives in the Shell Lake area, they had no known close friends.

Even Weather Promises to Co-operate with Fair

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

There's a scent of sweat and circus behind the scenes at Belleville fair today.

It's waiting on air supplied by the fair's most important, if invisible, patron — the weatherman.

With a new attendance record shaping up, the biggest unknown factor being anxiously watched from the fair board backrooms was today's weather trend.

Thundershowers, forecast for some time today now have been definitely patterned by the weatherman.

The duty forecaster at Canadian Forces Base Trenton this morning confirmed that showers were imminent for this afternoon.

"We could get the odd thundershowers moving through here, but they shouldn't last too long," was the word from the official weather watcher.

They will clear the air for the night's gala grandstand show — the Canadian motorcycle championships, traditionally the fair's biggest attendance booster.

The forecast sets the seal on the likelihood of a new admissions record.

By last night, 30,308 people had clicked through the turnstiles for the first three days of the exhibition.

This compares with a total attendance of 31,800 for the whole four-day run of the 1966 fair. Yesterday there were 8,500 paid admissions, with 1,363 at the grandstand show of amateur talent.

With tonight's grandstand show already a sellout, organizers are optimistic the 1966 attendance will be easily outpaced from after the evening rush starts.

And with another sunrise winner to close the fair Saturday night — the Black Diamond Cheese Stakes and parimutuel racing — it's now definite the gamble of extending the fair one more day has paid off.

Weather predictions also hold good for the fair's finale.

It will be cloudy and cooler, but "nothing in the way of a shower" the weatherman promises.

Today's brief showers also will add to comfort of patrons pacing around the fair.

Yesterday — with the sigh at a breezeless 88 degrees — wasn't the most comfortable weather condition in which to view the big display-cum-carnival.

Several children were reported treated for heat exhaustion.

However, there will be lower temperatures today and tomorrow, plus a welcome cooling breeze.

It Shows Its Years

This 50-year-old Le Rhone rotary aircraft engine is part of the No. 6 Repair Depot exhibit at Belleville Fair. Intended as an operating display the engine outdid itself by cantankerous starts.

Aircraft Testing Equipment Saves Many Man Hours of Labor

The Royal Canadian Air Force is using modern day techniques to save long man hours in the maintenance of its aircraft.

The technique is known as "non destructive testing" to find the weak components in operational aircraft.

The term "non destructive testing" means testing of aircraft components without the man hours involved in dismantling and later re-assembly. It all adds up to saving the Canadian tax payers dollars and in greatly reducing the time which aircraft has to be out of service for overhauls.

Just how it is all done is told at the No. 6 Repair Depot booth at Belleville Fair where space age rocketry, jet engines and special testing equipment is on display.

Radiology, or in other words X-ray picture technique, is the most used form of non destructive testing at the No. 6 R.D. base at Trenton, but dye penetrants to show up flaws and ukrasonics are also used.

Testing by ukrasonics involves the use of sound waves to determine whether the components are sound or contain unseen flaws or dangerous cracks. The whole technique is explained in fair-goers through use of pictures slides and a sound track.

No. 6 Repair Depot at Trenton is unique in that it is the only Armed Forces Base in Canada which trains its own test men.

Another interesting section part of the Repair Depot exhibit is a 50-year-old LeRhone rotary aircraft engine such as was used during World War 1.

The old rotary engine differs from the more modern air cooled radial piston engines in that the entire engine revolves around the crankshaft.

The old nine still in operating condition, developing 80 horsepower depending on its speed. But to say the least they were complicated.

Two Buildings to Be Demolished After Fair

Members of the city parks board are going right ahead with plans to demolish the now condemned Commodores' and Manufacturers' buildings at exhibition park immediately the Belleville Fair is over.

Yesterday the tender of Mr. P. Hodge of Trenton was accepted for the demolition of the two 40-year-old buildings and for cleaning up the grounds after the buildings are taken away. The tender price was $1,500, the lowest of several received.

Parks Board chairman Donald Williams said the contract calls for the two buildings to be demolished and cleanup completed by September 30.

The two old fair buildings are being demolished to make way for the proposed new arena complex hoped to be built at the fairgrounds in time for next year's fair.

Children from eight Trenton playgrounds will wear centennial theme costumes in next Wednesday's penny fair parade.

NEW HEART PUMP

EVERETT, Mass. (AP)—A physician-engineer team said Thursday it has developed a "balloon pump" that can add a fifth to the output of a seriously sick heart pumps requiring major surgery, yet may be simply inserted into the main artery leading from the heart. A slender balloon, shaped like a miniature hot dog, is capable of reducing the heart's workload by up to 30 per cent by decreasing the resistance the heart encounters when it attempts to pump blood into a person's system, the developers said.

Folk Group Wins Grandstand Show

There's no business like show business, whether you do it for business or for the show.

Either way, the result can draw crowds — as Belleville fair proved last night.

For its third grandstand show, the fair took a new tack last night — trotting amateurs into the spotlight instead of professionals, most of the evening.

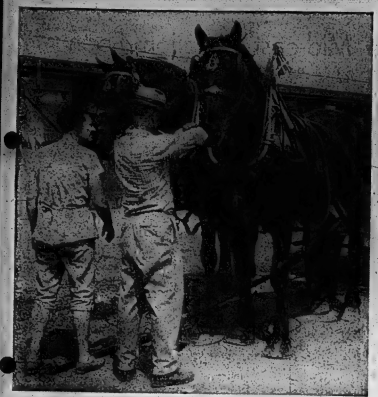
It drew more than 1,300 into the bleachers. Billed as the Quinte Amateur Show, the production featured a parade of performers, as varied in age and number as their individual talents.

They ranged from solo vocalists and instrumentalists to a full-fledged all-girl glee club. One thing every performer shared, however — beside applause — was enthusiasm.

As far as each performance went, it came from the heart.

First place went to a teen-age folk-song trio — the Charivarees, of Belleville. Already popular in district high school circles the group is made up of Jim Slavin, 18, Sherrill Taylor, 17 and Velda Conner.

The glee club — the Quinte Belles — was judged second with third spot going to a 17-year-old Trenton vocalist, Barbara Freeman.



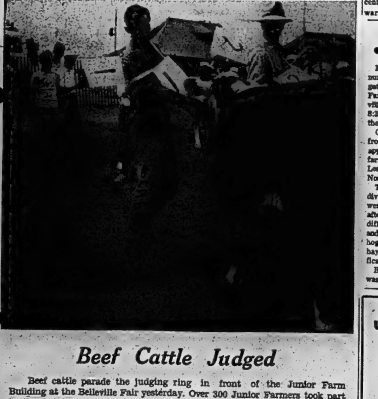
Since the show was a local effort, however, first prize for community enterprise was accorded the sponsors of the evening — the Belleville local 357 of the American Federation of Musicians.

CHC personality Gordie Tapp, emcee of the show, drew applause for the musicians' when he told the spectators: "When you have a union as active as this one here you should be justly proud."

However, the union members themselves were on hand to back up the show — and unexpectedly to become the hit of the evening.

Amalgamating into one group, they effortlessly breezed through the show, blending in a big-band beat to keep the production swinging.

The sounds of music brought more comment from emcee Tapp, who did a double-take when orchestra leader Doug Asselstine admitted the music-men had only rehearsed one day for the whole show.



Prize Winning Percherons

This pair of black Percherons owned by Reg. Black and Son of Brampton won the heavy draught pairs hitch at Belleville Fair this week. Mr. and Mrs. Black are seen unhitching after the show.

Going for Broke!

Sometimes not even a horse knows its own strength — as this incident at Belleville Fair grandstand show proved last night. Two of a six-horse hitch of big Percheron draught horses looked on sheepishly as owners rectify wreckage when neck-yoke linking team parted under strain.

No. 1, Godfrey, Ontario; Mrs. J. (Jean) Kelly, of Oshawa, Ontario; and Percy Gayford, Tweed, Ontario. One son, James Frederick predeceased him in 1940, and one daughter, Betty Anne, passed away in 1944.

A brother, Will Gayford, of Henderson, Ontario, and one sister, Mrs. W. (Annie) Johnson, of Tamworth, Ontario, also survive. A sister, Mrs. Myrtle Peck, Montreal, Quebec, predeceased him. The funeral was conducted in the Henderson United Church, where the service was conducted by Reverend J. W. Price, assisted by Mr. A. C. Cox. The bearers were: William McCrea, Mervin Lees, Francis Feeney, James Henry, George Prusnick and Harry Minnis. Interment was in the Henderson Cemetery.

The deceased was a member of the United Church. He was employed with the Ontario Department of Highways for fourteen years prior to his retirement three years ago.

Trenton Showboat Cancelled

TRENTON—Town officials were feeling chagrin here today as one of the town's most unique centennial-year cultural events was confirmed cancelled.

Definitely called off is the Sunday visit of the French-Canadian floating theatre ship L'Escale.

Reason for the cancellation apparently is skepticism over the safety of the craft entering Trenton harbor.

Trenton centennial chairman Robert Carleton said today the ship's captain informed him the craft's insurance would not cover the visit.

L'Escale — containing a 500-seat theatre, bars and a restaurant serving specialty cousine — was scheduled to arrive in Trenton after visiting Belleville Saturday.

The Belleville visit still is on as scheduled and Trentonians already holding tickets may transfer them to the showing there, or have their money "cheerfully refunded," said Mr. Carleton.

One town official said he could see no difficulty posed by Trenton harbor, adding that L'Escale — a converted ferry boat — has about a nine-foot draught. A coal carrier, drawing 13 feet of water, docked in the harbor earlier this summer, the official added.

The event had been much-heralded in this town and the arrival of L'Escale awaited expectantly.

Richard John Rivest, son of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Rivest of Belleville graduated with first class honors in the Industrial Technology Course at Ryerson Polytechnical Institute, Toronto. He also won a scholarship in the Mechanical Technical Course in his second year for general proficiency and high standing. Richard, who graduated from Quinte Secondary School, Belleville has accepted a position with the Imperial Oil Enterprises and will reside in Sarnia.

U. S. Students Stop Here

Three carloads of students representing a Methodist Church (4 Baton Rouge, Louisiana, were in Belleville last night. They slept at Bridge Street United Church.

The 17 teenagers, including four girls and 13 boys, are on a two-week tour to Expo.

The group left Baton Rouge last Sunday and have been using mattresses and sleeping at various churches along the route. They arrived in Belleville after a night at Niagara Falls.

Rev. Harry M. Davis, pastor of the Bridge Street church said this morning the group were highly organized. "They provided their food and washed clothing at a local coin laundry," he said.

"The boys and girls worked through the winter to raise money for the trip and contacted us about two months ago when they were planning their route."

Rev. Robert Windsor and his wife as well as three members are acting as chaperones for the students. They will arrive in Montreal today and will spend about five days at the fair site.

PETER C. FLEMING

A native of Belleville, Peter Fleming was notified Thursday that he achieved Ontario scholar status in his grade 13 exams. He had an average of 84 per cent. Peter who attended Reglopolis College in Kingston, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Fleming.

A. H. McFARLANE,
Director of Student Services

"Many men and women who do not have a secondary school graduation certificate are capable of completing successfully a wide range of college-level courses. Thousands, in fact, have done so. Placed in appropriate courses, these "mature matriculants" frequently demonstrate a will-to-learn which far surpasses that of other students with the orthodox credentials",

"To men and women age 19 or older who have completed grade 10 and who have been out of school for one or more years, Loyalist College offers the opportunity to qualify for admission to any course for which a secondary school graduation certificate is the usual prerequisite."

Junior Farmers Hold Field Day

Future farmers of Canada numbering over 300 began to gather around the Junior Farmer Building at the Belleville fairgrounds as early as 8:30 Thursday to register for the Junior Farm Judging.

Over 150 contestants were from Hastings and there were approximately 80 junior farmers from Prince Edward, Lennox and Addington, and Northumberland counties.

The judging, which was divided into three divisions went on until late in the afternoon and there were 10 different competitions in beef and dairy cattle, sheep, swine, hog carcasses, grain, apples, hay, potatoes and an identification quiz.

Barry Rattle of Bloomfield was the winner in Division 1 which was 14 years and under. The contestants in Division 1 did not have to give reasons for their choices but the other groups did. Barry's score was 498.

Division 2, for 16 years and under, was led by Brian Denyes of Plainfield with a score of 729.

Kathy Alexander of Hillier was the overall winner with a score of 744. She will be going into Grade 13 this fall and has completed 5 agricultural 4-H clubs and 11 homemaking projects. A tray was presented to her by Tom Leugergoit representing the Bank of Montreal.

Staff from the Departments of Agriculture in the participating counties handled the 8,000 cards and corrected and graded them according to the judge's decisions. Each competition had a different judge.

Winners were announced at grandstand last night before amateur night at the Belleville fair.

The Scholars

Congratulations to the 19 students from the Quinte area who have been awarded Ontario scholarships as a result of their high standings in this year's provincial Grade 13 examinations.

Moira Secondary School may take special pride in having the largest number of scholars locally — seven — and in filling the first two places with Peter Bishop's 93.5 per cent average and Donald Brunet's 88.5 per cent respectively.

Belleville Collegiate boasts six scholars, Quinte three, and one student of Stirling-Rawdon district high school, Helen Margaret Mallory, earned the distinction with an 83 per cent average.

As these young people have shown, there is no substitute for hard work and concentrated study. To some academic attainment comes easier than it does to others. But fundamentally it takes a responsible attitude to work to obtain high standing at school and later on in adult life.

These 19 young people are a credit to themselves, their families and the area. They will also serve as an encouragement to others who have done well to do better, as well as to those who have to struggle a bit just to pass.

How encouraging it is too when young people overcome tremendous handicaps to achieve their goal — and beat all comers in the process. For instance, the top Ontario scholar among the 46,000 students who wrote the final Grade 13 examinations to be set by the province is Gordon Legge, a 19-year-old Torontonian who is almost blind. He used braille on six exams.

Accident Injuries

Accidents on the highways are now so much a part of our modern way of life that no one pays much attention to the statistics any more.

Only those who are involved — if they survive — and their families know the full extent of the tragedy that stalks our highways, particularly at weekends.

Death is one thing, but sometimes worse than death is the plight of many who survive but with injuries that cripple them for the rest of their days.

Consider the warning of a Halifax woman, Dr. M. C. Misick, that for many Canadians in the 16 to 25 age group who became paraplegics as a result of highway accidents last year, death would have been a kindness.

Dr. Misick, who is herself a paraplegic (sensory paralysis of the lower part of the body) as the result of a car accident a year ago, told delegates to the All Canada Conference of Young Drivers held in Ottawa, "we must face the unpalatable fact that accidental injury is a disease which has reached epidemic proportions in Canada."

Will such a warning help to reduce the highway toll? Perhaps not to any great extent, but it should serve to make people more aware of the vast blessing conferred upon them by reason of good health and the fact they have use of all their faculties.

A Fearful Society

"Why is our society conditioned to fear and hate"? This question was posed by a teacher whom Henry Makow, the young Ottawa writer, met recently in the course of his travels around Canada.

In his column "Route 67," Makow noted his and a friend "are in contact with this fear on the road every day. "For every car that stops to give us a lift, there are at least 30 which pretend not to see us."

As hitchhikers of course, the pair must expect this sort of thing. There are any number of cases where people have picked up people and been rewarded with a knife or gun in the ribs.

And yet, occurrences of this nature are all symptomatic of the general malaise, the sense of alienation that is such a divisive influence in the life of modern man.

There is insight in this observation by Makow: "Unlike our parents who grew up in the depression, we were raised in plenty and are able to see material possessions in perspective. We see that they don't make up for things like an honest pride in country, love, integrity, beauty, or in a general, a harmony with life."

And to achieve this pearl of wisdom, from a hippie of all people, "IT" things means appreciating life, then North America has the lowest standard of living in the world."

But then, how can life be appreciated by the dubious standards of a hippie? Still, there is truth in the statement. Many of the elements of true harmony between people are missing or have been pushed into the background by reason of the claims of materialistic thinking.

A Youngster Down On The Farm

Ottawa Journal

In August when the rush of haying is over and a farmer relaxes from the pressures that accompany farm life through plowing, planting, cultivating and haying, a 12-year-older also gets a welcome break. If he has kept the woodbox filled, the garden in reasonable trim, and has worked well until three o'clock, father is likely to say, "Son, get your swim and then bring home the cows."

As a future citizen feels his strength return with a rush. He and Shep race to the meadow swimming hole. In the shade of the willows a lad and his dog recuperate pleasantly from eight-month heat and humidity. After a long, leisurely swim, a young man who has determined to be a naturalist set to travel in distant lands for some great city museum, starts for the cows.

There are woodchuck dens to explore, and a big grey cone of a hornet's nest to inspect on the grey birch near the pasture spring. A big black snake is often sunning itself on a flat rock and the old wood turtle with the numbers "1967" carved on its shell is frequently meditating by the pasture brook. Shep pokes around unhurriedly in the brush and usually starts up a rabbit which the dog watches with resignation. From long experience, Shep knows it is futile to chase Long Ears.

On a hot, humid August afternoon when flies and mosquitoes are thick, the cows are almost certain to be in the evergreens at the swamp's far edge. When the day's exploratory period is over and a lad has satisfactorily checked assential pockets, he sends Shep to the green grove for the cows. With patient, phlegmatic tread and heavy udders swaying heavy with milk, the cows file along the path to the pasture bars.

Getting the cows in is just a daily routine task to a farm lad. But there are men today who in the office windows and remember the long ago days when they visited the old swimming hole and then went for the cows.

Hull Wants Friendship With Ottawa

Globe and Mail

Where would Boris be without Pearl, or Minneapolis without St. Paul? Although cities which sit astride the river known as a river are usually called twins, it is seldom an apt description because they tend to be so different. Perhaps they are more like lovers, complementary and enjoying the completeness they together make.

No doubt the newly bilingual civil servants of Ottawa have learned to gaze across their river at Hull and murmur "vive la difference!" Down the decades Hull has provided so much that Ottawa itself lacked: night-life from mid-afternoon, those friendly golf clubs during Parker's years of prohibition, toothpicks by the million. Such a pleasing companion.

And now Ottawa's affection seems about to be reciprocated. Hull City Council has approved a relief version of the Queue Government that, if it does not immediately look after the city's interests, at least "risks making Hull and region detach like a chunk of ice from an iceberg, to melt away in a Federal District." I see." The poetic threat may have followed Quebec slapping on an 8 per cent sales tax and an equally prosaic rise in electricity rates, but it is at heart the language of matrimonial sulking. But hold! Before the Peace Tower's carillon peals out a wedding march for a Federal District, Hull would need to gain separation from Quebec. That would be too much pill.

Security Council May Tackle Mid-east Situation Soon

By DAVE McINTOSH

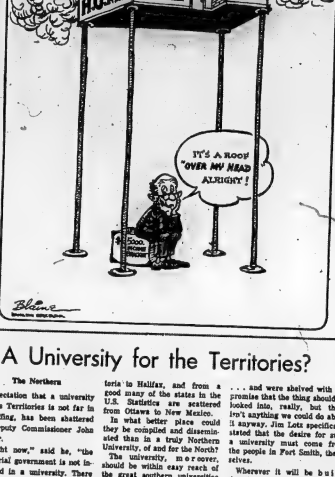
How long can Egypt afford to have the Suez Canal shipless? How long can Israel afford to occupy territories more than three times her size?

To what extent will the big powers bring pressure to bear on Israel and the Arab states to modify irreconcilable positions?

These are only some of the questions being pondered in Ottawa as a result of the dramatic carnage left by the six-day Arab-Israeli war in June.

One guess is that the United Nations Security Council will tackle the problem again early next month and try to work out a resolution calling for withdrawal of Israeli forces from Arab territory concurrent with Arab recognition of the state of Israel.

Prime Minister Pearson repeated Tuesday that withdrawal and recognition must be simultaneous. Canada is a member of the Security Council.



Russia appeared willing to accept a resolution to the effect at the special General Assembly meeting on the Middle East. But the Arab states would not, and Russia is supporting the Arabs.

Will Russia change its stand? Mr. Pearson did not indicate any hope of this after his talks Monday with Soviet Deputy Premier Dmitri Polyansky.

The Pearson - Polyansky exchange is only one of many behind-the-scenes discussions on the situation. They seem to have yielded little or nothing so far.

Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban said in Montreal Monday that Israel will settle for nothing less than direct negotiations with the Arabs for a peace settlement. The Arabs have repeatedly said they will not deal directly with Israel which would imply recognition. Canada has suffered diplomatically to some extent. For the first time in 20 years, Canadians have not been acceptable as countryside observers.

Canada is a member of the UN Truce Supervisory Organization in Palestine. But none of the 20 Canadian officers on it was asked to help supervise the ceasefire area along the Suez Canal because of objections by Egypt.

A University for the Territories?

The Northern

Expectation that a university for the Territories is not far in the offing, has been shattered by Deputy Commissioner John Parker.

"Right now," said he, "the territorial government is not interested in a university. There are too many other matters that have priority." Those words were printed in an article by the Edmonton Journal's new expert on northern affairs, Art Sorenson, in the Journal's issue on July 8.

Instead of the slippers he is wearing, let's give our John Parker a badly needed pair of running shoes. His timing is strictly out of joint.

After many years, the people of the Northwest Territories have won their fight to put the territorial government where it belongs — in the Northwest Territories. But the struggle has barely begun.

The eyes of Canada's Parliament should become fixed upon the dire needs of underdeveloped countries to the extent of overlooking those very same problems at home in our northland. Here, citizens hitherto colonized are now emerging, however slowly, into responsible government while fighting and seeking a means of developing the national status of a province-to-be "have-country."

The acceleration of development in the Northwest Territories is closely related to Canada's ability to develop as a nation. Northern problems involve climate, land-mass measured in millions, mineral resources and people. A country progresses into the galaxy of advanced recognition only through the knowledge and resourcefulness of its people.

To this end, a University of the North becomes a critical necessity.

For the present, scientific research in the great field between the territories has been carried out primarily by the Arctic Institute of North America, and through grants to the Institute of Northern Studies of the University of Saskatchewan, as well as the Boreal Institute of the University of Alberta.

Anthropological crews into the land in pairs or in groups from universities scattered from Victoria to Halifax, and from a good many of the states in the U.S. Statistics are scattered from Ottawa to New Mexico.

In what better place could they be compiled and disseminated than in a truly Northern University, of and for the North?

The university, moreover, should be within easy reach of the great southern universities with their faculties and enrolment to facilitate interchange of professors and students.

A nucleus for a future Northern University is already well established at Fort Smith which is in the central subarctic.

The area has pretty well the same problems as say in the territories, as well as those of that northern parts of the southern provinces. And according to Jim Lotz, a professor at St. Paul's University in Ottawa, Fort Smith is the place to build it.

His notes for discussion on such a university were brought up before the town council in Fort Smith several months ago . . . and were shelved with the promise that the thing should be looked into, really, but there isn't anything we could do about it anyway. Jim Lotz specifically stated that the desire for such a university must come from the people in Fort Smith, themselves.

Wherever it will be built, though, for Northern students a Northern University will be their "home" university. The drop out gap upon orientation to a provincial university, now devastating, will become minor. For southern students whose interest and future blend into the North, the new University of the North will have a place.

There's no end of arguments for a university in the North. And what a crime in the vision bga John Parker handed us! A university takes a decade to plan. To say the territorial government is not interested now is a very disturbing thing to hear. The territorial government needs desperately to realign its sights.

The Horse Man's Old Friend, Helper

Kingston Whig-Standard

It comes as a bit of a shock — and certainly a pleasant and nostalgic one — to realize that man's old, old friend and helper, the horse, is not by any means so obsolete as the logic of the times would seem to dictate. We still see him about, of course. He is very much in evidence on many farms, he is still bred for various sports and his commercial or ceremonial appearances are many.

But how many people realize that while the Canadian registration of draft horses has remained fairly steady at a few hundred for about the past ten years, new registrations of saddle horses have increased dramatically from 1,000 in 1956 to 6,000 last year. It should be realized too, that since livestock production is only purebred animals, they do not give a true picture of the horse population.

The increased interest in riding horses has resulted in a new popularity for riding clubs and academies in Canada. And, of course, horse racing in all its forms continues to attract great amounts of money and new stock.

Then there are the police horses. The horse is unrivalled for such jobs as traffic and crowd control and patrolling city parks.

As for the workhorse, Ontario dairies are finding that giving up their horses was premature in some routes. The Sunnyside Dairy of Oshawa, for instance, calculates that horsedrawn vehicles have cut delivery costs by 75 per cent where used. Nine of the company's 20 delivery routes use horses.

In this work the horse out-performs any mechanical vehicle. He works with the deliveryman. The talkman now has three or four calls and the horse will go along and wait for him at the last house.

Children of other generations (and many of them not so far back in time) experienced the pleasure of stroking the soft muzzle of the delivery horse and perhaps slipping him a carrot, an apple or a piece of sugar on the sly. This is a pleasure which appears to be still available to children, at least in a limited way and, it is good to be able to welcome the fact that their extinction seems to be anything but imminent.

A Dream Shattered
In the Big City Who Cares ?

Letter to The Globe and Mail

Sometimes I just hate Toronto.

A man from Juniper Stump, Nfld., arrived in Toronto last Tuesday evening. A pocket-worn envelope had the address of a friend. On his way through Allan Gardens he was jumped; $185 was stolen from his wallet, his arm was beaten and an old man with a cane waited until he came to and led him to the emergency at St. Mike's.

He had a place to live, he had no job, no money and no possibility of work for the six to 10 weeks he will need for his arm to mend.

He needed help. The welfare said, we're sorry, we'll write to Newfoundland right away and find out if they'll help you. The police said, we're sorry, if you could give us a description we might be able to find out who slugged you from behind. The Travellers' Aid said, well, we'd have to call Newfoundland. Could we make an appointment to have you come around next Monday at 10?

We scraped together $7 for three days' meals, arranged for the bus terminus to bill us for the ticket and put him on the bus for North Sydney, N.S., with an extra $5 to pay for the ferry ride to the island.

He arrived here on Tuesday with a dream of bringing his two boys from Juniper Stump to Toronto to get an education. Saturday night this big, handsome, bewildered man left Toronto on the bus with a beer-on arm, a completely shattered dream, and for all his 225 pounds, he had tears in his eyes.

I just hope that the most sophisticated people of Toronto know this is happening every day.

Beatniks Conformity And the Law

Vancouver Sun

The premier and attorney-general of South Australia, Don Dunstan, has sided with his state's Chief Justice, Dr. J. J. Bray, in a controversy with senior judges about the right of Australia's youth to wear their hair long. "They can wear it down to their knees for all I care," said Mr. Dunstan. In saying so he had struck a considerable blow against the magistrate's pressure upon the individual to conformation. And in a vitally important place: the appearance.

There's more involved in this question than the mere right of psychos to "appear" in court dressed according to their fancy," as one hostile Australian has put it. Essentially it is questionable, of course, if anything in the judges' rules gives the bench the right to prescribe the proper dress for participants in trials (apart from those under a legal duty to dress as they are anyway). There's certainly nothing in law.

But the important thing is that if dress or manners or what else has any bearing at all to regulation by judges, even in part, it is time a free society said Whoa! Such regulation is a sharp look. There's a place here for a reminiscence about the persecutions which the men in the United States in the early part of the 19th century when a few hardy souls pioneered the beard after some generations of smooth male faces.

This was a manifestation of the often-times hysterical reaction of a community to what's strange, or what implies change.

Educational Co-operation

Montreal Gazette

There are signs that the ten education ministers realize the need of closer together on special projects and co-ordinating their activities. One was the announcement a week ago of the creation of a council of education ministers of the provinces.

This is a step in the right direction. Education has become the most costly single item in the provincial budgets, and it is likely to remain in first place for years, if not decades, to come. Any savings which can be made by co-operative efforts in educational research, television and curricula studies is a saving for all.

Boost From Expo

Carpet Industry Growth Rate Greater Than Economic Rise

MONTREAL (CP) — While it expects the demand for carpets in homes to level off this year, the Canadian Carpet Institute says the outlook in new creations and new fields, such as commercial carpeting, will keep the industry on the uptrend in the immediate future.

Many factors, the institute says, have combined to increase the popularity of carpets, not least of which is Expo 67. Many of the partitions have carpeting and manufacturers believe this will make people think about using carpets in areas never before thought of.

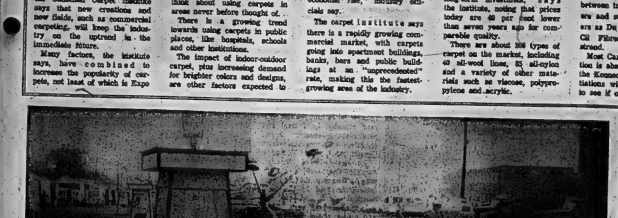
There is a growing trend towards using carpets in public places, like hospitals, schools and other institutions.

The impact of indoor-outdoor carpet, plus increasing demand for brighter colors and designs, are other factors expected to keep the industry going "at a greater rate than the general economic rise," industry officials say.

The carpet institute says there is a rapidly growing commercial market, with carpets going into apartment buildings, banks, bars and public buildings at an "unprecedented" rate, making this the fastest-growing area of the industry.

"Carpeting is not cheap and must be considered a good, long-term investment," says the institute, noting that prices today are 40 per cent lower than seven years ago for comparable quality.

There are about 208 types of carpet on the market, including 40 all-wool lines, 81 all-nylon and a variety of other materials such as viscose, polypropylene and acrylic.



The fibres are produced as a result of co-operative efforts between traditional carpet makers and such chemical producers as Du Pont of Canada, Celi Fibres Ltd. and Chemstrand.

Most Canadian carpet production is absorbed in Canada, but the Kennedy Round tariff negotiations will force the industry to see if other markets can be penetrated, the institute says.

Over-all performance of the country's 19 mills has been one of steady growth in the last five or six years, though there may be a flattening out this year, industry officials say. During 1966, Canadian carpet production totalled 18,500,000 square yards, a 6.5 per cent increase compared with 17,500,000 square yards valued at $77,000,000 the year before. Commercial carpeting accounts for 30 per cent of all sales.

Only six years ago, production was 9,000,000 square yards with net worth of $37,000,000.

In a 10-year period, Canadian firms have increased their share of the domestic market to 90 per cent from 49 per cent and the number of mills increased to 19 from six. In the past year alone, three companies started production.

Rides Pull Cinderella Act

Employees of the Conklin Bros. Shows moved three of the main rides out of the Belleville Fair last night because of previous contract obligations. The children's rides are being moved up to fill in the empty spaces.

Blacksmith Busy Man at Fair

Anyone figuring the blacksmith is a figure of history is heading for a horselaugh.

A quick trip to Belleville fair any day this week easily confirms the blacksmith is slowly making a comeback.

Herb Towers of Brantford, will support the claim and few people would deny the truth of it. Making them think twice would be Herb's burly figure, the build that betrays his business — blacksmithing.

However, he also is a nimble craftsman so much so he flips around Southern Ontario fairs in a region bounded by London and Belleville — practising his trade.

His operation is in keeping with a mobile society, the new look in what once involved a dead trade — a portable smithy.

Herb hied into Belleville Monday night — as the fair was launching its 1967 edition.

"I've been going steadily, shoeing horses, ever since," he said yesterday. "I get in here and the people just about go crazy. There's always some horse needs to be shod."

His operation is a far cry from the traditional memory of the blacksmith as a smoky, perspiring figure, working all day over a hot forge.

Herb still works all day — but forges, hot or otherwise, are out.

Instead, he carries a stock of about standard-size horseshoes, and — if some slight adjustments are called for — he presses an acetylene torch into operation.

The heaviest piece of equipment — and about the only traditional feature of his mobile workshop — is a 170 - lb. anvil.

All this allows Herb to share living quarters with his workshop — it's all compactly contained in the back of a camper - truck.

The operation dates back about seven years, when Herb was shoeing horses of his own.

"I had my own horses that had to be shod but I got fed up looking for people to do it," he recalled.

Business gradually built until it now is a full-time job with Herb taking to the road in the summer and fall when fairs are in full swing.

Although it once was a dying trade, more and more blacksmiths are going into business, said Herb.

He estimated there were about 25 smiths with operations similar to his in southern Ontario.

"And if we had 25 more we still wouldn't have enough," he claimed.

. . . and with this kind of attention any horse stands a chance of being a shoo-in at Belleville Fair. Travelling blacksmith Herb Towers gives testing tap to horse's shoe before it is judged in ring.

Reason for the return of the craft from the economic shadows is evident at such places as Belleville — the galloping increase in horse-fanciers.

The number of people turning to horses as a hobby and stepped up demand for blacksmiths — and the demand keeps growing.

Perhaps strikingly indicative of the trend is the fact it even shows up on import quotas.

Among the ready - made horseshoes stocked in his truck are types manufactured — in Japan.

STAMP FOR CHRISTMAS

OTTAWA (CP)—Three young carollers singing in front of the Peace Tower highlight a new Christmas stamp that will go on sale Oct. 11 in time to be used on overseas Yuletide mailing. The new stamp will be issued in five- and three-cent denominations.

Three Rides On Midway Taken Away

In the middle of the night the operation began and by morning the Belleville fairground had taken on a completely different aura — it was simpler.

Employees of Conklin Bros. shows took down three of the largest, fastest and most popular rides, loaded them on the trucks and moved them out so that this morning they were only three empty lots in remembrance of the labor the night before.

The Ferris Wheel, Tip Top and Twister were moved out and the children's rides at the western end of the midway are being moved up this morning to fill in the empty spaces.

E. C. Gowsell, secretary of the fair board said this morning that the reason for the rides being moved out was that "the fair board did not decide early enough whether it wanted the rides and in the meantime Conklin Bros. had contracted for the rides to go elsewhere". Mr. Gowsell went on to say, "the fact this is the first year the fair is five days running from Tuesday instead of Monday also created contract problems.

with a smooth new bottle and a celebrated taste... that's how a gin should be!

That's how White Satin is. Still made to Sir Robert Burnett's original 1770 London Dry formula; still exactly as dry and satin-smooth today as it ever was. After all, when great taste can keep a gin famous for generations on both sides of the ocean—we wouldn't dream of changing it. What we have done, though, is change the White Satin bottle. It's the best way we know to salute a celebrated gin. Have a look. Have a bag. White Satin. That's how a gin should be.

Seaweed May Become Staple Food

OTTAWA (CP)—How about a side order of seaweed to go with that juicy steak?

To a Japanese palate the taste wouldn't be strange and if Canadian marine biologists have their way seaweed specialties may become a house hold staple.

The federal fisheries department reports in its magazine Fisheries of Canada on current studies by government, industry and science on possible uses of seaweed.

These were subjects of a conference in Halifax earlier this year attended by federal and provincial government representatives and processors from Canada, the U.S. and Europe.

The seaweeds of Canada's Atlantic Coast—which already provide dozens of different ingredients used in the food, pharmaceutical and textile industries and in agriculture—are worth about $6,000,000 a year.

However, the Halifax meeting agreed weeds may be used more and that they have valuable possibilities as a cash crop for commercial fishermen and farmers.

Marine plants are used in the manufacture of toothpaste, jellies and milk products—one substance produced from Irish moss is a stabilizer that can keep the chocolate in chocolate milk from settling to the bottom and also prevents formation of ice crystals while ice cream is being frozen.

Seaweed extracts are used in puddings, gravies and laxatives and for clarifying beer. Cake flour, wall paint and sizing, laundry starch and hairdressing materials also use the plants.

In Japan, where the plants play an important part in human diet, more than 100 species of marine and fresh-water algae may be purchased plain dried, dried after special seasoning or canned. Seaweed is eaten in soup, with rice and sometimes with fish.

Scientists look to the new marine plants enterprise—a station at Mimmegash, P.E.I., operated by the fishery department's industrial development service, to supply some of the answers.

The scientists at Halifax recommended that biochemistry and related disciplines be applied to further research. They also want an evaluation of marine plant products as fertilizers.

Given in marriage by her uncle, Gerald Clement, Belleville, the bride wore a floor-length A - line gown of white peau de soie with elbow-length sleeves. Empire waistline trimmed with Swiss lace and cathedral train, edged with the same lace, extending from the shoulders. Her bouffant shoulder - length veil was held by a pearl and crystal crown and she carried a cascade of orange ice tea roses.

Mrs. Earl MacDonald, Belleville, cousin of the bride, was matron of honor. She was dressed in a floor - length gown of mint green peau de soie with Empire waistline and wore a mint green leaf headpiece. Her crescent bouquet of orange ice tea roses was encircled with white shasta daisies. The bridesmaids, Miss Sharon Sager, Miss Elle Clement, Belleville and Miss Gloria Tracey, Toronto, all cousins of the bride, were identically attired in floor - length gowns of yellow peau de soie with matching headpieces. They carried crescent bouquets of white Shasta daisies.

Miss Anita Tracey, Belleville, cousin of the bride, was flower girl. She wore a floor length gown of yellow peau de soie with an Empire waistline and carried a basket of shasta daisies.

Barry Chase, Dartmouth, N.S., was his brother's attendant and the ushers were Bruce Chase, Ottawa, brother of the bridegroom, Ronald Borland, and Dennis Tracey, both of Toronto. David Sager, cousin of the bride, was ring - bearer.

At the reception at Club Canara, the guests were received by the bride's mother, who wore an ensemble of turquoise lace with matching hat, white accessories and a corsage of pink sweetheart roses. The bridegroom's mother wore a rosewood French lace over taffeta dress with eggshell colored accessories and a corsage of red sweetheart roses.

Quinte's Own Tartan Displayed at Fair

Now it's official — Bay of Quinte residents have their own tartan.

Whether or not you have a drop of Scottish blood in your veins you are entitled to wrap yourself in traditional highland garb, and indulge in the eccentricities on the wearing of the tartan in the process.

The man who made it possible is Alex Watson, Trenton, who designed and shepherded through to registration in Ottawa, the new Bay of Quinte tartan.

At the Trenton Weavers' booth in the Curling Club at Belleville Fair, where the tartan is displayed this week, he explained how he did it.

"All tartans are symbolic," he says. "In the Bay of Quinte tartan the dark blue symbolizes the waters of the bay and the light blue interwoven symbolizes the streams and rivers running into the bay. The green in the fabric is indicative of the rich agricultural land bordering the bay. The red intersections represent industry, especially the early water-powered industries which first attracted settlers to the region. Running through the red is a gold line, symbol of our golden future."

The material is a dress and skirt, weight, yarn-dyed worsted wool, woven in Trenton at the weaving division of Trenton Dyeing and Finishing Company.

Mr. Wilson, general manager of the division, is a graduate of Bradford Technological Institute, and came to Canada from his native Yorkshire in 1948. Besides the Bay of Quinte tartan, a copyright property of the Trenton firm, Mr. Wilson has designed the proposed Rotary International tartan. Yarn - dyed in a blue and gold, Rotary colors, it was shown at the international convention in Nice this year and "created a sensation," he says.

Ewse since he entered the tartan designing business, Mr Wilson has found himself explaining the difference between a tartan and a plaid.

"A tartan is a design," he says. "A plaid is a garment. Anyone who says otherwise does not know his Scottish history."

As Mr. Wilson explains it, the early Highlanders were one all-purpose garment — a wide strip of woolen material six yards long. They rolled themselves in it at night to sleep and in the morning gathered it around their waists and threw the excess yardage over their shoulders. From the lower portion evolved the pleated kilt and from the over-the - shoulder portion, evolved the plaid, a sort of shawl.

"The similarity between the Indian women's sari and the Scot's traditional dress has always amazed me," Mr. Wilson adds. "Here are two primitive cultures, one in Europe and the other thousands of miles away in the another part of Asia, and at about the same time in history the same type of garment. Furthermore, the Madras cotton with their check patterns were also created thousands of years ago in India and look like the Scottish tartan. They are, in effect, Indian tartans. Yet the two cultures had no contact until the 18th century."

The Scottish check design cannot property be called a tartan until it is registered. What, then, do you call a tartan-like, high fashion design with no tradition al symbolism turned out by commercial firms?

That's simple. It's a "trade check."

MR. AND MRS. JAMES LLOYD SKEOCH

Skeoch — Stapley

Rev. J. Bruce Small performed the wedding ceremony in Bridgewater United Church recently, when Joan Edith Stapley, daughter of Mrs. Lorne Stapley, Stirling, and the late Mr. Stapley, was united in marriage to James Lloyd Skeoch of Willowdale, son of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Skeoch of Goderich.

Traditional wedding music was rendered by Mrs. Harry Brown who also accompanied the soloist Mr. Nick Chaltowski.

Given in marriage by her grandfather, Mr. W. J. Scott, the bride wore a cage dress of re-embroidered guipure lace in rose pattern with yoke, lily point sleeves, bottom of skirt outlined with imported crystal peau. The back of the dress was highlighted with wetteen trak of matching lace edged with crystal peau. A four-tier veil extended from a headdress of peau de soie and lace petals adorned with seed pearls and crystals. She carried a bouquet of stephanotis, centred with two white orchids.

Mrs. Nicholas Chaltowski, cousin of the bride, as matron of honor, and the bridesmaids Miss Ida Mae Bailey, cousin of the bride and Miss Evelyn Clark were identically attired in floor-length sheath gowns of silk chiffon over yellow with heading accenting the Empire waistline. All wore wedding-ring styled headdresses with matching veils and each carried a bouquet of white gladioli.

J. Vern Skeoch attended his brother, while James Stephens of Waterloo and J. Brian Turner of Toronto were the ushers.

For the reception at the Son Valley Motor Inn, the bride's mother received the guests, wearing a two - piece mint green dress outlined with bead embroidered seed pearls and bonds, hose and ivory accessories and a corsage of peach delight roses. The bridegroom's mother assisted wearing a salmon crepe with matching lace, pearl accessories and a corsage of white denias and stephanotis.

On the wedding trip to the East Coast, the bride wore a green linen dress with matching coat, black accessories and a corsage of yellow roses and white gardenias.

Mr. and Mrs. Skeoch will reside in Willowdale.

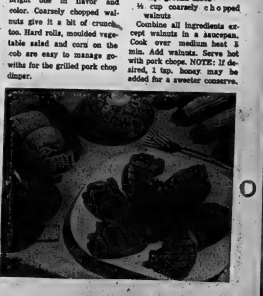
Pork Chop Barbecue Varies Summer Meals

Pork chops from the grill fit right into summertime meal plans. Today's pork has tenderness, consistent leanness and flavor. Besides the high quality protein which meat provides, pork is the richest food source of thiamine.

Rib or loin pork chops should be cut at least one inch thick if they are to be broiled over charcoal or in the oven. Distance of the meat from the heat should be adjusted to allow for slow broiling and thorough cooking. To test for doneness, make a slit in the meat near the bone and observe the color. Pork chops should be cooked just until pinkness has disappeared. Pork chops cut less than one inch thick are best cooked in a skillet with a cover.

Fruit accompaniments are especially pleasing with pork. A spicy apricot conserve is a bright one in flavor and color. Coarsely chopped walnuts give it a bit of crunch, too. Hard rolls, moulded vegetable salad and corn on the cob are easy to manage go-withs for the grilled pork chop dinner.

CHARCOAL BARBECUED PORK CHOPS
(Yield: 4 servings)



6 pork rib chops cut 1" to 1½" thick
Salt and pepper

Cut edges of the pork chops to prevent curling. Place over low charcoal heat so that the chops will cook slowly and brown without burning. Turn once. Cook just until pinkness has disappeared when a cut is made near the bone. Season with salt and pepper and serve hot with Spicy Apricot Conserve.

SPICY APRICOT CONSERVE
(Yield: 2 cups)

1 cup (8-oz. pkge.) dried apricots, cooked and chopped.
½ cup white seedless raisins
¼ cup water
1 tbsp. grated orange rind
¼ tsp. ground ginger
¼ tsp. ground mace
½ cup coarsely chopped walnuts

Combine all ingredients except walnuts in a saucepan. Cook over medium heat 5 min. Add walnuts. Serve hot with pork chops. NOTE: If desired, 1 tsp. honey may be added for a sweeter conserve.

QUESTION: I can buy blade steak for 53 cents per pound. Would you give me your recommended recipe? — Annabelle M.

ANSWER:

KLEANOR'S SWISS-BARBECURED BLADE STEAKS (requested from July 1965)

Two 1½ lb. blade or chuck steaks
Flour
¼ cup bacon drippings
½ lemon, sliced thinly
1 large onion, sliced
2 tbsps. brown sugar
¼ tsp. salt
¼ tsp. freshly ground black pepper
½ tsp. barbecue seasoning
1 tbsp. parsley flakes
1¼ cups tomato juice
2 tbsps. Worcestershire sauce

Sprinkle the blade steaks on both sides with flour. Now brown them in the bacon drippings on both sides. Transfer steaks to casserole. Sprinkle with brown sugar. Then sprinkle over the salt, pepper, barbecue seasoning and parsley flakes. Carefully pour tomato juice and Worcestershire sauce evenly over all. Cover and bake at 300 deg. Fahr. for 2½ hrs. Then reduce the heat to 250 deg. Fahr. and bake 1 hr. longer. (This was cooking in Kleanor's automaticity — cooked over most of the afternoon. At 5:00 p.m. when she returned home from work she found the meat was quite tender so she reduced the heat to retard the cooking until dinner time at 6:00 p.m.)

Ann Landers

Micromini Outfit Not for Social Calls

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our daughter Lottie, is a cocktail waitress. She works in a costume which I consider indecent — short short short skirt, low-cut bosom and black net hose. My wife says it is "cute".

A neighbor of ours passed away last week. Lottie said she wanted to go by the funeral home to pay her last respects, but she would have to go on her way to work — in the costume. She said she would wear a raincoat over the costume. (The raincoat is transparent.) I said Lottie would be out of place dressed like that and if she couldn't put on a shirt and blouse to say home. My wife said she should go in her costume and raincoat if she wanted to because clothes aren't important.

ANN LANDERS

Lottie decided to go and my wife has been sulking ever since. Who was right? — BIG DADDY.

DEAR DADDY: I'm glad Lottie had enough sense to listen to you instead of her mother. A cocktail waitress outfit under a transparent raincoat is not appropriate dress for calling on a bereaved family.

☆ ☆ ☆

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband is tall, dark and handsome. I'm usually proud to be seen with him. But — he has a very heavy beard and if we go out at night he should shave a second time.

He says he wouldn't shave twice a day for Queen Elizabeth. I told him Queen Elizabeth doesn't care if he trips on his beard, but I am his wife and I want him to look presentable.

Maybe I should consider myself lucky because this is the only thing I have to complain about but it really does bug me. What do you say? — MRS. FIVE O'CLOCK SHADOW.

DEAR MRS.: I say if this is important to you, your husband should shave a second time on special occasions. It won't kill him. For not-so-special occasions, he can slap on some talcum powder.

And now a word to the manufacturers of razor blades, shaving creams, lotions, electric razors and their products: I am not going to mention the name of any special brand in this column so please do not phone, write or send me any samples. Thank you.

☆ ☆ ☆

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband and I had a darling little boy eight months after we were married. (We sent for your booklet, "Teen-age Sex and Ten Ways to Cool It" but unfortunately we were not able to cool it.)

Our son is two years old now and already is talking in sentences. Everyone says he is the smartest child they have ever seen. One of these days he will find out when we were married and how old he is and he'll figure out that he was born "too soon."

I feel we should start to explain now that sometimes when people are young their emotions run away with them and they do things they shouldn't. Then he will grow up with the truth and it will not come as a shock to him. Do you agree? — THINKING AHEAD.

DEAR AHEAD: No. Don't try to talk to a 2-year-old kid about intimate emotions! There is plenty of time for this sort of talk — like 10 years from now.

Many babies are born at seven months and I see no reason to go into detail — ayes later.

DORIS CLARK

Reader Wants to Start Small Business

Dear Doris: I would like to start a small business in my home to supply material used in dressing dolls, etc.

I have no idea how to go about this. Are there any pamphlets on regulations?

I enjoy your column very much and with few exceptions agree with you. — Dolling Up

Dear Dolling: The only limit to what you can do is your own imagination and energy. In Canada we encourage free enterprise. You may need a license from your own city hall — which you'll have to find out for yourself.

By all means start small. Why not draw one doll yourself to show off the material? Make up a swatch card with details about prices, and your name and address.

Spread the news around by market, telephone and mail-o-woman. And a classified ad.

Next time your point of view differs from mine, write in and say so. Much more helpful to me than if you were a yes-woman!

Dear Doris: I am a widow. My daughter is being married. Who can give the bride away? Is it permissible for me to answer this question when the minister asks it?

Can the bride walk down the aisle by herself? She sometimes feels that no one can take her father's place, but she has discussed other possibilities. — Clueless.

Dear Clueless: Let's settle the secret first, since we never want a young bride to make that trip alone. She should be an older man, such as a brother or uncle; or a close family friend.

Then when the minister says "who gives this woman away?", the escort may say "Her mother and I."

Dear Doris: My mother is helping me give my first miniset party on my 18th birthday. Now I am wondering what to do with everybody while people are still coming.

I have been to parties where the boys and girls just sat and looked at each other for the first hour. It was awful. — Josie.

Dear Josie: Break the ice with an ice breaker. Here's one called Penny Toss!

Spread a big calender on the floor (after one month off the old calender, or a version you have made yourself on a large sheet of paper). Give a supply of pennies or poker chips to three or four guests and have them toss in, try for highest score.

Now arrivals will all be wanting to try their luck.

Ask Doris for the information you need. If she doesn't know she'll find out from one of her consultants. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.

Policeman to Face Trial For Murder in Shooting

DETROIT (CP)—A Detroit policeman accused of fatally shooting a Negro youth during last month's riot must stand trial on a first-degree murder charge, a judge ruled Thursday.

Judge Robert E. DeMascio of the Recorder's criminal Court ordered Patrolman Ronald August bound over for trial in the slaying of Aubrey Pollard, 19.

Charges against a second white policeman, Patrolman Robert Paille, were dismissed. Paille had been charged with the slaying of Fred Temple, 18, also a Negro.

Temple, Pollard and Carl Cooper, 17, were killed by shotgun blasts at the Algiers Motel Annex the morning of July 26, the fourth day of the most destructive racial violence in U.S. history.

The death of Cooper is still under investigation, the prosecutor's office said.

In a statement August is said to have made before his superior officer five days after the shootings, he admitted shooting Pollard in self defence. The statement was read into the court record Wednesday by Lieut. Elmer J. Reed, who testified he had heard August make the statement.

Three days of testimony in the examination focused on August's actions at the motel.

One witness, Theodore Thomas, a national guard sergeant, testified he saw August, armed with a shotgun, lead a Negro youth into a motel room.

A shot was fired, Thomas said, adding that he saw a flash of clothing and heard something fall "with a thud." August then came out alone, Thomas testified.

The body of Pollard was later found in that room, police officers testified.

The only witness who said he saw Paille at the motel annex was Michael Clark, 20, a Negro, who testified he saw Paille on the second floor of the building. All three bodies were found on the first floor.

Clark identified Paille at a police lineup but no witness placed Paille in the room where Temple was shot, the judge said. No witness ever said he saw Paille and August together, or saw Paille with a shotgun.

"I cannot logically conclude that there is any evidence on the record that would support the theory propounded by the prosecutor," DeMascio concluded.

Prosecutor Avery Weiswasser had argued that Paille should be tried along with August on grounds that he was present when the youths were shot.

All Tuckered Out

Not only do the cattle have to be groomed for the day's show ring events, but the attendants also have to look their best. Here a herdsman washes up after tending to the cattle.

Full Time Job for Breeders Exhibiting Cattle at Fair

Showing cattle at the fair is a full-time job for participating cattle breeders especially when the cattle are milking cows and the fair runs for five days like Belleville Fair.

Just ask one of the many herdsmen showing cattle at this year's fair and he will tell you that the fair bit is no cinch and that the cattlemen really earn their prize money.

Not only do the animals have to be meticulously washed, curried and groomed for the show ring, but when milk cows are involved, there is also the twice daily chore of milking.

In practically all instances the cattlemen live right at the fairgrounds for the duration of the fair — sleeping right beside the cattle or in nearby trucks.

The morning and evening milking chore is eased somewhat by the mechanical milking machine.

A district farm milker dealer supplies the milking equipment and has also set up a bulk cooling tank in store the milk.

Where does the milk go? A bulk tank truck picks it us for transportation to the Foxboro Cheese Factory, where it is made into cheese.

British Gold Thieves Topped By Smugglers of Immigrants

LONDON (CP)—Bren guns in a basement, bomb detonators in a teapot, bullion on the high seas, immigrant-smuggling across the English Channel and honeymoon plans.

These were the main topics of conversation for Britons today as crime with a capital C occupied Scotland Yard, baffled hobbies and gave British newspapers a field day.

The biggest investigation was Scotland Yard's hunt for hijackers who stole 144 bars of gold bullion worth $711,000 (£2,232,000) in London four months ago.

An anonymous telephone call to the Yard Thursday sent investigators scurrying to France. Officials later announced a mysterious smuggling ring has been operating between obscure French and English ports.

Police said the smugglers hire motor cruisers and launches to carry illegal Indian and Pakistani immigrants into Britain from France. Payment was £100 ($280) in gold bullion for each immigrant. Police think the gold may be connected with the London robbery.

When the immigrants arrive during the night at deserted beaches in Kent, they are picked up by buses and taken to London and Birmingham.

The smugglers receive the gold and return on the next trip to France, depositing the money in anonymous bank accounts in Switzerland.

How the smuggling is connected to the London robbery was not disclosed by the Yard, but officials say £20,000 ($60,000) worth of bullion has been seized and it may be part of the London haul.

The bren gun case popped up in a London magistrate's court earlier Thursday. An Irishman, Seamus O'Rain, was remanded to Monday on charges of illegal possession of firearms, receipt of weapons and firearms—certificate violations.

Police testified they searched O'Rain's London flat last week and found 24 rifles, two bren machine-guns, four machine-gun barrels, 12 magazines, a starting pistol, six rounds of blank ammunition, two electric detonators, a welding gauge, a torch, some photographs of Irish patriots and a green, white and orange flag.

The detonators were in a teapot and the guns and rifles stacked under the stairs leading down to the basement flat.

The honeymoon plans were made Thursday by Rosie Carter, a 28-year-old bride who insisted on going to her wedding Wednesday after being wounded by a shotgun blast.

She was hit when a man stepped up outside the registry office in Norfolk and fired two shots, wounding her in the shoulder but missing the bridegroom, James Carter, 27.

Pharmacists Favor Using Generic Names

TORONTO (CP)—If two resolutions passed by the Canadian Pharmaceutical Association Thursday were put into effect, Canadians could save as much as $50,000,000 a year says Association president Phillip W. Goldman.

The resolutions attacked the multiple pricing of drugs, and suggested that doctors prescribe drugs by generic rather than brand names.

On Monday, the general session of the convention criticized manufacturers for selling drugs at a 20 to 30 per cent discount to hospitals and government institutions while making the public pay full prices at the corner drug store.

The prescribing of drugs by their proper name would mean pharmacists could accept responsibility to choose what might be a cheaper proper-name drug rather than a brand name in filling the prescription, Mr. Goldman said in an interview.

Besides urging new laws over prices, the pharmacists also urged safer drug packaging and dispensing laws.

They called for compulsory safety containers—which children would not be able to open —for dangerous drugs.

Many Equate Size with Quality

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Americans who visit Europe — as hundreds of thousands are doing this summer—often return home perplexed and short and angry because the Europeans, generally speaking, do not seem to like us as much as we feel they should.

As the most lavish benefactors of the Western world in history, we expect some appreciation and gratitude for our largesse; and, instead, we find that the European has accepted our aid grudgingly, and resents the implied superiority that accompanies it.

Part of this problem, of course, is human pride: nobody enjoys being the object of charity, especially when there is little prospect of repaying it. But the emotional attitude of most Europeans, I think, goes further and deeper than this.

"What my people most resent," a highly educated Italian remarked to me in Rome this spring, "is the American equation of size with quality. Your tourists are always comparing things at home and abroad in terms of bigness and numbers and wealth—as though such things were the only true index of a culture, and as though enough of such things are all a nation requires for happiness."

This is, of course, unfair to many Americans who appreciate the values of European society and tradition, and who are painfully aware that our amazing material progress has not so far given us either serenity or satisfactions greater than those elsewhere. In fact, as Shaw long ago predicted, every "advance" seems to create 10 new problems.

But it is true that the human animal away from home tends to make invidious comparisons between his own country and foreign lands; we find this attitude condemned from ancient times right through the essays of Montaigne. Most people see their own country, and a different country, with two separate sets of spectacles.

The difference today is that we have the power to influence other nations to adopt our standards of "success" — and like all rich, strong nations in history, we consciously or unconsciously assume that our kind of standards are the only kind, or the best kind, worth having.

Most of us are like the Midwestern farmer visiting the Royal Observatory in Greenwich, England, and hearing told smugly by the guide that "This clock is the one from which all the world takes its time."

"Is that so?" the man exclaimed, deliberately drawing out of his pocket a huge gold watch. Consulting its hoary timepiece, he squinted at the guide and drawled, "Well, young fellow, let me tell you something — your clock is pretty near five minutes fast!"

Pinch Hitting

By Garry Alexander
Staff Sportswriter

A pair of outstanding sporting events tonight and tomorrow evening will bring to a close the Centennial edition of the Belleville Fair.

Tonight's grandstand crowd — and a big one it will be — will watch the finest motorcycle riders available battle it out for $1,000 and the Canadian dirt track championships.

This race, usually held in Quebec, has 60 some entries which include champions from Canada and the United States. Speeds will be fast and competition keen.

Motorcycle-racing enthusiasts from far and wide need little reminding of this one.

And following closely on the heels of the hold-head-to-leather motorized speedsters will be the highlight of the harness racing season here.

The fourth annual Black Diamond Stakes are on tap at eight o'clock Saturday.

This will provide superb racing, from some 19 top horses and drivers, for fair-goers — and at no charge for a grandstand seat.

There will be nine heats in all, including three elimination races for the Black Diamond Stakes, plus the stake race itself and the consolation. Races one, two and three are the eliminations with the first three finishers from each of these going to the wire in the big one, race number seven. Those that didn't make it will tangle in race number eight.

As for picking a winner from the fine lineup, your guess is as good (and likely better) than mine.

One horse that will bear watching is Tip Cee Chief, driven by Jim Cochrane, who already owns the 1967 track record here of 2:18.2. Chief will be in with Randy Hal Direct, Dudley Herbert, R. B. Dillon, L. N. Wann and Carpenter Creed in the second race.

In the first, Campbell Chief should get stiff competition from Reverie, recent Walker Stake race winner in Kingston, as well as from David Del Direct, Gordie Veb, Fawn Song, Kawartha Bob and Dusty Callie.

In the third elimination are Brenda D. Belwin, Ty Ventoux, Dillard Grattan, Grant's Pride, Agitator and Modern Norman.

Nine of the entries are making their first start on the Belleville track and the Quinte Riding and Driving Club officials hope to have it in top shape with some hard work Saturday.

Fast winners in the Stakes, which sees a healthy purse in the $1,400 area, were Ken Newton's Flo-L-Tueck, Earl Lake's Earl Lake John and last year, Graham McMillan's Sonny Ogden.

While the Black Diamond heats will highlight Saturday's meet, four other good races are also on tap.

In all, the racing fan and others who might become such, will get plenty of opportunity to "pay their money and take their choice."

Ti-Cats Win 17-16

Missed Field Goals Cost Als Game

MONTREAL (CP)—Hamilton Tiger-Cats got their first win of the young Eastern Football Conference season Thursday night but the winless Montreal Alouettes outplayed them most of the game.

The Tiger-Cats, who showed only sporadic flashes of any offence, edged Montreal 17-16. The Alouettes displayed a superior running game and a surprising by strong defensive squad.

"The trouble was the perennial ones," Montreal coach Ray Dalton said after the game.

"Our quarterbacks should have given the Als at least one field goal in two fourth quarter attempts from the 10-yard line and the three and a chance to mark up their first victory of the season.

But placekicker Don Parson let the point on the first try and went wide on the second.

Dalton said he never considered running the ball in the two certain plays.

"All I wanted to do was win, and a field goal would have won it for us. When we went for and got a touchdown, we needed it as well. But when we tried those field goals we needed only three points. We didn't get them . . . but it was the right thing to try, no matter what anybody says."

Hamilton scored with the game less than three minutes old in the Tiger-Cats only real burst of offensive power.

Quarterback Joe Zuger moved the ball 57 yards in four plays from the opening kickoff, then passed 29-yards to Tommy Joe Coffey in the end zone for the touchdown.

Montreal's much-maligned defensive unit then started to nail Zuger.

George Dark, moved in to spark the offensive squad.

Gerry Stornberg and Don Lisbon scored the Montreal touchdowns while Parsons added two singles on attempted field goals.

Dick Cobes scored the other Hamilton touchdown after a 32-yard pass-and-run play in the third quarter that brought the Tiger-Cats to the one-yard line. He carried over on the next play.

Coffey booted a field goal and two converts for Hamilton's other points.

Dark, who had seen only limited action in the Als' three exhibition games, regained some of his old form quickly and fired a sharp 12-yard pass to Stornberg in the end zone. The convert tied the score.

The Als continued their drive, moving ahead 16-7 near the end of the quarter.

Al Kruger set up the touchdown by intercepting a pass at the Hamilton 43 and lateraling to Larry Fairbairn who bulled his way to the five. Lisbon went over on the next play.

Cobes's touchdown in the third quarter and a 34-yard field goal by Coffey in the second quarter put Hamilton ahead 17-15.

Parson's two close-in field goal attempts failed and that was the game.

Montreal rolled 175 yards along the ground and 38 by passing while Hamilton's main offence showed up in the air where they picked up 226 yards. On the ground the Tiger-Cats could muster only 80 yards.

Knudson Leads Hot Pack

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) —Favored George Knudson led the pack after the first round of the Canadian Professional Golfers' Association championship Thursday but pursuit was close behind.

Knudson buttered the St. Catharines golf club course with a five-under par 67 but managed only a one-stroke lead over Bob Panasiuk of Windsor, Ont.

Close behind Panasiuk with 68s were Frank Whibley of Toronto and Stan Honcoskie of Dauphin, Man.

The par-72 course also took a whipping from Jerry Magee of Toronto and Lee Brien of Montreal, three strokes off the pace at 70. Defending champion Moe Norman of Guildford, Ont., and Wolf Honcoskie of Winnipeg, Stan's brother, had 71s, one under par.

Two Montrealers, John Hunt and Jack Blessenger, joined Injun Bruce Murray among eight at 72.

Knudson smashed the course on the back nine when he turned in five birdies but went one over par on the short 17th, when he missed with his ten shot and chipped short.

Honcoskie was the most consistent of the record field of 210. He hit every green in regulation figures and did not go over par on any hole. He birdied three holes, one on a 40-foot putt.

Trenton 'B' Wins 6-2 Over Wilsons

Trenton "B" whipped hapless Wilson's Concrete 6-2 in a Quinte Quinte soccer contest last night.

The more experienced Trenton team had the edge throughout the game. Their first goal came after two minutes of play, but they added two more before the first half was out. Wilson's managed one goal.

Wilson's were outscored by a similar margin in the second half, as they failed to finish off their offensive drives.

Gaels Score Number 29 Lacrosse Win

OSHAWA (CP)—Oshawa Green Gaels moved to a 3-0 lead in the Ontario Lacrosse Association Junior A best-of-seven semi-finals, routing Hamilton Tigers 20-7 Thursday night.

The victory, Oshawa's 29th consecutive, came behind four-goal performances from Charlie Mackie and Jim Higgs.

Nip Picton 3-2

One In Ninth Wins For Ellis'

By ROBERT SNEPSELLA

Don Gardiner clouted two doubles, Bob Moon tripled, and Terry Lesage, Stu Muirhead, Ralph Plane and Gray had base hits.

Keith MacDonald hit safely twice for Picton. Also with singles were Keith Stacey, Bob Stacey, DeMille, and Leo St. Denis.

Picton	200 000 000	2-5-2
Ellis'	000 110 001	3-7-1

Batteries: K. DeMille and M. Stacey; E. Gray and L. Mayerly.

A two - out ninth inning run gave Belleville Ellis' a 3-2 victory over Picton in the first game of their Quinte - KASA semi - final series last night.

The locals gained the close decision after spotting Picton a pair of first - inning runs.

The best-of-five affair, continues Monday at Picton.

Eldon Gray began the game on the Belleville mound in a shaky fashion, as he walked three hits and both Picton runs in the first frame. Thereafter, however, Gray merely was what he used to be, as he tossed only three hits to the losers' scoring machine.

Ken DeMille, tired perhaps from a two - hit 18 strikeout performance in OASA the previous evening, went to seven hits in defeat.

Keith MacDonald and Harry Stacey, two local softball veterans, scored for Picton in the first frame. DeMille slammed a single to score the latter.

In the fourth Terry Lesage, Stu Muirhead and Ralph Plane stroked base hits to put the winners on the scoreboard. Bob Moon led off the fifth with a triple, and Eldon Gray banged a single to score Moon and tie the game at 2-2.

Extra innings seemed to be inevitable in the ninth. However, after Don Gardiner's double, Ellis' gained a scoring threat. With two out, pinch - hitter Pat Glasgow swung at and missed a third strike, but Picton catcher Harry Stacey fumbled the ball. Glasgow beat the throw to first, and the relay to the plate was not in time to stop Gardiner from scoring the winner on the error.

Gray struck out 10 and walked one in throwing the victory. DeMille struck out six and did not pass a man.

Crookston Wins Opener

Crookston scored early and late to whip Halloway 10-2 in the opening game of their Ontario Softball League semi - finals last night.

The winners scored twice in the first and snapped a 2-2 deadlock with an eight - run explosion in the seventh.

Dick Chapman pitched a strong three - hit win, fanning six, while loser Ron Denyes was combed for a dozen safeties.

Dale Benson led the Crookston attack with a triple and double while Doug Wood and Wayne Shaw each had a double and single. John Emerson's double was Halloway's only extra -base blow.

Motorcycle Racing

Nat. Championships Here

The name of the game: "half mile dirt track racing on motorcycles" with maximum ratings for thrills as a spectator sport.

Participation simply involves strong young men and high powered two wheeled machines dueling for highest Canadian honors and big cash prizes.

The course for the major Canadian spectacle this year is the racing oval at the Belleville Fairgrounds considered the finest conditioned track of its category anywhere in Canada.

Last year the national race was at Three Rivers, Quebec where it had been held continuously for a decade. The Picton Pushers Motorcycle Club of nearby Foxboro, sponsoring the contest, also held the provincial championship here at the end of June. Directors and members of the club take pride in having the opportunity to stage two major dirt track spectacular this year for the benefit of Quinte area enthusiasts in the same year. As a matter of fact the National here on Friday night is the club's centennial project.

To the winner goes a healthy cut of the $1,500 made available for the four elimination classes scheduled in the show. Perhaps even more important is the title which the victor covets for the next twelve months.

The greatest honor Canada offers dirt track racers has attracted scores of the top riders competing in North America. Entries so far number 60 in all classes established a record since competition in this sport started in the city.

Headliners on tonight's card include great drivers like Ontario champion Yves Duffamel of Montreal, three times champion Doug Showery of Parma, Ohio, former champion Don McHugh of Brampton and a rider to be respected in the faster company, Barry Whitmore of Willowdale. The buffs, however, circulate a message to watch Bill Betley of Cleveland, Ohio who is listed by both the American and Canadian Motorcycle Associations as an expert. Which means a real hot contender in bike racing jargon.

In addition there could be local and near - local dirt track darkhorses in the Junior eliminations. Mailyn Jones and Gordon Barnes of Brighton, Graham (Butch) Sherwood of Belleville and Russell Milburn of Whitby have shown enough ability lately to merit preference.

In with the recognized speedsters are three drivers who can drag a corner with the best of them in a team of three brothers from Waterdown, Ontario. The Sebo, Jim, 21, David, 19 and Doug, 18 will vie in senior and junior races.

Oshawa's McMillans Win Finals

TORONTO (CP)—Gordon MacMillan and his father Sam MacMillan of Oshawa Thursday defeated Waterloo's Joe Dorsch and Jack Muir 17-11 to capture the pairs finals in the Ontario lawn bowling tournament.

Both Dorsch and the senior MacMillan are former Canadian champions.

The second event title was taken by Jim Low and Reg Humphry of Galt with a 22-10 score over Don Bacon and Elden Wegg of Stouffville.

Burlington's Don Stephen and John Hogg defeated Bill Wigmore and Norm Smith of Toronto 18-10 to take the third event.

Carl Beacom and John Wheeler of Trenton won the 17-9 victory over Walt Robson and Harold Stitt of Toronto in the fourth event.

The consolation event was taken by Bill Dunklow and Howard Wilson of Carlstock with a 22-16 victory over Tom Park and S. Prosser of Merrickville.

The tournament winds up today with the finals in the singles competitions.

Minor Softball

AC Travellers defaulted the first game of their BMSA batsmen semi - final series to the Aces by a score of 9-0.

Amateur Golf

Only 2 Canadians Left

VICTORIA (CP)—Only two Canadians remained as quarter-final match play began today in the Canadian amateur golf tournament, and they are both from the same club.

Surviving two rounds Thursday were Bob Wylie and Keith Alexander of the Calgary golf and country club.

Wylie tangled today with 20-year-old Danny Sale from Woodland, Me. Sale, because his home club is affiliated with the Royal Canadian Golf Association, was permitted to play for the New Brunswick-Prince Edward Island Willingdon Cup team.

Sale reached the quarter-finals by knocking off Mike Bonsilack, England's amateur champion, 2 and 1, and Vancouver's Art Donaldson by the same score.

Wylie advanced to the quarter-finals 4 and 3 over Tom Hunter of Richmond, B.C., and 2 and 1 over clubmate Silverberg.

Alexander's next two international amateur stars—defeating New Zealand's Bruce Stevens 4 and 3 and South Africa's Dave Symon 2 and 1.

A 20-year-old lawyer, Dick Runkle of Los Angeles, turned out to be the hottest shotmaker on the course, firing three subpar rounds in match play.

Runkle advanced to the quarter-finals by downing Bob Boucher of Pebble Beach, Calif., a 20-year-old pre-law student, 2 and 1.

In the second round he easily handled South Africa's Rod Mullen 5 and 4.

Match play medal scores can only be approximated because the golfers are permitted to concede putts.

'Match Play Unfair'

Urges Medal Play For All Tourneys

SASKATOON (CP)—Medal play has a firm supporter in Dianna Thomas, a Lismore, Australia, lass.

In a day when match play events are all but extinct on the professional scene, and more and more amateur tournaments are converting to medal play from match, Mrs. Thomas thinks the changeover is not going fast enough.

"I really think all tournaments should be medal play—and sooner rather than later," she said in an interview Thursday after winning her second match of the day in the Canadian women's open golf championship.

Mrs. Thomas, 34, is the wife of an Australian golf professional and a member of the Australian team which competed at the Commonwealth in matches earlier this month in Hamilton.

"Match play over 18 holes isn't the fairest test of golf," she said. "Four days of medal play are much fairer. The breaks even out. The best player will almost always win. Look what happened here today."

What happened was the defeat of 13 of 16 Commonwealth players who had survived the first round of matches. The four were to play in today's quarter-final round against four Canadians.

"I'm not saying our girls are better than the Canadians," Mrs. Thomas said. "But I do think several were beaten because somebody started dropping putts all over the place."

In the first round, Sue Hilton of London, Ont., defeated Wendy Bryant of Te Awamutu, N.Z., 4 and 4. Rae Milligan of Thornhill, Ont., who had not played well in the qualifying rounds downed Pat Roberts of Llanbennoch, Wales, 1 up.

Christine McCrae, a virtual unknown from Hamilton, Ont., defeated Ann Irvin of Blackpool, Eng., 1 up. Joann Riddell of Cowansville, Que., trimmed Dinah Oxley of West Byfleet, Surrey, Eng., 6 and 4.

Mrs. Thomas had no trouble in her two matches, defeating Jane Butler Little of Auckland, N.Z., 5 and 3, and Carolyn McLure of Saskatoon by the same margin.

Barbara Turnbull of Saskatoon has no such qualms.

She seemed headed for certain defeat when she was four down after nine holes against Katherine Helleur of Toronto but then clicked to win 1 up.

In the afternoon, she went two down after three holes against Elizabeth Chadwick of Bramall Park, Cheshire, Eng., but she rebounded once again to win the match 3 and 2.

Defending Open champion Helene Gagnon of Arvida, Que., rolled easily through the day, beating Eileen Dawson of South Perth, Australia, 4 and 3, and Miss McGill 4 and 3.

Close Win Tie Series

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Close games were the order of the day as the trailing teams scored one-point victories and tied up both best-of-seven semi-final series in the Ontario Lacrosse Association's Senior A league Thursday.

Toronto Maple Leafs and Brooklin Redmen were tied 7-7 at the end of regular play in their Toronto game. Maple Leafs rallied for two goals to Redmen's one to tie their series at one game apiece.

In Peterborough, Brampton registered a 6-5 victory over Peterborough Petes on a late goal from Brian Absenn to tie that series at 2-2.

Leafs Slide With 4th Loss In Row

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

A power shortage continues to drop Toronto Maple Leafs toward the depths of the International League.

The Leafs absorbed their fourth straight loss Thursday—3-0 to cellar-dwelling Buffalo Bisons.

Mulvey Gatewood and Jack Baldschun shared a four-hitter as Buffalo defeated Gary Waslewski with a run in the ninth.

The defeat left Toronto tied with Jacksonville Suns in fourth place, three games behind Toledo Mud Hens.

Toledo defeated Columbus Jets 9-5 and Jacksonville Suns bounced Richmond Braves 6-3 to allow Rochester Red Wings to regain first place.

The Wings clipped Syracuse Chiefs 5-4 in 11 innings on a leadoff home run by Curt Motton, his 15th. Rochester now leads second-place Richmond by one percentage point.

Jenkins' String Broken

Mathews To Tigers; Cubs Sinking

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Eddie Mathews was grinning as he sat in the Houston dressing room.

EDDIE MATHEWS
. . . "I've never seen the Detroit ball park," he said, and the grin stretched. "But I hear it's a good hitters' ball park."

Detroit manager Mayo Smith was grinning even more. He'd just moved into third place in the tight American League pennant race and found, in Mathews, the ideal replacement for injured third baseman Don Wert.

The trade of Mathews, one of the all-time great home run hitters, from the Astros to Detroit, was engineered late Thursday night shortly after the Tigers had arrived home from a 7-4, 10-inning victory at Boston that put them back in third place, three games back of leading Minnesota Twins.

Cleveland Indians outlasted Washington Senators 8-3 in 16 innings and Baltimore Orioles stopped New York Yankees 4-1 in the only other American League games scheduled Thursday.

Mathews, 36, who has 503 career home runs, had played first base most of the season at Houston, but has no chance of moving Norm Cash out of that position at Detroit and will play third.

Cash was key to Detroit's victory over Boston, driving in the winning run with a two-out triple in the 10th. Willie Horton hit two homers and Al Kaline one before the Red Sox tied it with a three-run rally in the eighth. Gene Brabender pitched a four-hitter and got key hitting support from Fast Hair in leading the Orioles over the Yankees.

Vic Davalillo's bases-loaded triple was the highlight of a five-run, 10th inning rally that carried the Indians past Washington.

Leo Durocher kicked the sleeping dog, and it nearly bit off his leg.

Durocher, playing the percentages, ordered Philadelphia's Tony Gonzalez intentionally walked in the 12th inning of Thursday night's game to pitch to Rich Allen.

How unfortunate that wouldn't qualify as a terrible, awful move. But Cub pitchers had retired Allen four times and, with Cookie Rojas on second carrying the winning run, a waft to Gonzalez did set up a potential double play that could get the Cubs out of the inning.

Instead, the strategy got them right out of the ball game.

Allen hammered his 20th home run, over the right field fence giving the Phillies a 5-3 victory.

In the only other National League games, Houston Astros blanked Los Angeles Dodgers 4 C behind Dave Giusti and New York Mets split a doubleheader with Pittsburgh Pirates, winning 6-5 and then losing by the same score in 14 innings.

Cardinals Ferguson Jenkins, looking for his 17th victory, took a 3-1 lead into the ninth but singles by Johnny Callison, Clay Dalrymple and Gary Sutherland, tied it for Philadelphia.

The Phillies' first run in the sixth ended a scoreless earned run streak at 32 innings for Jenkins.

Giusti scattered eight hits against the Dodgers and Ron Davis' three-run double drove in all the runs he needed.

Bud Harrelson's first major league homer, an inside-the-park shot that shaded Pittsburgh righthander Al Laplow, broke a 4-4 tie in the eighth inning of the first game and helped the Mets to their victory.

Juan Pizarro, loser in the opener, came out of the bullpen and picked up the second game victory when Manny Mota singled Roberto Clemente across with the winning run in the 14th inning.

The Mets collected 34 hits in the doubleheader—seven of them by Cleon Jones.

Canada Beats Wind, Time To Capture Rifle Match

SOUTH MARCH, Ont. (CP) —Canada won the international Palma rifle match Thursday in the face of a shoot ending blow its team out of competition.

Running into the last minutes of time, Canadian marksmen fired a total 4,136 out of 4,500 to finish six points ahead of Britain and 11 ahead of the United States in the three-country competition fired in Dominion of Canada Rifle Association competition. Commonwealth Ranges, 30 miles west of Ottawa.

Winds gusting to 25 miles an hour across the line of fire dogged competitors as they fired a total of 45 shots each—from 15 at a time from distances of 800, 900 and 1,000 yards, with time and target restrictions.

Waiting out big gusts and deceptive lulls, the 30-man Canadian team reached by Maj. Dick Hampton of Alliston, Ont., came close to running out of time.

When Mike Sunick, a Bisley veteran from Summerside, P.E.I., came to the firing line on the 1,000-yard range, he had only seven minutes to fire his 15 rounds. Palma regulations, allowing only five men from each team to fire 15 rounds at one time, provide an average of 25 minutes per man on the range at each distance.

Had Sunick made an error and gone over the time limit, Canada's lead over the British would have disappeared. He would have lost the points for shoot fired after the time had expired.

The competitors were shooting at a 24-inch bulls-eye, with five points for a hit and counts of four, three and two, for the lower circles on the target.

Under the guidance of Hampton and Lt.-Col. Steve Johnson of Calgary, the team commandant, Sunick alternated five-or two targets—to save the seconds required for meeting between shots—and finished with three consecutive bulls-eyes, and less than a minute to spare.

"I just did what the coach told me," said the self-effacing Sunick after his dramatic finish.

Two members of the U.S. team shot 217 of a possible 225 to tie for top individual honors in the match. They were Lawrence Moore of Cinnaminson, N.J., and Middleton Tompkins of Long Beach, Calif.

Norman Beckett, 38, of Calgary, Alta., was tied with 214 and top Canadian in the match. Doren Westhead of Calgary, only woman among the 60 competitors, was 17th with 211.

Rather than wait for the wind, the U.S. marksmen fired as an ally, making slight adjustments when the wind changed and firing as quickly as they could. The wind was strong enough during the match to carry a bullet 15 feet off course from the 1,000-yard range.

Gunner Whitney of Reseda, Calif., U.S. team commandant, said wind changes caught his men a couple of times but "we had no bigger difficulties than anybody else."

'Fantastic' Putter

No Practice But Player Shoots 65

WEATHERSFIELD, Conn. (AP) — "I can't believe I shot a 62," said Gary Player of South Africa after becoming the first round leader at six-under-par in the $100,000 Greater Hartford open golf tournament.

"I've been cutting trees, riding horses, driving a tractor on my farm for four weeks with no practice round," Player said.

"Fantastic" was the way he described how his putter worked over the greens at Weatherfield Country Club as it gave him a one stroke lead over Terry Dill of Austin, Tex.

Player sank birdie putts from 25, 20, 30 and 18 feet during his round, and three others in the five foot range Thursday. Dill had similar putting luck in his 69, getting six birdies on putts ranging from 15 to 25 feet.

Dill ignored a request to tell more about his round at the press tent, saying: "Every time I have shot a good round this year and then gone to the press room, I've shot a 78 or 77 the next day."

Several of the major stars of earned $8,000 for finishing fifth golf, including this year's lead- in the U.S. Open in June.

'Till Weaknesses'

Boss Promises Nat Changes

WINNIPEG (CP)—Dehost in 1967 will lead to changes in 1968 for Canada's national hockey team.

"There will be four or five changes," promised manager Jackie McLeod said Thursday. "We've got to fill some weaknesses."

This is good news for 26 rookies who are showing McLeod their talents at Dutton Memorial Arena, a new ice palace sitting on the tree-lined grounds of a private boys' school in suburban Fort Garry.

But there's a 26th rookie who has seen the writing on the Winnipeg wall.

Jack Brewer, his titular predecessor by older brother Carl, will board an Air Canada flight today en route to Kingston, Ont., where the recently-crowned second section of Canada's national team will start training.

Carl Brewer, a former all-star defenceman in the National Hockey League, is barred from the 1968 Winter Olympics in Grenoble, France, because of his professional background.

Plagued by a poor scholastic record, Jack has been on the ridiculous in three of the last four hockey campaigns. A stint of under-16 action in Markham, Ont., was followed by Junior A rejection slips from Toronto Marlboros and Oshawa.

"But I wanted to try my luck at hockey for a couple more years," said Jack. The 21-year-old Toronto native turned his attention to the national team program, which employs university scholarship tactics to lure talent to its fold.

A second Jack, with better credentials, is also going to return to his hometown for the summer practice session ends in early September.

McLeod said Jack Taggart Jr., has shown "great poise" for one so young but the 17-year-old Calgary-born defence man is going back to Penticton, B.C., to finish high school. He plans to return to the Winnipeg in the 1967-68 season.

"I really like it at camp," Jack said, indicating that three hours of practice each day were more relaxing than working out with the Bronco, the Penticton junior squad his father coaches.

Centre Roger Bourbonnais, arriving for an Edmonton law firm, will keep in shape with Edmonton Nuggets—one of three clubs forming a new senior league in which the Winnipeg-based Nationals will participate in an abbreviated schedule. The other teams are Calgary Spurs and Saskatoon Quakers.

Joining Carl Brewer on the non-eligible list is defenceman Jack Bowman, a 24-year veteran named recently to coach the Ottawa-based national team.

In its infant year, the Ottawa group will play in the Quebec Provincial Senior League, which has mapped out a 40-game schedule.

Intent on storing for a "rebirth of dismal and mediocre" showing in the 1967 Vienna world tournament—Canada's worst third, veteran centre Gary Dineen turned down an attractive professional offer to stick with the Nationals.

Dineen is one of seven members of the Winnipeg squad whom professional rights were acquired by Minnesota North Stars, one of the NHL's six new expansion clubs. The others are goaltender Cam Brodrick, defenceman Terry O'Malley, Barry MacKenzie and Paul Conlin and forwards Danny O'Shea and Ted Hargreaves.

The Montreal-born centre indicated he will eventually accept the Minnesota offer. Dineen also mentioned a stint at the University of Minnesota in pursuit of a masters degree in business administration.

Asked for more detail of his contract offer, Dineen said that if Bobby Orr—the NHL's rookie of the year with Boston Bruins in 1967—"got $40,000 then I'm close . . . if he got $150,000 then I'm substantially behind."

All Deals Will Be Off If Dief Enters Race

OTTAWA (CP)—If X gets 600 votes on the first ballot, group A will throw its support to Y, providing, of course, that Y is ahead of Z but behind X, who has the known support of group B up to perhaps the fourth ballot.

These are the kind of permutations and combinations the Conservative Caucus will be going through in preparation for the Sept. 9 leadership vote.

An aide to one of the nine candidates for the leadership said that if Opposition Leader Diefenbaker enters the race at the last minute, all deals will be off.

"There will be complete panic," he said.

In such a case, if Mr. Diefenbaker led on the first ballot, all the anti-Diefenbaker forces would unite and throw their weight behind the candidate in No. 2 spot.

None of the nine candidates is claiming, at this publicity, that he will win on the first ballot when voting at the Toronto convention begins at 1:30 p.m. EDT Saturday, Sept. 9.

Consequently, many behind-the-scenes conversations among at least some of the candidates' camps are going on to test the wind on how much support could be expected from whom in a given situation.

Many candidates say they think the key ballot will be the third or fourth, barring Mr. Diefenbaker's entry.

After each ballot is taken, the candidate with the fewest votes is dropped. Delegates who supported this unhappy candidate can then vote for somebody else.

However, it is far more complex than that. There are bound to be shifts of voting strength among the candidates remaining on the list, depending on their relative positions.

Balloting will be done on voting machines imported from the U.S. Each vote will take 30 to 40 minutes, which leaves little time between ballots for accomplishment of deals among the surviving camps.

One official said, however, that if an important and time-consuming deal has to be made on the floor, some arrangement will be made for delaying a ballot, even if this means shorting a fuse in the voting machines.

Some concern has been expressed that the Conservatives might elect the man they least want on the first ballot.

This could come about by enough of the some 2,400 voting delegates going to themselves: "I'll cast my first ballot for good old X for old times' sake but on the second round I'll vote for the man I really want to see leader."

A candidate needs a bare majority of the 2,400 votes to win, whether on the first or eighth ballot.

All that appears certain so far is that the loyalties of some are going to have to shift before the leadership issue is settled.

This has already happened, of course, since last November's meeting here decided, in a well of bitterness, to hold a leadership convention.

Seventy-one Conservative MPs signed a document saying: "We request that the Rt. Hon. J. G. Diefenbaker continue as leader of our party." Nothing was said about how long.

Three of the signers—George Hees, Alvin Hamilton and Michael Starr—are leadership candidates.

Ten other signers are publicly backing Premier Robert Stanfield of Nova Scotia and one of these—10, Cyril F. Kennedy, MP for Colchester-Hants, is said prepared to give up his Nova Scotia seat so that Mr. Stanfield can seek election to the Commons.

The other nine supporting Mr. Stanfield are Hugh John Fleming, Victoria-Carleton; Lloyd R. Crouse, Queens-Lunenburg; Donald MacInnis, Cape Breton South; Robert C. Coates, Cumberland; Robert McClave, Halifax; H. Russell MacEwan, Pictou; John C. Bower, Shelburne-Yarmouth-Clare; J. Chester MacRae, York-Sunbury; and Robert Muir, Cape Breton North and Victoria.

Hope Chest Visions

Maralee Tougas (left) dreams of a future hope chest as she hands in draw ticket on silver tea service to Mrs. Charles Young at Progressive Conservative booth at Belleville Fair.

Are PCs Your Cup of Tea?

Who says you don't get something for nothing anymore?

At least that is not the case at the commercial building at Belleville Fair where a number of free prizes are up for grabs by some lucky individuals.

One of the draws is at the Quinte Progressive Conservative Association booth sponsored by PC candidate Dr. R. T. Potter where a handsome tea service is being offered.

Also the Belleville Fire Fighters' Association and the Belleville Police Department are offering free bicycle draws in separate booths in the same building. Here, however, entries are being restricted to children of public school age.

Maclean Criticizes Scrapping of HARP

TORONTO (CP)—John Maclean, national leadership candidate for the Conservative Party, Wednesday criticized the scrapping of the HARP program, a high altitude research project aimed at putting a satellite in orbit.

The program may be transferred to American control and based in Burlington, Vt., with an expected loss of 200 Canadian engineers and scientists to the United States.

In an interview, Mr. Maclean said the Liberal government should have curtailed costs instead of dropping the project. The 40-year-old Brockville businessman said he had youth on his side in the campaign in the party leadership. He blamed a major share of the country's ills on the older generation and said they caused the lack of communication which has split English and French Canada.

The younger generation has no problem with Quebec, he said.

Fulton Backs U.S. on Vietnam; Wants UN to Act

TORONTO (CP)—Progressive Conservative leadership candidate Davie Fulton said Thursday he solidly supported the principle of United States intervention in Vietnam, but advocated measures to replace U.S. personnel with U.N. personnel.

In a news conference here, Mr. Fulton said the U.S. intervened in Southeast Asia "in an effort to halt aggression."

However, he urged the U.S. to accept a political rather than a military settlement, and to confine its military activities to defence measures.

He suggested that efforts be made to withdraw U.S. troops under a political settlement and to guard the settlement militarily through the United Nations.

Mr. Fulton told the conference that on the basis of reports "from committees in every region of every province in Canada" he considered himself the leading candidate in a party leadership race that now has nine entries.

Commenting on the large number of entries in the leadership race, Mr. Fulton said that rather than indicating disunity among Conservatives, it indicated the strength of the party in men of leadership ability.

The absence of a candidate from Quebec, he said, exposed the admittedly inadequate position of the party in that province. "There is a job to be done there."

He said such men as Montreal Mayor Jean Drapeau "would grace any government."

On the question of Canadian participation in NATO, Mr. Fulton advocated gradual dissipation of the force in Europe as individual countries become able to defend themselves.

The nature of NATO personnel from Western Europe would leave a good position from which to negotiate Russian withdrawal from the East, he said.

Mr. Fulton called for the immediate charting of a federal policy on housing "to ensure . . . that this nation by 1970 has enough decent housing to meet the needs of every Canadian."

He urged establishment of a cabinet-level department of housing to evolve into a department of housing and urban affairs.

Mr. Fulton proposed a shot in the arm for housing developers with removal of the federal sales tax on home building materials.

To ease the tax burden on property owners, he suggested removal of education costs from property taxes, with federal and provincial governments assuming this responsibility.

He also proposed:

—Amendment of urban renewal legislation to encourage private developer participation.

—Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation encouragement of housing for rental purposes to meet the demands of a mobile population.

—Repayment time limits on CMHC loans be extended to 40 or 50 years from the present 25 years and that CMHC interest rates be lowered.

—Federal participation in Assembly projects similar to Ontario's HOME program, in co-operation with provincial and municipal authorities.

—Legislative encouragement for high - density accommodation such as apartments, duplexes, etc.

—Legislative insistence on a system of bonuses for large families.

—Measures to ensure availability of housing for families seeking it.

Grass-Roots Views Needed About Policies

MONCTON (CP)—George Hees, a candidate for the national leadership of the Party, said Thursday night his major aim is to give good government to Canada, "something the present government has not done."

Mr. Hees, who was speaking to about 35 persons at a rally here, is one of nine candidates who will contest the Conservative party leadership at the diamond convention in Toronto. Mr. Hees said one of his first steps if successful will be to meet with other candidates to discuss party policy.

From that point, it would be a direct approach to local constituency organizations to feel out grass-root issues.

Revitalize PCs? Roblin Strains To Catch Them

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Premier Duff Roblin of Manitoba travelled through extreme southwestern Ontario Thursday and declared support for his candidacy for the leadership of the Progressive Conservatives as "encouraging."

In Windsor for two hours after flying here from Sarnia, Mr. Roblin, 50, spoke with party delegates and then drove on to Essex and Chatham, stopping at various communities en route.

Asked by an interviewer what he would do to revitalize the Conservatives, Mr. Roblin replied it was taking him all his time to catch up with them now; there is a very vigorous organization already in existence.

One of nine candidates for leadership of the PCs, Mr. Roblin was accompanied by his wife.

Canada Needs More Married Women Working

TORONTO (CP)—Canada needs more working women, says Alvin Hamilton, one of nine candidates for the leadership of the Progressive Conservative party.

"The married women of 40 to 50 has a great deal to offer," he said in an interview Wednesday.

"They are a national untapped human resource and, on the basis of shelf-help, could solve many of our welfare problems if given the opportunity. All they need . . . is some leadership and advice on where to direct their unique skills."

Mr. Hamilton suggested that income tax conditions should be made more favorable for the working mother.

Welfare Frauds Charged

TORONTO (CP)—Four welfare workers Thursday told Toronto's welfare and housing committee that between 30 and 40 per cent of people on welfare here are receiving funds fraudulently.

"They know the worst that can happen is that they will be dropped from the welfare rolls or asked to repay some of the money," said Mrs. R. L. Hutchinson.

She said some recipients telephone their representative on city council, asking for more money.

Mrs. G. W. Bailey said all or part of the assistance asked for a person by a politician is usually granted by welfare supervisors without consulting case workers.

Mrs. W. H. Cornfield, 22, told the committee that 126 out of 730 people in the 63rd were employable but were claiming for various reasons they could not get a job.

The allegations were supported by Donna Yemec, 24. All four women worked out of the same west district office.

Auditing System Changed

OTTAWA (CP)—The government is introducing the new business concept of operational auditing to all government departments and agencies, Revenue Minister Benson, president of the treasury board, said Thursday.

Operation auditing assesses the effectiveness of programs, the utilization of manpower and departmental facilities and departmental procedures on a wider basis than the traditional financial audit, concerned only with the reliability of financial accounts.

"In the federal government we are operating the biggest business in the country," Mr. Benson told a news conference. "There are some departments which are much larger than many big business."

While operational auditing now is being offered by some private accounting firms to their clients, the government began working 16 months ago towards introducing it in government departments, he added. It is now hoped that in a year all departments and agencies will have a nucleus of internal operational auditors to begin work.

Old Time Threshing Crew?

It's twice a day threshing time at Belleville Fair this year as the old time threshers and power equipment do a parade around the track in front of the grandstand.

Here one of the old threshers, hauled by the Howe family vintage gas operated tractor, starts out on one of the daily parades.

Stand-by Shovel

Bern Hertz stands by as a tractor shovel fills in part of the foundation of the Hart Building going up at Bleecker and Dundas. The building, being constructed by Maurice Rollins Ltd., is expected to be completed by the end of October.

Brick Work Climbs Quickly

New Building on Deadline

Down with the old and up with the new! Belleville is becoming spotted with new buildings and with plans in the air for a mail more changes are in the offing.

The Hartt Building, on which construction began about two weeks ago, is on the corner of Bleecker and Dundas and is being constructed by the Maurice H. Rollins Construction Ltd.

An existing two-storey brick house had to be levelled before the foundation could be dug for the new office building.

The two-storey building will offer 6,000 square feet of office space. The top floor and 1,400 square feet of the first floor have already been leased to the government of Ontario, which wants to move in by Nov. 1. Completion date for the $150,000 job is set for Oct. 31 although the finishing touches to the basement and the remaining 1,400 square feet of office space might be left until a later date.

The lease has been handled by D. J. Whalen Real Estate Ltd.

The job has been progressing without any real problems although Warren Hardwicke of Rollins said some delay might be caused because of the high demand for steel at the present time. This he attributed to a return to work of striking steel erectors in Toronto. Now that they are back on the job the demand has increased with such bounds that steel is actually difficult to get quickly.

He was confident however, that the new office building would be finished in time.

NEW TREASURY OFFICES

TORONTO (CP)—The new building that houses the Ontario government's treasury offices was officially opened Thursday by the man whose name it bears—Leslie M. Frost, former premier, treasurer and mines minister. The opening ceremonies were held on the steps of the seven-storey structure on Queen's Park Crescent. Mr. Frost resigned from the legislature in 1965.

it started 90 years ago...

90 years ago this fall, Canada's first commercial telephones were installed in Ottawa. Canada's second Prime Minister, The Hon. Alexander Mackenzie (who was also Minister of Public Works) had one set installed in the Public Works Department; the other was at Rideau Hall, residence of the Earl of Dufferin, the Governor General. These phones were used for government business and for musical concerts to demonstrate the miracle of the telephone to guests at Rideau Hall.

And from that beginning grew Bell Canada! Today, there is probably not a single person in Quebec or Ontario who does not, in one way or another, 'use' the services we provide:

Radio and TV programs are relayed through our microwave network; businesses communicate by voice or teletype, or transmit data through our facilities; so do newspapers and the government, police and fire departments; there are 5 million Bell Canada phones in homes and offices, and thousands of public phones. Like Canada, we of Bell Canada have come a long way. And one more point: we're proud that nearly 95% of our shares are owned by Canadian residents.

To Your Good Health

Bacteria Are Factor In Body Odor

By DR. JOSEPH G. MOLNER

Dear Dr. Molner: Why should a boy of eight perspire with such a strong odor? It is very strong and he has a bath at least twice a week, but he can smell the same way shortly after. He seems to have no other complaints. Our family doctor seems to be too busy to worry about such things. — Mrs. S. B.

Let's first discuss what causes body odor. Then maybe we can find a workable answer.

Certain glands of the body give off odorous material. These are located chiefly in the armpits, groin and feet. (Ordinary perspiration from face, trunk, etc., has little odor.)

The apocrine glands are the ones that contribute most to odor. These do not give off much odorous material until puberty, but it is possible that this lad, at eight, may be entering puberty a bit early.

The odor is accentuated by bacteria on the skin. Bacteria are everywhere. It is possible, I think, that we have individual peculiarities in the bacteria that we accumulate or tend to attract. Getting an exact answer to that would entail more laboratory work than would be even faintly reasonable. — If, indeed, it could be accomplished at all.

But bacteria in general certainly have their effect on the material coming from the sweat glands. This may be the key to the whole problem with this boy.

I would try a bath every night, and, perhaps every second or third bath, use one of the antiseptic scrubing emulsions containing hexachlorophene. Such emulsions are readily obtainable at the drug store.

The purpose is not only to wash away, more frequently, the products from his sweat glands, but to reduce (with the special emulsion) the prevalence of bacteria on his skin.

There is also the chance that you may be over-emphasizing the skin odor. I've known this to happen when someone once happened to notice an odor and then became overly conscious of it.

Absence of any health complaints or concern on the part of your doctor would indicate that this is not the result of a serious disorder, but merely a physical idiosyncrasy.

Dear Dr. Molner: I seem to require about seven hours of sleep a night but usually get about 10. Can this sleep be detrimental or beneficial? — M. B.

Sleep requirements vary considerable from person to person.

There is no harm in getting the extra three hours. — In fact, a good many of us "sleep in" when we have a chance. Call it a luxury. And sometimes a little extra sleep for relaxation is just what we need. To that extent it is beneficial.

But if you consistently lie abed longer than needed to restore your energies, I'd say you just have to count it as wasted time. If you really sleep — then you probably need the sleep. Merely dozing after you've had enough sleep is all right if taken in reasonable amounts.

Dear Dr. Molner: I saw blood on my son's underwear and sent him to the doctor, who said he had an infected pilonidal and has to be operated on, but that it is not serious. Is it? — T. D.

Correct term is pilonidal cyst — a cyst at the base of the spine. Such cysts gradually fill with matter, then rupture allowing the stuff to escape, seal over and then repeat the process.

Surgical removal of the cyst is the only way to correct this situation and avoid the periodic nuisance and pain, not to mention the risk of a serious infection. In most cases it is a fairly simple procedure, and the sooner it is done the better. Only rarely is it ever an emergency situation, but the safe course is not to wait too long.

Dr. Molner welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individually. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Wanted--Explanations

Roy F. Richardson and a grandson ponder a mysterious 23-foot circle that appeared unexplained on his farm near Frankford three summers ago.

Flying Saucer Proof?

By MAURICE SWITZER
Staff Reporter

FRANKFORD — Explanations are what the Richardson family are looking for.

Problem: How does a 23-foot diameter perfect circle appear suddenly as if it had burned a ring in a secluded grassy field? Better yet, how do three such mysterious rings get there?

Roy Richardson has been reluctant to talk much about the unexplained phenomena. That is, until he recently saw on a television news program that someone elsewhere had been confronted with the same thing.

"He looked up and saw this perfect circle in the long grass. The grass was growing about 18 inches high on either side of the ring, which was about 16 inches wide.

"It definitely wasn't there the year before."

"There were two others in the same field — not as distinct — but still perfect circles."

Why wait until now to discuss the find?

"Why do you think? People who report anything like this are called crackpots," says Mr. Richardson.

The grass on the ring has not grown since the circle appeared, and the ground looks ashen grey. To compound the mystery, there were five holes around the perimeter, "About the size of a man's fist and four inches into the ground."

"If the grass on the ring had been burned, or even eaten by an animal tied to a stake, after a bit of rain it would have grown in. I've thought of snow, frost, water, everything, but there's nothing in this world I know of that would have done this."

At the risk of sounding like a crackpot, Mr. Richardson is "About the time the thing appears" his explanation: peared there was a flurry of reports in the newspapers about flying saucer sightings. I honestly think something landed here.

"Anyway, something unknown made those rings."

"I know so many of these things are hoaxes, but there has to be some truth in there somewhere."

Mr. Richardson is considering having a soil sample from the ring analyzed, but is still hesitant —"People look at you kind of funny when you talk about it.

Habitat Construction Exhibit Fails To Match Completed Home Version

MONTREAL (CP)—The millions of visitors to the world's fair appearing, are more interested in the finished product than in the way it is made—at least so far as Habitat 67 is concerned.

Tony Peters, exhibit manager at Habitat, said Thursday night that the construction exhibition at the 125-home pre-cast housing complex draws relatively few visitors while the finished display attracts an average of 20,000 a day.

The construction exhibit tells the story of how the massive futuristic project was put together and what makes it tick while the 26-home exhibit showing a variety of decorations offers the visitor to Expo the complete version of the home of the future.

Five of the existing homes in the project intentionally were left unfinished so that construction people, architects and mechanical and electrical engineers could see just how the structure was set up.

This exhibit shows large sections of the interior cut away to enable visitors to see under floors, behind walls, into air-conditioning vents and to observe many innovations used in the construction of the 12-storey building.

As a result of the poor attendance, the construction exhibit has been dubbed as the "forgotten exhibit" by Expo staff.

Jim Clatt, a senior engineering student at McGill University and one of three students assigned to this exhibit, said only 1,200 visitors a day toured the display until a week or so ago when a new bus stop was added at the fair and at habitat for the convenience of tourists.

"Now we attract about 2,500 persons a day but this still is not enough," said Mr. Clatt.

Habitat is on Cite du Heros which is just out of Montreal Island and is often bypassed by visitors because the Expo Express does not stop at a station.

Midnight Patrol

Scotch collie Mickey joins security guard Bernard Fabien for midnight-to-dawn patrol of valuable machine exhibits at fairgrounds.

Mickey Sniffs Fires at Fair

A background feature of the 1967 Belleville Fair is a four-legged fire alarm — but it's unlikely ever to be on public display.

It's known as Mickey, and is also fleet of foot.

Which isn't surprising, for Mickey is a Scotch collie, assigned to night-time duty with a security officer guarding valuable exhibits on the fair site.

Aside from his instinctive powers of detection, Mickey also has developed a knack of sniffing out smoke, deducing it if dangerous and barking attention to it.

Otherwise, says security-guard captain Ron Leach, Mickey "is very quiet."

However, the collie's prime task is to ring the alert on any lurking trespasser and draw attention of security guards on overnight duty to say, and all, suspicious characters.

He was signed for duty by the fair board this year, mainly to help patrol the atomic-engine display at the east end of the fairgrounds, after the show hours close at midnight.

The display is worth thousands of dollars, but actually is invaluable since it is a gas ensemble of collectors' items.

However, the night - time watch over the grounds is only part of the role played by the guards assigned by investigation of Canada — the Ottawa firm which holds the fair's security contract.

The 25-man detail headed by Capt. Leach, has its most demanding assignments during the daytime hours, when sightseers throng the grounds by the thousands.

Then, it assumes a role that places much emphasis on public relations.

Capt. Leach sees his squad as a liaison force between fair-board and patrons.

Whether checking tickets, discouraging fence-jumpers or discussing rowdiness-rousers, calm objectiveness is impressed upon the force.

However, the result seems almost guaranteed since the squad is picked for its experience in crowd-control.

The attitude also benefits the force, Capt. Leach points out.

"The more we emphasize public relations for the fair board, the more we profit from it, the more we profit our own reputation."

"We like to be firm — but friendly."

Repeated Jail Terms for Girl On Drunk Charges Worry Judge

HAY RIVER, N.W.T. (CP)—"What worries me is that a young girl, not even 21 yet, has put in more time in jail over a period of two years for being drunk than someone who perhaps has almost killed a person."

The reaction came Thursday from Mr. Justice William Morrow, directing a royal commission inquiry into the administration of justice in the North-west Territories, before adjourning the inquiry's Hay River sittings to Oct. 3.

Mr. Justice Morrow was questioning Ruby Steiner, a Justice of the peace, who had testified that repeated fines and sentences for the offences were necessary to control the simafiers.

Without such repetition the town would have more serious offences, Mr. Steiner said. The only cure for a person, such as the young girl referred to by Judge Morrow, was a treatment centre not a jail.

Mr. Steiner denied charges made by Donald Taylor, editor and owner of the weekly Tapwe that Indian and Metis teenagers were being sent to jail for liquor offences while white teenagers were not.

Commissioner Conrad D. C. McDonald of Edmonton read into proceedings statistics compiled by Mr. Taylor which showed that nine whites were sent to jail and 36 paid fines, while 15 Metis or Indian teenagers were sent to jail and five had paid fines.

Mr. Justice Morrow, quoting information from the RCMP, said that of 385 Indian persons living in the Hay River area, 101 had been charged with 301 offences between January, 1966, to February, 1967.

Mr. Steiner also gave his version of an incident which led him to sentence a young man from Hay River to two days in jail for smoking and remarks made in court.

Donald Strang had told the inquiry he was given the sentence for smoking and for a comment he had made in court. He said the justice of the peace had not mentioned why he was being sentenced to two days.

Mr. Steiner told the inquiry that Strang had made a sneering remark and that when imposing the sentence he had clearly said: "For contempt of Queen's court I sentence you to two days in jail."

RCMP Sgt. Ray Johnson, also testifying Thursday, denied keeping information from Mr. Taylor or giving preferential treatment to whites or persons with influence.

Mr. Steiner, in reply to smother charge made by Mr. Taylor in editorials published by his newspaper, denied he had ever conducted any courts that were closed to the public, or that there had ever been any reason why press representatives could not attend court sessions.

Sunday School Lesson

A Very Sensitive Nerve

By CLARENCE W. CRANFORD

There are two kinds of people in the world — those whose primary interest in a cause is what they can get out of it, and those whose primary concern is what they can contribute to make it succeed. This contrast is dramatically illustrated by the conduct of Demetrius, the silversmith, and Paul, the Apostle.

Demetrius lived in the Roman province of Asia (not to be confused with the continent of Asia). He made and sold silver figures of Artemis, Goddess of the Ephesians. (Acts 19:24) (The New James Version calls her Diana.)

Demetrius became alarmed at the number of people responding to Paul's message. If people began deserting Artemis for Christ, this could hurt his business. So he began to warn his fellow-craftsmen of this dire possibility. He pretended to be concerned for the worship of Artemis, Diana—his words betrayed him. His first concern was for his possible loss of revenue. His warnings were enough to set off a riot in which Paul's companions were dragged to the theatre; Paul would have faced the mob, but was dissuaded from doing so by his friends.

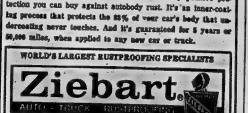
There is no nerve more sensitive than the pocketbook nerve. Touch that nerve, and people react violently. Jesus carried the undying hatred of the Pharisees by overturning their money-changing tables in the temple. (Mark 11:15-18) Paul aroused the angry resentment of the owners of a slave girl in Philippi by healing the girl so she could no longer be exploited as a girl having occult powers. (Acts 16:19) Now he felt the angry reaction of the silversmith's union because he threatened their trade.

No sane person would deny that money is important, but it stoop to fraud and dishonesty to get it. And yet some people will do almost anything for money. When they get it, they often spend all of it selfishly on themselves.

Ministers and priests have long contended God is interested in how much a person gives to his church. Nothing tests a person's sincerity more than how much he gives to a cause in which he claims to be interested. But God may well be concerned about how people make their money, and how they spend the part they do not give to the church.

Over against Demetrius' frantic concern for his own income was Paul's readiness to risk everything for the cause to which he believed God had called him. He was determined to go to Jerusalem for the observance of the Passover. He was keenly aware of the dangers that might be involved for him in such a visit. But this was a matter of prime concern if his prior would advance the cause to which he had given his life.

What makes a person risk popularity and even life itself to take a stand for what he believes to be right? What makes a Jeremiah continue to preach, in the face of abuse and derision? (Jeremiah 20:7-12) What makes a person today walk in a picket line, or risk life and limb to march in a demonstration through an unsympathetic group of people?



The Uniform Sunday School lesson for August 20: Paul at Ephesus (Temperance), Acts 19:21 through 20:38.

One answer, of course, is conscience. A person has to live with himself more than he has to do it with self-respect. No one wants to think of himself as a coward. Most people would rather die with a good conscience than to go on living with an accusing conscience.

Another answer is to say that something is pulling on him that he cannot resist. Anymore than the tides can resist the pull of the moon. This was Jeremiah's predicament. He would gladly have given up, but something within him would not let him give up. Paul felt the same way about his preaching. (I Cor. 9:16) Many a person has risked his job, personal safety, and social approval to take a stand on civil rights. This was no bra-vado. He may have joined the picket line with a trembling heart. But he was more afraid of failing to stand for a cause he believed to be right than he was of physical danger.

What the cause of Christ needs is not people who join a church for whatever social prestige or business advantage they may get out of it, but those who think of the church as a way of expending themselves fogo the sake of God's truth and righteousness. The church calls men not to personal profit, but to minister through their efforts others and the world may profit. It needs those who will give themselves to its cause, believing that the rewards lie elsewhere than in the realm of money.

Racial Unrest Feared

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

H. Rap Brown, militant Black Power advocate, was arrested on a weapons charge early today as Negroes and Ku Klux Klansmen planned rallies tonight in his adopted hometown of Baton Rouge La. They were unrelated to Brown's arrest.

In Syracuse, N.Y., and Painesville, Ohio, where violence flared earlier in the week, order prevailed today.

The 23-year-old Brown was picked up by federal agents in New York, questioned briefly, and placed in the federal house of detention pending arraignment.

He was charged with carrying a .30-calibre automatic carbine on flights between New York and New Orleans while under indictment in Maryland.

At Baton Rouge, in the face of rival weekend rallies, Governor John J. Kathen warned that if rioting started "there will be a few people killed real quickly" to stop it.

National guardsmen, the governor said, "will be supplied with live ammunition if we have a riot, or looting or burning. And will be instructed to shoot quick."

Painesville, Ohio, where sporadic shooting and rock-throwing broke out Wednesday night, returned to normal Friday. But tear gas and gun sales in the community rose sharply in the last few days. Buyers of tear gas and weapons were mostly owners of small businesses, including service station operators.

At Syracuse, N.Y., quiet prevailed Friday night following two nights of racial outbursts. Six were injured. Officials expressed disappointment that a proposal to establish a peace corps of Negro youths was turned down by the teen-agers.

At Cincinnati, a Negro newspaper publisher, John H. Sensteck, said riots do not help the Negro cause but that when a man from the slums sees "little or no progress in civil rights" until he riots, he will riot.

Sensteck spoke to the Delta sigma Theta sorority, a predominantly Negro public service organization holding its national convention.

Lake Stands Harden

MONTREAL (CP)—Gloomy remarks from the union, companies and the chief trustee of the maritime unions were voiced Friday while more of Canada's inland ships became immobilized in port following a strike by 5,400 members of the Seafarers' International Union.

Judge Rene Lippe, head of a three-man maritime trustee board and the force which brought both sides together for talks that broke off in a stalemate late Thursday, said he can do little more to help the shippers and seafarers reach an understanding.

"I'm a trustee, not a mediator," he said. "My job is to see the strike is legally conducted, but it isn't up to me to get the parties together."

SIU President Leonard McLaughlin replied with a terse "no" when asked if he had any plans to meet company representatives.

The chief negotiator for the companies, Ben Truax, said: "We've got no more meetings scheduled."

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Much cooler air has pushed southward in a line from Windsor to Rochester and will continue slowly southward today.

Temperatures today will range from 16 to 15 degrees cooler over Southern Ontario under mainly cloudy skies. A moderating trend will begin in the North today as westerly winds bring warmer air from the Prairies. This trend will be short lived as more cool air will thrust southward on Sunday toward the upper Great Lakes. Over southern Ontario Sunday promises to be mostly sunny but temperatures will remain below normals.

Ferry Strike Looms

NORTH SYDNEY, N.S. (CP) —Disgruntled ferry crews have threatened to snap the main transportation link between Newfoundland and the Canadian mainland for the second time this month.

Seamen operating CNR Services between here and Port aux Basques, Nfld., and between Yarmouth, N.S., and Bar Harbor, Me., have set a strike deadline of noon next Friday in their continuing battle for higher wages.

The strike would hit Newfoundland the hardest. The ferries plying between here and Port aux Basques provide the only water-borne service for passengers and freight. A prolonged strike would seriously deplete food supplies—particularly milk and beef—on border Newfoundland.

The 1,050 ferry crew members staged a wildcat strike last weekend that lasted about 40 hours, piled up freight on both ends of the run and stranded 3,000 passengers who were given emergency food and shelter at both terminals.

Next Friday's strike would also cripple the coastal shipping service operated by the CNR, still the only regular link with major centres for many isolated outports.

The union wants a $150 monthly increase in wages over the next two years. A conciliation board has recommended $75 a month over 30 months, a suggestion described by Mr. Scaife as "completely unacceptable."

Raiders Killed Family Wounded Father Relates

ST. CLOUD, Minn. (AP) — Sheriff Peter Lahr, relying largely on accounts by the surviving father and nine persons attracted to the scene by raging fires, pressed his investigation today into the deaths of five members of a central Minnesota family.

"We have a lot of checking to do," said Lahr.

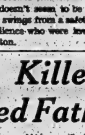
Mrs. Loretta Hoskins, 33, and her four children, Julie, 6; Doris, 5; Linda, 3½, and David, six weeks, were killed. Their bodies were found Friday by firemen in the charred rubble of the plain, 1½-storey farmhouse where the family lived.

In hospital in satisfactory condition with two bullet wounds is the husband and father of the victims, David Hoskins, 30.

Hoskins said he went to investigate the slamming of a car door outside the house about midnight while he and his wife were watching television.

Hoskins told the sheriff he was jumped by four or five young men, taken outside the house, shot and then tied up—arms spread outward—on a clothesline pipe about 40 feet from the house.

He said he remembered little after that until he was discovered by a group of seven teenagers, attracted by fires which burned down the house and a nearby barn.



An elderly couple who lived nearby, Mr. and Mrs. Willard Nelson, appeared on the scene first but apparently did not see Hoskins and were leaving the farm to notify authorities of the fires when the teen-agers arrived.

Hoskins, who had one bullet lodged in his right shoulder and another which passed through his body on the lower right side, related his account to the sheriff from a hospital bed Friday.

Lahr said the fires "appeared to be deliberately set."

Neighbors, apprehensive at first that a gang might be in the vicinity, talked in puzzled and hushed tones about the deaths.

"I just can't figure out who would want to do such a thing to such a nice family," said one man who farms a mile away. "They were good people."

"Doesn't he know we're on strike?"

Police Retrace Ground

SHELL LAKE, Sask. (CP)—The search is still wide open for the killer of the James Peterson family, RCMP Staff Sgt. Donald K. Sondergaard told reporters Friday.

And while police prepared to comb this area a second time for more clues to the mass murder, the Petersons and their seven children were to be buried today.

Mr. Peterson, 47, his wife Evelyn, 43, and their children, ranging in age from one to 17, were found shot to death early Tuesday by a neighbor who called at their farm home four miles west of here.

Meanwhile, police departments in Western Canada were responding to a series of requests for information—about persons known to have travelled from northern Saskatchewan early this week.

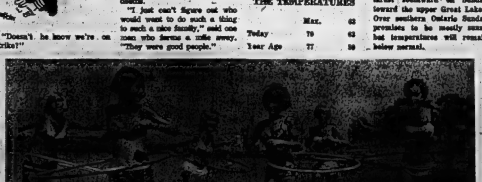
A party of 75 officers have already completed one check of the territory within 20 miles of the Peterson farm home.

Inspector Orien Sawyer said Friday his men are prepared to go over the ground a second time.

Oil Depot Fire Rages for Hours

MONTREAL (CP) — Fire that started at a loading ramp turned an east-end petroleum storage depot into a raging inferno today. Flames and clouds of dense smoke billowed hundreds of feet into the sky.

About 300 firemen fought to control the blaze which threatened huge tanks of fuel oil and gasoline more than eight hours after the first alarm was turned in shortly after 1.30 a.m.



The fire broke out at the Calex Oil Co. depot on Notre Dame Street at the east end of Montreal Island.

It apparently started as a 3,000-gallon oil-truck was discharging fuel into a storage tank. Within minutes, the yard was a mass of flames.

The blaze, whose orange glow was visible for miles in the night sky, was peppered with explosions. Firemen played hoses on the nearby tanks to cool them off.

At the height of the blaze, with bulk of fire enveloped in thick black smoke shooting up to 300 feet in the air, there were fears of a major explosion.

Hundreds of spectators attracted to the scene were kept three blocks away.

Oops! Fair Lost 6,000 But New Record Anyway

The wraps go around the 1967 Belleville Fair tonight — but already public response has matched last year's enthusiasm.

An error in tabulating last year's returns, gave first impressions that crowd of 2,100 for the highlight attraction, the 1967 exhibition would go way over ton of the fair, the Canadian Motorcycle championships.

Fair organizers reported they turned away about 1,000 spectators seeking seats for the fast-moving thrill show.

Today also will be the coolest day of the week at the fair, with overcast skies clearing later and a local high predicted in the low 70s.

However, the fair still will set a new record with its five-day production of 37,946 people had paid this year. The added day's crowd is expected to push the total number of admissions past 30,000.

With A Little Leadership

With a little leadership any calf can do wonders. During the contest a member of the Belleville Jersey Club leads a calf around the ring before the judge, Robert Stockdale.

4-H Club Turns Judges

Holstein, Jersey and beef cattle were judged yesterday at the Belleville fair during the Belleville 4-H Calf club Achievement day.

About 30 contrasts paraded before judge, Robert Stockdale in the ring by the Junior Farmers Building. Sponsored by the Rotary Club of Belleville the two clubs, the Belleville Jersey Club under the leadership of Ronald Hamilton and the Holstein Club under the direction of Delbert McComb exhibited their calves.

The calves, all raised from birth by the club members are about seven months old.

Dexter Harder, 14, Peggy Thompson, 17, Brian Degrow, 18, Nancy Eggleton, 15, Kirk Carleton, 15 and Douglas Jarrell were among the prize winners.

Pre-contest Preparations

Members of the Belleville Jersey Club give their calves one last clean-up before they take them to the ring to be judged. Many of the animals are washed with lemon oil, brushed and have talcum powder applied.

Tomatoes, Peaches Plentiful

The local market was well populated even with the dreary weather and possibility of rain.

Fruit swelled the market with peaches leading the way at $1.00 a basket and moved out very quickly. Cherries sold for $2.00 a basket and blueberries for $3.50. Apples and plums were priced at 75c, beans and box respectively, and gooseberries were priced at 25c a box.

Corn was 50c a dozen, cucumbers varied around the market from four for 25c to 10c apiece. Cabbages were 25c each and carrots were 25c a bunch — yellow beans sold for 25c a box. Green beans were 25c also. Tomatoes were plentiful and in big demand at $1.00 a basket.

Onions and Red Peppers were 10c each and there were still some peas on the market selling for 40c a box. Potatoes sold for 40c a basket.

As usual there was a startling array of flowers. Gladioli were the most popular selling at $1.50 a doz. but Marigolds, Asters and Snapdragons were also offered at 50c a bunch.

Belleville Unemployment News

By J. R. STAVELEY

The local employment trend during the past week showed that an equal number of men and women were required to fill the additional labor requirements listed at the Canada Manpower Centre.

Much of this activity stemmed from the anticipated labor requirements to harvest and process the local tomato crop. Local canaery firms expect to commence processing this year's tomato crop around Aug 24. Local farmers who have not yet listed their labor requirements for tomato pickers are invited to contact the Belleville Manpower Centre as soon as possible. At this date there is a substantial number of persons interested in this type of temporary seasonal work.

Recently there has been a good demand for young men who possess a Grade 12 education to work in an electronic manufacturing plant located in the Brockville area. Although 24 young men possessing these qualifications and interested in this field have been referred by this office, there are still available openings.

The following employment opportunities are now available at this office:

In the female division locally, still required are licensed hairdressers. An apprentice position is open in this trade for someone who is interested in this work and who possesses an academic grade 10 education. There is an excellent opportunity for a qualified dietitian. An experienced bookkeeper is in demand by a retail outlet. In the same field there is a requirement for a number of experienced sales clerks. A heavy clothes pressing machine operator or a silk finisher is needed by a dry cleaning business. In constant demand are registered nurses and registered nursing assistants. Other positions available are for experienced waitresses, reliable day workers and kitchen help.

In the male division locally, the demand has increased for young men possessing a Grade 12 or better education to fill employment opportunities as manager trainees in banking, consumer finance and retail organizations in addition to industrial work.

An industrial plant has an urgent need for a qualified plant maintenance mechanic, one of the requirements preferred is experience in pipe-fitting. Another industrial plant is seeking a fully qualified welder who possesses a knowledge of metals, equipment and procedures. In this case, as the position will lead to technician responsibilities, a Grade 13 level of education is essential. Other employment opportunities cover such positions as a class "A" automobile repair mechanic, a fourth class stationary engineer; a driver salesman, service station attendants, a hotel cook and a club steward. There are also openings for salesmen available, training from instructor to the industrial type of work.

Numerous Kinds of Injuries Treated at First Aid Tent

All the way from bee stings, to cut fingers and a gashed arm suffered by a fence jumper trying to save himself the 50-cent admission ticket.

That's the gamut of injuries suffered by casualty victims treated at the St. John Ambulance first aid tent at the Belleville Fair.

And the request for first aid treatment at the fair are numerous, averaging out at more than 20 per day since the show got underway on Tuesday.

During the first three days of the fair the St. John Ambulance people treated no less than 72 persons. Friday was a comparatively slow day with only 15 injuries treated. But what was lacked in numbers was made up in variety.

One accident victim was stung by a bee, kitchen worker at the Commodores' building lunch counter cut her finger while preparing sandwiches, and a 15-year-old Frankford boy gashed his arm while fence hopping.

The lad was taken to Belleville General Hospital where six stitches were necessary to close the gash which went right to the arm tendon.

Then last night the St. John people treated a motorcycle rider who injured his ankle when he crashed a fence during one of the races.

Throughout the fair the St. John rest tent has been much appreciated as has the baby-sitting service.

And yesterday the first aid tent had a different kind of a casualty. A partially blind, elderly gentleman — he said he was in his late 80's — turned up at the fair in an imbibed and slightly befuddled condition.

St. John Ambulance women took the man in tow just inside the gates. The treatment given was not stated.

Firemen on 'Go' All Night

Belleville city firemen were on the go all night Friday night as they answered no less than six alarms from shortly before 11:00 p.m. to five o'clock this morning.

Biggest loss was at the farm of Percy and Frank Hodgen on the 8th concession of Thurlow township where the main barn was destroyed.

The first was at 259 Herchimer where the garage used as a storage building was also damaged. It was owned by Harold Bowen.

The large garage blaze at 3:04 was at the home of J. Suttle, 52 Geddes Street, where a 1961 Buick was destroyed and another car damaged.

Minutes later another garage in the same neighborhood, that of Mrs. M. Bowler, 20 Strachan Street, was damaged. Firemen answered the first two garage blazes with two trucks and were on the job for about one-and-a-half hours.

Other calls answered by firemen were a false alarm at Lansings on Coleman Street and to the Belleville fairgrounds, where three persons had to be rescued from a stalled Conklin midway ride.

Lost in the blaze was a quantity of hay and grain and also two small pigs.

Cause of the fire which was noticed shortly before five o'clock is unknown.

In the city firemen were called to no less than three garage fires — all in the early hours of the morning.

Juicy Situation!

What's more enjoyable on a long-hot day than a Quinte-district melon? You just have to look at Tommy Trumble, of Picton, to get the answer, as he munches away during break in town's Loyalist Day's activities.

Century-old O'Hara's Mill Popular as Picnic Spot

Century-old O'Hara's Mill, two and a half miles northwest of Madoc, one of three conservation areas operated by the Moira River Conservation Authority, is seeing increased popularity each year as a picnic spot.

The attractions, include a delightful picnic setting around the quiet mill pond; periodic weekend operation of the old water operated sawmill, and a reconstructed century old log schoolhouse.

In addition there is a display of old time farm equipment (democrat buggy, cutter, and horse drawn tillage equipment) to be seen in an open driveshed.

The original O'Hara homestead also situated on the mill property has been acquired by the Moira Authority and is being restored for use as a museum attraction.

The old O'Hara house owned by the daughter of the original O'Hara, has been sitting vacant for many years.

A new picket fence is being built around the house as part of the program to restore it to the general appearance of a century ago.

Items of original household furniture are still in the O'Hara homestead and with the exception of certain personal items desired by the former owner, will be left in the house.

Conservation Authority officials say the old O'Hara house is not expected to be open for inspection until next year.

Three Trapped in Thrill Ride

A man and two youths were rescued about 11:00 last night from a multirevolving ride at Belleville Fair. The Belleville and Fire Department performed the rescuing operation.

David Owen, 26, the owner of Baycrest Marina on Big Island, Robert Lazier, 16, of Belleville, and Stanley Morrow, 15, of Stirling all found themselves sitting in a capsule about 60 feet in the air.

The thrill ride, the Rocket, stopped moving when its brake chain broke. All three men were left at the top.

The operators of the ride set about to repair the damage to get the prisoners down but were unsuccessful. Two men, assisted by a rope, stepped the Rocket from dropping the passengers to the ground.
